The Social Realm.

Knowing ourselves, our world—our task so great,
Our time so brief—'tis clear if we refuse
The means so limited, the tools so rude
To execute our purpose, life will fleet,
And we shall fade, and leave our task undone.

Mrs. Wilson Tisdale of Foster street, who accompanied her husband with the Ancients to London, has arrived home, and when seen this morning by a representative of the LEDGER, was very enthusiastic over the trip, which, as she expressed it, was thoroughly enjoyable in every way. There were about seventy-five ladies in the party and every possible attention was shown us. It was impossible for Americans to be entertained more than we were, and it will become more and more to be considered in the light of an international affair. The passage over was smooth and very few were sick. There was plenty of entertainment in the way of games, etc., and on the outward and homeward trips an entertainment was given for the benefit of the Seamen's hospital, which realized $242, and will be divided between the American and English hospitals.

We were a day late in arriving at Liverpool so that we could not receive the entertainment that had been provided. Thousands of people were on the streets to see the Ancients and several regiments had been called out. The Lord Mayor received us on our arrival at Liverpool. We took the train for London, where we arrived about 9 o'clock, and here there was a large crowd in waiting. The gentlemen went immediately to the Armory for a banquet, and the ladies to the Cecil, which is the finest hotel in the world. The furnishings were beautiful and the magnificent court yard was thronged with ladies who were very glad to see the Americans. That night we reviewed an invitation from the Queen to visit Winsor castle in the morning. About 11 o'clock we were met by the attendants and were shown through the State rooms of the castle; then after a brief rest on the lawn, two lines were formed in the Queen's private park and we were received by the Queen and Princess Beatrice from their carriage drawn by four handsome gray horses. Col. Walker was presented to her and as she passed in review she bowed right and left and the ladies saluted her by clapping their hands in true American fashion. After the review the ladies in waiting came forward and conversed with us and we were invited to a dainty lunch in the conservatory. After the lunch we went through the gardens and it was a beautiful sight That evening we were entertained with a banquet by the London Company, and after dinner we were escorted to the theatre.

Thursday we went to Aldershot and witnessed a sham battle participated in by 15,000 troop, which was the largest number called out at one time with the exception of once for twenty-five years, and it was a grand sight. That evening the Boston company gave a banquet to the English company, which was attended by the Prince of Wales, Secretary Bayard and several men of prominence. Friday we attended a garden party given by the Prince of Wales at the Marlborough House. The Prince was very pleasant and was presented to some of the ladies. The Princess was also present with her daughters, and we were entertained by a lunch and in the evening the gentlemen went to a smoke talk. Saturday we were entertained by B. F. Keith of Boston with tally-ho drives about the suburbs of London, and in the afternoon we witnessed the English company go through their manual of arms. There were many other entertainments planned for us which we could not accept. Sunday we went to Paris in a special train where we saw all the sights and the party separated somewhat and took side trips.

The homeward trip was very pleasant, only one wind storm being experienced. The party was more quiet, however, than on the outward trip, as they were all tired out, yet we had many amusements on board the ship. Mrs. Tisdale brought home souvenirs of the trip which serve to illustrate the many incidents of this trip which only occurs once in a lifetime of a few.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A Quincy Business Man Surprised at Home in Braintree.

Mr. Elbridge F. Porter was given a grand surprise party at his pleasant residence in South Braintree last evening. It was his forty-fourth birthday and a dozen members of the Granite City club, of Quincy, of which Mr. Porter is a popular member, together with a few others from Braintree and Quincy decided to give him a grand surprise.

His excellent wife was let into the secret and she carried out the arrangements in a most perfect manner, at the same time keeping her liege lord entirely in the dark.

Messrs. Langley and Ewell rode up in a carriage and got Mr. Porter out to the barn to show them his beautiful cow, which he considers A No. 1, and while they were examining the fine animal, the others who came from Quincy on the electrics, slipped in at the front door; and the reader can judge of Mr. Porter's surprise when he returned to the house.

After a hearty shake of the hand and a good laugh all round, the visitors were invited to make themselves perfectly at home, and enjoy the delightful evening, which hey did in a social way.

D. E. Wadsworth, the popular dry goods merchant of Quincy, took a favorable opportunity to present Mr. Porter with a handsome easy chair, a gift of the guests, which also was a surprise to him; still he managed in his off-hand way to most heartily thank them for their kind remembrance. Next in order was a fine banquet, which the lady of the house had secretly secured for the occasion, and a most happy hour was enjoyed around the festive board.

It was nearly midnight before the jovial party bid adieu to the happy household and returned to their homes, hoping to be present at the forty-five anniversary.

Dog Damages.

Among the amounts paid out by County Treasurer Charles H. Smith for damages by dogs during the first six months of the year, were the following sums to Quincy people: Edward F. Cullen, $12; Margaret Connell, $5; James Fogarty, $25; C. H. Huff, $10; Ann Lynch, $7: Edward A. Lincoln, $12; Thomas F. Mahoney, $6; and Arthur M. Welch, $9.50.

—Not what you want, but what the public wants, is the watchword of successful publicity, and should be instilled into the mind of every advertiser, whether he expends $10 a year, or $25,000, in the attempt to tell the people that he has somethin for sale.

OFF GEORGES BANKS.

Off Georges banks the sun went down
In crimson splendor gleaming,
As past the bar a vessel sailed
With graceful pennant streaming,
And in her wake across the blue
A stormy petrel flew.

Then from their ambush crept the winds,
To wake each sweeping billow,
And in their grasp the strong masts shook
Like slender twigs of willow,
And, struck by whips of foaming spray,
The good ship bore away.

Through darkling clouds the lightning clove
A jagged path asunder,
And in the gloomy vaults o'erhead
Deep rolled the sullen thunder,
While high above unnumbered graves
Up leaped the hungry waves.

Gray rose the dawn, and dreamily,
As though 'twixt sleep and waking,
Low lapped the waves, as on the rocks
Their long, green lines were breaking,
And in the changing sky afar
Paled out a single star.

Then seaward from the lonely reefs
The sun came up all slowly.
His first beams touched a white, white face
Among the seaweed lowly—
A dead face lashed to floating planks
Drowned there—off Georges banks.

LOST AND FOUND.

The following manuscript came into my hands about 50 years ago. My friend John Williams, the writer of it, was at my house on a visit. I should rather call him the friend of my father, as he belonged to a generation previous to my own. He took a great fancy to me when I was a boy and often told me his story. One day, when he was in a peculiarly communicative mood, I persuaded him to write it out, which he did, on condition that it was not to be published during his lifetime. As he has been dead now 40 years and all the members of his immediate family have passed away, there can be no impropriety in offering it to the public. It is scarcely necessary for me to say that, after a lapse of 50 years, it was necessary to make a copy of it, as the original ink had faded very much.

I, John Williams, had just completed my college career, which had been neither better nor worse than that of thousands of others. A slow, plodding mind was all that nature had given me within, and red hair, a freckled face and a rather ungainly figure were what she had bestowed upon me without. "John will never set the river afire," was what my father had once said of me. Dear, kind old man, he did not know that I was within hearing distance or he never would have said it. But, although the remark was gall and wormwood to me at the time, it spurred me on to exertion, and I made much better use of my time at college than I would otherwise have done.

Mary Mercer, a daughter of a near neighbor and intimate friend of my father, had been my lifelong companion and friend. We were opposites in every particular. She was beautiful, and I was as has been described. She was graceful, and I was not; but, owing to our secluded lives, we had been thrown much together, and her charitable disposition had been accustomed to overlook many of my imperfections. An admiration amounting almost to worship had risen in my mind when I saw her after my four years' absence at college. I had left her a sweet, attractive child, and I found her on my return a woman such as my fancy had never pictured.

Of course there could be but one result. If I had never been in love before, I certainly was now, and I was not long in making known to Mary my feelings. Mary's conduct on the occasion afforded the first instance in which I had known her to swerve in the least from what was the obvious truth. She was confused, blushed slightly and declared that I had taken her so much by surprise that she did not know what to say; she had never thought of me in that light, and I must really give her a little time to think the matter over. I knew at the time that Mary was fibbing.

No woman was ever born with one-half of her sense without finding out such things long before they were ever spoken to her. But there was no help for it. She had the game in her own hands and evidently intended to play it to suit herself. She asked for a week to consider the matter. I insisted that two days were enough, but she was resolute, and, with a wry face, I had to submit.

One stipulation was that I should not attempt to see her during that time. I though this was rather hard and said so, but she was even more positive than before, and I yielded with the best grace I could.

In order to give her no excuse for further delay I set off the next day to visit a college friend and staid at his house five days. It took a day to reach his house and a day to return. Thus the week passed away, slowly enough for me, and I am afraid my friend found me a dull companion. Promptly at the end of the specified time I presented myself at Mary's house. To my dismay I found it full of company. I had been there only a few minutes when I learned that the friends had been there ever since the day after I left. I scanned Mary's face, actions, manner and reception, but could make out nothing. She was kind and agreeable, but that had been her ordinary manner, and no conclusions could be drawn therefrom.

I found no opportunity to say a word to her in private until my visit was over. As I went to the front door on my way out to my horse, which was tied in front of the house, she came out on the porch with me, as had been her habit on previous occasions. As I bade her goodby I asked, as calmly as I could, though heaven knows my heart was beating so loud that I knew she must hear it:

"Well, Mary, what is my fate to be?"

"Really, John," she said, "you must give me one day more, and I promise you to give you my final answer then. The house has been full of company and my time has been so fully occupied that I have scarcely had time to sleep. Every night since you were here I have gone to bed so weary that I went to sleep as soon as my head touched the pillow. My mother has been sick, too, most of the time, and my hands have been full, I assure you."

I suppose she must have seen my blank look of disappointment, for she added in her softest tones—and no voice could be softer than hers: "Come, John, be a good boy now, and I will send you my answer tomorrow by letter."

And thus we parted. I went home with hope deferred. The next day came and went and I heard nothing. The sun sank in the west, and my heart sank with it. My heart was in my boots for many a day, but pride finally came to the rescue, and I determined to try to forget Mary and the whole female sex.

Feeling that it would be impossible to have any peace of mind with Mary so near, I planned a long trip to Europe. It had always been my father's wish that I, his only son, should take this trip, but I had always opposed it, thinking that he could not afford it, for he had two daughters, both younger than myself, and I longed to see them take that position in society which a good education only can give. And, while this European trip would not have seriously interfered with my wishes for my sisters' advancement, I knew that it would entail an amount of economy at home that I did not like to think of. But, seeing my depressed spirits and perhaps guessing the cause, my father renewed his persuasions, set forth in glowing terms the advantages to be gained, which none knew better than he himself, as he had been quite a traveler in his youth, and finally overcame all my objections.

My trunk was packed; passport and guidebooks were provided; arrangements were made for the necessary funds to meet my expenses, but not a word came from Mary, although she must have heard that I was ready to go. Father, mother and sisters bade me a sad goodby, and I was gone.

A few days after leaving home I sailed from New York and in due time landed in Ireland. It took me a month to see all that I wanted to see of that country, and I spent two months in Scotland, three months in England and proceeded to Paris, determined to stay long enough in France to learn the language thoroughly. I spent six months in Paris and the rest of France, and I might have spent six more if I had thought my father could afford it. But I knew his resources were not abundant, and so I hurried on into Germany, devoting a year to that country, Switzerland and Italy. I was on the point of winding up my trip with a few months in Spain, when a slight incident caused me to turn my face toward home with as much haste as if a legion of devils was behind me.

Preparatory to going into Spain, I had taken a Spanish grammar out of my trunk with the intention of brushing up my knowledge of Spanish, which had become quite rusty from long disuse. As I opened the book a small letter addressed to me in Mary's well known handwriting fell out. It was without postmark and was sealed.

I tore it open, with a beating heart, for her image was as fresh in my memory as on the day I parted with her at her door. It was very short, and I observed that the date was on the next day after I had last seen her. This was the whole letter:

May —, 18—.

DEAR JOHN—Yes. MARY.

Only four words besides the date.

I then remembered that I had been looking over my Spanish grammar on the very day this letter was written, had dozed off into a nap of a few minutes' duration and had left the book open on the table beside me. I had been roused up suddenly by some one calling me, and, as it was nearly dark when I awoke, I must have shut up the letter in the book without seeing it.

Everything was now clear, and Mary had done all that I could have wished. I took the first steamer for New York, and never did a man cross the Atlantic ocean with greater anxiety. Well might Mary have remained silent after such a note. I reproached myself a hundred times for never making any inquiries as to the causes of her silence and cursed my foolish pride along with my reproaches.

As soon as I got to the end of my journey I went directly to Mary's house, even before going to my own home. She was decidedly cool toward me, though it had been years since we had seen each other. But when I explained the matter, she seemed fully satisfied, and we were married in a few weeks.

I afterward learned that the letter had been duly sent by a trustworthy messenger, who had come into my room, and, finding me asleep, had left it at my elbow, supposing, of course, that I would see it when I woke up.

Many years have passed away since these events took place, and there is a little Mary now running in and out as I write, who bids fair to equal her mother in beauty. And nothing pleases her so much as when I tell her the story of my finding mamma's letter in my Spanish book on the borders of Spain. Said letter is now framed and glazed and hangs above me. It has often been taken down and hidden by my wife, and many threats have been made to burn it up, but I always manage to find it and bring it back.—New York Evening Post.

Stowe House.

Stowe House, the residence of the last line of the dukes of Buckingham and more recently of the Count of Paris, is offered for sale. It was of Stowe House that Pope wrote to Bolingbroke, "If anything under paradise could set me beyond all earthly cogitations, Stowe might do it." It belonged till the reformation to the canons of Oseney, near Oxford, then it went to the Temples, and through them to the Grenvilles. The grand front of the house is 900 feet in length. The gardens, roseries and collections of trees are among the finest in England.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 2. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Little kindnesses.—Luke vii, 36-47.

This beautiful narrative is preserved by Luke alone, although in the other gospels there is an incident similar in character. But the time and place and person being different, they are not to be looked upon as the same. It was a little deed of kindness for this woman, who was a sinner, to anoint the feet of Jesus to show her gratitude for forgiveness. Yet how blessed and farreaching it was in its results!

Life is made up of little things. We live not by days or hours, but by moments; not by great deeds, but by the seemingly trifling and insignificant words and actions of the daily life.

We see illustrated in this story of the anointing of Jesus many beautiful lessons concerning little kindnesses.

1. Little kindnesses may express great gratitude and love. This woman had been forgiven for her many sins She had received from Him the joy of salvation, and the perfume she brought with her was the emblem of her great gratitude for His unspeakable gift. As a result of her forgiveness she also loved her benefactor. Jesus testified of her great love, saying, "She loved much." Much forgiven, she loved much. To express her love and gratitude for the priceless benefit she had received she anointed the feet of Jesus. It was not a great deed, yet it fulfilled the purpose. Little deeds of kindness express the true feeling of the heart oftener than great deeds. Let us not pine for occasions to risk our lives for our dear ones to show our love, but let us show it by those nameless little deeds of kindness and of love which are so powerful to make life happy.

2. Little deeds of kindness may cover up a great neglect. Jesus was the guest of a Pharisee, but He had received a cold and formal welcome. The customary bath for His feet had been forgotten. The usual kiss had been neglected. The precious perfume with which it was usual to anoint the head of an honored guest had been neglected. But by her act of kindness the woman had more than supplied all neglect. She had bathed His feet with her tears. She had kissed His feet, and had anointed them with precious ointment. The neglect of the one had been fully made up by the kindness of the other. A kind word, a loving deed may often in many places in life assuage the pangs of an intended slight or neglect.

3. Little kindnesses have their reward. "Her sins, which are many," said Jesus, "are forgiven." She was doubly rewarded by forgiveness and words of praise from her Master. Jesus sees little kindnesses as well as acts of great sacrifice, and He rewards them. Even a cup of cold water given in His name is not forgotten.

The French Religious Budget.

In France the cultus, or religious budget, has been reduced 8,500,000 francs a year since the days of the presidency of MacMahon in 1878. In that year it was 53,500,000 francs, but for 1896 it is only 45,000,000. The reduction has been caused chiefly by decreasing the salaries of the clergy, the total amount of that reduction being 2,742,495 francs. Then the sum appropriated for the archiepiscopal and episcopal palaces has been reduced from 210,700 to 31,000 francs; for diocesan buildings, from 900,000 to 600,000; for cathedrals, from 1,000,000 to 355,000, and for repairs on churches and parsonages, from 3,150,000 to 1,800,000 francs.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Faithful to the Pledge.

The spirit in which the Christian Endeavor pledge is fulfilled is manifested by a striking incident reported by the pastor of the young woman concerned. She had been an active Christian Endeavorer for two years when she was stricken with fever and a short time ago died. During the last days of her illness, when too weak to hold her Bible, the young woman asked her mother to hold the book for her so that she could read a portion from it each day. "For," said she, "I wish to be faithful to my pledge to the very end of my life."

Make All Things New.

The church is not simply an insurance society, whose members hold a paid up policy, but it contains those who are bound to Christ as living members, left here on earth as a militant body, fighting against every sin and carrying the Christ life into every part of the world to make all things new.—American Friend.

No Bibles For Sale.

No Bibles are on sale in Santa Fe, "the City of the Holy Faith," and the Christian Endeavorers of the city have planned to open a depository for religious literature.

Absence.

She is not here! That sigh was not from her.
It was a wandering wind that made the light leaves stir.

She is not here! Those are not her blue eyes,
But fragrant, dew wet hyacinths under kindred skies.

She is not here! The gold wheat waving fair
Is but the earth's poor likeness of her glorious hair.

She is not here! The river's murmuring voice
For one inthralling moment bade my heart rejoice.

Goodby, vain hopes! Ah, could I only seem
To hold thee fast! But this were all too fair a dream.

For naught on earth can ever bring to me
The semblance of the joy of one sweet kiss from thee!

Lines to a Young Man.

With your honor make a plight,
Cleave to virtue and the right,
Do your duty with your might,
Firm and true.
Let the instincts of your heart
From your conscience never part,
Caring naught what subtle art
Tries to do.

Sin will rear its cunning head
In your path at every tread,
And, by smiling pleasures led,
Often court you.
But remember well, my youth,
Naught will humor it, forsooth,
But a sacrifice of truth
And of virtue.

If you fix your honest gaze
On the star of truth, whose rays
Consecrate the passing days
With their splendor,
You will earn a title free
To earth's true nobility,
And your heraldry will be
"Truth's defender."

—With summer scarcely here it seems like crowding matters to begin plans for the winter window garden. The best authorities, however, say that slips of geraniums, fuchsias, heliotropes and some other plants should be started now. Just as soon as the slips are started well, pot them and sink the pot in the ground. Pinch off any flower buds that come and keep the growth and shape uniform. This will give good looking plants. A row of straggling slips or ill-shaped old plants are no ornament in the window but that is the kind of display you will have if you put off preparations until the first of September or later.—Mrs. Whitaker, in N. E. Farmer.

LOVE PAVED THE WAY

CUPID SNARED THREE BIG THREAD HOUSES INTO A COMBINE.

Coateses, Clarks and Kerrs Are All In the Pool, With Some Smaller Concerns. Prices Abroad Advanced—Here the Trust Will Save by Avoiding Middlemen.

A trust has just been formed which is bound to interest nine out of ten women, young and old, the world over. It has many millions of dollars behind it and is likely to absorb many millions more. It is sure to swallow up many competitors who attempt to combat it or even to stand with it on even ground. Think of all this fuss over the little spools of cotton thread that can be bought for a few pennies each over the shop counters.

And there is a romance in this thread trust which may brighten the "Song of the Shirt" in all future time. The little spools will henceforth be constant reminders of a love story.

For years the Coateses, the Clarks and the Kerrs have been known as the great thread magnates. They sent their threads to the uttermost parts of the earth. There used to be the greatest competition between them. Each firm was trying to best the others. But one day a young Coates fell in love with a Miss Clark. Then a Miss Kerr lost her heart to a Coates, and matters ran on until the present generation of Coateses and Clarks and Kerrs became closely bound by family ties. Gradually business competition has died out until now the three powerful houses have, it is claimed, united with a prospect of controlling the cotton thread trade of the world.

The Kerrs, it is understood, have dropped out, so far as their foreign business is concerned, for a cash consideration of $750,000. The Clarks are represented in the amalgamation by the Clark's Mile End Spool Cotton Company and the Clark's O. N. T. Spool Cotton company. There are two or three smaller manufacturers who have joined the combination, which is controlled, however, by the united family.

The companies in the combination have advanced prices on thread in other countries from 12½ to 15 per cent. The American branches in their price list sent out the first of the month made no change in the quoted prices. But a change was made in the discounts and terms of sale whereby the retailers could get as good terms from the manufacturers as the jobbers who had formerly been the go betweens. The idea of the combination is evidently to control the sale of threads at the retail counters.

James Rustin of 43 Leonard street, New York, agent for one of the companies not in the combination, said a trust had been formed which was as powerful as the Standard Oil company. The biggest thread companies in the world, he said, were in it and were prepared to outdo all comers in this country.

"Their profits are so large in their trade outside of this country," he said, "that they can afford to give away thread here if such a step becomes necessary to ruin competitors. It is the Standard Oil monopoly over again and on a scale nearly as large. By their new discounts and terms of sale they mean to get to the retail trade direct without the intervention of the jobbers. They wish to force the exclusive sale of their threads in this country."—New York World.

LUCKY MINERS.

Three Pennsylvania Men Suddenly Become Millionaires.

John Galey, J. M. Guffey and A. M. Duffy secured some time ago a six months' option on an undeveloped silver mine in Colorado.

The trio, having faith in their new venture, put on a large force of men, the latest improved mining machinery, and worked it night and day to develop its riches before their option would expire. In this work they expended $75,000.

Their expectations have been more than realized, and today they find themselves the owners of one of the richest, if not the richest, silver mine in America.

It is said that a New York syndicate has made them an offer for the mine, but the amount was $2,000,000 short of the figure they wanted, and they declined to sell.

An odd circumstance about the case is that Mr. Guffey walked out of the Chicago convention when it declared for silver.—New York Recorder.

Old Orchard Beach and Return $1.50.

The beach at Old Orchard is several miles long, and the facilities for bathing and boating or similar diversions are numerous and varied. The Boston & Maine Excursions to Old Orchard are popular in every sense of the word, and the one which is arranged for Tuesday next, August 4th, will surely be largely attended. The rate for the round trip is but $1.50, and a special train leaving Boston Union Station at 8.00 A. M. will convey the excursionist to the beach where several hours may be profitably spent. Tickets are on sale only at the City Ticket Office, 322 Washington street., and the number being limited, your early attention should be given if you intend going.

Patronizing Home Industry.

In 1894 an appropriation was made for a hose wagon to be used at Braintree and a committee, consisting of the Board of Engineers and two other gentlemen, was appointed to contract for such a wagon as was needed.

Specifications were drawn up and among other things called for was that the iron used, should be Norway iron.

Bids were considered and it was decided to place the contract with a firm at Seneca Falls, N. Y., at a price $2.00 less than the local manufacturer's bid. It now appears that the wagon, though handsome to look upon, is not composed of the stuff that the town supposed it was paying for. The iron work that was supposed to be Norway iron is common maleable iron and in places nothing but cast iron.

The axles were made to follow the electric car tracks and when the wagon is loaded the body falls upon the wheels, which of course not only disfigures the wagon but is not as it should be.

We are told that a letter was written to the maker, explaining the situation, to which no reply was received, and it was then decided to send the wagon to H. H. Thayer's shop and have the axles lengthened about five inches.

It surely seems hardly the thing for the town to be obliged to go to such an outlay upon a wagon that cost almost $500, and was supposed to be first class. Had the town followed the policy of patronizing home industry this outlay would have been avoided, and an honest job secured.—Braintree Observer.

At the Fountain.

Yesterday afternoon ten horses, four little girls, two dogs, a bird and a number of boys were trying at one time, to get a drink of water at the large fountain in City Square. The little receptacles at the bottom of the fountain, which are empty were built to hold water for dogs to drink from. Are these ever utilized?

The water at the top is allowed to come out better, but a slight sprinkling would not harm one just now, and it is a pity for no one to see the fine spray for which the pipes were laid. There are arrangements for two high fountain jets; and at some trouble and pains, it is true, these might be a source of great pleasure. Are the basins washed out often enough?

The old big trough at Swithin Brothers' is smoothly cut at the corners and awaits only transportation. The site was chosen after careful deliberation as to the needs of the public.

Today's Sports.

There will be plenty of sports for this afternoon, among those announced being a golf match at the Wollaston links, a yacht race of the Squantum yacht club, and a game of ball at Merry Mount park between the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. and Shoe and Leather nines.

The Weather Sunday.

The fair weather will probably continue through Sunday, though the conditions are becoming unsettled which may develop cloudiness by Sunday afternoon or night. The temperature will probably rise slightly with variable winds.

—The Hyde Park Sewer Commissioners have awarded the contract for ten miles of pipe.

—Canton's tax rate for this year is $16.80 on $1,000, showing a reduction from the rate of last year which was $18.

GRAND RACES YESTERDAY.

The Quincy Yacht Club Series Closes with Some Record Breakers.

A Summary of the Three Days' Races Side by Side for Comparison.

The wind that was needed to make Thursday's open race of the Quincy Yacht club a grand success was one day late but it arrived in season for Friday's race the last of the series, and if anything there was a little too much breeze. It came from the north west and at times the bay was dotted with white caps.

But few of the yachts carried whole sail and many of them were double reefed.

The race, however, was more than a success, the Privateer making the best corrected time ever made over a twelve-mile course of the Quincy club, while the Arab made the second best time.

The course for the first, second, third and knockabout classes was a run to Hingham channel, a beat to Black Can buoy, and a run home, and repeat, while the course for the fourth class was the reverse of that sailed on the two previous days.

The first class got away promptly at 3.15, the Emma C. leading the way, followed by the Beatrice and Ida J. The latter boat, however, soon led the fleet and on crossing the line at the finish of the first leg had a lead of 50 seconds over the Emma C., and two minutes over the Beatrice. On the second leg the Ida J. increased her lead a little and won the race by over a minute corrected time.

In the second class the Rex crossed first, followed by the Moondyne, Swirl, Cleopatra, Privateer, Gleaner and Eulalie. The Gleaner forced ahead and the order was changed to Gleaner, Privateer, Rex, Cleopatra and Swirl. At Brush buoy the order Gleaner, Privateer, Rex and Eulalie. Upon crossing the line the first time around the Privateer led the Gleaner a minute. The Swirl carried away her jib halliards and withdrew. The second time round the Privateer led the fleet and crossed first at the finish and winning the race.

In the third class Arab crossed first followed by Zoe, Nancy Hanks and Opechee. At Brush buoy the Zoe had passed the Arab and on the beat to Black Can buoy the Nancy Hanks passed them all and took the lead, but on the reach home the Arab again forged to the front. When the line was reached, however, the Zoe went over first with Arab forty seconds behind the Nancy Hanks, and the Opechee bringing up in the rear. On the run to Brush buoy the order was again changed to Arab, Nancy Hanks, Zoe and Opechee but on the beat to Black Can buoy, the Nancy Hanks again took the lead only to be replaced by the Zoe on the reach home and at the finish they crossed in the following order: Zoe, Nancy Hanks, Arab and Opechee. The Arab wins the race on time allowance.

The fourth class had hard luck. There were ten starters but the Primrose stripped her sail from the gaf just after crossing the first time around and there was too much wind for the Alpine, Swan, Sparrow, Tina and Nachita and they withdrew after making the course once. At the start Nachita crossed first followed by the Alpine, Sunbeam, Tina, Anita, Sparrow, Primrose, Swan, Fantasy and Sphinx. Upon crossing the line the first time around, the Anita lead hardly a second lead over the Alpine the balance of the fleet crossing in the following order: Sparrow, Fantasy, Sphinx, Sunbeam, Primrose and Swan. In the second time around the Anita increased her lead and at the finish led the Fantasy nearly a minute and a half.

There were but three starters in the knockabout class, La Chica, Tautog and Spinster. The Tautog soon forced herself ahead which position she held throughout the race.

"Last and liveliest" says the Journal.

Taken as a whole, says the Herald, the three invitation races of the Quincy club have been extremely successful, and they reflect the highest credit on the club and its officers.

Today the fleet will go up to Dorchester to sail in the open regatta of the Savin Hill Yacht Club this afternoon.

In its introductory the Globe says: "The first class boats tied down a single reef, and most of the others a double reef, and as the breeze held true and strong, a finer or fairer test of sail-carrying abilities and skilful seamanship could not be asked. The time in which the 12-mile course was covered also shows how fine the sport really was and how fast the racing. Add to that some very hot fights for places, and the reasons for the success of the race and for the extending of congratulations to the club offering chances for such sport are not far to seek. This race was indeed a fitting close to a most interesting series.

There were no protests.

Now for a successful cruise.

—An old Democratic farmer in Maine has just had an object lesson which has a direct bearing on the currency question. It has convinced him of the fallacy of the silver men's argument, and it will convince others. It happened thus: the old farmer, not having a good opinion of National Banks, kept his money in the barn. In one bag he had $200 in gold and in another $200 in silver. The barn burned down, as barns too often do. For the melted gold he received $200, while for the melted silver the very best he could do was $120. He is now a gold man, and will vote against Bryant and Sewall. All his free silver neighbors have bolted with him.—Exchange.

—When strawberry plants are transplanted in midsummer it often happens that a dry spell follows, and nothing but liberal irrigation will save them from dying out, even when potted plants are used. This means a good deal of extra labor for the grower. Often the plants get such an unsatisfactory start they are not of much use the next year.

It now looks as if the first annual cruise of the Quincy Yacht Club would be a greater success than the officers anticipated, like everything else they have undertaken. The owners of several of the large yachts have already signified their intention of joining.

On the same day the LEDGER protested against the inconvenience to pedestrians passing the new Quincy Savings Bank building, complaint was lodged with the Commissioner of Public works, and the contractor may be required to do what's right. Many have spoken in commendation of the LEDGER'S squib, showing the sentiment of the people.

☞ A hot-tempered down-east parson was for some time disturbed by the members of the choir. Finally, he found a way of quieting them. After the long prayer one Sabbath he announced a hymn, as usual, and added: "I hope the entire congregation will join in singing this grand old hymn; and I know the choir will, for I heard them humming it during prayer."

Good Blood

Is essential to health. Every nook and corner of the system is reached by the blood, and on its quality the condition of every organ depends. Good blood means strong nerves, good digestion, robust health. Impure blood means scrofula, dyspepsia, rheumatism, catarrh or other diseases. The surest way to have good blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, and sends the elements of health and strength to every nerve, organ and tissue. It creates a good appetite, gives refreshing sleep and cures that tired feeling. Remember,

Mr. Chapman and family of Canton moved down this week.

The Quincy Yacht Club.

The unqualified success of the Quincy Yacht club's series of open regattas has doomed the old fashioned club races. For something like two years they have been fizzles. There was nothing remarkably successful about the one the club has held this season. If another one is held, as has been scheduled in the club book, it will probably settle nothing, not even the championship.

As the club has already expended a larger amount of money on racing than heretofore, it would seem as though it would meet the approval of the racing skippers if the Regatta Committee declared the race of Sept. 1, off.

The judges of the Quincy Yacht club have made an excellent move in the interest of good yacht racing. They have made, it is so understood, a determined stand against entering protests on trivial technical infringments of the racing rules.

At the open race of July 18th the Romance protested the Gleaner, Swirl and Privateer on two technical points on starting. If these protests had been allowed nearly the whole of the second class would have been thrown out of the race.

The judges gave a hearing and then sent their decision through the secretary to Mr. Sears, the owner of the Romance. The decision closes with this significant paragraph:

"As it appears from your testimony that you filed the protest mainly in order to secure a ruling on one or two technical points of Associations Racing Rules they deem it to be for the interest of good yacht racing to decline to allow it or to disqualify the protested boats."

A WOMAN GOVERNOR.

YOUNG WYOMING THINKING ABOUT ELECTING ONE.

Miss Reel, Still Under Thirty, Is Too Modest to Think of Accepting—Now Holds the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction—A Very Bright Young Woman.

Miss Estelle Reel, superintendent of public instruction for Wyoming, has demonstrated by a successful public record that she is as capable of performing the duties of an executive as her male contemporaries in Wyoming public life. Her friends, in the face of her protests, persist in naming her as a candidate for the next gubernatorial nomination in Wyoming, which will be made in the fall of 1898.

MISS ESTELLE REEL.

It is fortunate for Miss Reel's friends that the nomination is not to be made this year, for if it was their candidate would be barred by a provision of the Wyoming constitution which declares that no person less than 30 years old shall be eligible to the office.

Should Miss Reel become the governor of Wyoming she will have powers placed in her hands beyond those her sex has wielded in this or any other republic. The Wyoming constitution provides that the governor shall be commander in chief of the military forces of the state and may call out the same to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion.

The governor is granted power to convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions, and also to remit fines, grant reprieves, commutations and pardons after conviction for all cases except treason and impeachment. All bills passed by the legislature must have the approval of the governor before becoming laws.

The veto power of the governor of Wyoming is greater than that of the president of the United States, for it extends so far as to allow him (or her) to disapprove of any item or part of a bill making appropriations of money or property embracing distinct items.

The salary of the governor is $2,500 a year. Besides this there is usually voted the same amount to be used for contingent expenses, such as the employment of a private secretary, purchase of stationery, etc. The state does not own an executive mansion.

To a representative of The Dispatch Miss Reel said in reply to the question as to her chances of being nominated:

"I have no possible chance of being nominated for governor. There are two important reasons why this is so. The first is that I do not want the nomination. The second is that the people of Wyoming, male and female, do not want a woman for governor.

"The duties and responsibilities of the office are of such a nature that only a woman of the most extraordinary ability could perform them with any degree of satisfaction to herself or to the people of the state.

"A woman could not afford to assume the duties of the office and fail in performing them, for such a failure would check the progress of her sex in the effort to obtain political equality for many years. Nor has the time arrived when the people of Wyoming or any other equal suffrage state have such confidence in the judgment and ability of women as to place the most important executive office of the state in charge of one of them. That such a time will arrive I do not doubt, but it will be a good many years hence."

"What reforms would you attempt to introduce if you should be elected?" she was asked.

"Well, as I have never expected to be elected," she replied, "I have never given the subject of possible reforms any thought. In my own position, as superintendent of schools and an ex-officio register of the state land board, I have found some matters existing which I think could be improved by judicious legislation.

"We have great bodies of land in Wyoming at the disposal of the state which are unoccupied and unused except as open range. If conditions for leasing this land were made easier, much of it that is now unused would be utilized in such a manner as to have it produce a revenue to the state, and at the same time be of more value to the stockman and rancher than it now is.

"If we could make a good showing to the national government of our stewardship of the lands already granted us by congress, it is possible our state might be intrusted with the ownership of all the government land within its boundaries. If this were done, Wyoming would soon be one of the wealthiest instead of one of the poorest states of the Union."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

London's Great Geographical Globe.

Mr. T. Ruddiman Johnston, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, is going to erect in London a terrestrial globe which will show the earth's surface on a scale of about eight miles to the inch. This means that the globe will have a diameter of 80 feet, or about double that of the big globe which was exhibited at the Paris exposition in 1889. Every geographical feature of importance will be shown and named, as well as every city and town having 500 inhabitants or more. The larger cities will be drawn to scale, London covering a space rather larger than that of a penny. The globe will take nearly two years to construct, and Mr. Johnston hopes to have the views of all those having a special knowledge of any portion of the earth's surface, and will confine his labors to systematizing the information received, organizing a staff and guiding it toward a satisfactory completion of the globe. This miniature world will be examined from a spiral gallery, to the upper end of which a spectator will be taken by an elevator, and as the globe is slowly revolving every portion of its surface will come into view.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Newspaper Critics.

It is doubtful whether any one is thoroughly satisfied with any newspaper as it is now conducted. Jones abhors sports. He cannot see why space should be given to them, but he reads eagerly every item, and even the jests, about the Roentgen rays. Smith thinks a theater is in direct communication with the bottomless pit. In his paper there would be no room for even the announcement of shows. Brown would have nothing but discussions of the tariff. Robinson reads only the financial column. Even the bald statement of an event irritates Higgins, who wished the reverse of the actual occurrence.—Boston Journal.

Last Tuesday Mr. C. A. Belcher, in accordance with his annual custom, took fourteen children off on a little picnic in a large covered wagon. They went to Germantown where they had a grand time.

They carried plenty of good things to eat and lemonade to drink. They went in bathing and indulged in sports till about two o'clock when they returned to their homes much pleased with the day's outing.

SUPPORT OF TAMMANY

Will Be Given to Bryan and Sewall In the Coming Campaign.

Harrity to Retire From Active Political Life.

Massachusetts Gold Standard Men Appeal to Their Fellow Voters.

New York, Aug. 1.—Large oil paintings of Bryan and Sewall adorn the front of Tammany Hall, attracting the attention of the passersby. The pictures were put up yesterday, immediately after the executive committee voted to endorse the ticket nominated at Chicago by the Democratic national convention. The motion to endorse was carried by acclamation, after a resolution to delay action until after the state convention had acted had been voted down by the decisive vote of 71 to 4. The executive committee was called to order by James J. Martin. After the rollcall, John C. Sheehan introduced the resolution endorsing the Chicago candidates. In introducing the resolution, he said:

"The delegates to the national convention from this state honestly and courageously discharged their whole duty in accordance with the power conferred upon them. The national convention did not agree with them. Two-thirds of the delegates to the convention finally adopted a platform which, apparently, meets the disapproval of many Democrats. Like all products of this kind, it had good and bad points, and it is not to be wondered at that in this state a wide difference of opinion prevails as to what is the best financial system for the nation. To divide the Democratic party in this or any other state, because the minority of the convention were not permitted to dictate to the majority, would be unwise and undemocratic.

"The platform, as adopted, in reality provides for the restoring of silver to the place it occupied prior to 1873. The money of the country has always been gold and silver, and the most potent reasons are advanced for its continuance. Tammany Hall is the oldest Democratic organization in the city. Will it be true to its history, and remain loyal to the nominees of the Democratic party? I believe it will, and I believe that the great mass of Democratic and independent voters of this state are favorable to the election of the Democratic candidates, and unless there is a great change in popular sentiment from that which exists today, this state will go Democratic in November." Then he introduced his resolution, which reads as follows:

Resolved, That the executive committee of the Democratic organization of the city and county of New York, in regular meeting assembled, in Tammany hall, does hereby accept and approve the nomination of William J. Bryan of Nebraska for president and Arthur Sewall of Maine for vice president of the United States, as the wise determination of the Democratic national convention recently held in Chicago, and we pledge our loyal and hearty support to their candidacy.

Register Sohmer seconded the resolution. Henry C. Purroy then made a speech in favor of the adoption of the resolution. He was followed by James J. Martin, who said, in part:

"It seeme to me that our policy should be to await the action of the September convention. We have nothing to gain, and everything to lose by haste. Undue haste at this time will, I am afraid, embitter many thousands of good Democrats, whose support we will need in the great local battle in which we will be engaged next year."

At the conclusion of his remarks, he made a formal motion that the executive committee of Tammany Hall defer action until after the Democratic state convention will have decided what course the party in this state will pursue with regard to the ratification of the Chicago ticket.

He was followed by R. M. Morgan, who seconded his motion, and said that he did so, because he believed he reflected the sentiment of the majority of the voters in his district

State Senator Guy said it would be unwise, if not dangerous, to delay action. "We must ratify the nominations of Bryan and Sewall at once," he said. Congressman Cummings also delivered an address, pointing out the dangers that menace Tammany Hall if it did not endorse the ticket. He was followed by District Leaders Keating, Bokle, Oakley, Peters and Mc[illegible]oldrick and Coroner E. T. Fitzpatrick, Senator Plunkett and Michael C. Murphy.

"Question" was then called for, and the resolution introduced by Martin, for postponement, was put before the house. Seventy-one against the resolution to postpone and four in favor, was the result of the vote on the resolution. Then the original resolution was endorsed by acclamation.

FOR GOLD STANDARD.

Democratic Opponents to Chicago Platform issue an Address.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The gold standard Democrats of this city, headed by Nathan Matthews, Jr., and Frederick O. Prince, have issued an address to the Democratic voters of the state, asking cooperation in the interest of the gold standard. The address, after reviewing the action of the Chicago convention, with a criticism of the platform and the candidates, goes on to state that under these circumstances, it becomes the duty of the Democracy of Massachusetts to reaffirm the platform adopted at the Massachusetts state convention of April last. After quoting the financial planks in the state platform, and a review of the silver question, from an eastern standpoint, the address further says:

"We appeal to our fellow Democrats throughout the state to spare no personal effort to protect the party and the nation from the greatest danger that has confronted either for more than a generation. We appeal to them to unite in a determined effort to save the Democracy from absorption in Populism, to protect the people from the incalculable evils of a depreciated currency, and to save the country from repudiation and dishonor."

An Alleged Discrepancy.

Little Rock, Aug. 1.—The national Democratic platform as adopted at Chicago, as certified by the official stenographer, contains a clause in the money plank which, according to Senator Jones, chairman of the national Democratic committee, was rejected by the convention, and has no place in the official platform. In the certified copy of the platform, after the sentence demanding that the silver dollar "Shall be a full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts, public and private, and we favor such legislation as will prevent for the future the demonetization of any kind of legal tender money by private contract," appears the clause "But should be carefully provided by law at the same time, that any change in the monetary standard should not apply to existing contracts." This latter clause, according to Senator Jones, was not adopted. It was offered as an amendment by Senator Hill of New York. The erroneous insertion into the official platform of this clause by the official stenographer was discovered by Editor Smith of the Arkansas Gazette, who wrote to Senator Jones in regard to the matter. A reply has been received from Jones, stating that all amendments to the platform proposed by Senator Hill were rejected.

To Retire From Active Politics.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—William F. Harrity, until recently chairman of the Democratic national committee, and for years a leader in the party councils, has made the interesting announcement that he has retired from active politics.

Mr. Harrity's declaration is understood by his friends to mean that he will give no attention to the work of state or county conventions, or of state or county committees, and that he will not in any way endeavor to influence, secure or control political nominations or appointments of any character whatever.

Tarheels Will Fuse.

Raleigh, Aug. 1.—The Democratic state committee was in session all night, and finally agreed upon fusion with the Populists, in the following resolution: "Resolved, That the Democratic party hereby offers to the Populist party a fair and just division of Bryan electors, and that the state chairman is authorized to confer with the Populist state chairman, looking to the union of the two parties upon one electoral ticket, and report to this committee as early as practicable."

Eminent Jurist Dead.

Providence, Aug. 1.—A cablegram received here from Holland yesterday, conveyed the intelligence that Judge George M. Carpenter of the United States district court had died suddenly of paralysis of the heart. Judge Carpenter, in company with his former law partners, Walter B. Vincent and Judge Eugene F. Warner, sailed for Holland three weeks ago. He was an inveterate smoker, was strongly wedded to sedentary habits, and his inactivity and utter disregard of health-giving exercises must have contributed to his death. Judge Carpenter was born at Portsmouth, R. I., April 22, 1844.

Arkansas All but Dried Up.

Little Rock, Aug. 1.—The weather here yesterday was even more oppressive than it was Thursday. The official thermometer at the signal office, registered 103 at 2 p. m., and 99 at 7 o'clock. At Milvern, the maximum was 110. There has been no rain in a large portion of the state in over a month, and crops and vegetation of almost every kind are burning up. Wells, springs and small streams are going dry. Cattle and hogs are famishing, foliage is being parched and falling to the ground, and forest fires are raging in many places.

Injunction Modified.

New Haven, Aug. 1.—The court of appeals has handed down an opinion modifying an injunction granted by Judge Townsend of the district court, on a motion in the suit of the Thomson-Houston and Westinghouse companies, restraining the Kelsey Electrical Supply company from selling trolley stands. The decree modifies the injunction so as to permit the defendant to sell its trolley stands to electric companies by way of replacements.

$10,000 For a Filibuster.

New York, Aug. 1.—Senor Jose Congosto, the Spanish consul in Philadelphia, has supplemented the offer of a reward for the capture of filibusters made by Captain General Weyler, by another $10,000. This sum will be paid to any person giving information which will lead to the apprehension of men engaged in fitting out expeditions. Immunity is also promised to informers.

Pilot Acquitted.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Minister Caruth has sent the state department a report from Lisbon regarding the loss of the schooner Gracie H. Benson of New Bedford, Mass., at Cacheo. The pilot, Theopollo D'Andread, was arrested, charged with intentionally losing the vessel, but was acquitted by the court at Bolama, Cape Verde. The crew of nine persons were saved.

Remains of Forty-Seven Victims Recovered.

Atlantic City, Aug. 1.—Forty-seven dead and 43 injured. Those are the figures on the appalling disaster on the Meadows, Thursday evening. Of these, 40 have been identified. Three of the unidentified were men and three women. The odd one consists of an arm, to which no body has been found. Of the injured, it is more than probable that four or five will die.

Young Girl Missing.

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 1.—Caroline Schultz, 17 years old, of Cromwell, went with the Crescent club excursionists to New York Friday, and got left there. She did not return yesterday, and foul play is feared. She wore a blue shirt waist, black skirt and black sailor hat, and is of slight build.

Gave Up the Contract.

Melrose, Mass., Aug. 1.—The trouble with the Italian laborers on the sewer system here has culminated in Contractor Eveline formally throwing up his contract, assigning no reason for the action. The town will settle with him for the work done, and the Italians will be paid in full.

AS SEEN BY TWAIN.

Great Opportunities Await American Energy In the Transvaal.

Political Reform Retarded by Jameson Fiasco.

Uitlanders Must Remain In Background Until They Outnumber Boers.

Southampton, Aug. 1.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), with his wife and daughter, arrived here yesterday, on board the steamer Norman, from Table bay, Cape Colony. Although he started out on his tour of the world in feeble health, being obliged often to take to his bed between the delivery of lectures, and notwithstanding an attack of sickness in India, the favorite humorist looked the picture of health when he landed here, where he was greeted by a newspaper man. He has gone far, and seen much in the Sandwich Islands, Australia, India and South Africa, but it was especially of affairs in the Transvaal, where his stay was coincident with the excitement over the trial of "Reform" prisoners, that he was ready to talk. He expressed himself as feeling charmed with what he had seen of South Africa.

"I consider the Transvaal the country of the future," said Mr. Clemens. "It has a delightful climate and boundless natural wealth. I had presented to me in Johannesburg a little nugget with figures on it, showing the enormous increase in the gold output. The bulk of the trade there is in the hands of the English and Germans, but Americans should be able to command the lion's share of the trade in machinery, the largest portion of the machinery in the Transvaal being American. Mr. Hammond (John Hays Hammond, the reform leader, convicted of treason, and whose sentence of death was commuted) intends to bring back from the states with him $200,000 worth.

MARK TWAIN.

"The majority of the Americans in the Transvaal are engaged in mining and engineering. I think there is a great opening there for a young man acquainted with this branch of mechanics. The American element is comparatively small, but the mass of the Boers make no distinction between Americans and English. Indeed, all foreigners, with the exception of Germans, are referred to as English. The excitement over the Jameson raid, and the subsequent trial of the reformers, has subsided, but all the reformers I met agreed that the cause of the political reform has been retarded a decade by the Jameson fiasco."

Mark Twain showed his humorous appreciation of the stolid qualities of the Boer character in touching upon their history. He said, with his solemn and characteristic drawl: "The flight of the children of Israel was a holiday excursion compared with the Boer tricks. When they finally settled in the Transvaal, like the Mormons, they thought the country was so valueless that no one would ever take the trouble to disturb them. Though there is no doubt that the English have preserved them from extinction at the hands of the savages, their hatred of England increased with every interference. God, as they firmly believe, guided them in the wilderness to their different settlements, and the English have persisted in interferring in each instance.

"In my opinion, the Uitlander element must overwhelmingly preponderate before they can gain political recognition, and then it can only be by peaceful means"

The traveler expressed himself as very favorably impressed with the United States consular officials, especially Mr. Williams at Johannesburg. "I think," he haid, "that with the increase of commerce and the development of the country, our government will find it important for the extension of American trade to increase the consulates."

Asked regarding his own plans, Mr. Clemens replied, that he intended to remain in England no longer than six months, and that he will spend in some quiet place away from London, where he intends to write a book.

Will Not Injure Cuban Cause.

New York, Aug. 1.—Tomas Estrada Palma, delegate of the Cuban junta, when asked for his opinion about President Cleveland's neutrality proclamation, said: "Mr. Cleveland is simply doing his duty, and I do not consider his proclamation hostile to the Cuban cause. It will not affect the struggle for freedom. It will not diminish the enthusiasm of the men fighting in Cuba, nor of those who from the outside give them all the aid and support they can."

Mob Disposed of Him.

Clarendon, Ark., Aug. 1.—Godfrey Gould was taken from officers by 150 men last night, at this place, as they were attempting to spirit him away, and was hanged to a tree. Gould is the man who committed an assault on Florence Wright, a white woman, in Brinkley, a few days ago. The mob was after Fred Booker, who committed a similar crime more recently, but the officers had smuggled him away, and Gould was caught just in the nick of time. None of the mob was masked.

Baltimore, Aug. 1.—It is believed here that Robert Garrett, ex-president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, left no will, in which case his estate, valued at about $6,000,000 or more, will be divided between his widow and his sister, Miss Mary Garrett, and the children of his late brother, T. Harrison Garrett.

BIG CORN CROP.

In Some of the Great Centers the Yield Is Already Made.

The high promise of the corn crop is fully maintained. Recent rains in Texas and Arkansas have much improved their prospect, especially for the late planting, while that section of Kansas which a few weeks since appeared in possible danger of drought now rejoices in an outlook which has rarely if ever been equaled. So uniformly high is the condition of the crop in every part of the great corn belt that it is difficult to point out any marked local peculiarities in the crop. The prospect in Missouri is probably poorer than in any other surplus state, continued rains earlier in the season preventing proper working out, so that the crop is rather weedy in the bottom lands. This excess of moisture in the early history of the crop gave a rank growth and makes necessary a continuance of moist conditions until the crop is made. Last week there was some complaint of injury from drought in the very districts where the excess of moisture for the season has been most marked, but that has been relieved by the rains of the past few days.

This apprehension resulting from a rainless period of a little more than a week is indicative of the unusual tenderness of the plant, induced by excessive moisture during its earlier history, and makes it plain that in order to gather a crop in keeping with the present prospect more than the usual rainfall must be received during the next six weeks.

This condition of the crop, which is so marked in a considerable part of Missouri, exists to a smaller extent in some other parts of the corn districts. It is by no means universal, however, and in some of the greatest corn centers the crop is now practically made. As far north as southern Iowa and Nebraska it has reached the roasting ear stage, and in southern Kansas and Missouri a fair crop would be assured with no more rain, while showers during the next few weeks will give a yield little, if any, short of the full capacity of the land.

Those who figure on crop yields on the basis of reported conditional averages must bear in mind the fact that this year an unusually large proportion of the total acreage is in the surplus corn states, where the rate of yield is highest and where 100 means the most. On this account a given condition means more in bushels per acre than in other seasons.—Chicago Times-Herald.

AN OLD GAME.

Swindlers Play on the Sympathies of Unsuspecting Citizens.

An old swindling game is again being worked successfully in Brooklyn and New York by a dark skinned Cuban, who alleges that he has just arrived from Havana. He dresses like a sailor and speaks but little English. He carries half a dozen boxes of cigars wrapped in a piece of canvas, and he is cautious about uncovering them. His usual method is to enter a business place and tell a story of how he was persecuted in Cuba by the Spanish soldiers and forced to flee for his life. As he interests his listener he pulls a cigar from his pocket and offers it to him to smoke.

There is no doubt about this sample cigar. It is pure Havana. The smoker naturally asks him where he may obtain more cigars of the same brand, and with a great show of secrecy the Cuban shows his six boxes of cigars. They are of the same size and color as the sample cigar, and the Cuban asserts that he smuggled them in and as he is in hard luck he wants to sell them at a sacrifice.

This scheme works very nicely, and after the Cuban has departed with the money for his cigars the purchaser finds that he has been swindled. His cigars are not stuffed with sawdust, nor are they filled with tobacco, but they are unsmokable. This is an old, old swindling scheme that has been exposed time and again, but recent complaints show that it still thrives.—New York Sun.

BRAVE WOMEN.

Who Risked Their Lives In the Indian Wars Remembered.

The historic spot at Bryan Station, five miles from Lexington, Ky., on which stood a fort where a famous battle was fought between the Indians and white settlers, will soon be marked appropriately in commemoration of that event. The local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has taken steps to erect a monument on the site of the old fort.

Its most important work, however, is already completed, for it has erected at the spring at the foot of the hill a memorial tablet on which are inscribed the names of the brave women who risked their lives at the hands of the besieging Indians to carry water to their husbands, fathers, brothers and sons within the beleaguered fort.

The battle was fought on Aug. 16 more than 100 years ago, and on Aug. 16 next these patriotic women will dedicate the monument. The well has been inclosed by a stone wall and otherwise suitably beautified. The dedication on Aug. 16 promises to be a large affair. The next work of the D. A. R. will be the monument for the fort on the hill.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dogs Killed by Electricity.

South Omaha has established in its pound an appliance for killing unclaimed dogs by electricity. The current is applied by means of a sponge on the head and an iron plate upon which the dogs stand. The experiment has proved successful.

QUALITY COUNTS EVERY TIME.

There are a number of SODA FOUNTAINS in Quincy, but at one of them there is done probably three times the business that is done at all the rest of them combined. That one is in the headquarters for Soda business in Quincy.

HEARN'S DRUG STORE,

QUALITY COUNTS EVERY TIME.

BUY ·TEA· Of Boston Branch Grocery. WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

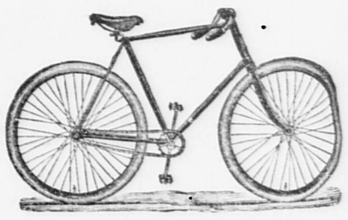

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

FROM FOREIGN SHORES.

Home-Coming of Ancients Marked by Most Cordial Greetings.

Pride of State and City Expressed In Speeches.

Notable Trip Has a Rounding Off In a Parade and Banquet.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The Ancients have come back to dear old New England, and once more declared their allegiance to the historic memories of Faneuil hall and the glories made eloquent by that famous cradle of liberty. Six days and 17 hours, and the Ancients hold the record for the quickest run between Liverpool and the port of Boston. It was 5:39 yesterday morning when the Servia was sighted down the harbor. She had been laying off the light for the greater part of thenight, wrapped in a thick mantle of fog, and none of the home guard Ancients were any the wiser. Signals were out of the question, and it was not until early morning that the reception committee's tug ran alongside of the transatlantic liner.

The march of the Ancients from the Cunard wharf to the South ferry landing at East Boston began shortly before 10 o'clock. As the hour was striking, they marched aboard the ferryboat Winthrop.

The stay-at-homes and others of the escorters were lined up on Atlantic avenue, when the boat reached the city, and the column of march for the state house was formed quickly. First came the stay-at-homes, then the Fusileers, the Charlestown City Guards, company H of the First regiment, and a small detachment from Boston post 200, G. A. R., after which the Ancients.

The return voyagers received a most enthusiastic greeting along the streets. All the windows were filled, and the sidewalks crowded. The shouts that went up were cordial, and the hand-clapping full of vim. The Ancients were in fine trim.

The marchers went up State street to Washington, thence to School, and up Beacon to the state house. There were crowds all the way.

When the head of the column was sighted, Acting Governor Wolcott walked down from under the gilded dome, and stood at the head of the last flight of stone steps, accompanied by Adjutant General Dalton, General Champlin and Colonel Capelle, members of his staff, and Colonel Parsons of the Ancients. The marchers drew up in front of the acting governor. The latter removed his hat, and spoke as follows:

"A month ago I stood here and had the honor of assuring you, as you departed on your voyage, that all the good wishes and the godspeed of the commonwealth were yours, and that its hearty welcome would be yours on your return. That welcome it is now my pleasure to extend. You have been welcomed by field marshals and princes, and if you are welcomed home only by plain lieutenant governors and mayors, it surely is the fault only of the commonwealth which has created them. As I prophesied that you would do, you have carried your flags with dignity and honor. The commonwealth thanks you for your conduct abroad, and feels that the honors which have been shown to you have not been shown to you alone, but as well to the commonwealth and to the nation. You have been the personal recipients, but the state and the nation regard the welcome and the courtesies as having been extended to it and to them. The commonwealth extends to you and to all in your command a most cordial welcome."

Colonel Walker replied to the greeting of the lieutenant governor in a few well-chosen words.

After the band had played the "Star Spangled Banner," the Ancients saluted the acting governor. Colonel Walker then advanced, followed by his staff, and there were five minutes of hand-shaking. Then the march was taken up again to Faneuil hall. The welcome from sidewalk and shop window was lively, and the voyagers were given ample assurance that they had arrived home.

After the conclusion of the formalities, Colonel Walker and the officers of the returning corps, with the visiting officers of the ship, were personally greeted by the lieutenant governor, and assured of his cordial congratulations. The line was then reformed, and the march was resumed to Faneuil hall.

Faneuil hall was decked out in gala attire, to signalize the reception given there by the city of Boston to the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company. On the main and side platforms were tables, set with refreshments, but the floor of the hall was left open. The reception was held at the close of the street parade, and soon after 12 o'clock the company arrived.

As soon as the company began entering the hall the colors were carried forward and placed in position in front of the platform, where the long red, white and blue streamers on the staff, bearing the national ensign could be seen, inscribed with the names of the recent "victories" of the Ancients—"Liverpool, London, Finsbury, Windsor Castle, Aldershot, Marlboro House." As soon as the last members had entered the hall, Captain Jones of the "home guard" of the company called the assemblage to order. Mayor Quincy then said: "The city of Boston felt that the return of the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company from Europe should be signalized by a public reception. This is not the time for long speech-making, however. You are doubtless all anxious to return to your homes, after your long absence, as soon as possible. I will therefore merely bid you a hearty welcome home." Then turning to Colonel Walker, the mayor expressed again his pleasure at seeing him and his command safely back.

In response, Colonel Walker expressed the thanks of himself and the company for the hearty reception accorded them. If Boston was proud of them, they were proud of Boston. He then spoke of the warmth and cordiality of the greeting which was extended to them abroad, and declared that he felt sure the welcome was not from policy, but that all, from the queen to her humblest subject, were inspired by feelings of the truest cordiality and friendship.

Mayor Quincy replied that he thought he should express the appreciation, not alone of Boston, but of the state and the whole country, at the kindly spirit in which the company was received abroad. He desired to say that the good will shown was, he believed, extended as much toward the American people as toward the command itself, and he wished to add that the nation which the command had brilliantly represented extended its thanks for the kindly spirit exhibited by the motherland.

During the serving of the collation which followed, the band played many airs which evidently evoked pleasurable memories among the home-comers, and there was much cheering and singing and greeting of old friends and general good fellowship.

Carries Big Butcher Knife.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 1.—The wild man, alleged to have been seen in the woods in Minot, has been seen again by John T. W. Stinchfield of South Auburn. Mr. Stinchfield says he was building a fence, about half a mile from his house, when, suddenly looking up, he saw a man, with a gray beard that nearly reached to his waist. He wore an old slouch hat, tattered coat and trousers, and an old pair of shoes, tied on with string. His hat was old and full of holes. His hair was long, and around his waist was a rope belt, with a big butcher knife slid in between the rope and the man's coat. Mr. Stinchfield says he asked the man several questions, but the latter simply stared at him, and finally turned and ran into the woods.

The Fuller Tragedy.

Boston, Aug. 1.—At the conclusion of the hearing in the Fuller case yesterday, probable cause was found by United States Commissioner Fiske, in the cases of Thomas Bram and Charles Brown, and they were held for the United States grand jury on the charge of having murdered Captain Nash, his wife Laura, and Second Mate Bamberg, on the barkentine Herbert Fuller, on the night of July 13. The government placed on the witness stand only two witnesses, Monks and Lohece. The defense offered no testimony. Bram acted in a calm, matter-of-fact manner, which caused considerable comment among the spectators. There were no sensations at the hearing, and the evidence adduced did not point out a motive.

Followed Runaway Wife.

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 1.—At Fletcher, 17 miles from this place, William Doodey yesterday shot and twice wounded George Webster. Webster came from Abercorn, P Q., a year ago, and brought with him Doodey's wife, with whom he has since lived. Doodey went to Fletcher about two weeks ago, and failing to find a remedy at law, took revenge into his own hands. Webster is expected to recover.

Death at Dinner.

Boston, Aug. 1.—Tony Peorinno, 53 years of age, living on Prince street, North End, was instantly killed, and two others were injured yesterday, while at work back of the reservoir, just over the Newton line. The three men had been at work in a trench, and were eating dinner, when a runaway horse ran among them, the wagon passing directly over Tony, and killing him instantly.

A Quiet Day.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 1.—Although trouble was expected yesterday at Plant's shoe factory, the day closed without anything of a startling nature happening. Last night about 6000 persons gathered outside the factory, expecting to see non-union men come out, but none appeared. Mr. Plant has provided lodgings within the factory, and the men will now remain inside, food being brought in to them.

Big Seizure In Waltham.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 1.—Police raided the drug store of Hall & Lyons last evening, and secured more than 500 gallons of liquor. The liquor was found in bottles, kegs, half-barrels and barrels, and it took two big wagons to remove the stuff from the drug store to the police station. The firm is the oldest, wealthiest and most prominent in Waltham, and the raid caused a great sensation.

Forged Checks at Plymouth.

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 1.—Several forged checks were worked off yesterday on business men by a well-dressed stranger. They were for $10 each, and were drawn on the Old Colony National bank of this town. They purported to be signed by leading business houses here, and were payable to the order of George M. Gifford. The checks were endorsed by James McNulty.

Fire Alarm Record Broken.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The month of July was a record-breaker in the number of bell alarms of fire in this city. The largest number ever recorded in a single month occurred last winter, when there were 116, but at midnight last night, when the month of July ended, the record stood 121. Of this number, 14 were on the 3d and 19 on the 4th of July, and there were seven second alarms.

Probable Cause of Infanticide.

Boston, Aug. 1.—The dead body of an infant, apparently 2 days old, was found in the basement of the house 89 Carver street last night. The child had evidently been born alive, and had been forced into a flue iron hole in the chimney, where it was found my one of the inmates of the house. The police are investigating.

Charged With Arson.

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 1.—James Downing and Patrick Reardon of South Hampton, were arraigned before Judge Shute yesterday, charged with setting fire to the Jewell residence, entailing a loss of $6000. The state obtained a postponement of the hearing until Monday, the men being committed to jail in default of $2000 bonds.

New England Briefs.

Budlong defeated Paret in the tennis semi-finals at New Castle, N. H.

Peter Jolle was struck and instantly killed by a switching engine at Salem, Mass.

George H. Reed, aged 66, a prominent retired business man of Bangor, Me., was stricken with apoplexy, and died soon after.

John Hamilton, a street railway man in Chelsea, Mass., received an electric current of 500 volts, but is not suffering much from it.

While on the way to a fire at Boston, William Chapman, driver of an engine, was thrown beneath the wheels of the engine, and killed.

Steamer Twilight sank at the wharf at Greenville, Me., on Moosehead lake. The accident was caused by a strong wind careening the vessel.

TRADE HURT BY POLITICS.

Usual Midsummer Dullness In Business More Pronounced Than Usual.

New York, Aug. 1.—Bradstreet's says: Political uncertainty continues an unfavorable effect on trade, and dullness in industrial and commercial lines is of more than usual midsummer proportions. Mercantile credits are more closely scanned, and in many instances shortened. Country merchants in northern Louisiana and southern Arkansas have cancelled orders for fall delivery in some cases, owing to the effect on trade of the drouth there.

The industrial situation is less favorable. Among manufacturers of iron and steel it is regarded as serious in some lines, owing to the surprising falling off of demand. The outlook is for a further decline in iron and steel prices.

Curtailment of production of cotton fabrics continues, yet fall purchases of prints are of small volume, and fail to sustain quotations.

Demand for boots and shoes also is smaller.

More complaint of the condition of trade is noticeable at Buffalo, where the outlook is not promising; at Baltimore, with a less favorable trade among jobbers, because country merchants have delayed purchases; at Minneapolis, because of similar action by country dealers; at Kansas City, where the trade in dry goods, shoes and clothing has fallen off, and remains unfatisfactory, and at Detroit and at Charleston for similar reasons. Business has been restricted at Augusta and Louisville, because of the long continued intense heat, and at Chicago and St. Louis smaller orders and an unexpected depression proves the rule.

Favorable advices are received from Omaha, where trade shows improvement because of recent rains, which have assured good crops throughout Nebraska, and Galveston, where jobbers report improvement, due to the favorable crop outlook.

Bank clearings totals are registering a smaller volume of business, the total for the week being $811,000,000, nearly 18 per cent less than last week, and 12 per cent less than in the last week of July, 1895.

The Wages of Sin.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—William Hawkins was shot four times and fatally injured yesterday, in front of McCoy's hotel, by J. G. English and his sister, Nellie English. Each fired two shots. English was walking with his sister, when they met Hawkins, and English opened fire. As Hawkins dropped to the sidewalk, Nellie fired two bullets into the prostrate body. Hawkins was charged by English with deceiving Nellie, who lived at Galesburg.

Echoes of Jameson Raid.

London, Aug. 1.—The Times asserts that Mr. Chamberlain will not preside over the special parliamentary commission to inquire into the administration of Rhodesia, and the circumstances connected with the Jameson raid. Editorials in all of this morning's papers approve the decision of the authorities to treat Dr. Jameson and his associates as first class misdemeanants during their terms of imprisonment.

Still Opposed to Release.

London, Aug. 1.—In the house of commons yesterday, Sir Matthew White-Ridley, in replying to a question in regard to Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who is now serving a term of life imprisonment for the murder of her husband, stated that he was still more strongly opposed to the release of the prisoner.

To Protect the Seals.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 1.—Her majesty's ship Icarius has sailed from this port for the Behring sea. She will co-operate with United States vessels in patrolling the sealing grounds during the prohibited season.

NEW USE FOR PIGEONS

THE WINGED MESSENGERS TO CARRY NEWS TO OCEAN STEAMERS.

Whole Coops of the Homing Variety Being Raised on the Different Liners—News of the Presidential Election Will Be Learned Far Out at Sea.

Here is a brand new use for the carrier pigeon.

Long ago the experiment was tried of taking these farsighted, fleet and faithful birds to sea, that when liberated from ships they might carry to anxious ones on shore some tidings of the voyagers.

For centuries they have been employed in peace and war. The famous dove which Noah liberated from the ark is, indeed, shrewdly thought to have been the lineal ancestor of the crack homing pigeon of today.

Even in this electrical age the carriers, with bits of tissue paper tied to their feathers, have performed civilization's tasks in emergencies where the telegraph could not be used at all.

But now the experts have gone a step farther in the training of the carrier. Instead of raising the birds on shore, they are bred and trained on shipboard, and if kept on land when the vessel sails will make a bee line for her the moment they are set free.

The presidential election this fall offers opportunity for the supreme test of the carrier's ability to follw her own particular ship for hundreds of miles across the broad waters, through storm and sunshine, to pick her out from among the thousand craft that throng the ocean pathways and land a message at the captain's feet.

For months the men on board some of the transatlantic steamships have been preparing for the trial of this novel plan of election bulletins. There are coops with whole colonies of carriers, which the ships' crews have fed, petted and coddled, and people who start for Europe in that momentous first week of November may be tolerably certain of having a good bulletin system of the returns.

If a business man is called to London or Paris on the very eve of the great day, he has to go. But it is a sorry time he spends. Many a man who has been through it will tell you that for three days he neither ate nor slept. Business calculations are impossible. No projects can be mapped out. The American in such a plight is literally "all at sea." But this fall the carrier pigeon is going to change all that.

Then, besides people to whom the result of election is a matter of business life or death, there are those, just as there are on shore, who merely "want to know." On shore they get early dinners, chase to the nearest illuminated bulletin board and stay there until the last returns are in and cheer themselves into voicelessness as the dispatches tell good news of their candidates.

That is precisely what is going to be done on shipboard this year, and under the gray blue feathers of the carrier pigeon the story of the gold and silver battle will travel over the Atlantic.

To receive returns of a national election in such fashion is alone worth the price of the passage, for it will be an event in history, and there will be gay old demonstrations on the decks of up to date ocean liners when every few minutes a carrier comes from the far horizon, where home lies, and the chalk artist letters the message he has brought high on a big blackboard. There will be cheers and jeers and popping of bottles.

In sending out returns the birds will have to be liberated every five or ten minutes to insure frequent bulletins on shipboard, as well as to allow for the few fliers which fail, as pigeons will at unexpected times, for some of them at times refuse to fly, as a sulky race horse does to run.

In sending the carrier pigeons out to the vessels a start of 12 hours only will be allowed the ship. The birds will be detained at the docks and will see their home disappear. It is said carrier pigeons can see 50 miles at sea.

There are, the experts say, only a few strains of pigeons which can find their way over water readily. Most birds require landmarks—steeples, rivers, towns—but these ocean going pigeons, which are German, Belgium and English, have an infallible instinct which guides them across the sea.

This experimental bulletin will settle a great many questions about which pigeon enthusiasts have long been in doubt. They do not know, for example, just the distance that a carrier will fly over water. A first class bird can go a mile a minute for many miles, but whether he can keep it up for 1,000 miles nobody has yet learned.

A record bird ought to cover 1,000 miles in 24 hours, with some time to spare for rest. It is the resting or perching that makes pigeonwise people doubt the perfect utility of the carriers as ocean messengers. They will not fly at night. When darkness comes they perch on the highest point they can find and rest until light comes again. But the first faint tinge of dawn finds them on the wing again. And on moonlight or starlight nights they often fly continuously, stopping only to rest at the dark hour just before the dawn.

If a bird happens to perch on the mast of a returning ship, he loses, during his resting hours, just the distance the vessel travels, in addition to the loss his own delay causes.

But even with these drawbacks and uncertainties it is long odds that the carrier pigeons, with their bundles of microscopically written election returns, will bring relief to many anxious people and sport to a great many more who are not so anxious.—New York Journal.

The Latest In Jugs.

The fashion of jugs carried on fishing trips in Missouri this year differs from that of last year in having more body and less deck.—Kansas City Star.

What an inconsistent thing a human being is. Men go with dread through narrow, noisome streets, They walk wide of the corners, and look frequently over their shoulders. And the things of which they are most afraid are perhaps a hundred times less dangerous than the thing they think of not at all. The assassin's stiletto is less deadly than the little, insignificant, invisible germs, the bacilli of consumption. This is the thing that causes more deaths than all the wars and pestilences. This is the thing that causes one-sixth of all the deaths in the world. It finds easy lodgment in a body made weak by wasting sickness or debility from lack of proper nourishment. Impure blood is a fertile resting and breeding place for them.

The man who allows his health to decline, who allows his blood to remain impure, and who feels that he is growing weaker every day is holding out an invitation to consumption and to death. When signs of weakness and failing first appear, they should be met by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This is a medicine for people who have lingering coughs, whose lungs are weak—either by reason of colds or heredity. It builds up strength immediately. It purifies and invigorates the blood, tones up the digestion, strengthens the nerves, makes the sleep sound and refreshing. It assists the body in throwing off all disease germs. Druggists are sometimes unscrupulous enough to try and sell something else in its place. Nothing is "just as good." Nothing is nearly as good.

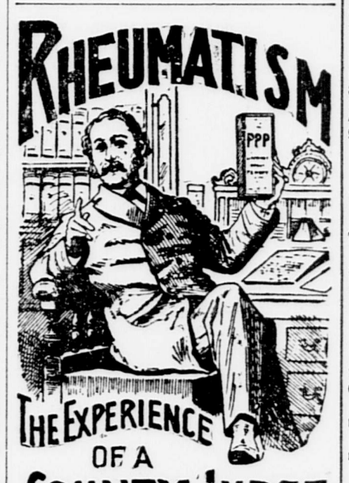

No home library is complete without Dr. Pierce's "Common Sense Medical Adviser." This handsomely illustrated, thousand-page volume will be sent free, paper-bound, to all who will send twenty-one one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. If a handsome, French cloth binding is desired, send ten cents additional (thirty-one cents in all).

DR. PIERCE'S PLEASANT PELLETS FOR CONSTIPATION. Forty sugar-coated granules, in a little two-inch vial—the only safe and comfortable cure for constipation, biliousness, headache, sour stomach, heart-burn, foul breath and palpitation of the heart. They do not gripe, nor cause any other unpleasant feeling. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative; two a mild cathartic.

The Honorable J. F. Greer, one of the best known and most highly respected county Judges of the State of Florida, writes of his horrible sufferings from Inflammatory Rheumatism:

OFFICE OF J. F. GREER, COUNTY JUDGE, Green Cove Springs, Clay Co., Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Twenty-three years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I was attended by the most eminent physician in the land. I visited the great Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the noted Hot Springs of Arkansas, and many other watering places, always consulting with the local physicians for directions, and finally came to Florida, ten years ago. About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism, was confined to my room for twelve weeks, and during that time was induced to try P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, knowing that each ingredient was good for impurities of the blood. After using two small bottles I was relieved. At four different times since I have had slight attacks and each time I have taken two small bottles of P. P. P., and have been relieved, and I consider P. P. P. the best medicine of its kind.

Respectfully, J. F. GREER.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio, says he bought a bottle of P. P. P. at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and it did him more good than three months' treatment at Hot Springs.

Rheumatism, as well as sciatica and gout, is cured by a course of P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is a friend indeed to weak women. It is a positive and speedy cure for general weakness and nervousness.

All skin diseases are cured by it; anything from pimples to the worst cases of eczemas succumbing to the wonderful healing powers of P. P. P.

Dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst form are cured by it. As a tonic to restore the appetite and to regain lost vigor, it is simply marvelous.

P. P. P. is the best spring medicine in the world. It removes that heavy, out-of-sorts feeling and restores you to a condition of perfect physical health.

For Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Failure, Fever, Chils, Debility and Kidney Diseases, take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful medicine in the world

Where to Go for Vacation.

Suggestive of green fields, bright with clover blossoms, are the covers of the handbook of Vermont and Lake Champlain vacation resorts for 1896, just issued by the passenger department of the Central Vermont railroad. As one scans the pages of bright descriptive text within, embellished with beautiful half-tone engravings, he can almost imagine himself in that glorious summer country, drinking in the fragrance of blossoming meadows and the health-giving breezes from the great green hills. Printed on the finest calandered paper, the book is indeed a gem of the printer's and illustrator's art and is an eloquent sermon in behalf of Vermont as the summer paradise of New England. In addition to the matter descriptive of the state and its many charms of scenery and climate the book gives a complete list of hotels and homes open to summer visitors at from $4 to $10 a week, railroad routes and rates and a vast amount of other information that every intending vacationist will find very helpful in deciding the question where to go. "Summer Homes" will be sent for a five-cent stamp on application to S. W. Cummings, G. P. A., Central Vermont railroad, St. Albans, Vt., or T. H. Hanley, 260 Washington street, Boston.

—The Journal has several times advocated the use of trolley sprinklers in watering thoroughfares through which electric street cars run, and has called attention to the successful operation of such sprinklers in Toronto and other cities. A trolley sprinkler was at work in Salem Sunday, and although its use was evidently experimental, yet no one who has seen such a sprinkler in operation can doubt that thoroughfares where electric cars run can be watered by trolley more cheaply and effectively than in any other way.—Somerville Journal.

—Welcome, thrice welcome, Ancients! Gentlemen, you have placed the United States of America in the right light before the queen. You have shown her by your presence, right before her army, how much superior you are to any similar body of English soldiery. You have compelled England to recognize the U. S. as a military power not to be sneezed at. You have postponed international complications; for England, after seeing you, would never pull the beak of the American eagle.—Roxbury Gazette.

—A society to check the decline in population has been formed in France. It proposes to attain its object by legislation. Families containing more than three children are to be free from taxation, while those having no children will be taxed heavily. The legacy duties are to be revised and the laws regulating the division of estates among children reformed.—The American.

—Thomas H. Swope, a prominent citizen of Kansas City, has given a tract of land 1,400 acres in extent to the city for a park. The proposed park is four miles from the city limits, and is valued at $250,000.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Men like Nash, Duffy, McCarty, Frank Selee, Murray of Providence, and Doe of New Bedford, recommend Muscle Oil as the best liniment they ever used, it needs no further endorsement. It is the old English army remedy, used for a hundred years, and for strains, soreness, stiff joints, contracted muscles, burns, scalds, and for banishing muscular pain generally, has no equal. It will be found invaluable in every household.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

Fable of a Kite, a Frog and a Mouse. New York's Strong Boy—Hunting Orchids and Fighting Ants.

Once upon a time a frog and a mouse lived in a swamp at the edge of a pond. Beautiful water lilies grew in the pond, and round its edges were rushes and tall bullrushes, and it was altogether a very pretty place. But the frog and the mouse were always quarreling. Each of them declared that the whole place belonged to him, and that the other had no right to be there, and so they were continually annoying each other by doing all the unkindest things they could think of. Sometimes, when the mouse was asleep in a nice warm corner, the frog would steal quietly up and pour cold water over him, so that he awoke all wet and miserable, and then the mouse would wait for a chance of doing a bad turn to the frog and was quite delighted when he caught him asleep under a big, cool leaf. This leaf the mouse pulled away, so that the sun shone down hot and fierce upon the frog, who awoke feeling all cracked and dry. There seemed no end to the things they did to annoy each other.

At last they agreed to fight the matter out so, they armed themselves with bullrush spikes for spears and began a tremendous battle. Before long the mouse wounded the frog in the left side and was just about to kill his enemy outright when a kite that had been hovering overhead swooped down upon them and carried them both off in its claws.

As they were being carried through the air the mouse said to the frog: "Oh, why were we so silly as to quarrel? Why could not we have been content to share everything equally and to give way to one another? Now, alas, it is too late. We shall never see our pretty home again."

At this the frog sobbed and murmured: "Ah, why, indeed, were we not better friends? If we had never quarreled, the kite would not have carried us off to make a meal for its young ones."

And the kite smiled grimly as he listened.

A Young Hercules.

He looks just like an ordinary everyday boy and carries the usual assortment of horseshoe nails, bits of string, marbles and cigarette pictures in the mysterious depths of his diminutive pockets. He has a 7-year-old brother that he can "lick," and in every respect save one is really an excellent sample of all the bright boys in Greater New York, as the New York Journal tells.

In one particular, however, little 10-year-old Charlie Sandru differs from his playmates, and that is that he is a veritable pocket edition of a nineteenth century Hercules.

Charlie weighs only 52 pounds net, but with boyish pride depicted in his bright eyes he easily puts up a 50 pound dumbbell 15 times with either hand. He also has performed many other marvelous feats of strength, one of which is lying on his back, raising a 50 pound bell in his hands and at the same time lifting a platform with his legs on which two grown men are standing, one of whom is his father. Their aggregate weight is something more than 300 pounds. He has also lifted his mother clear of the floor and has often carried the whole family a considerable distance.

This miniature edition of Samson is a modest little fellow and stands well in his class. His parents are natives of Denmark, and little Charlie was born in Copenhagen.

Orchid Hunting.

Among the flowers of tropical lands none is more prized for beautiful and curious forms and fragrant scent than the orchid, which grows in all sorts of odd places, but mostly on the ground or perched high up among the branches of trees. The orchids of the Guiana forests provide a home for the black ants, "free, gratis and for nothing." Why? Because they prey upon the cockroaches, which would otherwise destroy the plant by eating up its juiciest portions—so that when a human orchid hunter tries to capture a plant he has to reckon with thousands of tiny foes that fight to the very last. After the plant has been dislodged from the tree—no easy task—it is usual to attach it to a long bamboo pole and throw it into the river until the ants are thoroughly washed out of it. And all the time the boat has to be kept up stream and the pole carefully watched lest the ants come aboard. By and by the insects confess themselves beaten, and the orchid seeker retires with his dearly won prize.

Although our native orchids are few in kind, they are beautiful and deserve mention. These orchids are coy beauties, and, like our shy songsters, the whippoorwills, must be sought in the deep recesses of woods and swamps. The kind of orchid most common is the lady slipper or moccasin flower.

Why They Are Called Terriers.

There are terriers of all kinds, and very popular dogs they are too. But why are they called terriers? Well, there is in the Latin language a word terra, meaning earth, and it was seen of most of these dogs that they were good hunters of animals, quick at following them to their holes in the earth and at routing them out of these burrows of theirs. So the dogs came to be known as terriers, or earthers. Tray, which was once a pretty common name for a dog, is just short for Terrier.

There's Nothing Like a Picnic.

Oh, there's nothing like a picnic
By the pleasant riverside,
Where the pretty ducks come sailing
And the fishes dart and glide,
The tall grass bending to the breeze
That whispers gently 'mong the trees

A basket full of goodies
Is all you need to take,
And bread crumbs, you'll believe me,
Are just as sweet as cake.
Oh, any duck will tell you so
Down where the reeds and rushes grow!

THE SPORTING WORLD.

Fishing furnishes a great deal of fun to a great many people, and there is no finer sport in the piscatorial line than catching black bass. They may be caught in several ways, but the proper caper is to cast for them. The caster uses a well made bamboo or wooden rod of medium length and extremely springy and elastic. The line should be of fine, free running silk and the reel of the quadruple mutiplying make. Bass have large mouths and the hook should be big and stout. Fasten it to the line with a fine "snell" or piece of gut and then pass the hook through the lips of a good sized minnow or small frog. Have the boatman move the boat gently through the water within reasonable casting distance of the weeds where the bass like to lie and feed. Stand up in the bow and cast the baited hook with an easy toss just on the outer edge of the weeds and as soon as the bait begins to settle reel in the line slowly so as to keep the minnow moving through the water, for the bass is a game fish and will seldom strike at a motionless bait.

It requires long practice and a natural knack to become an expert caster. Some men with a slight move of the wrist and forearm will run out 75 feet of line and land the baited hook far away at the desired spot with the utmost precision, checking the reel with a gentle pressure of the thumb so that when the bait strikes on the water there will be scarcely an inch of slack line. Others will drop the bait within a few feet of the boat and have 25 to 30 feet of badly tangled line to unsnarl at every cast through failure to properly check the run out. If by accident a bass should strike the bait under these conditions the fish either shakes the hook out of its mouth or carries off a big lot of tackle with it.—Chicago Tribune.

Delahanty as a Batter.

"Delahanty is a great batter," said a man who watched the big Philadelphian smash his four home runs at Chicago, "yet I have seen him, when a hit was needed, so feeble that a little pop up would be all he could do. It's all luck in batting, but Del is as good as they grow at that.

"Years ago, when George Pinckney was playing third for Von der Ahe, the Quakers were walloping the Browns one sunshiny afternoon. Delahanty came up in the first round and beat out a bunt. When he next appeared at the plate, Jack Glasscock, who was at short for the Browns, told Pinckney to run in and get ready for another bunt.

"Pinckney trotted in, and just then Del caught the ball one of those awful swipes he gave it this afternoon. It went on a low line straight at Pinckney's feet. The third base man had no chance to get out of the way, and the ball hit him on the instep of the left foot. His leg flew up in the air behind him, and his foot hit the back of his head.

"Chris Von der Ahe looked down at Pinckney hopping around, at the pitcher standing open mouthed and at Delahanty. Then he exclaimed, 'Py chiminy, I don'd know vich von to dake oud—de pidcher or de third pase man; de pidcher for ledding him soak de pall dot vay or de third pase man for ned gedding de hit!' And he fined Pinckney $25."—Exchange.

Cycling Costumes.

Costume ideas seem to be changing once more, and the present tendency appears to be toward crash and white duck as being cool for summer wear and easily cleaned when necessary. The evolution of the cycle costume has been a curious one, and a few years back no one would have thought of suggesting the present baggy breeches and extremely loud stockings which are considered the proper thing. The clubs all had uniforms which gave them a semi-military appearance that certainly did the members no harm. It was, in fact, rather more of an attraction than the present idea of every man for himself, and the principal objection seemed to be the expense. The change in the rigs of the men has, however, been small as compared with that of the women.—New York Advertiser.

Tim Hurst's Success.

"The reason Tim Hurst is so successful as an umpire," says Clements, the Quaker catcher, "is not only because he will break the face of any man who insults him, but because he joins in the talk behind the rubber. Tim keeps up a constant fire of small talk and jollies the batsmen into believing that almost everything he says is all right and that they shouldn't kick about it."—Chicago News.

Stanbury and Gaudaur.

Jake Gaudaur's backers express entire willingness to accept the terms proposed by Tom Sullivan, as agent for Champion Stanbury of Australia—viz, to row on the Thames early in September for £500, allowing Gaudaur £25 for expenses. As soon as Gaudaur can be communicated with, at Halifax, a forfeit will be cabled to London.

Routes and Rates for Summer Tours.

The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. illustrated book, "Routes and Rates for Summer Tours," published for gratuitous distribution, will be mailed to any address, upon receipt of 10 cents for postage, on application to Theo. Butterfield, General Passenger Agent, Syracuse, N. Y.

This book is exceedingly handsome and has many new features this year. It contains 100 new, beautiful half-tone illustrations of the principal scenery in the county described by the book. These pictures are faithful reproductions of actual scenes.

The book has 150 illustrations, seven very valuable maps, a list of 800 hotels and boarding houses, and routes and rates for 600 combination tours. It is the handsomest book of its character published, and describes all the country from Niagara Falls east to the Atlantic Ocean, including the St. Lawrence River, Canada, White Mountains, Green Mountains, Adirondack Mountains, and the sea-coast resorts of Maine and New England. 10t

Keith's New Theatre.

After months of preparation, the much talked of grand production of living pictures is about to be made at Keith's, and if but the half of what is promised is made good, the amusement-seeking public will witness the finest entertainment in that line that has ever been given in America. The long list of subjects includes copies of historic paintings, which will be duplicated in every detail; funny subjects, like Herrmann's "A Good Story"; fantasies, as "The Fountain of Youth" and "Home of the Brownies," and delightful subjects for the young folks, like Albee's "Childhood Days." The electrical effects introduced into those pictures will easily surpass anything previously thought of in similar work, as in one of them alone more than 5000 candle-power will be used. The variety programme will be found just as strong as ever.

August Magazines.

The July Magazine Number of The Outlook contains two illustrated articles in the nature of the character-sketches of the Republican and Democratic candidates for the Presidency. The article on Mr. McKinley is written by Mr. Murat Halstead, a personal friend of Mr. McKinley. The article on Mr. Bryan is written by Mr. Richard Linthicum, a successful Chicago journalist. Both articles are illustrated in an original and striking way.

The August McClure's justifies its title of a "Midsummer Fiction Number" in five short stories, all of them of such fresh and ready interest that one can read them without forcing himself in spite of the heat and humidity. Neither on its graver nor its lighter side is there any summer dullness in this number of McClure's.

—The triennial reunion of the Spofford Family association will be held at Groveland, Mass., on Wednesday, Aug. 26. All who are descendants, or connected by marriage, are invited.

Big Thing for Braintree.

We have it from a reliable source that Mr. N. E. Hollis purchased the Coddington Thayer estate for the Old Colony railroad. Also that this Company has secured option on the property belonging to N. R. Procter, Mrs. Childs, W. B. Arnold and Henry Haywood, with a view to building a bridge over the tracks at this point.

The work may not be done at once, but will, in all probability, be in the near future.

This plan will enable the company to build entirely upon its own land and leave the approaches to the station practically the same as they are now. It removes all possible objection to bridging at this point, and the man that conceived the idea deserves credit.

The Old Colony people are building excellent bridges, if the work at Brockton is a sample, and when the plans now contemplated are completed it will be a big thing for Braintree.

There are other improvements in contemplation which we may be able to giv to the public in a few weeks.—Braintree Observer.

IN TERRIBLE DISTRESS.

Long Strike of Tailors Means Many Thousands of Empty Stomachs.

Now Engaged In a Battle Against Starvation.

Schoenfeld Predicts That Employers Will Soon Come to Terms.

New York, Aug. 3.—Rioting was the chief feature of the tailor strike on the East side yesterday, and although there were but few arrests made, Acting Captain Hogan kept his reserves ready to quell any disturbance that might occur. On account of the Contractors' association deciding to open their shops, and to take union or non-union men to work the Brotherhood of Tailors had committees in front of every shop at 5:30 yesterday morning, and as the men came to go to work tried to persuade them to join the strikers. In most cases the committee were successful, but not without several small fights, which the police quickly stopped. During the afternoon it was figured that about 1500 non-union men, who were going to work yesterday morning, had joined the strikers. The Brooklyn and Brownsville men are still out.

These have been terrible weeks for the striking tailors and their families in the stifling tenements of the lower East side. In good times an average workman earns $12 or $15 a week, if he is lucky. Often he gets only half a week's work. Since the strike there have been nearly 20,000 men without means of support, which means that in the miserable tenements, where the poor herd together, there have been nearly 100,000 human beings deprived of their ordinary means of support, living on short allowance and fighting off starvation as best they could.

The terrible heat is a plague to these families, who have not even money enough to pay for the poor shelter. They live at the rate of $8, $10 or $15 a month. They overcrowd. Ten persons sleep in a room where there is not air enough for one. The worst ventilated streets and houses are those most thickly populated, and, as a rule, the general health of the occupants is not calculated to bear the strain. So the rate of mortality in the homes of the striking tailors is very high, about twice as great as it is in those sections of the city were the well-to-do live.

When Leader Schoenfeld was asked what he thought the outcome of the situation would be, he replied: "The decision of the Contractors' association to open their shops has encouraged the men. There are but few shops working with non-union hands, and we are bound to win. The situation today is much better than I ever expected after a 10 days' strike, and my men are more determined than since they went out. I am almost positive that the contractors will realize in a few days that if they care to run their shops, they must settle their differences with the Brotherhood of Tailors."

During the afternoon it was figured that about 150 non-union men, who were going to work yesterday morning, had joined the strikers. All the shops that signed the agreement with the Brotherhood were working during the day, and took in 200 or 300 of the strikers.

The Brooklyn and Brownsville men are still out.

A mass meeting of the striking tailors was held at the Windsor theater yesterday. Four thousand men and women were present. Leader Schoenfeld, Joseph Barondess and Benjamin Schweizer spoke. They counselled the men to hold out.

Specimen of German Methods.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—The police have found a new way to look after the dreaded Socialists. Policemen in citizens' clothes are sent to all places of public resort frequented all day long with malcontents and the lower classes generally. They receive a certain sum to pay for drinks and food, and all they have to do is to keep their ears and eyes open and to make arrests for seditious utterances. A new police order provides for the arrest of persons who, after 11 o'clock at night, play the piano or sing with windows open. This regulation is now in force in the suburbs, and if found applicable it will be introduced in the capital.

American Pilgrims at Rome.

Rome, Aug. 3.—The pope celebrated mass in the Paulist chapel yesterday morning, a party of American pilgrims being present. Later a committee presented the pilgrims separately to the pope. They offered to the pontiff a rich national banner, with the arms of pilgrimage upon it, and an elegant purse, containing the pilgrims' offerings. The pepe looked well, and spoke kindly to each of the party. While the pope was returning to his apartments, the American pilgrims, moved with enthusiasm, cried, "Long live the pope."

Down to Business in September.

New York, Aug. 3.—Colonel Enrique Cespedes of the Cuban army and seven of his party, who left Nuevitas, Cuba, in a small boat and landed at Nassau, embarking on the Antilia for this port, arrived here yesterday. Colonel Cespedes carries a crutch, owing to a bullet wound in the knee. He says everything is very quiet in the eastern section of Cuba at present, and the situation is very favorable for Cuban success. Active hostilities will commence in September in every part of the island.

POLITICS AND RELICION

Discussed by Rev. Sam Jones In His Characteristic Style.

Asbury Grove, Mass., Aug. 3.—Despite the threatening weather, 1000 persons listened yesterday to Rev. Sam Jones of Georgia on "Prayer." He spoke of the efficacy of prayer and of ministers preaching too much. He paid his respects to the Democrats and Republicans alike, and said if the preachers keep on preaching politics they had better get their summer clothes ready. "Some of you will say," said he, "that Jones is course. To a horse with a sore back a curry comb seems coarse, but the trouble is not with the comb, but with the back. There was nothing so hard for the devil to fight as the Christian Endeavor societies. So he said to the Methodists, 'Form an Epworth league,' and to the Baptists, 'Form a Young People's society. I can fight three easier than I can one.' People ask me if I am a Democrat. I answer, 'No.' 'A Republ an?' 'No.' 'A Populist?' 'Am I a fool?' 'What are you?' 'I am a gentleman.' If there is only one vote cast for the Prohibitionists in November, you can say, 'That fool of a Sam Jones cast it.' I tell you it isn't money these silver loons out west want; its common sense to use what money they have. If God can be king, I don't care who is president."

Armenian Sympathizers.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 3.—There was a largely attended meeting of the Armenian Dawn of Liberty society, held in this city yesterday, at which delegates were present from Worcester, Lowell, Boston, Lawrence, Haverhill and elsewhere. Mr. Nersah from Syria described the condition of the survivors of the recent massacres as pitiable on account of all their property having been plundered by the Turks. They had nothing to eat and scarcely any clothes to wear. "Mulah," who led the Christians against the Turks at the siege of Zeitoun, when the crescent went down before the cross, delivered an address, full of hope for the future of the Armenian race, both at home and abroad.

A Close Call.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Abbot Smith and Harry Boardman of Bangor went out on Frenchman's bay in a catboat. When off Hancock light a squall upset the boat, and the three were thrown into the water, where they struggled for half an hour, keeping afloat only by clinging to the overturned boat. Mrs. Smith, who, with her husband, are on their bridal tour, nearly went under the high waves several times. They drifted until nearly exhausted, when Charles Hodgkins saw them from shore, off Hull's cove, and put out in a rowboat, a distance of a mile, and succeeded in dragging them into his boat.

Pistol and Knife.

Boston, Aug. 3.—Another slashing affray occurred in the Italian quarter last night. Michele Scheone, for some unknown reason, probably a feud, met and attacked Vito Mastranglo with a revolver, firing three shots at him, all taking effect. Mastranglo was not seriously wounded, for, drawing a knife, he flew at Scheone and slashed him a number of times about the head and breast. Both men were arrested, and taken to the hospital, where they now lie, guarded by two officers.

An Unintended Victim.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 3.—William Kane was arrested here yesterday for attempted assassination of Dr. William S. Eaton, on the road between Lowell and Collinsville. He ambushed him, and fired a shotgun, one shot entering the doctor's body. The wound is not dangerous. Kane was near-sighted, and mistook Dr. Eaton for Chief of Police Scott of Dracut, against whom he had a grudge. He expressed sorrow after his capture that he shot the doctor.

Royalty In Our Midst.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 3.—Queen Emma, of the Bismarck archipelago, in the Pacific ocean, arrived in this city Saturday evening. She was accompanied by her husband, Paul Koble, and a maid servant. Queen Emma's visit to this country is to meet her sister, Mrs. J. M. Malcolm, who lives here, whom she has not seen since childhood. The queen will be here several days, and will receive official courtesies from the city.

Police Didn't Interfere.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 3.—The steamer City of Worcester touched here yesterday afternoon with a party of excursionists from places along the Connecticut shores. The police made no objection to the arrival and departure of the passengers.

Storm Ahead.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 3.—Forty non-union men are expected here today from Auburn, Me., for the Plant company, while six Armenians arrived yesterday. It is anticipated that there will be trouble when these men go to work.

New England Briefs.

J. T. O'Sullivan of Lawrence, Mass., announces his candidacy for congress.

Captain Jonathan Norton of Lee, Mass., celebrated his 100th birthday anniversary.

A lasters' strike is to be ordered in the Plant company's Ipswich (Mass.) factory.

Mayor Staples of Biddeford, Me., is a possible candidate against Reed for congress.

Postoffice branches are to be established in the large railway stations in Boston.

Mrs. Betsy Curtis, aged 70, slipped and fell on the floor at her home in Groveland, Mass., and was fatally injured.

The Pacific print works, Lawrence, Mass., employing 2500 hands, will shut down next Saturday for one week.

Rev. William S. Walker, formerly of Lunenburg, Mass., has accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church at Dorset, Vt.

Levy Dekin, 52 years old, committed suicide at Worcester, Mass., by shooting himself while temporarily insane. Despondency is given as the cause.

Chief of Police Oliver Perry of Pawtucket, R. I., died, after a long sickness. He was a native of Scituate, R. I. He served with distinction throughout the War of the Rebellion. He was a member of many fraternal orders.

MURDERED IN CHURCH.

Sunday School Teacher Repeatedly Shot by an Enraged Man.

Job Completed by Almost Severing Victim's Head.

Murderer Tried to Kill Himself With Poison, but Took an Overdose.

Thomasville, Ga., Aug. 3.—Colonel James F. Lilly was shot down in the Baptist church at Metcalf, 10 miles below here, yesterday afternoon, by John T. Rushin, and in the fight which ensued several women fainted. The pastor of the church was heard to excitedly call out: "For the Lord's sake, Rushin, don't shoot in here." Colonel Lilly, who was conducting a Sunday school class, looking up, saw Rushin rushing toward him with the fury of a maniac. As Lilly turned to flee, Rushin fired on him. The first bullet struck Colonel Lilly, and he threw his hands to his back and ran in a stooping posture. Rushin fired again and again, and Colonel Lilly fell headlong to the ground, in front of the church door.

The men present were paralyzed. The children stood weeping and the women screamed and fainted. Rushin stopped at the side of his victim's body, and several of the men started forward to seize him, but he waved his pistol at them warningly, and then taking a razor from his coat pocket, almost severed the prostrate man's head from his body.

Then, still retaining the razor and pistol, Rushin took a bottle from his pocket and swallowed the contents, four ounces of laudanum. But it did not have the intended effect, as it was immediately thrown up. Failing to take his own life, he ran home and locked himself in a room, where, it is said, he has a couple of shotguns and a pistol and several knives. He is still there, saying in response to demands for surrender, that he will kill himself before he will come out.

Rushin owed Colonel Lilly a considerable sum of money, and was unable to pay it. Constant brooding over his troubles is thought to have driven him insane.

Stambuloff's Grave Desecrated.

Sofia, Aug. 3.—The tomb of M. Stambuloff, the ex-premier of Bulgaria, who was assassinated in the streets of Sofia in July of last year, has been seriously injured with a dynamite bomb. Once before, in August of last year, M. Stambuloff's grave was made the object of outrages by vandals. A riot was caused at the grave of the dead statesman at the time the funeral ceremony was going on, on July 20 of last year, by his enemies and by the friends of Major Panitz, who had been executed by an order of M. Stambuloff while he was premier. For some time after his burial, his grave had to be kept guarded by military, so persistent were his enemies in their attempts to wreak insults on the grave, and his widow was equally the victim of the malice of her husband's enemies in acts of persecution by Bulgarian officials against members of her household.

Bad News From Cotton Belt.

Houston, Aug. 3. — Two weeks ago showers fell in nearly every section of Texas, and it was thought the cotton crop would be equal to the famous 3,000,000 season. The showers, however, have proven to be disastrous instead of beneficial. The heavy dew, the rust and the cotton louse have all affected the weed. Besides, no rain has fallen in two weeks, and the intense heat has caused the bolls to prematurely open and shed. It can be safely said that the crop is 25 per cent short, and on an average 20 days earlier than usual, and unless rain falls within five days the crop will be short 30 per cent.

Finished Up With Laudanum.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 3.—The body of H. W. Schillingford, a former business man of this city, was found in a pasture between this city and Chicopee Falls. He had committed suicide by drinking half an ounce of laudanum, previous to which he had cut the arteries of one leg in such a way that he would have bled to death in a short time. After cutting himself he visited a drug store, and exhibiting the wound asked for and secured the laudanum to dress the cuts. He had been drinking hard of late, and as he left an almost unintelligible letter for his wife, it is believed that he was insane.

Li Reaches England.

London, Aug. 3. — Li Hung Chang, representing the Emperor of China, arrived at Southampton yesterday from Havre, and was received by various officials of the British government. The visitor proceeded directly to this city, where he was installed in Lord Lonsdale's magnificent mansion in Carleton House Terrace, which is to be his residence during his visit in England. Li Hung Chang is the guest of the British government during his stay in England, and at its conclusion his plan is to sail for the United States.

Of Boston Branch Grocery.

WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

Poor Argument.

One of the reasons advanced by a Brookline man for two Representatives was that "there should be no taxation without adequate representation in the General Court, and this he did not think Brookline had at the present time. He pointed out that there was a certain element in the town that favored annexing it to the city of Boston, and argued that it would be a serious misfortune for the county to lose the town. The present, he thought, was a day of political renegades, and the tendency among people was toward Populism, the advocates of which were cheap people who have nothing to lose, and he considered it was only just and right that Brookline should have two representatives to look out for its rights."

Perhaps we are "cheap people" in Quincy, but we don't think so. The gentleman should be reminded that representation in this country is not based on wealth, although the rich are apt to get the best of it. If justice was done, the town of Brookline would not be allowed to exist. It is a part of Boston except in name, and enjoys the improvements of Boston including streets, parks, postal service, etc. It further wants nothing to do with Norfolk county except to get all it can out of it. If Brookline don't care to be joined with Norfolk county towns like Needham and Wellesley and have two Representatives, we say, let her go it alone with one.

A Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 74 at 3.50 Saturday afternoon was pulled in for a slight fire in a mattress in the chamber of the house at 173 Washington street, owned by Daniel S. Baxter, and occupied by Archer Allen. The fire, which was probably caused by children playing with matches, was quickly extinguished by use of the chemicals.

SATURDAY YACHTING.

Locia Wins a Squantum Championship—Quincy Boats at Savin Hill.

The Squantum Yacht club held its third championship race Saturday afternoon. The winners of the championship in all but the third class had already been decided and therefore this was the only class to sail in Saturday's race.

The Locia and Burgess had each secured a leg in the championship and as both boats were quite evenly matched, the result was awaited with interest. The wind was fresh from the southwest which gave the boats a run the first half of the course and a beat home. The Magnolia was the first to cross the line at the start, followed by the Locia and Burgess there being but five seconds difference between the boats in crossing. The Magnolia very soon fell behind, which left the race to be fought out between the Locia and the Burgess, and the former won by over a minute actual time.

The judges were C. W. Page, W. J. Coombs and Benjamin Sargent.

Yachting Spray.

Mr. Henry M. Faxon is reported to have bought Melbourne McDowell's famous catboat, Cleopatra. This will be a great addition to the Quincy Yacht club's fleet. It is understood that the price was in the neighborhood of $700. It will be recollected what a sensation her first appearance in these waters created. She sailed in the Quincy Yacht club's open regatta of Aug. 25, 1894. "Bennie" Nickerson held the stick. She defeated the second boat in her class,—Harrison Gray Otis' Magpie—8 minutes and 1 second on corrected time. That race revolutionized the then prevailing type of racing catboats. There is no doubt but what under Mr. Faxon's handling her reputation will be more than up held. She will probably be changed into a jib and mainsail rig in order to more equally compete with boats of the Gleaner type.

Secretary Whiting of the Quincy Yacht club is in receipt of a very cordial invitation from the American Yacht club to take part in the festivities of August 17. Secretary Follansbee in his letter, says: "We should be more than pleased to receive as many of your club as could be present on this occasion. It goes without saying that any and all yachtsmen who may be in our waters at this time will be carefully looked after and entertained."

Not Wanted.

A Herald item is rather insulting to Quincy. It says: "An enormous crowd of people comes to the Salem Willows, Sundays. Sunday, July 26, there were persons here who had ridden from Quincy to the Willows on electric cars. The coming of these crowds and the rush and jam, and the dirt and destruction they leave behind, has opened the question anew as to just how far this sort of thing ought to go in justice to the residents at the Juniper and the people of Salem, who pay the bills. The idea seems to prevail in some quarters that the place is one where every man is entitled to get all he can out of it, no matter how much the people having houses may be disturbed. They complain that their interests have seldom been considered."

THIRTEEN TO THREE.

A Good Beginning Was a Poor Ending for Home Nine.

The Shoe and Leather nine of Boston beat the Tubular Rivet and Stud Company team by the score of 13 to 3, at the Park Saturday afternoon. The battery work of the visitors was fine, and also their heavy batting. The attendance at the game was very good, and it is hoped that the patrons of the game will help the team financially as well as by their good will.

SEVEN BOYS AT LOCKUP.

One Little Fellow of Four Years Had Trudged from Brockton.

The police station looked like an orphan asylum Saturday night, for early in the evening there were seven boys confined there, the oldest of whom was but 11 years.

During Saturday afternoon officer Golden found four boys wandering aimlessly about Atlantic, and upon questioning them they said that they had run away from the Home for Little Wanderers in Boston. Officer Golden brought them to the police station, where they gave there names as Frank, Samuel and Alvin Johnson, aged 11, 8 and 9 years, and Lloyd Gifford, aged 9 years. They were later taken to Boston by Inspector McKay.

While the boys were being questioned at the police station Officer Barry came in with three boys whom he found wandering about City Square, who said they had walked from Brockton. These boys gave their names as George Dunbar, aged 10 years, of 50 Boyden street; Charles Conifrey, aged 11 years, and George Conifrey, aged 4 years, of 94 Parker street.

Their parents were notified and they came to Quincy later in the evening and took the boys home.

The Squantum Club.

An effort is being made to form a club at Squantum to be known as the Squantum club. A large mansion house and stable, on the shore of Dorchester bay, with a fine beach and orchard, has been obtained rent free for one year. The club house is reached by a drive of 40 minutes from Boston, over the pleasant Dorchester roads, only ten minutes by train from Boston by O. C. R. R., or by the electric cars from Quincy to Atlantic station, where carriages can be taken to the club house. The new boulevard will pass the club house grounds. A meeting to organize this club will be held at the Parker House, Boston, tomorrow. The purpose of the club is to secure a place where fish dinners can be served to members, their families and friends.

—The Beverly Yacht club will hold an open race off Marblehead on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Gardner and daughter, of Hancock street, have gone on a trip to Bradford, N. H.

A communication from Frederic Allison Tupper on "Free Silver" will appear in tomorrow's DAILY LEDGER.

Miss Annie Gertrude Doyle of Chelsea is the guest for a few weeks of her cousin, Miss Etta J. Dell, of Willard street.

Mr. F. P. Hill, foreman of the LEDGER office, and wife, returned today from a two weeks' vacation in New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Tenney and Mrs. R. S. Hewitson and families of Wollaston will pass a couple of weeks at Green Harbor.

Ex-Mayor Hodges of this city has been appointed on the campaign committee of the free silver Democrats who met in Boston on Saturday.

Owing to the rain Sunday morning the Granite City Wheelmen were unable to make their proposed run to Nantasket, but if weather permits they will go next Sunday.

The City band gave another of its open air concerts in front of Nash Hotel Saturday evening and as usual drew a very large crowd. The several numbers on the programme were well rendered and were loudly applauded.

Rev. Mr. Spalding of Cambridge preached at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday. His text was taken from Rev. :58 "Golden vials full of odours were the prayers of the saints." On next Sunday Rev. Welcome E. Gates of Haverhill will preach.

The executive committee who have charge of the arrangements for the coming hospital festival, held a meeting Saturday evening to see what could be done toward securing a suitable location. Several places were proposed and the committee are to go about the city and look at them. Another meeting of the committee will be held Tuesday evening.

It was fortunate for Commissioner Knowlton that yesterday was Sunday or he would have been waited upon by some business men of City Square relative to the outrageous state of affairs about the new Saving Bank building. The street was wet and muddy and it was hard picking. There is no necessity of occupying so much of the street, and the whole crossing should be kept clear.

Strong

Nerves just as surely come from the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla as does the cure of scrofula, salt rheum, or other so-called blood diseases. This is simply because the blood affects the condition of all the bones, muscles and tissues. If it is impure it cannot properly sustain these parts. If made pure, rich, red and vitalized by Hood's Sarsaparilla, it carries health instead of disease, and repairs the worn, nervous system as nothing else can do. Thus nervous prostration, hysteria, neuralgia, heart palpitation, are cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Your Watch is No Good.

"That is fighting talk," you say, but wait until we finish the sentence—if it fails to tell you the correct time.

A watch will sometimes run several years without being cleaned, but it is wearing out, and, when it finally stops, some genius who advertises "Clean your Watch for a Dollar," and whose kit of tools comprise a brush, tack hammer and a screw driver, brushes out the dirt, ignorant of the damage the watch has sustained, and your watch, once your faithful friend, can no longer be relied upon.

Think This Over

Friend, and take your watch to a place where they have every modern tool known to the trade, and work with a thinking cap on.

AN APPORTIONMENT.

How Norfolk County Might be Divided.

It Will be Entitled to 13 Representatives as at Present.

The Average Number of Voters to a Representative is 2,370.

It is not an easy task to divide a county into Representative districts, especially Norfolk county of one city and 25 towns, so that the districts shall be of equal size and the towns of a district contiguous. The county is entitled to 13 Representatives as during the past years but the percentage of growth has been different in different towns so that a general shaking up is necessary.

In 1885 there were 24,086 legal voters in the district or 1,853 to a Representative. Today there are 31,565 or 2,370 to a Representative. The total gain in the county in voters was about 31 per cent. Two of the towns show losses in ten years, and the others have gained in different ratios.

In 1885 Weymouth was the largest, leading Quincy 257, and Brookline was 849 behind Quincy. Quincy now has the largest number of voters, having 4,325, to 3,243 for Brookline, 3,039 for Weymouth, and 2,772 for Hyde Park. Quincy's per cent. of gain has been over 62 per cent., and it is therefore growing twice as fast as the county.

The DAILY LEDGER suggests the following apportionment of the county. Politics have not been considered in any case, but the division is about as equal and fair as possible. Where possible districts have but one representative, so that there will be ten districts instead of nine, and in only one case as many as five towns in a district. To be entitled to one Representative a district should have 2,370 legal voters, and for two Representatives 4,740:

	Voters Per Representative.
Franklin (1184), Medway (818) and Bellingham (323) one Representative.	2,325
Millis (231), Medfield (447), Dover (169), Needham (763) and Wellesley (694) one Representative.	2,304
Foxboro (858), Sharon (423) and Stoughton (1333) one Representative.	2,614
Wrentham (700), Norfolk (193), Walpole (715) and Norwood (1133) one Representative.	2,741
Randolph (1123), Holbrook, (645) and Avon (469) one Representative.	2,237
Canton (1096) and Milton (1171) one Representative.	2,267

NEW JUDGE ON BENCH

Commission of Lou's A. Cook Received and He Assumes the Position.

The regular order of business at the session of the District court this morning was amended somewhat in order to receive His Honor Louis A. Cook, who was recently appointed a special justice by Acting Governor Wolcott, who made his first appearance on the bench in his official capacity.

On the desk inside the judicial rail was a bouquet of flowers while the usual ornamentation of Probation Officer Spear's desk was augmented by a bouquet of sweet peas, each bearing the name of Mrs. J. P. S. Churchill.

As the hands on the clock pointed to the hour of nine, Attorneys Flint, Tirrell, McAnarney, Pattee, Parker and Beal came in and took seats at the bar.

A few minutes later the outer door opened and Judge E. Granville Pratt and Judge Louis A. Cook came in and took seats on the bench. Clerk Churchill rapped for order and in a clear voice read the commission issued by the Commonwealth and signed by the Acting Governor and Secretary of State, appointing Louis A. Cook a special justice of the District Court of East Norfolk.

The two justices then shook hands and the regular business was immediately commenced by Judge Flint addressing the court and filing a motion in a civil case.

The criminal cases were then called and it was noticed that the words "$5" came just as easy for Judge Cook to say to the drunks as it did for the other justices.

Daniel Donohue was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

James J. Barry was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Thomas F. Mitchell came into court and withdrew his appeal from a fine of $5 for disturbing the peace at Quincy, May 11, and paid his fine.

HAY RACK PARTY.

Jolly Young People have a Jolly Good Time Saturday Night.

Quincy is fortunate in having a citizen like Mr. Henry H. Faxon, and the young people in particular are thoroughly appreciative of his many kindnesses.

The other evening a small army of young men and women called on Mr. Faxon for the purpose of hiring a hay rack that was well fitted out with springs and all modern improvements. Much to the satisfaction of all Mr. Faxon not only offered them the use of the rack but Saturday evening he furnished them with one of his best horses and sent his man to look after the turnout.

The young people endeavored to persuade their friend to accompany them on the ride but other engagements prevented Mr. Faxon from taking an active part in the expedition, although his best wishes and much in the way of wholesome advice went with it.

The start was made from the home of Mr. Everett Hardwick, and the party was composed of the following: Mr. Howard Spear, Mr. "Bill" Wason, Mr. Charles Shackford of Weymouth, "Bill" J. Parrot of Brookline, Mr. Charles H. Hardwick, Mr. Everett V. Hardwick, George B. Whitney of New York city, Miss Grace A. Blanchard, Miss Daisy Low, Miss Hattie Pierce, Miss Ada B. Thompson, Miss Grace Pulsifer of Ashmont, Miss May and Miss Clara Merrill. Mrs. George B Whitney of New York chaperoned the party.

Ridge Hill grove, in Norwell was their destination. Arriving there at 8 o'clock the hay rack left its precious cargo to enjoy the dancing and music. At precisely 10 o'clock the party started for home and on the way a few blood curdling ghost stories helped to make things in general interesting.

Quincy was reached at 11.50 o'clock and all was calm and serene before Sunday morning.

Those who took part in the ride fully appreciated the generosity of Mr. Faxon and a 11.50 o'clock cheer was suggested outside of his door, but for fear of disturbing their friend, the young people departed on their several ways in peace.

RAID AT NORFOLK DOWNS.

Workmen on New Schoolhouse Will Have to Go Elsewhere.

Near the new school building at Norfolk Downs is the old Quincy farm house, which is occupied by Arthur P. Gardner. He doubtless thought it would be a good scheme to supply the workmen on the school building with what liquid refreshments they needed but it coming to the ears of the police Inspector McKay he began to watch the place and soon had seen enough to convince him that Gardner was violating the law.

Friday night a load of "drinkables" arrived and Saturday shortly before noon Chief Hayden, Inspector McKay and officers Barry, Nicol, Hanson, G. A. McKay, J. W. Murray and J. A. O'Brien might have been seen headed toward Wollaston Park. Arriving on the scene they got behind some shrubbery and waited for 12 o'clock to come. They did not have to wait long before the whistle on the Wollaston machine shop sounded the hour. Hardly had the sound died away when the workmen filed across the street and into Gardner's house. The police quickly followed and arrived just in time to see the foaming lager flowing down the parched throats of the workmen.

The officers then helped themselves and when they returned to Quincy they had 111 full bottles of beer, 21 empty beer bottles, a pint flask half full of whiskey, 52 empty whiskey flasks, three jugs that had contained whiskey, also glasses, tumblers, etc.

The New Bell.

The church bell presented to the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, by Mr. Henry H. Faxon, is to be cast today at the Blake Bell Foundry, Boston. It will be in the key of G, and its sweet tones will very shortly summon the church going people to worship.

SCROFULA AND ERYSIPELAS

Two Diseases That Cause Their Victims to Be Shunned by Their Fellow-Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: I commenced taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, last Fall, for Erysipelas. My face was completely covered with the disease; I took a short course of P. P. P., and it soon disappeared. This Spring I became much debilitated and again took another course, and I am now in good condition. I consider P. P. P. one of the best blood preparations on the market, and for those who need a general tonic to build up the system and improve the appetite I consider that it has no equal. Will say, anyone who cares to try P. P. P. will not be disappointed in its results, and I, therefore, cheerfully recommend it.

ARTHUR WOOD,
Springfield, Mo.

Erysipelas and Scrofula cured by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, surely and without fail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: Last June I had a scrofulous sore which broke out on my ankle. It grew rapidly, and soon extended from my ankle to my knee. I got one bottle of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and was agreeably surprised at the result. The entire sore healed at once. I think I have taken almost every medicine recommended for scrofula and catarrh, and your P. P. P. is the best I have ever tried. It cannot be recommended too highly for blood poison, etc.

Yours very truly,
W. P. HUNTER.

Americans the Best Riders.

New York, Aug. 3.—John S. Johnson, who arrived on the Paris Saturday, does not believe the foreign bicycle riders as dangerous as they have been painted. That they are a long way from the novice stage he admits, but he predicts that if the pick of the French and English riders should come over and meet our stars, they would have the utmost respect for the Americans. "Those men are fast riders," Johnson said, "but they are not speedy enough to beat our best men in contests on this side of the water. They are up to all the tricks of the trade, and can make it very uncomfortable for a stranger if they try, and they generally try."

Cleveland Strike Branching Out.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—The executive committee of the striking Brown hoisting men and the labor leaders of several unions have decided that a sympathetic strike is necessary. The number of unions affiliated with the Central Labor union is over 60, and the total membership numbers 20,000 in all branches of trade. These men have voluntarily bound themselves to obey the mandates of the Central Labor union, which consists of chosen representatives from the different unions. The fight will be national. Every union in the United States will be called on to assist its members for the support of the Brown hoisting strikers.

Captain and Crew Rescued.

Quarantine, S. I., Aug. 3.—Steamer La Bourgogne, from Havre, brought the captain and crew of the German bark Ernest, taken from the vessel in mid-ocean on July 28. The Ernest had sprung aleak during a gale, and the men were kept constantly at the pumps for 49 hours. The vessel, when abandoned, had 10 feet of water in her hold. It was with much difficulty that the men were rescued, there being a strong breeze and heavy sea. The first lieutenant of La Bourgogne was washed overboard in lowering a boat and was nearly drowned.

Jumped the Track.

Somersworth, N. H., Aug. 3.—A passenger train for Rollinsford got off the track through an open switch here, and the engine and combination passenger and baggage car were ditched, and six persons mixed up in the wreck. Dr. G. E. Whitten of Auburndale, Mass., was the only person hurt, being thrown across the car.

Fought Themselves Overboard.

New York, Aug. 3.—James Murphy, 35 years old, and Stephen Garvey, 50 years old, fought on pier 25, North river. During the struggle both men tumbled into the river and were drowned.

Then and Now.

Once I wrote a charming sonnet
To my Lady Mary's bonnet,
And I called it smart and fetching, and I called it highest art,
And I vowed each time I met her
With it on I loved her better,
And I ended by affirming that it simply touched my heart.

We are wed, but Mary's bonnets
Never move me now to sonnets.
If they did, I'd spend in rhyming of my life the greater part.
True, her millinery's charming,
But the bills are most alarming,
And they touch my pocket deeper than the bonnets touch my heart.

Building Fell on Them.

Columbus City, Ala., Aug. 3.—Maynard Covans was escorting Miss Dovie Proctor and Della Bishop out for a walk yesterday, when a cloud gathered. A heavy rain and wind storm came up, when the trio stepped into an old building to keep from getting wet. The storm increased in fury until the building collapsed, all three being caught in the debris. Covans and Miss Proctor were instantly killed, and Miss Bishop fatally injured.

Two Fatalities.

Clinton, Ills., Aug. 3.—A disastrous wreck occurred on the Illinois Central here. Both engines were completely wrecked. One mail car was shattered into splinters and the other car and baggage cars were badly damaged. Engineer Burchnaugh and Mail Agent Baker were killed. Ten trainmen were injured, but the passengers escaped unhurt.

Christians Well Satisfied.

Canea, Aug. 3.—Extreme satisfaction is felt here among the Christians at the news that the governor of Candia, whose report of the recent pillaging and burning was not deemed satisfactory, has been replaced by Hassan Pasha, who formerly established such a satisfactory condition in the same district.

The New Jersey Horror.

Atlantic City, Aug. 3.—No additional deaths have yet occurred as a result of Thursday night's collision, and the death roll stands at 44. There is a possibility that it may remain at that figure, but it is only a remote one. At the sanitarium it is reported that the 15 patients still there are doing as well as could be expected, and, while there is a bare chance of pulling them all through safely, the odds are against at least three.

Russia In the Game.

London, Aug. 3.—Poulteney Bigelow arrived in England from Cape Town on Saturday. He had an opportunity of inquiring into the situation in the Transvaal, and talked with people on both sides. He thinks that trouble between the Boers and the Uitlanders is sure to come, and says that the methods of the Boer government are bad. He adds that Russia's police spies are everywhere, and that letters are opened, etc.

Victim of Malpractice.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 3.—Medical Examiner Hurd, yesterday, performed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Minnie B. Austin, and ascertained that death resulted from a criminal operation. Mrs. Austin lived in Haverhill. An arrest may follow.

TO CONSULT LEADERS.

Chairman Jones Expected to Spend This Week In Washington.

He Speaks of Bryan's Attitude Toward Populists.

Says That Progress of Silver Sentiment Has Not Been Retarded.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Senator Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national Democratic committee, returned to this city yesterday, from his trip to the west, which included St. Louis, during the Populist convention week, Mr. Bryan at Lincoln and the senator's home in Arkansas. The senator expects to remain in the city during this week, for consultation with such Democratic leaders as may be here from time to time, and later will go to New York city to attend the meeting of the national committee on the 11th, and the Bryan and Sewall notification on the day following. The understanding now is that the two candidates will be notified at the same time, as has been done by the Democratic party in the past.

Pending the meeting of the national committee in New York, the final disposition of the question of establishment of permanent headquarters during the coming campaign is hardly looked for. Senator Jones had nothing definite to say on this subject, and expressed the opinion that the matter would not be settled until the committee meets.

While Senator Jones is believed to have about decided upon the formation of the executive committee, which will have active charge of campaign work, he is not yet prepared to make public any names. In this case also he expressed the opinion that the committee would not be fully named until the meeting in New York. He may, however, announce an individual member or two during his stay in this city.

When asked the question, "Will Mr. Bryan accept the nomination offered him by the Populists?" he answered slowly and deliberately, "How can he? He was nominated with Mr. Sewall on the Democratic platform, and he will do nothing that will reflect upon him as a gentleman or as a Democratic candidate. He appreciates very highly the fact that the Populists honored him with so many of their votes, but when he sent that telegram to the St. Louis convention, requesting the withdrawal of his name, he meant that he could not accept the nomination. He is of the same mind now.

"I see that some of the Populists are declaring that unless Mr. Bryan accepts their nomination by Aug. 5, the central committee will withdraw his name and put some one else in his place. Well, let them do so. Mr. Bryan having been the nominee of the Democrats and of the Silver party, common decency would at least suggest the propriety of his accepting the nominations first. But suppose the Populists do nominate another candidate for the presidency, what will be the situation? Mr. Bryan received 1000 votes in their convention, and then this central committee, composed of a few men, comes along and nominates a new man. It will simply mean the disruption and disorganization of the Populist party.

"We all know that we are going to have either Bryan and Sewall or McKinley and Hobart. The best men and the most intelligent of the Populist party will vote for Bryan and Sewall. That section of the People's party that is actuated by patriotism will vote for free silver, and when they find that the Populist party, which was organized to bring about free silver, and which they joined with that object in view, is forsaking its mission, they will come back to the Democratic party."

The senator's attention was called to the statement in the Atlanta Journal, made by Hon. W. L. Peek, who led the Georgia delegation at the Populist convention, that there was an understanding between the Populist and Democratic leaders that if the Populists would nominate Bryan for president and a southern Populist for vice president that Mr. Sewall would retire from the race. Regarding this, Mr. Jones declared that so far as he knew no arrangement of the kind was entered into.

The chairman is well satisfied with the general situation, and says the Democratic ticket is as good as can be. He ridicules the idea of a reaction in the silver sentiment, and looks for its continued progress. "This sentiment," said he, "began with the repeal of the Sherman act, and has progressed ever since."

"THE CRIME OF 1873"

And Other Financial Topics Discussed by Cabinet Minister Morton.

Nebraska City, Neb., Aug. 3.—J. Sterling Morton delivered a non-partisan address on finance Saturday in the presence of a large audience. He drew comparison between the money of the country when he came to Nebraska in pioneer days, and now. He said then it was something substantial, such as cattle, horses and hogs, and not until the present was there an effort to create value from something which had no value as a commodity.

After explaining the origin of money and dwelling upon the object of substituting coin values, Mr. Morton said: "The sole origin, source and cause of value is human desire; when there is a demand for things they have value; when the supply remains stationary, and the demand increases, the value increases; when the demand ceases altogether the value is altogether gone. Up to the time of this alleged demonetization of silver, the government had, during the entire existence, coined less than 9,000,000 silver dollars. Under the Bland-Allison act of 1878, the government authorized the coinage of the standard silver dollar and to restore its legal tender character.

"This act was to resuscitate the declining value of silver. It was to place it side by side with gold as part of the redemption money of the United States. Let it be remembered that silver has been demonetized by the act of 1873, and that the legislation of 1878 was based upon the fallacy that silver dollars of gold value, could be substituted for depreciated paper. The silver dollars coined before this enactment, amounting to between $8,000,000 and 9,000,000, had long before disappeared from circulation.

The decline in the value of silver was consequent upon its increased production, which began to exceed the demand for its use. European nations omitted it from their coinage laws. They dropped it because they had already as much silver money as their people demanded. They dropped it because they knew that no amount of coining of this material could arrest its further decline, if increased production continued.

"But it is impossible to cover the whole ground in a single desultory speech. Let us then go back to the alleged crime of 1873. Was there a conspiracy? If so, who were the conspirators? They were the genius of trade, the enterprise of the American people and the intelligence of an advanced civilization. The flat boat in which I crossed the Missouri river in the autumn of 1854 was by a conspiracy between capital and human ingenuity deferryized, and the steamboat took its place. This change took place because immigration and the development of the territory became too big for flat boats. Later on a conspiracy again transpired, wherein capital and civilization have combined to deferryize the steamboat, and the result is the magnificent steel bridge upon which our trains cross every day.

"This republic is not a Judas Iscariot among civilized nations. It refuses to betray honest dealing. It scorns even 20,000,000 times 30 pieces of silver, and is compelled by its judgment and its conscience to reject the importunities of those who would deliver the safety and perpetuity of the country into the hands of socialism, zealotry, fanaticism and dishonesty. It ignores and scorns all those who would applaud and jeer at the crucifixion of the credit of our government, which has been, and God grant that it may continue to be, the savior of civil and religious liberty, the friend and asylum of the poor and oppressed of all nations."

Alabama Politics.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 3.—It is evident that the Populist-Republican leaders do not expect their state ticket to be elected today, but are directing all their energies to capture the legislature for the purpose of seating Goodwin as governor on the allegation that he had been defrauded, and also electing a Populist or Republican senator. William Vaughan, state Republican chairman, said that he believes that a fair election will not be held, that there is every indication of fraud in the black belt counties, but he believes the fusionists will control the legislature or joint ballot, and if they do Goodwin will be the next governor. He asserts that with a fair election Goodwin would carry 40 out of 66 counties. Captain Joseph F. Johnston, Democratic candidate for governor, said last night: "I am satisfied from observations and reports that we shall carry the state by not less than 40,000 majority, and probably much larger. All the Democrats, without regard to the currency question, and I think many Republicans who favor free coinage, will vote our ticket. Good government and protection to property interests are largely involved. The legislature will, I think, be nearly two-thirds Democratic, standing on the Chicago platform. I have distinctly made the issue that a large majority cast for our ticket today would strengthen Bryan in November."

Bourke Cochran Bolts.

New York, Aug. 3.—Bourke Cochran, the silver-tongued orator of the Democracy, has just returned from Europe. A Sun reporter has had an interview with him, in which he says that a new ticket is not needed. The obvious policy, he says, is to endorse the McKinley electors, as Republican success will mean the defeat of free silver. The gold standard Democrats, he declares, will then be in a position to resume opposition to general Republican principles the moment Bryan is defeated.

Gold Men Encouraged.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 3.—Hilary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy, reached here last night, and cast his vote today for the full Democratic state and county ticket. His presence in the city has rallied the Democrats who have bolted the national ticket, and it is announced that after the state elections are disposed of, some diligent work will be done in Alabama in the interest of the proposed gold standard Democratic movement.

To Fight Chicago Ticket.

Chattanooga, Aug. 3.—A number of leading Democrats met here and selected W. L. Frierson, a leading attorney, to attend the Indianapolis gold standard meeting. The anti-Chicago platform Democrats at Chattanooga are numerous, and almost unanimously favor a gold standard Democratic presidential ticket.

Cincinnati Storm Swept.

Cincinnati, Aug. 3.—Many people yesterday visited the scenes of the hurricane of Saturday in the northern suburbs. With the wind blowing 60 miles an hour, and a rain of two inches within two hours, the weather bureau says the city was fortunate in escaping with only property damages. The wind swept straight across the city and its suburbs. It unroofed hundreds of buildings that were occupied, but all the buildings demolished were either old structures, barns and sheds, or buildings in process of construction.

Two Women Badly Burned.

Boston, Aug. 3.—By the overturning of a lamp which set fire to a lot of bedding last night, Mrs. Mary Randall and Mrs. Kate Ford were badly burned. The fire occurred in a room on Merrimac street, and two men, who discovered it, broke in the door, and dragged the women, both of who were naked, into the street. Other persons in the building had difficulty in escaping from the suffocating smoke.

Mysterious Double Tragedy.

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—Evan Darnell, colored, aged 40, and Mary Brown, also colored, aged 35, were found dead yesterday, under a tree at Ardmore. Both their skulls were crushed in, and a blood-stained bludgeon was found near by. They are supposed to have been murdered by a former lover of the woman, because she jilted him for Darnell. The police are looking for the suspect.

Colored Recruits For Insurgents.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 3.—Truman Stewart will sail in October from Key West for Cuba, with more than 1000 colored recruits for the Cuban army, from Georgia and Florida. Mr. Stewart has personally interested himself in the cause of the Cuban insurgents, and has made all necessary arrangements for the transportation of his men to that island.

HESITATE NO LONGER.

Modesty in women is natural. It is ne of women's chief charms.

No one cares for one who really acks this essential to womanliness.

Women have suffered fearfully because of over-sensitiveness in this direction. They couldn't say to the physician what they ought to say to someone. Mrs. Pinkham has received the confidence of thousands. Women open their hearts to her. She understands their suffering, and has the power to relieve and cure.

In nearly all cases the source of women's suffering is in the womb. In many cases the male physician does not understand the case and treats the patient for consumption—indigestion—anything but the right thing.

It is under such circumstances that thousands of women have turned to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and opened their heart and lives—woman to woman—and received her help.

You ask how she can tell if the doctor cannot? Because no man living ever treated so many cases and possesses such vast experience.

Displacement, inflammation, torpid action, stagnation, sends to all parts of the body the pains that crush you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's "Vegetable Compound" is the sure cure for this trouble. For twenty years it has done its grand work and cured thousands.

FANCY STOCKS TUMBLE

"Diamond Match" and "New York Biscuit" Cause Heavy Failure.

Moore Brothers Go Under to the Tune of $20,000,000.

Chicago Stock Exchange Closed For Indefinite Period In Consequence.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The speculative deal in Diamond Match and New York biscuit stocks has come to an end. The Moore Brothers have failed. The greatest speculative deal ever known in Chicago has culminated in the failure of the people who are behind the deal.

The Chicago Stock Exchange adjourned at 10 o'clock today, for an indefinite period. This action was decided upon at a meeting held last evening, at which were present the members of the Stock Exchange governing committee and a number of prominent capitalists. This meeting was assembled informally after the announcement, which was made late in the afternoon by James H. Moore, that margin calls no longer could be met. That announcement was made to a few of the men most heavily interested, and it was thought best to call a meeting, to discuss the situation. Those who assembled discussed the best means for restoring confidence, after the shock which would be given to speculative circles by the announcement of the failure.

It was the general opinion that it would be the wisest possible move to close the Stock Exchange for a period. The points were made that nearly the entire business at the Stock Exchange for weeks has been in Diamond Match and New York Biscuit; that the closing of the Exchange would interfere only in the slightest degree with general financial affairs, and that the present was a particularly opportune time, owing to the fact that the settlements in the July account had just been completed, and there had been as yet comparatively little trading on the August accounts. The governing committee of the Stock Exchange discussed the situation at length, and passed a resolution to adjourn the Exchange at 10 o'clock today, indefinitely.

So far as the banks are concerned, they are indifferent personally, as to whether the exchange should be closed or not. The stocks held by them are margined to a point which leaves them secure in any event.

The speculative deal, of which the failure is the culmination, is by all odds the most important in the history of Chicago Stock Exchange affairs. It began early in this year. The stock of the Diamond Match company had been selling all along at 130, for quite a time, and there had been special activity on the market. Just prior to the Venezuelan incident the tip had gone out in inside circles that there were to be some important European developments in connection with Diamond Match affairs, and the buying of the stock commenced by strong people.

The Venezuelan panic interfered with the speculation, and the stock dropped during the general decline at that time to 115. From then the rise started, which is the most remarkable in the history of the exchange. A strong group of speculators, headed by James H. Moore and William H. Moore, began buying the stock. It moved up with scarcely a halt. The bears occasionally endeavored to interfere with the rise, but they each time found that there was both speculative genius and financial strength behind the market, which was unlike anything they had ever encountered in local speculative affairs. The rise went on for a considerable time before the general public had any intimation of what was really behind the advance. In time came the announcement that the Diamond Match company had closed a contract with the French government, under which the patents and the machines controlled by the match company were to be sold to the French government for a royalty of $100,000 a year. President Barber and Director George D. Smith were in Europe carrying on the negotiations.

Following the announcement of the closing of the French contract, the stock advanced with great rapidity. In the early speculation the bulls had named 200 as an extreme figure, but as the prospects of further profitable arrangement in Europe appeared, much higher prices were predicted. Negotiations were opened for the formation of a new company in England, which would unite with Bryant & May, the largest match producers in Great Britain, and would give the English field the advantage of the labor-saving American machinery. A factory was equipped in Liverpool, which was owned by the Diamond Match company, and which served as an object lesson to European manufacturers, showing them the great advantages of the improved machinery over their methods of manufacturing. Negotiations were also opened in Austria for the formation of a company which should combine all the manufacturing interests there. Other companies were to be organized in Belgium and Italy.

Calculations showing enormous profits to accrue, made prices that had at first looked extravagant seem cheap. The shrewdest men in Chicago believed in the property. Some of the richest of Chicago's speculators operated in the market heavily The Chicago Exchange had never before known such activity. The head and front of the speculative movement was the Moore Bros., but they were ably seconded by the most prominent local and eastern speculators, and kept in absolute control of the situation. The stock sold up as high as 243. The Moores went through the break without the slightest difficulty, and it was generally believed that they had been glad to see the decline, so the more stock might be accumulated. From 200, the advance began again, but it had hardly the snap that had characterized the first rise. There was no question about the implicit faith of the people who had the closest information regarding the company's prospects. They were steady buyers. When the decline in stock markets generally came, following the Democratic convention, the stock was selling at about 224.

The values of other securities tumbled but the Diamond Match was held steady, without so much as a fractional decline. The Moores bought the stock with confidence that inspired confidence in others. The people who had most information about the company's prospects seemed to feel absolutely certain of the value of the security, and prices were held all through the sharp fluctuations in other stocks. It was believed that a heavy short interest had been created by bears, who did not think quotations could be held in the face of the decline in the general market. Apparently the hopes of the bulls rested on the size of that short interest. When the July account came to be closed, the carrying charges for turning stocks into the August account were very large, so large that faith was shaken in the existence of an extensive short interest.

The great part of the capital with which the deal had been carried on had been raised in New York and New England. Local banking institutions are only moderately interested in the affair. Difficulty was experienced, owing to the general loss of confidence in renewing some of these eastern loans. Settlement day was successfully passed, however, and everyone believed that in spite of the heavy carrying charges, the bulls were still in control of the situation. The stock came out, however, in enormous quantities. The Moores were almost alone in supporting the market, but they stood under it with remarkable courage.

Yesterday the stock was held with hardly a waver at 222, but there was an outpouring of long stock, which led the keen observers of the market to fear that the load might become too heavy, and the events later in the afternoon proved that those fears were correct.

The deal in Diamond Match was only part of this great speculative operation. The Moore Bros. had organized the New York Biscuit company several years ago, after the great success of the Diamond Match company. The panic of 1893 had hit the Biscuit company severely, as it did other industries, and the stock was far below par. The success which was met with in speculative manipulation of Diamond Match led to a desire to see what could be done with the New York Biscuit, and that stock was taken several months ago and advanced from 70 to 108, from that it dropped back to 92, and for weeks was held close about that figure, in spite of the sharp declines in other securities. Enormous quantities of this stock were also poured upon the market, but they were taken with the same steadiness which marked the action of Diamond Match. The accumulations, however, represented a great sum in time, and the operations in that stock will add largely to the total of the amount involved.

The speculative value of the failure is estimated to be about $20,000,000.

Austin, Aug. 4.—Percy Cook shot and instantly killed Rev. J. T. Gibbons, a negro pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday, at the former's residence. Cook accused the pastor of being too intimate with Mrs. Cook, and Monday night the husband overheard his wife and Gibbons making an engagement for the pastor to call yesterday. He remained at home until Gibbons called, and a few minutes later he killed him and then surrendered to the officers

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Generous Rainfall, High Temperature and Light Frosts Reported.

Potatoes Do Not Appear to Be Faring Well.

An Abundant Yield Promised In Nearly All Other Crops.

Boston, Aug. 4.—The United States agricultural bureau, New England section, issues the following bulletin:

The weather in New England for the week ending Aug. 3 has been very favorable for all growing crops, except possibly too moist for potatoes; the vines are blighting quite generally in the south. From one to 1½ inches of rain fell throughout the district during the week. High temperatures prevailed till Friday, July 31, when it grew rapidly cooler, and a slight frost was experienced in northern New Hampshire and in Maine on the morning of Aug. 1, doing very little damage. There was some damage done by hail and wind in a local storm in Vermont on the 28th, and the gale on the 1st and 2d injured some corn, fruit, etc., in Massachusetts. The army worm is disappearing.

There is still much meadow land to be cut in Maine, but generally the grass is not suffering. Pastures are in excellent condition, and the second grass crop will be very good. Corn is slightly backward, but of vigorous growth. Potatoes are looking well, though pronounced late in Aroostook county. Other crops promise an abundant yield. Apples are growing well; in Kennebec county trees are breaking down already with the load of fruit.

One correspondent in Hillsboro county, N. H., reports "unmistakable signs of the potato blight," but generally this crop, with others, is growing fast. Corn promises well. Pastures are improving. Oats are well filled. A large amount of hungarian grass has been sown, and is growing fast. Winter apples are generally abundant. Early apples are more variable, some orchards showing a full crop and others but few.

Showery conditions have prevailed in Vermont, but the hay harvest has been pushed as fast as the weather would permit. One correspondent in Orleans county reports an unusually large crop. Uncut grass and grain, unless on too dry land, has improved during the week. Oats and barley indicate a good crop. Apples are generally abundant. A correspondent in Addison county reports potatoes to be rusting badly, and that early ones show a slight yield. Feed is generally good and shows green, though short in some pastures.

All crops are growing fast in Massachusetts, and the outlook for an abundant harvest is good. Early apples are yielding well and are of good quality. Corn is excellent. Onions are said to be doing well, or better than ever known. Tobacco promises to be a number one crop. Pastures are green and generally give a good supply of feed. Rowen has a splendid start, and the second crop has been cut in some of the river towns. Late planted forage crops are coming forward rapidly. There are indications of potato blight reported from Hampden, Middlesex and Central Worcester counties.

Considerable hay has been damaged by rain this year in Rhode Island, but the greater part of the crop is now gathered. Oats are ripening. Apples are very uneven. All fields and garden crops are growing fast. Potatoes have blighted considerably in Newport county, owing to the damp weather. Some fields got too fully matured to be much injured, and a heavy yield is assured. Others blighted early, and the tubers are now rotting quite badly.

Much of the rain which fell came at night in Connecticut, while the days have been generally pleasant. The hay and grain harvest has been rushed, and is nearing completion. Much grass is over-ripe. Oats are very good, and fields are being cut for fodder. Pastures are very good. The second crop of clover and other grasses is promising. Tobacco is excellent. Corn is growing fast. Potatoes are blighting some in Litchfield and Hartford counties; generally the quality of the potatoes is very good. Corn and potatoes are being injured by the grub worm in northern Litchfield county. The army worm is disappearing. All fruit is very promising, except peaches and pears.

CITY COUNCIL.

Spicy Hearing on Turnouts Put In by Street Railway.

Councilman Claflin Secures Defeat of a Committee Report.

And City Hall is Likely to be Remodeled This Year.

The City Council of 1896 held one of its longest sessions on Monday evening, and from a spectators' standpoint it was one of the most interesting, particularly the debate on the adverse report for remodeling City Hall, and the hearing to the Quincy & Boston street railway.

The only absent members were Councilmen Field and Rice.

Petitions.

Councilman Moxon presented a petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a location for a double track from the junction of School and Franklin streets to Neponset bridge. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Phillips presented a petition from Quincy Point citizens against the removal of the turnouts on Washington street. Laid on table.

Albert Keating presented a petition asking permission to allow his building on Canal street, occupied by Mr. Wade, to remain, the building now being six inches on the street. To Committee on Streets.

Petitions were received for a license for a tent show for Major English, a carriage license from Joseph T. French, and common victuallers license from John J. O'Tool and Peter Haverly. Upon motion of Councilman Sidelinger the petition of Joseph T. French was laid on the table. The others were then referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition for State aid was received from E. L. Noyes. To Committee on State Aid.

Councilman Barker presented a petition of the Houghs Neck Improvement association, asking for a public hearing on the widening and straightening of Coddington and Sea streets. To Committee on Streets.

Report of Committees.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass, on order appropriating $24,000 for remodelling City Hall.

COUNCILMAN CLAFLIN.

Councilman Claflin hoped report would not be accepted. The majority report of the committee was unjust, false and inconsiderate. It was very close to being stupid. The amount asked for could in some measure be curtailed. The amount paid for outside offices is from $900 to $1,000 and assuming $20,000 were required to remodel City Hall the $800 would pay the interest. This should not be discouraged when it is needed so much. There were certain objections, that we were not rich enough and had a large debt, etc., but on the other hand the offices were jumbled together and there was no privacy. The police station was unworthy of our city. It was a contemptible, unwholesome, foul, dirty place, not fit to keep a dog in, and Quincy should be ashamed of such a place. Common decency demands that we should have something better.

Councilman Nickerson said the Committee were not opposed to the improvements, but did not consider this the proper time to make these changes. In view of the rapid growth of the city we could judge better of its needs five years hence. Later an order for improvements to police station would be offered.

Councilman Claflin replied that changes will continue to be needed in progressive cities and five years from now a gentleman could rise and say the same thing. It was a matter of necessity and decency and we should have something becoming to our city. He was not asking for a luxury. The interest would not be any more than the outside rentals at the present time.

Councilman Little agreed with Councilman Claflin that the police station was a public disgrace and the order should be passed if but for that one reason alone. The plans were adequate for at least 25 years.

Councilman Lamb hoped report of committee would not be accepted. If for no other reason than for the police station, the order should pass.

At this point a public hearing was given on the street railway locations after which the report of the Committee on Finance was again taken up.

Councilman Anderson said the city was not in a position to decide just what was wanted. Looking ahead there may be other offices needed. There was no doubt but what something should be done about the police station, but that could be taken care of either by building a new station or building an office for the chief outside. It was a question whether in five years it would be desirable to have a police station so near City Hall.

Councilman Claflin thought a lean-to police station would look like a wart on a man's nose, then by arrangement a draught of fresh air might occasionally go through subterranean corridors of the station. If we go through with these temporary repairs it will be a long while before permanent changes would be made. He would like to have Councilman Moxon explain the plans.

Councilman Moxon said this question was considered some five years ago and plans were made. The changes provide for enough office accommodations for a one board government until we shall have reached a population of 60,000. It also provided accommodations for the police department for an equal length of time. These figures were based upon what other cities of 60,000 required. The plan gives all officials all necessary accommodations and it will not be necessary to have office room outside.

On the first floor there was a room for the City Treasurer with vault, a room for the Commissioner of Public Works, a room for the City Clerk with one adjoining for the Mayor and there were four other offices, two of which were so arranged that they may be connected for use of the Board of Registrars.

On the second floor the Council room will be a little narrower with the committee rooms on the north side. In the front there would be two large rooms, one for Board of Assessors, with a vault over the present stairway. There would also be two rooms in place of the present gallery, which might be used by Sewer Commissioners. There would be a gallery over the committee rooms and one on the south side.

The only change on the outside would be taking away the front steps and door, and running a corridor through the building. The present police station could be used as a workshop for the Water department.

Between this building and French's stable would be the police station the lower part of which would be absolutely fire proof. There would be eleven cells which are partially down stairs. On the first floor would be an office for the Chief and a separate cell for women, also a large room with bunks and concrete floor for tramps. On the second floor three rooms for the reserve officers when the force has grown to that. One could now be used while the others could be used as offices.

Councilman Nickerson said the plans were good. He considered the present police station good enough for the people confined there.

Councilman Sprague said it became the city of Quincy to provide a half decent place, for all who were confined there were not hardened criminals. It was this patching up that made Quincy poor today. He hoped report of Committee would not be accepted.

Councilman Nickerson wished to ask Councilman Moxon if it had not been a serious question with him as to whether the police station should be connected with City Hall.

Councilman Moxon replied that he had been unable to solve the question in any other way at a reasonable cost.

Councilman Phillips inquired what proportion of the amount would be devoted to the police station.

Councilman Moxon had made no estimate but five years ago it was said that the change of City Hall would cost $10,000. This was before the contemplated addition.

The question was then put on accepting the report of the committee and it was lost.

Upon motion of Councilman Claflin the order was then laid on the table.

Street Railway Hearing.

At eight o'clock a spicy hearing was opened on the following order, notice of which had been duly given by two publications in the DAILY LEDGER:

ORDERED—That notice be given to all persons interested in the location of the Quincy and Boston Street Railway company of a public hearing by the City Council at the Council chamber, City Hall, Monday, August 3d, 1896, at 8 o'clock P. M., to show cause why the sidings or turnouts of said railway company recently put in by said railway company and situated on Washington street in said city of Quincy at a point between Edwards and Union streets, and one at a point in said Washington street between Sumner and North streets. Also one in Hancock street at a point at or near the entrance to Merry Mount park, and one on said Hancock street between Squantum street and Old Colony street should not be removed. And further to show cause why so much of the location of the said Quincy and Boston Street Railway company in the streets of said city of Quincy as enables said Company to put in sidings, turnouts, spur tracks or turn-tables, other than those already in, shall be revoked; and that fourteen days' notice of said hearing shall be given by publication in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

No one appeared in favor, and the remonstrants were heard.

W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., counsel for the Sreet Railway company, opposed. He was surprised that no one was heard in favor. It was not usual he said to raise technicalities at times like this but he would point out a few. He claimed the notice was defective in that the statues required it to be published in newspapers and it had only been inserted in one. Second, they should not be revoked because the company had a legal right to put

THE PEOPLE INTERESTED.

Head Master Tupper of Quincy High Writes on Silver.

Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, the head master of the Quincy High school, is spending his vacation in Shelburne Falls. He is interested in the free silver issue and finds that many others should be. In the issue of the Springfield Republican of last Friday the following appeared from his pen:

To the Editor of the Republican:

"With malice towards none and charity towards all," I wish to state certain propositions which I believe to be demonstrably true:

1. To make legal the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 means the establishment of a depreciated currency. For the ratio is not based on values as they are, but on values as they are imagined or desired. The true ratio of silver to gold is now 31 to 1.

2. A depreciated currency means a depreciation of values. For of two currencies, one depreciated and the other sound, but both legal, the depreciated currency will prevail.

3. Every one who has money in the savings bank, and has deposited it there, because he felt sure that he could get it any time in sound money, is the natural enemy of a depreciated currency for two reasons. First, the depreciation in values will endanger the stability and solvency of the banks. Second, even if the banks remain solvent, they can pay their depositors in a depreciated currency. Hence the proposed silver legislation is a direct attack upon every savings bank depositor.

4. Every one whose life is insured is also the natural enemy of silver legislation for reasons precisely similar to those given in proposition 3.

5. Workingmen ought to be particularly strong friends of sound money, for, if our currency should be debased, their wages, if they rose at all, would not keep pace with the inflated prices of the necessaries and the comforts of life. This fact, together with the threatened uncertainty about all investments, would make the lot of the workingman hard indeed.

6. It is not true that any change will be a change for the better. The condition of our workingmen today is infinitely superior on the whole to that of most of the workingmen of other countries. A change based on a depreciated currency will infallibly be a change for the worst.

7. All persons who are interested in educational and charitable institutions ought to be enroled among the vanguard fighters against the silver heresy; for not only will the funds of such institutions be seriously impaired, but the income derived from the benevolence of the well-to-do will inevitably be diminished.

8. All who believe in the support of religious enterprises ought to be interested in the stability of our currency, for such enterprises are absolutely certain to suffer from a depreciated currency.

9. Uncertainly about the value of the circulating medium tends to paralyze business, for who is going to make contracts if there is any possibility that 1-2 equals 1? The paralysis of business means starvation for the workingmen and their families.

10. All holders of mortgages, whether western, eastern, southern or northern, may well look with alarm on the proposed silver legislation, for such mortgage holders will see a marked depreciation in the value of their mortgages under such legislation.

11. All true patriots must acknowledge the necessity of maintaining the honor of the United States. A depreciated currency means semi-repudiation. There can be no repudiation or semi-repudiation without loss of national honor.

12 Under the proposed legislation the credit, not only of the United States, but of the separate states, countries, cities and towns, will suffer gravely. The effort to make money plentier will make it scarcer, and will raise the rate of interest. Stability and stainless credit mean low interest.

13. Shareholders in national banks, in railroads, or in any other business enterprise are vitally interested in sound money. Owners of either real or personal estate cannot afford to permit legislation that involves an unstable currency.

14. Is it possible that such legislation as that proposed in the establishment of a 16 to 1 ratio is constitutional? Can a government legally dishonor its own obligations and impoverish its best citizens by an excathedra statement that ½ equals 1? If so, there is need of an amendment to the constitution.

CITY COUNCIL.

them in. Third, if not granted they can never be revoked. Fourth, it was a matter for the executive, the Mayor, rather than the City Council.

The company had endeavorer to find out whether it had rights and had asked an opinion of the City Solicitor through the Mayor some weeks ago, but no decision had been rendered. The only way to get turnouts up was on petition and order for revocation.

Many of the grants had been to the Quincy street railway, which of course were not affected by this order.

The remarkable growth of the street railway was then touched upon and it was cited that 6000 had been carried one Sunday on the Neponset line, and 8000 in one day on the Weymouth line and that the average on the later was 3500; all going to show that the street railway was a great benefit. A double track or turnouts were necessary. The street railway was trying to do its best and public convenience and necessity require the turnouts.

H. M. Federhen, Jr., protested against the removal of the new turnouts, especially on Washington street, on the ground that they were a public convenience. It was wrong, however, for the street railway to start the turnouts before asking right.

Councilman Moxon asked if Council had legal right to proceed, and Mr. Federhen regarded it a duty of the Mayor.

President Graham of the Company corrected Mr. Federhen. The Company had asked for locations on Washington street, and at the hearing there were no remonstrants. As the line was being rebuilt the company did not wait further for Council. The change of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. had made a sudden change in our timetable, and the increase of business demanded 15 minute time.

President Bryant rather cornered Mr. Graham at this point. When asked if he believed the street railway had a right to put in turnouts he answered in the affirmative. When asked why they had not been completed on Washington street, he answered that the company did not want to antagonize the city. Mr. Bryant's retort was: "Was that why those on Hancock street were put in?" Those were after a conference with the Mayor.

Councilman Little asked if under the grant of the town the company considered it had a right to put in turnouts 25 years hence.

President Graham—If public convenience required.

Representative Newcomb knew nothing about the legal aspect, but believed public convenience required a turnout at North street.

Ex-Councilman Federhen favored plenty of turnouts, and regarded the one at North street absolutely necessary.

Councilman Phillips desired the petition received to be read, but President Bryant ruled it out of order.

Councilman Pinkham would like to hear from City Solicitor Blackmur.

Mr. Blackmur was pleased for the opportunity to put himself right. He did not feel called upon to render a written opinion for the Street Railway Company. He had told the Mayor that unquestionably the Company had no right to put in the turnouts. He had been summoned to the office of Mr. Pattee and greeted with the remark: The turnouts are in! Go to the court and get an injunction, and get them up if you can!

Knowing the attitude of the company it was useless to give a written opinion. There was no question but the City Council had authority to act, and had the power to order the turnouts up without going to court. Mr. Pattee started in to criticise the City Solicitor, but was called to order, and stopped.

C. H. Johnson considered the turnouts a public convenience.

The hearing closed at 9.10 and the order was committed to the Committee on Streets.

Reports.

The Committee on Claims reported that the petition of Lydia Clapp for refund of taxes have leave to withdraw. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorably on a number of petitions for minor licenses which were adopted.

The Committee on Streets on the petition to raise Newbury avenue near Teele pond reported an order appropriating $800 for raising that part of Newbury avenue near Teele pond and the lowering of the grade near Squantum street and for the lowering of the grade of Squantum street if abutters would release all claim. Read once and referred to Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets on petition that Rogers street be laid out as a public way reported an order for a public hearing Sept. 14. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the N. E. T. & T. Co. a location for six poles on Dimmock street and three poles on Goffe street. Ordered to second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on order appropriating $520 for a retaining wall on Willard street. Order passed to be ordained under suspenson of the rules.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported a substitute order on the order providing for the appropriation of $17,000 for heating and ventilating the wooden school buildings. The substitute order called for an appropriation of $9,100 for heating and ventilating the Adams and Quincy school buildings.

Councilman Phillips wanted to know how the committee found the Washington school.

Councilman Sprague replied that they found it the worse of all. All wooden buildings were in bad shape. The Adams and Quincy buildings were the ones that could be used for the next ten or twenty years and an expenditure here would be judicious. Fearing that it would be impossible to pass the appropriation to repair all the buildings it was thought best to take the two best.

Councilman Nickerson asked about the Wollaston school.

Councilman Sprague replied that the sanitary condition was very good, but the heating needs attention.

The substitute order was then adopted and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Upon motion of Councilman Sprague the Committee on Finance was granted permission to retire for five minutes.

The Council took a recess for five minutes.

After the recess the Committee on Finance reported an amendment to order for $9,100 for repairs on Adams and Quincy school buildings, changing the amount to $9,000.

The amendment was adopted, and under suspension of the rules the order was passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Licenses reported that the petitions of Thomas Clark and Daniel Monyhan for common victualler's licenses have leave to withdraw. Accepted.

Councilman Phillips moved that the petition from Ward Two relative to the removal of turnouts on Washington street be taken from the table and referred to the Committee on Streets.

Upon motion of Councilman Sidelinger the petition of J. T. French for a carriage license was taken from the table. Councilman Sidelinger then offered an order granting the same which was adopted.

At this point a communication was received from the Mayor forwarding a form of contract for five years with the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co. Referred to the Committee on Lights.

Councilman Moxon offered an order authorizing the Mayor to execute a contract for two years in addition to the three years already authorized by orderNo 28. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Nickerson moved that when the Council adjourned it be until Sept. 14.

Councilman Claflin hoped motion would not pass.

Councilman Moxon hoped motion would not prevail as there was considerable business before the Council.

The motion was lost.

Councilman Pinkham moved that when Council adjourn it be for one week. Voted.

Adjourned at 10.10.

A HINT FROM INDIA.

A Novel Solution of Currency Question Suggested by Lowell Times.

It recently happened that a resident of Lowell desired to pay a bill due to a friend who is a medical missionary in British India. The friend from that far-away country suggested that it be paid in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which he said is reckoned

"AS GOOD AS GOLD!"

On application to the J. C. Ayer Co., they readily gave an order on their Bombay agents for a quantity of Sarsaparilla to an amount equivalent to the face of the bill. A letter dated Rahuri, India, Oct. 18, has just been received in Lowell, which says: "The Sarsaparilla was duly received and as it has a regular market quotation price, was converted into cash with the utmost facility. Whatever may be said about other sarsaparillas and the medicinal value of their contents, this fact remains, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is so well known in India that it has a market value, depending upon the fluctuation in the value of

as much as cotton or other staples. This is not the case with any other sarsaparilla of American makers. The natives of this country are very conservative, and unless an article is well known they are shy about using it. A native will take a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla from my dispensary and walk off with it without raising a question as to its purity or curative qualities. This is the truth, and I do not scruple to let you make whatever use of the statement you may choose. The success of this remedy in this country shows what judicious advertising of a meritorious article has accomplished. If I had in quantities of any medicine I would prefer Ayer's Sarsaparilla to any other twenty times over, for I know that I could get my money back in the former case, while in the other I should have to retail it bottle by bottle in order to realize my money." As a currency Ayer's Sarsaparilla might be cumbersome, but one thing would be sure—you'd always get the value of the dollar invested in the remedy. —Lowell Times.

Pickpockets Gathered In.

Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 4.—Inspector Abbott of Boston assisted the Plymouth officers in arresting five out of six pickpockets, who were here from Boston yesterday. Passengers on the steamer complained of being robbed, and when the steamer touched the wharf an exciting chase between officers and men occurred. Arthur Gray tackled one of the men and held him down. Two others were caught after a long run, and the officers found two more later. The sixth man took to the woods.

His horse and buggy were found in a shed here yesterday. The man was taken into custody, and later he was identified as John Duffy of North Dennis. He was declared insane and sent to the Taunton asylum, in which place he had previously been confined.

It is also rumored that the factory will be entirely discontinued in this town and the business removed to Derry, N. H.

Lawyer Attempts Suicide.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Nathan H. Pratt, aged 47, lawyer, attempted to kill himself by shooting yesterday afternoon, in his office, 82 Devonshire street. He inflicted a slight flesh wound only, the bullet being deflected by striking a button on his vest. He was about to fire a second shot, when the occupant of an adjacent office rushed in and wrenched the revolver from his grasp. It is said that he has been in an institution for the insane, and it is supposed that his attempted self-destruction was caused by a return of his mental trouble.

Renewal of Activity.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 4.—After abstaining nearly a year from prohibitory law enforcement, Deputy Sheriff Small made a wholesale seizure of liquors last night, entering the Eastern railroad freight station and taking possession of 11 half barrels of lager, consigned to a local bottling company, and three barrels of whisky, bearing the name of of a Biddeford druggist. A consignment of whisky to another druggist was not molested.

Held on Murder Charge.

Auburn, Me., Aug. 4.—C. B. Holt of Mechanic Falls was yesterday arraigned in the police court on a charge of murder. Holt, while temporarily deranged, it is alleged, murdered his child, May 25, by cutting its throat. He afterward cut his own throat, almost severing the windpipe. The surgeon thought at the time he would die, but he is now almost well. The court ordered him held for the grand jury.

Plant Side of It.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 4.—The Plant company, yesterday, issued a lengthy statement, in which its side of the difficulty with its employes is fully explained. The newspapers are criticized, and are charged with taking sides against the firm. Mr. Plant states that the lasters were discharged from his employ because the Lasters' union violated an agreement.

Suicide Attempted.

Nathan H. Pratt, an East Weymouth lawyer, made an attempt at self-destruction at his office, 82 Devonshire street, Boston, Monday afternoon. He made the attempt with a 38 calibre revolver, the bullett inflicting a slight flesh wound. Mr. Pratt made an attempt a year or so ago to commit suicide and at that time was placed in an asylum from which he was recently discharged as cured.

TODAY'S COURT.

Mike Gray of Randolph was arraigned for drunkenness. Case continued to September 4.

Thomas Hider and George Mack were fined $3 each for peddling without a license at Quincy.

John Taylor, Arthur Butler and James Astwell of Weymouth, were arraigned for trespass upon land of Leonard F. Gay. Case continued until August 15.

WM. STRINGER OF PEABODY CURED OF RHEUMATISM IN LEG.

PEABODY, Mass., Sept. 7, 1894.
Muscle Oil Co.:—
Gentlemen:—Last spring I was greatly troubled with rheumatism in my leg and was not able to do any work for four months. After using several other so called sure cures, I tried Muscle Oil, and after using five bottles I was able to work every day and now feel as well as ever. Yours truly,

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—The Randolph Register says the reception given to Quincy Lodge, New England Order of Protection, of Quincy, by Pilgrim Lodge, at Randolph, on Tuesday evening, was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever gotten up by the lodge. The Quincy delegation, about fifty in number, came by special electrics, and had a good time all the way along, as well as after their arrival. They were a jolly party, and were finely entertained.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, Saves a Man From Becoming a Cripple.

Mr. Asa Ammons, a well-known citizen of Jacksonville, Florida, was afflicted by a terrible ulcer. Medical skill seemed unavailing in stopping the ravages of the terrible disease. The leg was swollen and intensely painful, as the ulcer had eaten its way down to the very bone. All medicines and treatments having failed to effect a cure, the doctors said the leg must come off. Just when it seemed that Mr. Ammons would become a disabled and a crippled man, he tried P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and the result was wonderful.

P. P. P. SAVES HIS LEG.

"Jacksonville, Fla., July 1, 1895.—Two years ago I had the worst ulcer on my leg I ever saw. It had eaten down to the bone, and my whole leg below my knee, and my foot was swollen and inflamed. The bone was swollen and painful, and discharged a most offensive matter. My physicians said I had necrosis of the bone, and my leg would have to come off. At this stage I commenced to take P. P. P. and to bathe my leg with hot castile soap suds. It began to improve at once and healed rapidly, and is to-day a sound and useful leg.

"I think P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is all a man could ask for as a blood purifier, as I have known it to cure so meterrible cases of blood poisoning in a remarkably short time.

"ASA AMMONS."

TERRIBLE BLOOD POISON.

The body covered with sores—two bottles of P. P. P. made a positive and permanent cure. This is only one of many thousand similar cases.

A Fable.

Away in forests deep there grew
A tall and stately oak.
The shrubs, the thorns, the briers, all,
Assailing him, thus spoke:

"Thou smotherest and vexest us.
What demon put thee there?
Of sunbeams thou deprivest us.
Thou robbest us of air.

"Beneath thy carcass vast and vile
We waste, we perish thus.
Thou wilt not let us higher grow.
'Tis plain thou enviest us."

"Tut-tut, keep still, unfortunates," Replied the noble oak.
"Mere thorns you are; acknowledge it.
What use to fret and croak?

"'Tis vain, my dears, to fret and fuss.
Acknowledge this you must—
That you are doomed to grow and be
The neighbors of the dust.

"To twitch and scratch on every path
The passing beast or man;
To scratch and pluck, to prick and sting,
Is all you do or can.

"Nor sun nor shade you must upbraid,
For blamable is none.
My height and mien are reached by trees
Of my stout race alone,

"Who never murmur nor find fault.
Of naught do they complain,
For winds and storms impart them strength.
They thrive in drought or rain.

"For they are called, like me, to grow
Thus sturdy, stout and high;
Like giants, rise from earth below
And face both sun and sky.

"The little shrubs we rule by right,
Nor mind their number great,
And when we fall, if fall at all,
We, fighting, fall in state

"And fill the voids with fright, dismay—
Fall great, if fall we must—
You dying, live and waste away,
Unnoticed in the dust."

JOHNSTON IS ELECTED.

Populists In Alabama Overwhelmed by Votes of Democrats.

Gorman Will Aid Jones In Campaign Work.

Governor Stone Is Chosen to Notify Bryan of His Nomination.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 4.—Captain Joseph F. Johnston, Democrat, won in the state election by at least 30,000 majority. His opponent, Albert T. Goodwyn, was the candidate put forward by the Republican-Populist combination.

Returns are greatly scattered, and show that, as a general thing, the contest is fairly close in the upper or mineral districts. There is a greater proportion of irreconcilables there than elsewhere.

In other portions of the state the Populist vote is in the rural districts, and is much smaller than at the last gubernatorial election.

JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON.

In speaking of the election, Captain Johnston said: "I will not be compelled to take a back track on my estimate of my majority. The chances are it will be even greater than I expected in my most sangine moments.

"Returns from all over the state show that I have made substantial gains everywhere. I have no doubt that I have carried the Populist counties of Lee, Livingston, Chambers, Tallapoosa, Tuskaloosa, and probably Dekalb and Bibb. It is merely a question of how great my majority will be."

The Populists, under Goodwyn, relied upon a heavy negro vote in their favor. Counting noses would give such a result, but the largest proportion of colored inhabitants is in central, or "Black Belt" counties, where the vote is influenced by the whites, who are with great unanimity working for the success of the Democratic ticket. It is not thought now that there was a large vote cast by the negroes in those counties. Where the biggest votes were cast they were largely for the Democratic ticket.

The Populists' strength is mainly in the remote country districts. The "Black Belt," as far as heard from, sends in its usual Democratic majority. Anniston, Montgomery, Mobile, Selina and Eufala have given Johnston large majorities.

At Democratic headquarters it is asserted that 10 Populist counties have been won over, and that not a single one, with the possible exception of Macon county, has been lost. The election passed off quietly, so far as known, except in Ironton, in Talladega county, where several fist fights occurred at the polls. Finally, so much dissatisfaction was manifested, that the box was thrown out, and the polls closed.

The Populists still keep up a show of courage. P. G. Bowman, a prominent Populist leader, insists that Goodwyn has won by a maojrity of at least 20,000. "If they count us out, however," he said, "the Populists of the south will vote for McKinley."

It is now almost certain that the Democrats have the legislature. Many of the strongest Populist candidates were defeated, among them Samuel Adams, to whom the Democrats practically conceded victory.

Incomplete returns from about half the counties show that Johnston certainly carried five counties that were Populist two years ago, while six others of the same class are so close as to require the official count to decide. The Democrats have not lost a county so far as heard from, but the fight in this county is close. The count will not be finished until tonight.

Reuben J. Kolb claims Goodwyn's election by 15,000 majority, which is regarded as a weak claim. He charges fraud in the "Black Belt."

Gossip From Washington.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee began work yesterday on the accumulation of campaign work which awaited him. He took temporary quarters in Senator Faulkner's private office, at the congressional committee headquarters. Soon after his arrival he was joined, apparently by appointment, by Senator Gorman, Senator Stewart and Messrs. Berret and Norris of Washington, Mr. Norris having been until recently a member of the national commitee. The conference lasted half an hour, and the gentlemen present separated to meet again at the Capitol at noon. No information was given as to the subjects discussed, except that Mr. Jones was going over a number of details. A report was current about the headquarters that Gorman would be a member of the executive committee, and possibly its chairman. There was no verification of the report, but the presence of Mr. Gorman added to the comment in that direction.

Mr. Gorman joined Chairman Jones at the Capitol shortly after noon, where they were together in the committee-room on appropriations for three hours. At the close of the extended talk, Mr. Jones said there was nothing to be made public.

Mr. Gorman was asked as to the current report that he would be on the executive committee, and probably its chairman. He authorized the statement that he would not take the chairmanship under any circumstances. "It is the same now as in 1888 and 1892," he said, "when I gave every aid in my power to Mr. Whitney and Mr. Harrity, but would not take the chairmanship. In the present campaign I will aid Senator Jones in every way possible, but under no circumstances would I assume the duties of chairman of the executive committee."

When asked as to whether he would be a member of the committee, Mr. Gorman replied that the chairman was practically the committee.

An official connected with the Democratic committee says that the correspondence is unprecedented. One of the veterans on the committee said that in his service of 24 years he had never seen such a public interest in affairs.

At the Republican congressional headquarters the large working force is kept very busy. Here, too, it is stated that the public interest in politics, as indicated by the extent of the mail, is unprecedented. The most varied suggestions are offered. Many campaign poems, and songs, some with music, are offered.

At the national Silver headquarters a number of interesting letters were received. One from the mayor of Lacrosse, Wis., asked for a supply of German and Scandinavian literature, and added that the silver movement was making rapid progress in that locality. Another letter, from the Pennsylvania district in which Mr. Sibley is a candidate for congress, asserted that his election was beyond doubt, and that his strength was aiding the national ticket.

Among the callers at the Democratic congressional headquarters yesterday was Hon. Chauncey F. Black, the president of the Association of Democratic clubs. He comes for consultation with Chairman Jones of the national Democratic committee and Secretary Lawrence Gardiner of the association, with respect to the work to be done by the clubs in the coming campaign. The second quadrennial convention of Democratic clubs will convene at St. Louis on Sept. 30, and President Black will probably issue a call for the meeting tomorrow.

Stone as Spokesman.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 4.—Senator White of California has delegated to Governor Stone of Missouri the honor of notifying W. J. Bryan of his nomination for President of the United States at Madison Square Garden. Governor Stone received a telegram from Senator White yesterday, stating that it would be impossible for him to make the notification speech, and asking the governor to accept the honor, which the governor did. Governor Stone said last evening that he would like to have had more time to prepare a speech for so important an affair. "The speech will not be in the nature of a campaign document," the governor said. "It is not customary. I should say it would not take up very much more than half a newspaper column. Mr. Bryan's speech of acceptance will, of course, be used for campaign purposes." Governor Stone said that his notification speech would include both Bryan and Sewall.

Narrowed Down to Two.

Portland, Me., Aug. 4.—The contest for the nomination in the Democratic convention to be held at Waterville seems narrowed down to a choice between M. P. Frank of Portland and Mayor Hanson of Belfast. Mr. Frank, who is not campaigning himself, will be supported by an almost undivided delegation from the lower end of the state. Mr. Hanson will have most, if not all, the delegates from the upper end of the state. The silver men will strive only for a resolution endorsing the Chicago nominees.

Six to One.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Returns from more than half of the members of the Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts, in a postal vote on the question of endorsing the Chicago platform, show that the gold men outnumber the members friendly to silver by a vote of 6 to 1. The members were recently asked to express an opinion on the currency issue by the executive committee.

DESPITE OBJECTIONS.

Cornelius Vanderbilt and Grace Wilson Become Husband and Wife.

New York, Aug. 4.—Despite the determined opposition of his family, and in defiance of the threatened disinheritance, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was married yesterday to Miss Grace Wilson. Not a member of the Vanderbilt family was even invited to the wedding, which was notable for its simplicity. Perhaps never in the history of the Vanderbilt or Wilson families has such a quiet wedding been solemnized. When Mr. Vanderbilt reached the house at 511 Fifth avenue, he found awaiting him his bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, R. T. Wilson, Jr., Robert Goelet, Jr., and Frank Polk of Boston, one of his classmates. This comprised the wedding party.

Shortly before noon Rev. William H. Pott, assistant rector of Dr. Brown of St. Thomas' church, entered the house, and at noon everything was in readiness for the ceremony, when Rev. Mr. Pott took up a position at the eastern end of the rear drawing room. A moment later Mr. Vanderbilt entered the room, accompanied by his best man, Mr. Polk. The few guests then grouped themselves to the left of the minister. Soft strains of music from a stringed orchestra announced the coming of the bride.

As soon as Miss Wilson entered the room the groom took her by the hand, and they both stepped before the officiating minister. In five minutes it was all over, and Miss Wilson was the wife of the son of one of America's greatest millionaires. There were no ushers, and many of the conventionalities attending such weddings were omitted. After the ceremony the small gathering offered their congratulations to the young couple. No wedding breakfast having been prepared, Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt retired to apartments upstairs, and donned their traveling apparel.

At 12:35 p. m. the bride and groom, followed by a shower of rice, left the house and entered a coupe. The groom looked pale and worried; the bride's face was radiant with smiles. They were driven to the Grand Central station, and took a train for Saratoga. It is said they have no plans for the future.

Miss Grace Wilson has for a number of years received the attention of society papers. She is a very pretty woman. Her complexion is fair, but her hair is dark, like that of her mother. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilson, who came to New York from the south many years ago. The Wilsons have already held a place in the front rank of metropolitan society, while the fortune of the family has been increased marvelously through the shrewd financiering of Mr. Wilson.

The Wilson children have one after another attracted the love of children of millionaires.

—Men, it is said, marry at twenty-five for love, at forty for comfort, at fifty for companionship, and at sixty because they are old fools. After that they wed because they are delightfully astonished to discover some one who is willing to have them. What about women, though? Following the same line of reason it may be said that a woman marries at twenty because she is tired asking permission of pa and ma every time she wants to stir out of the house, at thirty because she is tired of earning her own living, at forty because she wants to show the neighbors that she is still able to get a beau, and at fifty or sixty for a reason similar to that influencing her at twenty — grandchildren and nephews and nieces being about as tyrannical to old age as fathers and mothers are to youth.

—For the first time in its history the American Institute of Electrical Engineers has re-elected its president. The scientist thus honored is Dr. Louis Duncan, associate professor of electricity at Johns Hopkins.

Constipation is the start of nearly all sickness in the world. It not only makes a man sick, but it depresses him mentally. It gives him "the blues." He is plunged in the depths of despondency. As he gets rid of his constipation, he feels himself lifted out of the depressing darkness back into the light of health and good feeling. The alarming prevalence of this really dangerous, seemingly insignificant disorder, many years ago induced Dr. Pierce to prepare his since world-famous "Pleasant Pellets." They are designed to do just one thing, and they do it. They restore the bowels and liver to a healthy, natural action. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild purgative. They cure headache, heart-burn, sour stomach, flatulency, biliousness, foul taste in the mouth, and all the other disagreeable symptoms of constipation. Druggists sell them, but look out that your druggist is honest with you, and gives you what you ask for. Don't accept a substitute.

There would be less sickness in America if every home library contained a copy of Doctor Pierce's great work, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is exactly what its name implies. It is the people's text-book of medicine, prepared by a regular, practicing physician, eminent in his profession, and now—as for thirty years—the head of one of the greatest medical and surgical institutes in the world—The Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. It is full of simple, inexpensive, common sense remedies for the cure of the common ailments that arise in every family. By following its advice, many illnesses are nipped in the bud, which might otherwise become serious and dangerous. This great book will be sent absolutely free in paper-covers, to any one who will send twenty-one one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, No 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. If French cloth binding is desired, send ten cents extra (thirty-one cents in all).

PROTEST FROM SAILORS

Who Say They Safely Guided the Herbert Fuller Into Port.

Spencer Not Entitled to All the Glory.

Mate Bram Does Not Accept Confinement In a Philosophical Spirit.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Some of the crew of the barkentine Herbert Fuller, upon which Captain Nash, his wife and the second mate were so cruelly butchered, have written to The Post to protest against all the credit being given to Steward Spencer for bringing the vessel safe into port at Halifax, and claiming that it was the work of the crew, and insisting that they should have credit for their work. The letter was written in Suffolk county jail, and reads as follows:

"In consequence of rumors and statements in your honorable, and different other newspapers in Boston, regarding the management and final arrival of the barkentine Herbert Fuller in Halifax, after Mate Bram was put in irons, it seems to me that Dr. Diswell and the public in general are under the impression that it was Steward Spencer who brought the vessel into Halifax, and is therefore getting all the credit, though he really only deserves but a part, and that was through having all the arms in the vessel to himself, Passenger Monks' revolver included.

We therefore beg to state that it was not the steward who took the vessel into Halifax, but the crew did it. Spencer has himself admitted that he never was a sailor, and did not know anything about handling a vessel, nor was he a navigator.

If the steward had had his own way the vessel would have been "hove to" at about 100 miles from Halifax to await the arrival of a steamer to tow her into port, which would have caused heavy expense to either the owners or the insurance company.

The idea of a man terming himself commander of the vessel wanting to "heave her to" at high sea, and in a dead calm, proves how much of a seaman he is.

After the murders were committed, Mate Bram took command of the vessel, and appointed Charles Brown first mate and Frank Loheac second mate, and that with full consent of the crew. After Bram and Brown were put in irons the full management of the vessel was left in Frank Loheac's hands, and not in the steward's, and it was through his and our combined efforts that the Herbert Fuller got safely into Halifax harbor, and not through Spencer's.

We did not get a wink of sleep from the time the murders were committed until the vessel reached Halifax, and if it had not been for some of us sailors going into the gallery to cook, we would not have anything to eat either, for Spencer would cook no more, besides being only in the way on deck.

We do not see why he should be supported any more than the rest of us.

We also beg to state that Mr. Monks was very well able to take care of himself, without any assistance from the steward.

The letter is signed by Frank Loheac, Henry Slice, Oscar Anderson, Folke Wassin and Hendrik Berdok.

Mate Thomas Bram, with the crime of murder hanging over his head, and the visions of death, the judgment of the law, before him, is far from being contented with his lot. Down in Charles Street jail, Bram is now passing the time away until he shall again appear before the United States tribunal to answer to the charge of triple murder. Together with Bram, Charles Brown, able seaman, was held for the grand jury, and both men, with the horror of the position closely identified with each living moment, are now sworn enemies. Brown insists that Bram did the fiendish butchering, while Bram is equally as certain that he is innocent. Such has been their statements.

Bram's keepers pass and repass his cell, but they find him uncommunicative at times, and even literature passed to him is not appreciated by the prisoner. He wants freedom, but the ponderous bars before him silently mock at his request. Sunday he read a little, eat well, and thought much. Monday he read less, his appetite was good, and he thought more. Yesterday he tried to shake off the dismal air, but to no purpose.

Bram, occasionally, will talk, but he is guarded when the murder is spoken of. "This confinement here," said he, "is killing me. Just think of what one has to pass through, his only companion his thoughts, and those at times are his deadly enemy."

There was a rumor that medical experts were to examine Bram as to his possible insanity, but this is denied by the officials.

A Short Convention.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5.—The convention of the state branch of the Federation of Labor concluded its session yesterday. The day was devoted principally to adopting a series of resolutions and in listening to the reports of the various officers and committees. The convention voted to hold its next meeting in Boston. The officers elected for the coming year were: President, J. D. Pierce; first vice president, H. Grady, Springfield; second vice president, D. D. Sheehan, Boston; secretary, George H. Lord, Brockton; treasurer, Charles Spencer, Springfield.

All Didn't Run Smoothly.

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 5.—The annual union English picnic of the Sons of St. George was held yesterday at Melville gardens. The picnickers came from Boston and adjoining towns to the number of 2800. The presence of pickpockets was disagreeably felt by many persons. The police force of Hingham confiscated the beer which the picnickers had provided for their own refreshments. Owing to the bitter feeling on the part of the people, the large express wagon which contained the confiscated goods was prevented from leaving the grounds for some hours.

"Trusty" Prisoners Escape.

Concord, Mass., Aug. 5.—Two men escaped from the state reformatory last evening. One was Thomas W. Howe, residence Boston and Hudson, 24 years of age. He has been a prisoner for four months. The other fellow's name is Geore Hopkins, residence Roxbury, 26 years of age. Both men were "trusty" prisoners, and had been employed, with others, outside the walls, repairing the walks about the prison. They were first missed about 6:45 o'clock, but it was not until an hour afterward that the officials became convinced that they were really missing.

Death of Professor Hagar.

Sharon, Mass., Aug. 5.—Professor Daniel B. Hagar, A. M., Ph D., one of the best known educators in the state, died of heart failure at Massapoag Lake hotel yesterday afternoon. For 31 years he had been the head of the Salem normal school. He had been an educator since 1843. He was born at Newton Lower Falls in 1820. He was the author of many mathematical text books. He was married in Schenectady, N. Y., and had seven children, of whom five survive him.

Mysterious Somerville Case.

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 5.—John Carroll, an old soldier, about 65 years of age, died at the Somerville hospital Monday afternoon, as a result of a fractured skull, three broken ribs and a number of contusions. It was said at the hospital that he died from delirium tremens, but it is learned that the cause really was his injuries, and no one knows how or where he received them. The police are at work on the case, but refuse to say anything about it at present.

Mate Killed Cook.

Portland, Me., Aug. 5.—Word has just been received here from Captain Wallace, of the Portland brig Henry B. Cleaves, stating that while lying in the port of San Juan, Porto Rico, the mate struck the cook over the head with a belaying pin, knocking him down a hatchway and killing him instantly. The mate and crew were arrested by the American consul, and are now on their way to Baltimore, where the mate will be tried for murder.

Industrial Boom at Derry.

Derby, N. H., Aug. 5.—Harris & Heath, shoe manufacturers, Haverhill, Mass., have leased the large shoe factory owned by the Derry Ind Building association, and will give employment to over 200 hands. Colburn, Fuller & Co. are to employ 150 new help in the new addition which has recently been built to the E. L. F. shoe factory. Fifty new houses are to be built in this village.

Heavy Damage by Hail.

Bradford, Vt., Aug. 5.—A severe hail and wind storm passed over this village yesterday afternoon. The ground in the path of the storm was whitened by hailstones, which broke window glass and beat down smaller crops. The storm was 1½ miles in width, and was accompanied by a strong wind, which stripped fruit and shade trees of limbs and foliage.

Knifed at an Ale Party.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5.—When a mixed ale party at the home of Daniel Tobin, aged 24, of 57 Winter street, broke up late last night, Tobin fought with Jerry Maroney, aged 24, and stabbed him in the left shoulder, the knife penetrating the lung. Tobin escaped. Maroney was taken to the city hospital, where it is believed he will die.

John Duane Park Dead.

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 5.—Hon. John Duane Park, state referee and ex-chief justice of Connecticut, died yesterday afternoon, at the age of 77, death having due to a general breaking down. He was born in Preston in 1819, and was the son of Rev. B. F. Park, and a descendant of Robert Park of England, who settled in Boston in 1630.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 5.—John Ruddy, who took a large quantity of poison with suicidal intent, at his home, died at the hospital yesterday. Family troubles led to the act. Ruddy leaves a wife and three small children absolutely unprovided for.

New England Briefs.

A mad dog caused a small panic in Somerville, Mass.

John J. Walsh, aged 22, was drowned at Chelsea, Mass., while bathing.

William Flannery, aged 7 years, fell into the Charles river at Boston, and was drowned.

John H. Oliver was struck by an express train at Newport, Me., and instantly killed.

The American Waltham (Mass.) Watch company's factory is to be run only four days a week.

Mrs. Clara S. Moore fell out of a second-story window at Boston and broke her back. She will probably die.

The trustees of the Connecticut hospital for the insane are erecting a crematory, in which all the unclaimed dead at the hospital will be incinerated.

D. F. Wood & Co., manufacturers of satinets and woolen blankets at Northboro, Mass., have shut down their factory, owing to depression in business.

Moore Brothers Say They Are Far From Being Financially Dead.

Closing of Stock Exchange Warded Off Raids.

Nobody Outside the Moores Likely to Be Seriously Hurt.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—There will be no panic here as a result of the failure of the Moore Bros. Both the Diamond Match and New York Biscuit companies are asserted to be in good condition, and are expected to recover from the failure. Menaced raids have been warded off by the closing of the Chicago Stock Exchange, which will remain closed indefinitely. As the match and biscuit stocks have been almost the only stocks dealt in, it is not believed that the closing of the Exchange will interfere with general financial affairs. Financiers say that there is no danger of panic, nor is there any likelihood of any serious results.

It is still impossible to make any estimate of Moore Bros.' holdings. They unquestionably have purchased an enormous line of both New York Biscuit and Diamond Match stocks. The high price at which Diamond Match has been selling makes the sum involved in handling it extremely large. It is said that the Moores have purchased half the $11,000,000 capital stock of the Diamond Match company, and the purchases of New York Biscuit stock perhaps bear as large a proportion to the total.

Many of the outstanding trades in match and biscuit, it is expected, can be closed up by the brokers of the Exchange, and before trading is resumed on the floor. There were many inquiries yesterday for curo quotations on match and biscuit, but nobody manifested a desire to trade until matters have been reduced to some definite plan. James H. Moore was closeted during the forenoon with his attorney, Mr. Coffeen, and received all callers during the early morning, but he had little to say regarding the situation. The officers of the banks holding Diamond Match loans were in nowise disturbed; they felt confident that everything would come out all right, and that nobody outside of the Moores would be seriously hurt.

"Where do you find the greatest trouble; in the Diamond Match or the New York Biscuit?" Mr. Moore was asked.

"Oh, it works both ways; due, of course to the stringency of money. But you can say that I do not think there will be any panic of stocks; that the Stock Exchange being closed, there will be time for conservative action to preserve values, and that we will eventually come out all right. We are a long way from being financially dead, and will soon be on top again. This affair was a hard shock, but it is only temporary."

"There will be no statement of the situation issued by us. I can say that with the Stock Exchange closed there will be an immediate resort to resources of which we have knowledge, and which are accessible, to straighten matters out. The shock came from the general stringency in the money market, but we have every hope of soon getting things upon their normal basis. We think we are perfectly safe in saying that we will tide over every trouble."

P. D. Armour said that he did not fear a panic as the result of the Moore Bros.' failure. "I do not think it will affect other stocks," he said. "The men who held the bulk of the stock are very wealthy, and will come out all right. I do not fear a panic, and believe the Moore Bros. will come out all right in the end."

A prominent stock broker of this city, Charles Courselma, says of the Diamond Match fiasco:

"The deal is virtually closed. The Diamond Match property is all right. The company has had nothing to do with the speculation. It earned $1,800,000 last year on $11,000,000 capital, and has $5,000,000 of quick assets. The speculation has been by the Moores and their friends. Mr. Moore says he is not busted; that he has resources and plenty of courage. But Moore has been away up in the air. He could not sell his stock, and he has kept on buying it at very high prices. That is at an end. The people who have loaned on the security will handle it from this forward."

By Special Request.

London, Aug. 5. — The Marquis of Tweeddale, as chairman of the Anglo-American and Eastern Telegraph companies, has requested the following dispatch to be forwarded to the principal newspapers of the United States: "An influential committee is about to be formed to inaugurate an international memorial to commemorate the inception and extension of submarine telegraphy, connected with the names of Cyrus W. Field, Sir James Anderson and Sir John Pender. In view of the great international importance of the subject, you may think the desirability of establishing such a memorial suitable to be dealt with in your leader columns."

Vestmakers Strike.

New York, Aug. 5.—The vestmakers joined the other strikers in the clothing industry yesterday, about 2300 men and women going out from 134 shops. Reports from Brownsville are that 200 have gone out there. The strikers demand a working week of 59 hours and a slight advance in wages.

Your Watch is No Good.

"That is fighting talk," you say, but wait until we finish the sentence—if it fails to tell you the correct time.

A watch will sometimes run several years without being cleaned, but it is wearing out, and, when it finally stops, some genius who advertises "Clean your Watch for a Dollar," and whose kit of tools comprise a brush, tack hammer and a screw driver, brushes out the dirt, ignorant of the damage the watch has sustained, and your watch, once your faithful friend, can no longer be relied upon.

Think This Over

Friend, and take your watch to a place where they have every modern tool known to the trade, and work with a thinking cap on.

Such a Place is 104 Hancock Street, QUINCY.

BARN BURNED.

A Hot Fire on the Estate of Aunt Lydia Trask at West Quincy.

The alarm from Box 443 at 9.05 Tuesday night called the department to what proved to be a hot fire in an old barn on West street, owned by Mrs. Lydia L. Trask. When the department arrived the barn was a roaring mass of flames. Two lines of hose were laid from the nearest hydrant and two from the steamer which was stationed near Hayden street, and in a few minutes gallons of water were being poured into the building, and the firemen soon had the satisfaction to know that they had conquered the flames.

The building, however, was practically destroyed, although the shell remains. In the building there was stored a quantity of furniture and some coal which was destroyed.

The origin of the fire is a mystery but it was doubtless the work of an incendiary and it is thought the parties entered the building through the basement, and reached the upper floor by the scuttle.

The barn was an old affair and not worth a great deal but the loss on the building and contents will amount to several hundred dollars.

Afternoon Burglary.

The house of Marcus M. Hobart on Independence avenue was entered by burglars sometime Tuesday afternoon. The family went away shortly after noon and it was during their absence that the break was made. The first entrance was doubtless made by breaking a parlor window but as the door leading from this room was bolted no progress could be made from there, and they evidently came out again and smashed a window in another part of the house. The parties then rumaged through the house, but as far as can be learned all that was taken were two hand bags and a quantity of silver glassware. A pocketbook and a bag of silver was overlooked. The matter was reported to the police and Inspector McKay was detailed upon the case.

Granite Failure.

The failure is reported of the well known granite dealers, James Sexton & Son, of Bridgeport, Conn. The liabilities are $30,000 and the assets only half that amount. Mrs. Sexton, Jr., is said to have sunk a fortune.

Notable features of Outing for August are: "A Bout with the Bluefish," by Ed. W. Sandys; "The Half-Raters," by R. B. Burchard; Two Handicaps," by Caroline Shelley; "The Naval Militia," by Lieut. W. H. Stayton, and "Plain John Miller," by C. P. Burton. Other seasonable sketches and many illustrations complete an excellent number. The editorial and record departments are very interesting.

"For five weeks I lived on cold water, so to speak," writes a man who suffered terribly from indigestion.

He could hardly keep anything on his stomach. What stayed wasn't properly digested and gave him terrible pangs.

This is not an uncommon case. Dyspeptics don't get enough nourishment. They are generally thin and weak.

They may eat enough but they don't digest enough. Much of what they eat turns into poison. If this keeps on there's no telling what disease they may get next.

That's why it is best to take Shaker Digestive Cordial, as soon as symptoms of indigestion appear,

It cures all the evils of indigestion, and prevents the evils which indigestion causes.

Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

QUINCY GETS TWO.

And the City Will Not be Divided into Districts.

The Representative Apportionmnt by County Commissioners.

Weymouth and Braintree Will be Together with Two Representatives.

The Norfolk County Commissioners have apportioned the city and towns of the county into Representative districts, as required every ten years, and the division is as equitable as possible, and gives good satisfaction, especially in this section of the county.

Quincy which for 20 or more years has been joined with the town of Weymouth with three Representatives, will hereafter go it alone with two, while Weymouth and Braintree will go together and have two.

Brookline's bluff for two Representatives was unavailing, the Commissioners not seeing their way clear to legally make such an apportionment. The town has but 3,243 voters, and the average district for one should be 2,370, and for two 4,740. If the town really expected to get two it probably is disappointed.

The number of Representatives in the county is the same as in the past ten years, viz. thirteen. The number of districts is increased one, and there are now ten. The number is the same as suggested by the DAILY LEDGER on Monday and six of the ten districts are identically the same. Dedham remains with Norwood instead of going with Hyde Park, and the towns of the district ten below are put together and given two Representatives instead of being divided into two districts.

As intimated by the LEDGER, it is not an easy task to divide a county so that districts shall be of equal size, and the towns of a district contiguous. The apportionment by the Commissioners is as fair as possible and the board is to be complimented. The districts, voters, etc.:

District No. 1—Dedham and Norwood, one representative; number of legal voters, 2835; clerks meet at Dedham.

District No. 2—Brookline; one representative; number of legal voters, 3243.

District No. 3—Hyde Park; one representative; number of legal voters, 2772.

District No. 4—Milton and Canton; one representative; number of legal voters, 2267; clerks meet at Canton.

District No. 5—Quincy; two representatives; number of legal voters, 4325.

District No. 6—Weymouth and Braintree; two Representatives; number of legal voters, 4370; clerks meet at Braintree.

District No. 7—Avon, Randolph and Holbrook; one representative; number of legal voters, 2237; clerks meet at Randolph.

District No. 8—Stoughton, Sharon and Walpole; one representative; number of legal voters, 2471; clerks meet at Sharon.

District No. 9—Wellesley, Needham, Dover, Medfield and Millis; one representative; number of legal voters, 2304; clerks meet at Dover.

District No. 10—Foxboro, Norfolk, Franklin, Bellingham, Medway and Wrentham; two representatives; number of legal voters, 4076; clerks meet at Franklin.

The decision of the Commissioners not to divide the city of Quincy into two districts is generally satisfactory, particularly as neither party had anything to gain politically. If divided, Wards One, Two and Three would have constituted one district and the other wards the other. The city in one or two districts will ordinarily elect two Republican Representatives. The decision not to divide is particularly satisfactory because Representatives Thompson and Newcomb would have been in one district in case of a division. Both are worthy men and should be given a second term, and now the selection of both is assured if they are willing to run.

The vote of the city as a whole and divided, for Governor and Representatives last year, was as follows:

FOR GOVERNOR.

	Wards 1, 2 and 3.	Wards 4, 5 and 6.	The City.
Brown,	16	26	42
Greenhalge,	1022	800	1822
Kendall,	16	16	32
Ruther,	14	4	18
Williams,	498	532	1030
Blanks,	51	24	85

FOR REPRESENTATIVES.

Chubbuck,	56	32	88
Cleverly,	16	19	35
Dyer,	10	17	27
Everett,	535	565	1200
Lincoln,	418	453	871
Tirrell,	430	467	897
Flint,	889	707	1595
Newcomb,	961	750	1711
Thompson,	1020	801	1821
Blanks,	417	425	842

It will be seen that all the Republican candidates carried the divisions as well as the city. The situation would be a little different with all the Weymouth men out of it, but where it was man against man, as for Governor, the Republican is well in the lead.

DIED.

JONES—In Quincy, Aug. 4, Thomas J., son of Mr. Griffith T. and Mrs. Jane Jones, aged 1 year and 8 months.

The Hospital Fete.

Editors Daily Ledger:

The writer understands that the time and place for holding the Hospital fete this year have not yet been decided upon, and hopes that a few suggestions, made with a sense of appreciation and not in a spirit of criticism of last year's competent committee, will not be deemed impertinent.

As to the place—the location chosen last year on Goffe street (made available by the generosity of the owners) though one of the most beautiful in the city, was not easily accessible, being on a high hill, at a considerable distance from the heart of the city, with dark, toilsome and unfamiliar approaches. Merry Mount Park is prettily situated, centrally located and easily accessible, naturally adapted for such a fete. Consent to its use for such a worthy purpose could undoubtedly be obtained from the proper authorities.

As to the time—the success of the fete depends almost wholly upon having a period of warm, pleasant weather, as it is held out-doors, and during the evenings as well as the day-time. The following facts concerning the weather obtained from the officials and records of the Weather Bureau, at the station on top of the Boston post office may be of interest and value.

In the early part of September there is usually a north-east storm, after the passage of which comes an interval of warm, pleasant, hazy days, with clear, cool nights, unusually free from fogs and dews. This spell of fine weather lasts through the period of the autumnal equinox, which occurs about September 22 when the sun enters the seventh sign of the zodiac or "crosses the line" as it is commonly called. This season will be readily recalled as the time of the "Harvest Moon" whose beauty was commented upon by the earliest settlers of the colony. The weather at this time is perhaps the finest of the whole year. Sooner or later after the sun crosses the line, but usually in the first-third of October, comes a long severe northeast storm, commonly (but probably erroneously) attributed to the crossing of the line by the sun. Succeeding this storm comes cooler, clear weather, with frequent frosts, which first appear in the latter part of September. Late in the autumn comes a short season of mild, pleasant weather, with very quiet winds, which is well-known under the name of "Indian Summer," when the frost-painted sun-browned hills have a peculiarly sleepy, hazy appearance. After this the weather grows steadily colder, and the long, rugged New England winter shuts in. It seems that the period of the harvest moon would be an admirable season in which to have the fete.

Annexed is a schedule of the temperature at 8 P. M. in this vicinity during the months of September and October 1894 and 1895, which show with reasonable certainty what temperature may be expected this year:

Boys have burnt the inside of the large tree on Hancock street, in front of the old site of the car house at Norfolk Downs, so that there is now very little sound wood to keep the tree from falling. The city official having such matters in his charge should examine the tree and see if it is in a safe condition, before someone is injured by it.

Every little while our attention is called to the flyer nuisance. The other day as we entered our yard three or four large posters were blowing about on our trim lawn which we gathered up and consigned to the flames without reading. The throwing of flyers, pamphlets, etc, every day to clutter up people's yards is a great nuisance and there should be a city ordinance to prohibit it. Some of the literature thrown about should be suppressed.

BICYCLES.

Closing out prices at GUY'S COLISEUM Quincy.

City Hall.

August seems a clearing up month. It is the closing month of vacation, and September brings us to a renewal of work, always welcome to healthy natures. At the same time old places have become like new, a change, a renovation seems seasonable. While our more fortunate citizens have been away, to mountains, sea-side, or to London to see the Queen, work-a-day, less favored mortals have wandered around this old town, now a very young city, and they have seen through spectacles more clearly than ever before. They see much to be glad about, much to be proud of, but also, some things they wish were different.

Strangers visiting Quincy, after being taken to see our grand old granite hills, our beautiful library, our big fountain, the Adams houses, our splendid academies, and many large schools, ask about our public affairs.

Our tight little Town Hall is pointed out, not without some hesitation, for that has not kept pace with public improvement, nor is it in proportion to our necessities. A visit there, only Saturday, on business, revealed an inconvenient, even unbusiness like arrangement of offices. One had to pass, with many others, on similar errands, through the large room where the Assessors were busily at work, to reach other officers. To find the mayor, one passes through two business offices devoted to various departments, and is directed to a small closet devoid of ventilating shaft, fan, or window, to change the air; a gas jet further improves the humidity of these dog days. Below stairs we are told, less attractive offices can be found. Is the Board of Health responsible for the sanitary conditions where men are held in confinement?

If a woman were carried to our station house, to be kept over night, would she be received into a place where the privacy and decency required by her sex, however degraded she might seem, could be maintained?

Then why not all the departments of public work beneath one roof? If rentals have to be be made outside our City Hall, presumably those rentals pay the landlord. Cannot the city be the gainer by owning all their own places of business, being their own tenants?

A great deal has been agitated about improvements at City Hall, and it is not dignified or businesslike to transact our city affairs as we do. In spite of the cry of at heavy taxes, high valuation, our school tax, etc., we can not afford to be behind the times in city affairs. Our public servants are conscientious, earnest gentlemen.

Quincy is not old enough yet for any corruption in municipal affairs to creep in. As a city increases in size these evils will come in unless we begin well. We need breathing room; some privacy is needed to conduct public as well as private business judicously. With the Adams block, Durgin & Merrill's block, the new Saving bank block going up, an enlarged and convenient place to transact public affairs is a necessity. The interests of the public will not suffer, for we are now paying rents for offices which should be under our own Town Hall roof. Let us weigh carefully these suggestions.

—Without doubt the Venezuelan question has advanced the principle of international arbitration a quarter of a century. Much credit is due to Secretary Olney for bringing the correspondence on the subject to a point where decisive action cannot be escaped. Lord Salisbury, in his speech upon laying the papers in the case before the House of Lords, showed how tories may change as well as times. He has come to frankly yield to the spirit and principle of international arbitration, though heretofore averse to doing so. He now perceives that the civilization, both of America and England, will not tolerate the thought that there is no better way to settle international disputes than by resort to arms.—Boston Home Journal.

—"In order to preserve intact the American credit," said Grant when he was President, "let every obligation, unless otherwise stipulated in the contract, be paid in gold;" and again he said, "if any man attempts to repudiate this American principle, let him be driven from public life."

—The member of Christ Episcopal Church, West Islip, N. Y., are angry because the memorial chapel given to the parish by Mrs. Harry I. Nicholas, in memory of her daughter, has been rented to Mrs. James Duffin, who has opened in it a pickling and preserving establishment, with an intelligence office as an annex.

WORSE AND WORSE.

Cretan Outrages Continue on a Much Greater Scale Than Ever.

Athens, Aug. 5.—Hassa Pasha has been reinstated as governor of Heraklion, in the Island of Crete, as being the only man able to cope with the situation. On his refusing to admit to the town a mob of Mussulmans, who were bringing in the bodies of two Mussulmans shot by insurgents, he was torn from his horse and severely maltreated. The situation is critical, and thousands of armed Mussulmans are thronging to Heraklion unchecked. The Christian residents are in a state of panic, and Turkish troops have been sent from Canea to restore order. Serious fighting is reported from Macedonia. Two hundred insurgents inflicted severe losses on 300 Turkish troops at Sarantapore's pass, near Elassona. Two bodies of insurgents at Katranitsa, after two days' hot siege by 1200 Turks, cut their way through toward Sorovitsovo.

No Gold Account Opened.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—E. S. Clouston, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, says that there is no truth in the dispatch which stated that the Chicago branch of the bank had "raised a storm there" by opening a gold account, against which had been issued time certificates of deposit, the gold obtained being shipped to Montreal for use there. The bank had not brought one dollar of gold into Canada; it had opened no gold account in the United States, and it had not issued any such certificates as those mentioned.

Cycles In Politics.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The Wheelman's National McKinley and Hobart club was organized at the Republican national headquarters last night. Two hundred business men were present to aid the project to organize an army of cyclists. The club starts with a prospective membership in Chicago alone of fully 10,000. As soon as the organization is well under way, local clubs will be formed, tributary to the national organization, and the movement will be extended all over the country.

Concession to Uitlanders.

Pretoria, Aug. 5. — A bill has been passed by the volksraad, allowing the children of foreign residents of the Transvaal who attend the public schools to learn the language of their parents. This is a step in the direction of redressing one of the grievances of the Uitlanders, who energetically protested against their children having no school facilities for learning their own language, the only language that is recognized in the schools being Dutch.

Insane Doctor Killed.

New York, Aug. 5.—Early this morning Dr. Lawrence Cortelliceu, a physician residing in Brooklyn, while suffering from temporary insanity, either jumped or fell from the window of his residence. He was killed almost instantly. Dr. Cortelliceu was 50 years of age. At the time the affair happened he was under the charge of a professional nurse, but the nurse was asleep in the adjoining room, and the doctor succeeded in making his escape.

Forest Fires In Michigan.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Aug. 5.—Much damage is being done by forest fires near here. Gladys, eight miles from here, on the South Shore road, was wiped out yesterday. The residents had to flee for their lives. Primley was threatened with destruction. Scores of farmers have lost their homes. The South Shore passenger train was compelled to return, owing to the heat and smoke. No rain has fallen for weeks, and everything is dry as tinder.

Crank Demanded $400,000.

Washington, Aug. 5.—O. J. Markle, a man evidently of unsound mind, called on United States Treasurer Morgan yesterday and demanded $400,000, as payment of a claim he had against the government. Mr. Morgan engaged the man in conversation while a messenger called a treasury watchman, who removed him from the building. Markle was formerly a clerk in the record division of the war department. He lost his place several years ago.

As Viewed In England.

London, Aug. 5.—The Morning Post says in an editorial: The Chicago crash is unfortunate at the moment eastern bankers were trying to prevent the depletion of the treasury of gold. Already there are rumors that Americans are beginning to send their savings to Germany, rather than keep them within reach of the Bryanites.

Sultan Needs Aid.

London, Aug. 5.—The Chronicle hears that the sultan has invoked Lord Salisbury's aid in arranging for fresh concessions to the insurgent Cretans.

Miss Grace Doble has gone to Harwich for a few weeks.

"Ben Bolt" will propound some queries to Mr. F. A. Tupper in tomorrow's issue.

Congressman Atwood announces he is a candidate for renomination in this district.

By the new adjustment Quincy is allowed $2,724 for clerk hire at its post office.

Mr. Thomas Evans, the good natured driver of the N. Y. & B. Despatch Express Company, has gone to Rangley Lakes for a week.

Atlantic has become one of the prettiest parts of Quincy, and is growing fast. Charles Carter offers today some very desirable lots there.

Mrs. H. O. Studley, Miss Eliza Crane and Miss Ella Stetson enjoyed an electric car ride to Arlington and return on Friday afternoon; time about five hours.

Prof. Daniel B. Hagar principal of the Salem normal school since 1865, died at Massapoag Lake hotel at Sharon, aged 76 years. Many of his graduates live in Quincy.

The freight house of the Old Colony railroad, near the Kneeland street depot, is being demolished and two more tracks are being laid on the outside of the passenger station, making five new tracks this summer, just double the old number.

Cross street between Crescent and Common streets, which has demanded attention for a long time is now being repaired. A large drain and catch basin is being put in near the residence of Albert Shackley to carry the surface water into Furnace brook. The grade at that point is also being raised and the grade of the hill in front of the residence of Walter H. Ripley is being lowered.

—During the last city election in Paris the pasting of electoral placards on the walls of the Elysee was prevented. The law authorizes the affixing of posters on all public buildings except churches, and while an election is going on all the monuments, statues, fountains, as well as buildings, are disfigured by them. The Town Councillor whose posters were torn down, was elected and proposes to make trouble for the persons who tried to save the President's palace.

—The Randolph, Hingham and Everett associations were admitted to membership in the New England Firemens League on Tuesday, and applications for membership were received from the Peabody union, Dorchester and Swampscott associations, which will be admitted at the November meeting.

—The tax rate of Winthrop is $15.30, being ten cents less than last year.

Good Templars.

At the regular meeting of Wollaston lodge, 237, I. O. G. T., Tuesday evening, two candidates were iniated, the reports of the officers for the previous quarter were presented. They showed a remarkable gain in membership, 42 candidates being initiated. The members are making special efforts to win the banner offered by the district lodge to the lodge making the greatest gain. This is the second consecutive term they have been in the lead and should they be fortunate enough to win it again, it will be their own property. The membership is now ninety-four.

The following officers were installed by James C. Gillepsie, D. G. C. T., assisted by Mr. F. Lawrence of Merrymount lodge and Miss M. Brown of Faxon lodge:

C. T.,—Allan G. McKinley.
V. T.,—Mrs. Anna Sparrow.
Sec.,—Miss Eliza Miner.
F. S.,—Mrs. Bertha McLeod.
T.,—Miss Jennie Kay.
C.,—Mrs. Waterhouse.
M.,—Wm. L. Cook.
G.,—Alfred Shanks.
D. M.,—Miss Eva Bryant.
A. S.—Wm. Shanks.
S. J. T.,—Mrs. Minnie McKinley.

After installation, a pleasant half hour was devoted to "the good of the order," during which some good selections of songs and recitations were offered. Visitors were present from Boston, Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain, Atlantic, South Quincy and East Milton, making a total of 130.

—The Home Journal tells of a bright dog that lives in New York. He belongs to a part of the police force having headquarters at a certain small station, and was observed rushing in and out one day uttering excitable barks. Finally he was followed, and discovered halting near a rubbish heap. Search in the rubbish brought to light a deserted baby, alive and kicking; it would certainly have died in a few hours, but for the efforts of the dog. The child is now enjoying life in one of New York's public institutions, having, it said, been named for the dog.

—It is clear, says the American, that tobacco and tobacco smoke are antiseptics and germicides of considerable power, and that their action on the pulmonary circulation is useful in relieving or preventing any tendency to chronic congestion of the lungs. Many doctors in various countries have remarked the comparative immunity from pulmonary disease enjoyed by workers in tobacco factories.

—An aluminum quadrant has been devised to measure the antinic power of the Rontgen rays. The aluminum is arranged in concentric layers ranging from one to ten millimetres in thickness. Measurements are taken by holding the quadrant between an excited Crookes tube and a phosphorescent screen or a sensitized plate.

Shame, recreant freemen, shame!
Doth freedom's heart no longer beat,
Is freedom's name no longer sweet,
That listless in her home ye stand
While comes a cry for helping hand,
While Spanish wolf, with fangs agleam,
For Cuban lamb doth roll the stream,
And shackles clank and headsmen stand
For those who dare love native land?

Shame, recreant freemen, shame!
Holds memory not the Frenchman's sword
Unsheathed to check the Hessian horde?
Are hearts so cold that ye forget
Pulaski, Steuben, Lafayette?
Do cannon shots of royal liege
Not echo dow.. from Yorktown siege?
Is freedom's cause less dear than then,
Or lacks the new world worthy men?

Shame, recreant freemen, shame!
Is freedom's flag a-flying yet,
Or are its stars of promise set?
Have they gone down to eternal night
Who battled for the sacred right,
Or do those souls of matchless worth
No longer walk this groveling earth?
Must freedom's sword lie still and rust?
Glows there no fire in patriot dust?

Rouse, slumbering freemen, rouse!
If still ye guard that bell which spoke
And tyrant chains forever broke,
If still ye venerate the great
Who built the glory of our state,
Make haste to unroll that sacred chart
Which blunts the point of despot's dart.
Let Spaniards learn 'tis freedom's war
On islet broken from our shore!
Rouse, slumbering freemen, rouse!

Lots of Money For Cubans.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—It is reported here that the Cuban junta in the United States this week raised a fund amounting to $375,000. Part of the money has been changed into gold, and is now on shipboard, bound for Cuba, where it will be placed in the hands of the officers commanding the insurgent army. The balance has been retained by the junta in Philadelphia and New York, who will use it in a way that will best serve the cause.

Civil Service Regulations.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Heretofore persons carried on the payrolls of the treasury as laborers have done duty as clerks, and some carried as clerks have done duty in capacities not included in the classified service. Secretary Carlisle has issued orders to stop these practices, and a violation of these instructions, he adds, will result in the abolishment of offices not in the classified service.

A Government Defeat.

London, Aug. 5.—The house of lords, last night, by a vote of 25 to 19, inserted a clause in the Irish laborers' bill, which the government resisted, as it would endanger the passage of the bill in the house of commons. The defeat of the government caused a stir in the lobby. It has disconcerted the government, which fears that the Irish land bill will suffer considerably at the hands of the Irish landlord peers, whose strictures on the land bill promise amendments in committee which are likely to cause trouble when the measure is returned to the house of commons.

Bryan's Coming Speech.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 5.—When W. J. Bryan leaves for New York, he will carry with him a draft of the speech which he intends to use before the notification committee in New York. He will put a few finishing touches on before it can be declared complete. It will occupy over an hour in delivering, and will discuss the platform in detail, and give his interpretation thereof.

A Welsh Mining Horror.

Swansea, Aug. 5.—It is feared that 25 miners have been killed in an explosion in the Bryncoch pit, near Neath, Wales. Four corpses have already been recovered.

Sweeney's Big Jump.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—At the Clan-Na-Gael sports yesterday, M. J. Sweeney of New York, ex-amateur champion high jumper, established a new professional record. He jumped 6 ft. 4¼in. His amateur record is 6ft. 5⅜in.

Two Little Burglaries.

Palmer, Mass., Aug. 4.—Two stores were broken into here by burglars. From Legro and Lynde's drug store the thieves secured about $6. About the same amount was obtained from the store of W. A. Barnes, a fruit and tobacco dealer.

DAY OF CONVENTIONS.

Democrats In Maine, Minnesota and Kansas Endorse Chicago Ticket.

Populists Evidently Snowed Under In Alabama.

Chairman Jones Explains His References to Populists In the South.

Alfred, Me., Aug. 5.—The Democratic district convention was held here yesterday. Joseph A. McGowan presided. Chairman McGowan made a stirring speech, in which he denounced the bolters. M. P. Frank of Portland, the free silver advocate, who is to be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination at Waterville, was made chairman of the committee on resolutions. The committee was evenly divided, 3 to 3, on the question of currency, and offered two platforms, one pledging support to Bryan and Sewall and the other making no reference to the national ticket or platform.

Just before the committee on resolutions reported, Tristram Goldthwaite of Biddeford, in a brief speech, nominated ex-Mayor Edward W. Staples of Biddeford as a candidate for representative to congress. He declared that Mr. Staples was never beaten in a political contest, and predicted victory for him in the September election. The nomination was seconded by William H. Clifford of Portland. Mr. Staples became the nominee of the convention without a dissenting voice.

Up to this time there has not been so much as a breeze of excitement, but when M. P. Frank of Portland addressed the assemblage, a storm set in which shortly afterward took on the velocity of a cyclone. Mr. Frank proceeded to read this resolution, which, he explained, was reported by three members of the committee on resolutions:

"Resolved, That the Democratic delegates of the First district, in convention assembled, reaffirm their adherence to the time-honored principles of the Democratic party, as enunciated by its great founder, Thomas Jefferson, and maintained by the firmness of Jackson, and especially that cardinal principle of Democracy, absolute acquiescence to the will of the majority, and they pledge their loyal support to the candidates nominated at the national convention at Chicago, and will use every honest effort to secure their election, as well as the election of the nominee of this convention."

Mr. Frank was immediately followed by Lamont A. Stevens of Wells, who offered a substitute resolution, which also bore the signatures of three members of the committee.

His resolution was, in effect, simply an endorsement of the gold platform adopted at the state convention, June 17.

Several valiant warriors were suddenly upon their feet. A long oratorical battle followed, and finally loud calls for the "question" brought the matter to a vote.

The original resolution, offered by Mr. Frank, pledging loyal support to the nominees of the Chicago convention, was adopted by a vote of 65 to 25, and a deafening shout went up from the free silver element.

At the mass meeting in the courthouse yard late in the afternoon, free silver speeches were made by E. C. Plummer and John Scott of Bath.

Fusion In Kansas.

Hutchinson, Kan., Aug. 5.—At the state Democratic convention yesterday, the committee on platform and order of business reported without delay. The platform reported unequivocally endorses the Chicago platform, reasserts the demand of the Kansas Democracy for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1; lauds Bryan and Sewall as the true champions of the people's interests, and in conclusion demands a resubmission of the prohibition question to the people of the state.

But it was in the report of the committee on rules and order of business that all interest centered. To this committee had been delegated, by common consent, the work of planning a means of effecting a fusion with the Populists. This committee reported that the convention should select its presidential electors, though not formally nominating them, and that a special committee of five should be named to wait on the Populists at Abilene and effect a fusion of the two parties in Kansas. In a word the report recommended that the Democrats agree to surrender everything but the electors to the Populists, and to endorse unequivocally the state ticket nominated by the Populists, including a congressman-at-large, in return for an endorsement by the Populists of the Bryan and Sewall electors.

The convention practically adopted the plan by acclamation. There was a few delegates who wanted a Democrat representation on the state ticket, but these were lost sight of, being a very small minority.

Judge Johnson, Democratic national committeeman for Kansas, was selected to head the delegation of ambassadors to the Populists at Abilene.

Immediately after this committee had been named, the convention adjourned until 4 o'clock this afternoon, to await their report. The committee left last night for Abilene. In an interview, Chairman Johnson stated that he had no doubt but a satisfactory arrangement for fusion could be arrived at.

Late Figures From Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 5.—Late returns from Monday's election in this state confirm the report of a complete Democratic victory, with surprisingly large gains. The count in the big counties has been slow, especially in the cities, but official and estimated returns, the latter based on reports received from a majority of the boxes in the counties reporting show that Johnston and the Democrats have certainly carried 45 out of 66 counties, Goodwyn (Pop.) has 15 counties. Six have not been heard from, or are too close to be figured upon. Of the last named, Johnston probably has four and Goodwyn two. It is believed that the complete returns will show a majority of not less than 45,000 for Johnston, and possibly 50,000. As compared to the election of 1894, the Democrats have carried certainly 15 counties that gave a Populist majority two years ago. As to the legislature, the Democrats have gained, it is figured, 14 members of the house, giving them 78 out of 100. They have elected 11 out of 17 senators, which, with 13 hold-over members, gives them 24 out of 33 members of that body. The sentiment of the legislature is silver, which probably means Pugh's re-election to the United States senate.

Jones' Statement.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee, yesterday corrected certain misapprehensions which have arisen from published interviews with him within the last day or two. "I did not say that Mr. Bryan would not accept the Populist nomination," said Mr. Jones, "for I have no authority to say that. I did not say that as a general rule the southern Populists were not a creditable class. On the contrary, I said that most of them were patriotic men, who were working for a cause; that they were Populists because they had believed they could promote their cause best through a new party; and that now they would support Bryan because it was shown that their patriotic objects could be attained only through his election. This is what I said of the southern Populists as a rule. As an exception, I spoke of the class who were not creditable. I said there were some who were Populists merely for their personal advancement; some who had become Populists through selfish, and not patriotic motives. I spoke of these as the exceptional class, who would not support Mr. Bryan. I said that as a rule the Populists in the south would follow the patriotic course, and support Bryan; that there were some, who for selfish motives, would not do so, but would prefer to have McKinley elected."

Gold Men In Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 5.—Nine gold Democrats from different sections of the state met at the Pavilion yesterday to discuss the situation and lay out a plan of campaign. The meeting organized with P M. Meldon chairman, and W. H. Creamer secretary. After a discussion of the position of J. H. Jackson of Barre, nominee for governor, it was decided to wait on him and ascertain his position. Dr. Jackson declared he stood on the platform of the state convention, and that while not entirely agreeing with the Chicago platform, he was not a bolter. It was decided to support Dr. Jackson's candidacy. It was decided to send a representative to the sound money national convention, to be held at Indianapolis, and W. H. Creamer was chosen. A sound money state committee was appointed to receive the report of the delegate to the Indianapolis convention and call a state convention if that conference so advises.

In Favor of Free Coinage.

Minneapolis, Aug. 5.—There was a full attendance of delegates when the Democratic state convention assembled in the Exposition hall yesterday, and was called to order. Ex-Speaker E. T. Champlin, who was chosen temporary chairman, made a brief speech, in which he took strong ground in favor of free silver coinage.

A platform was adopted which declares in favor of the Chicago convention, denounces the platform of the Republican party and advocates the election of the president and vice president and United States senators by the direct vote of the people.

John Lind was nominated for governor and J. J. Hinrich for secretary of state by acclamation. Alexander McKinnon was nominated for state treasurer.

To Spread Silver Doctrine.

Boston, Aug. 5.—A Massachusetts non-partisan Silver league was formed here last night, with Norman Cameron as president, John Vaugher, vice president; L. M. Barralle, secretary, and A. Barralle, treasurer. All the officers live in Boston. Letters were received from the American Silver league in Washington, tendering support and offering literature, and from Senator Teller of Colorado. Communications were also received from branch organizations, which have been formed in other parts of the state. It was voted to admit women to all the privileges of the league, except in the matter of voting. The league's support was pledged to Bryan, but the members when interviewed were non-committal on the question of candidate for the vice presidency.

Silver Paper For Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Unless all plans miscarry, the free silver Democrats will have a morning paper in this city, the first number of which may be looked for Aug. 10. W. R. Hearst, of the San Francisco Examiner, will be the financial genius of the Chicago Daily Enquirer, which is to be the new paper to uphold the cause of the silverites among the people of the middle west. Fred Haynes, one of Mr. Hearst's confidential agents, said last night: "The idea of starting a free silver paper in Chicago has been floating about for a year in the minds of Democrats of Chicago, who have silver tendencies, but it was not until after Bryan's nomination that the supporters of that platform in Chicago decided to issue The Enquirer."

Each Will Hoe Its Own Row.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—It can be announced authoritatively that the present Democratic state committee will not consider any proposition from the Populist state committee of 13 to divide electors in this state. Inquiry at both Populist and Democratic headquarters show that there is no probability of the two parties coming together in state or national affairs. The Democratic managers take the position that the Populists have nothing to offer in return for anything the Democrats might consent to give.

Gold Men Stirred Up.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 5.—A conference of gold Democrats yesterday was attended by Democrats from all over the state. J. M. Faulkner of this city was chosen to represent the Alabama gold Democrats at Indianapolis, and steps were taken to perfect the organization throughout the state. S. H. Deart of Eufaula presided. A state convention is to be held and electors named. Candidates for congress will be put out in every district, and the fight will be pushed vigorously to the end.

Platt's Pull.

New York, Aug. 5.—Mark A. Hanna and Charles W. Hackett, chairman of the Republican state committee, had a conference yesterday, the result of which is interesting to politicians. It was decided that all applications for employment in connection with the campaign in this state should be turned over to State Chairman Hackett and to Edward Lauterbach, Platt's lieutenant.

New England Briefs.

W. D. Eaton & Co., dealers in wool, Boston, have assigned.

Matthew Daney, aged 22, was drowned at Providence while bathing.

Herbert Nickerson, aged 19, was drowned while bathing at Lawrence, Mass.

George H. Libby of Denver has been elected principal of the Lewiston (Me.) high school.

D. M. Mooney, for a number of years a trader in Alton, N. H., and postmaster under several administrations, died suddenly.

The Sawyer, Walbridge & Briggs company, furniture manufacturers, Boston, have assigned to the president, Edwin W. Sawyer.

A peddler was drowned in a pit at the Hawes pottery works, in Cambridge, Mass., where he and a companion had gone in bathing.

Daniel Piper of Newburyport, Mass., sustained a compound fracture of the skull by his horse kicking him. He will probably die.

Captain Charles Chapman died at New London, Conn. He was born in Waterford in 1800. His father, Eliphalet Chapman, served in the Revolution.

Mrs. Elihu Quimby, aged 68, widow of the late Professor Quimby, professor of mathematics of Dartmouth college from 1864 to 1878, died at Hanover, N. H.

The charter of Textile union, No. 2, Lawrence, Mass., has been revoked by the executive committee of the national union. The reason for this action is that the union existed only on paper.

A large number of looms in Bennett mill, No. 1, New Bedford, Mass., have stopped for a month, owing to overproduction. The Wamsutta mills closed for a week, and other mills will also curtail productions.

The West Lynn (Mass.) Democratic club enthusiastically ratified the action of the Chicago convention, by a rally and flag raising. There was a parade with 400 Democrats, as an escort to George F. Williams, the principal speaker.

The Goodyear India Rubber Manufacturing company and the Goodyear Metallic Rubber Shoe company have closed their big factories at Naucatuck, Mass., for an indefinite period. Fifteen hundred operatives are idle.

Henry R. Beal, long a prominent merchant of Boston, died of consumption at his home in Brookline, Mass., aged 66. A widow and three children survive him. Mr. Beal was for years engaged in the dry goods business.

Congressman McCall of Massachusetts spoke at St. Johnsbury, Vt., at the first indoor rally of the Republicans of the state, held under the auspices of the McKinley and Hobart club. Mr. McCall defended the principles with an exhaustive review of the money question.

—Candidate Bryan's great grandmother is living at the age of 94. She assists her daughter in the family washing and smokes a corncob pipe. Although quite an expert in the science of longevity, says the Boston Courier, the lady need not expect to live long enough to see her oratorical descendant make an inaugural address as President of the United States.

NEURALGIA

He is now Cured, and He Thanks God and P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, For It.

Mr. George Briggs, of Moore, Okla., suffered almost indescribable torment for three long years. Neuralgia held him captive. The right side of his face was so badly affected that the slightest touch would cause the unfortunate man intense agony. For several weeks he could open his mouth just wide enough to be fed with liquid nourishment, and in this manner life was sustained. Read the following extract from his letter: "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

NEURALGIA, CATARRH AND RHEUMATISM COMPLETELY CURED.

George Briggs, of Moore, Oklahoma, writes that P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him of catarrh, facial neuralgia and rheumatism, after three years of intense suffering. The pain lay in his cheek bone and temple, down the right side of his face, along his upper lip, and from the slightest touch he suffered agonies for weeks at a time. Could only open his mouth wide enough to admit a teaspoon, and any acid in his food would put him in torture. He had a consultation of the best physicians in Texas, but all to no purpose.

Catarrh and rheumatism were also causing him much trouble, until he tried P. P. P. He says he is well and will swear that there are no cases of neuralgia, catarrh and rheumatism, no matter how chronic or how old the cases are, that P. P. P. will not make a total cure of.

Mr. Briggs winds up his testimony by saying he thanks God and our medicine, P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for the great cure.

Kidney troubles, if neglected, bring about serious and painful and very often fatal results. P. P. P. removes the irregularities, and cures the diseased parts.

Dyspepsia and indigestion, skin and blood diseases, can be speedily removed by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

Ladies, take P. P. P. and rid your face of pimples, blotches, freckles, yellow or muddy skin, wrinkles and vulgar redness.

Sold by all druggists.

Strike at Plant's Shoe Factory Assuming a More Serious Phase.

Bicycles Used to Follow Up Non-Union Men.

Plant Company Said to Have Made Slight Gains In the Fight.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 6.—The strike of the lasters seems to be getting more serious. It has now been decided that the operatives in the T. G. Plant company's factory at Ipswich shall be ordered out. This action was decided on at a meeting of the advisory board, and no doubt is entertained that operatives will obey the command immediately.

Two assaults were reported yesterday in connection with the strike. One of the non-union men, Chars Johnson, an Armenian, while on his way to the factory, was assaulted on Broad street by two men, who punched and kicked him about the head and body. Johnson was assisted to the factory, and later taken to the hospital. His injuries are not serious.

S. Passlacgua, an Armenian, and one of the union pickets at the Plant factory, complains that a fellow countryman pulled a big knife and threatened to slay him.

There was another large gathering of people at the factory of the Plant company last evening, but a large force of police prevented violence toward the non-union employes when they left the factory. The locked-out workmen had a large force of wheelmen on hand to give chase to the non-unionists, and at 5:55, when the barge "Mayflower" drove up to the rear entrance of the factory, the police had all they could do to keep back the crowd.

Nine of the non-union men, mostly Armenians, were taken into the barge, and police officers went on with them. When the barge started about 20 wheelmen followed it, in order to find out where the non-union men had their lodgings. The police made a rush for the cyclers and succeeded in keeping many of them from joining in the chase. Some of the wheelmen kept the barge in sight until all the men were disposed of, when the chase was given up.

The Plant company is making slight gains in the fight this week, and now has about 30 non-union men at work to take the places of its 92 discharged men. The report is current that a Boston lasting machine company is helping Mr. Plant in his struggle with the labor unions, and that the Boston company will furnish all the men Mr. Plant may need. Already some men in other shops in Lynn have been transferred to the Plant factory.

A meeting of the discharged lasters was held yesterday afternoon, when it was found that 25 of the 92 men had secured places elsewhere. The others were paid their weekly stipend from the treasury of the union. In regard to the trouble, it can only be said that the fight wages hotter and hotter, and that it may possibly be prolonged for months to come. There was a report that the entire force of employes in the Plant factory would be called out on strike, but Agent Carter states that he knows nothing about it.

There was a meeting of the advisory board of the Lasters' union held last evening, but the proceedings were kept secret. It is said that a large number of the non-union men slept in the factory last night. The lasters' union has a regular force of pickets on duty day and night.

Jealousy at Bottom of It.

Hartford, Aug. 6.—Ronicooc Stenice, aged 40 years, proprietress of a boarding house on Potter street, is lying at the city hospital in a critical condition, as the result of an attempted murder by her affianced, who afterward shot himself, with fatal results. Jealousy was the cause. Miss Stenice has been living in this country several years, but before coming here became affianced to Stovona Ronoever, and she has occasionally returned to Austria. Her boarding house is the headquarters of Austrian laborers, and it is surmised that Ronoever, hearing that he had a rival, became jealous and determined to investigate. He recently landed in New York, and yesterday was his first appearance in Hartford. When his alleged rival appeared, Ronoever shot at him, but the man escaped. The woman then fled to her bedroom, but the would-be murderer forced the door, and grabbing her by the throat and placing the revolver against her head, fired. He then fired the remaining shot in the revolver into his own right temple and died instantly.

New Hospital Dedicated.

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 6.—The magnificent new cottage hospital, built and presented to the city of Montpelier by Homer W. Heaton, was dedicated yesterday. A male quartet rendered several selections. Rev. Norman Seaver, D. D., offered prayer, and Mr. Heaton made a few remarks, giving the property outright to the city. H. A. Huse made a response for the trustees, and short addresses were made by Rev. Messrs. A. N. Lewis, E. B. Earle, W. J. O'Sullivan, J. E. Wright and E. M. Smith. A reception was held in the evening, which was largely attended. The hospital is a handsome structure, finely located and completely equipped.

Stole $2000.

Boston, Aug. 6.—James B. Walker, a young man who for years has been assistant cashier for Weeks & Potter wholesale druggists, is a self-confessed embezzler to the amount of $2000. Walker was arrested yesterday, and admitted that for the past two years, he had taken small sums, and while living expensively, has nevertheless laid away $1000 of his peculations in the savings bank. His regular salary was $13 per week, but his extravagant tastes led him to augment this sum.

Lynn Woman Missing.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Frank Savage of 313 Broad street has left her home and a family of 10 children, the oldest 16 years and the youngest 7 months. She has been suffering from rheumatism for some time, and Mr. Sawyer thinks it may have unbalanced her mind. The last he saw of her was Tuesday afternoon, when she came to his shop and asked for some money, which was given her, and he thinks she will return in a few days.

Foresters Celebrate at Dover.

Dover, N. H., Aug. 6.—The New Hampshire Foresters of America gathered here yesterday to hold their annual field day. The procession started at 11 o'clock. There were five bands of music and over 1000 men in line. The march was of about an hour's duration. After the review by the officers of the grand court, electric cars were taken for Burgett park, where an elaborate collation was served. Following the banquet was a program of sports.

An Important Arrest.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 6.—Irving Marks was taken into custody last night on the charge of stealing a pearl scarf pin from Judge Hilliard, a guest at the Revere House. Marks is said to bear resemblance to the man who is wanted for the Coogan robbery, and additional evidence has come to light which shows that a man also answering Marks' description has disposed of valuable jewelry in Newport and other places.

A Great Barbecue.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 6.—The barbecue of the Springfield Butchers' and Grocers' association started yesterday with a parade. Two sets of 50 waiters attended to the crowd at the barbecue in the park, there being about 400 feet of table. Seven tons of beef were roasted over charcoal pits, and 75 lambs were cooked and served. Following the feast there were sports, a concert by the Second regiment band and dancing.

Carroll Not Murdered.

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 6.—It seems now that John Carroll, the aged man who died in the Somerville hospital on Monday afternoon, was not murdered, as alleged, but in all probability inflicted upon himself, while confined in a cell in the police station, the injuries which, in connection with his badly weakened physical condition, the result of a prolonged spree, led to his death.

Lovesickness and Laudanum.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Hattie Hall, aged 19, attempted suicide at Gay's hotel last evening. She took a dose of laudanum, and was found in an unconscious condition and taken to the city hospital, where, after several hours' work, she was brought out of danger. She said that her lover had deserted her, and that she would repeat the attempt to kill herself at the first opportunity.

Nobody Hurt.

Bemis, N. H., Aug. 6.—Fourteen cars of a freight train on the White Mountain division of the Maine Central railroad were demolished in a wreck here yesterday. The wreck was caused by the breaking of a wheel. No one was hurt.

Went Out With the Boys.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Recently the Chicago Shipbuilding company made a cut of 25 cents in the wages of 400 boys employed there, and the result is that the company finds a strike on its hands. Over 1000 of the riviters went out in sympathy with the boys, and the remaining 1000 men are unable to do much without the co-operation of the others. The boys are not organized, but had talked their grievances over with the riveters.

Saw Danger Signals Set.

Atlantic City, Aug 6.—At yesterday's session of the inquest into the Meadow collision, W. B. Bushnell and William B. Purdey, who were passengers on the express, testified that they saw the danger signals set. Mr. Bushnell further testified that he saw a man on the balcony of the signal tower, waving his arms at the approaching train, and that he ran around to the back of the tower before the crash.

CRUSHED BY A BARK.

Schooner Genesta Sunk In Four Minutes After Being Struck.

Dozen Men Barely Escaped With Their Lives.

One Poor Unfortunate Went Down With the Ill-Fated Boat.

Boston, Aug. 6.—A Halifax special to The Journal gives an account of the thrilling experience Captain Rombrey and 12 men of the fishing schooner Genesta, of La Have, had when they were run down on the Grand banks by the bark Jane of Falmouth, for Miramichi, in ballast, to load for Great Britain. At the time of the disaster the Genesta was riding at anchor in about 45 fathoms of water, about 125 miles east of St. John's. All hands, except the watch, James Shea, were below, some in the forecastle, and the others in the cabin aft. There was a seven-knot breeze from the southwest, which was piling the fog in very thick. Abut 3 o'clock in the morning of the 24th the watch thought he heard people talking, and then heard a horn, and at once concluded that a steamer was running upon the schooner. He ran to the cabin and called those below to turn out and save themselves, and then called all hands out of the forecastle. When the captain reached the deck he saw the sails of a bark coming into view a few yards distant. He realized that a collision was inevitable, and the situation a desperate one, and shouted for every man to look out for himself and try and save his life. The men instinctively clambered like monkeys into the rigging to await the blow. The drowned man, Michael Oxner, was the only one who remained on deck.

The bark struck the port rail of the schooner a tremendous blow. The Genesta, which was nearly a new schooner of 90 tons, was almost driven under by the shock. The bark being out of water, had run upon top of the schooner, and began to settle down upon her.

The weight crushed the latter like an egg shell. All but one of the Genesta's crew succeeded in climbing upon the bowsprit of the bark, although several of them sustained severe injuries. Captain Rombrey saw Oxnar on the Genesta's deck near the main rigging, and on obtaining a position on the bowsprit, put a noose in the line and let it down to Oxnar, telling the latter to fasten it around his body. He made no effort to do so, and one of the crew heard him say he could not reach the rope, and it is thought that he was injured and unable to save himself. An immense hole was opened in the side of the schooner, and she filled and sank in four minutes.

Laurier's Popularity.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Hon. Wilfred Laurier got a monster demonstration on arriving to Ottawa last night, to take up his official residence here as premier of the Dominion. The parade took 1¼ hours to pass a given point. Laurier was presented on Cartier square with two addresses, one in English and one in French. In reply, he said that the first duty of the government would be to clean up the stables on parliament hill. It was the intention of the government to make Ottawa the seat of learning in Canada, and also to make the Capitol the Washington of the north. Besides this the government would do all that it could to develop the commercial and agricultural interests of the country.

Expect to Tide Over Difficulties.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—William H. Moore, who arrived here from New York yesterday, has received a cablegram from President Barber of the Diamond Match company, dated Paris, in which Mr. Barber said: "My presence is necessary in Paris. I could not help you to avoid a panic if I were with you. Deny statements made by Edwin Gould." Moors Bros. expect from the east sufficient financial help to pull them through the Diamond Match-New York Biscuit company crisis, and allow the opening of the Stock Exchange in a few days.

Fell With a Crash.

Wednesday afternoon, while a heavy block of granite was being hoisted at the new Savings Bank buildings, one of the guy posts broke off and the derrick fell with a crash. Fortunately no one was beneath the derrick at the time, although one of the sidewalk committee who was superintending the job got a blow on the leg from a flying rope that made it tingle, and caused him to walk off rubbing it. In falling the top of the derrick struck the side of the building occupied by Johnson Bros. and tore off some of the clapboards, and those inside were considerably frightened.

Lawn Party.

A lawn party was held on the Barry lot off Crescent street Wednesday afternoon and evening under the auspices of Rev. Fr. Cuffe, for the benefit of the Sunday school connected with St. Mary's church. A large tent was erected on the grounds beneath which were numerous tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, refreshments, etc. In the afternoon there was a pleasing entertainment for the children, consisting of recitations, choruses, etc., by the children. There was also an entertainment in the evening.

Granite Cutters' Strike.

The stone cutters and blacksmiths employed by the Braintree Red Granite Co., some twenty-five in all, were ordered out Wednesday by the Quincy Branch. The trouble arose from the company not paying the men who belong to the Quincy Union the union bill of prices. The bill calls for such work as they were doing to be paid for by the superficial foot, but at the rate they were paid it is alleged that the average man was unable to earn much more than $1 per day, and the best workmen not over $2 per day. The company state that according to their contract they are unable to pay any more for cutting.

As Braintree Red Granite Co. is not a member of the Quincy Manufacturers' Association the cutters are reported to have begun a boycott.

Unless some of those deep holes on Copeland street near the street railway turnout are filled up some light team will be smashed and there will be another suit for damages.

One of the men at work putting up the derrick guy at the new Savings bank building received quite a severe shock from the street railway trolley wire this morning, which caused him to come down from the ladder upon which he was at work in double quick time.

Axel C. Max, who is reported to have been in Boston Wednesday night with a crowd of drunken Swede stone-cutters from Quincy, was arrested for assault with a knife on one Robert McDade. Max and his companion, Nicholas Henderson, are unknown here.

The cash disbursements of the city for July amounted to $59,270.58, making the total for the first seven months of the year $457,666.66. Over half the sum, $248,500, was for temporary loans. The receipts include $294,500 by temporary loans, and $75,600 by city debt loans.

Nels Hendrickson, a Finn employed in getting out grout in a quarry on the road leading to Fuller's quarry, had his right foot badly crushed this morning by a rock upon which he was at work, falling upon him. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital. Hendrickson boarded at No. 1 Wilson street.

Since Rev. J. W. Eckman became pastor of the Swedish church he has opened a parochial school for the children of the church. The Swedish language is taught and also the catechism and Bible history. The school meets on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings. Forty-six are enrolled. Miss Esther Wallin assists the pastor.

The judges of the Quincy Yacht Club gave a hearing at the club house, Wednesday evening, on these protests, which were filed July 30: Fantasy vs. Sunbeam; Fantasy vs. Sphinx; Alpine vs. Sphinx; Sunbeam and Fantasy; Sphinx vs. Fantasy and other boats in fourth class. The judges after giving the matter careful consideration gave all of the parties leave to withdraw, declining to sustain any of the protests. The Eulalie withdrew the protest which she filed against the Cleopatra.

HOUGHS NECK.

Hose 5 Had a Large Party at Its Annual Ball Last Night.

The second annual ball of Hose Co. No. 5, was held Wednesday evening at the Casino, Houghs Neck, and notwithstanding the threatening weather a large party was in attendance, representatives being present from the several companies throughout the city. The guests included Chief Engineer Williams, the assistant engineers, and city officials.

Previous to the ball the orchestra gave a promenade concert. At 9 o'clock came the grand march and circle which was led by Captain W. H. Taylor, who was followed by the Chief Engineer and the invited guests.

During a brief intermission at midnight and while the storm was at its height refreshments were served in the upper hall by the ladies. Dancing was then continued until 4 o'clock this morning.

A dispatch from Vineyard Haven says the two old steamers, Metropolitan, in tow of steam tug Mercury, from New London, and Island Home, in tow of steamer Kate Jones, from New Bedford, arrived here Wednesday evening. They are to be taken to Boston and broken up at Houghs Neck, Quincy.

The Brockton Enterprise says, "On their return from their fishing trip at Houghs Neck Officers Gray and Gill presented one of their fellow officers, who has lots to say about down east clams, with a bucket of bivalves averaging eight inches in length. The clams were the compliments of J. L. Harvey."

Around the City.—II.

Taking Granite street one finds old Quincy. The restfulness of the big square houses, like the one Mr. Clapp lives in, is in welcome contrast to the little modern villa-like homes around other parts of this city.

The quaint home of E. W. H. Bass still keeps its picturesque features particularly in the rear where the shops are so silent. Back of it, is primitive country, from which a sweep of villages, hills, and the homes of various industry can be seen.

Within the house, old time walls have partially given way to spaces made generous by changes, and it is within the entrance hall that a century old piece of furniture is seen.

Furniture it almost is, yet when its keys shrink from moisture it has taken up, we were told that musical tones still respond to touch of its keys. This relic, almost one century old, was a piano made by Mr. Mackay, predecessor to the Chickering. There are six octaves of keys. The inside is as clean and free from blemish of rust or dust as it ever was. The case is rich mahogony inlaid everywhere with brass. There are six legs which are ornaments. One large drawer and two smaller ones were made to hold music. These are dainty receptacles for anything.

The proportions are harmonious and this piano, which is almost dead to musical touch just now, but which, Mrs. Bass assures us will respond when dry weather comes, is a most beautiful as well as useful piece of furniture.

Prof. Stearns of Harvard Collage gave it to Mr. Bass' mother, who was his cousin. With a little polish or rubbing and a shade of dressing to the various brass ornaments with the hair lines of brass that outline it, and most especially with the perfect workmanship that has defied time, this is a valuable possession.

A connoisseur in old furniture in our city has tried in vain to secure this. Probably the owner will be pleased to show this to any interested in nice old things. Our Historical Society has created an interest in such articles and it is to the old things in our city that older residents often turn for inspiration.

—It is said that the foreign bankers are going to furnish sterling exchange to the amount of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000, in order to check the export of gold and obviate the need for a bond issue before November. This is to be done, we are told, by the issue of sixty-day bills, in the confidence that the tide of gold will set toward us before two months have expired. That the bankers are willing to take such a risk is proof how great is the interest of the foreign money-lenders in the maintenance of the gold standard.

HEAVY SHOWERS.

A Church at Houghs Neck Struck Yesterday Afternoon.

Heavy thunder storms passed over Quincy Wednesday afternoon and at midnight. While that in the afternoon did not last but a few minutes it was quite severe.

It was a little after 3 o'clock when it commenced to grow black and the wind blew the dust in great clouds. Then it began to rain and for a few moments it came down in torrents. Thunder and lightning accompanied the storm the flashes being quite sharp and the thunder very heavy. Near the end of the storm while the sun was shining, a stray bolt came down at Houghs Neck and passing down through the cupola of the Union chapel it made a bad wreck of the inside. Boards were torn off and splintered, and many of the chairs were made into kindling wood. Fortunately the building did not take fire. It will cost in the vicinity of $400 to put the building in repair.

A number of the yachts moored off the yacht club house at Houghs Neck were blown ashore but were but little damaged.

At Quincy Point a bolt followed the feed wire of the electric motor used in Graham's shoe manufactory and burnt out the machine. Workmen near by received quite a shock.

A bolt also followed the wire leading into Swithen Bros. motor and burnt it out.

Six of the cars of the Quincy & Boston street railway, which were on the move at the time of the shower, were also burnt out and traffic delayed somewhat.

An Interesting Place.

Among the quarry notes in the August issue of the Monumental News is the following pleasing comment concerning our city:

"The prosaic monument man who goes to Quincy, Mass., for estimates on work, and hurries away as soon as his object is attained without taking time to relax a little and see something of the sights, misses a treat that would prove both pleasant and profitable. Besides quarries which have made the town famous and which, by the way, are the deepest of the kind in the country, is the natural scenery. From the tops of any of the hills a magnificent view of a fine rolling country may be had. Derricks rise on all sides save one to remind the observer of the extent of the granite industry in these parts, the exception being to the east where old ocean holds sway. Off in the distance lie the islands which the government has appropriated for the purpose of coast defence, and still further away glistens the golden dome of the state house in Boston nearly nine miles distant. Here may also be seen the first piece of railway laid down in the country, with its granite ties, constructed to transport the granite for the Bunker Hill monument,—this was about 70 years ago. In a word, Quincy, apart from its staple industry, is a very interesting place, historically and otherwise, and well repays a visit."

Sleep

Induced by the use of coca, opiate or narcotic compounds is bad, decidedly bad. They undermine health and shatter the constitution and the patient is steadily growing into a worse condition—often resulting in the terrible slavery and misery of the cocaine and opium habit. Sleep induced by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla does not perhaps come as quickly, but it comes more surely and more permanently through nature's great restoring and rejuvenating channel—purified, vitalized and enriched blood. This feeds the nerves with life-giving energy and builds up the system and constitution from the very foundation of all health and life—the blood—pure, rich, red blood.

Five Queries.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Your issue of Aug. 4th, contained a letter from Mr. Frederic A. Tupper on the desirability of the maintenance of the single gold standard and presenting fourteen propositions "demonstrably true?"

Giving Mr. Tupper the benefit of the doubt as to his sincerity I should like him to answer the following querries:—

1st.—Allowing that the relative ratio of silver to gold is at present 30 to 1, is it not a fact that previous to 1873 the relative ratio was better than 16 to 1 and that it did not vary two points during a century?

2d.—Considering the fact that all the gold now coined in the world could be placed in the editorial room of the "LEDGER" and bearing in mind the fact, that all the gold if divided equally among the population, would give each person a piece not larger than an ordinary silver dime; is it not plain that the ownership of this "standard of honor," this "backbone of the national credit" will be controlled by a smaller and smaller number of Roths childs, Vanderbilts and Morgans, compelling national as well as private creditors to go to the wall through inability to get the gold to pay either principal or interest?

3rd.—Is it not a fallacy to affirm that the condition of the common people is infinitely better in America than elswhere that labor in gold standard countries is better paid than those living in bi-metallic or silver standard countries, and with our papers crowded with accounts of strikes, lockouts, murders, suicides, riots and the like, is it not apparent that there is room for considerable improvemont in this "superior condition" of the working-class? Are not the very rich, growing richer rapidly and the poor growing poorer and at the same rate owing to a mometary unit which represents but one one hundred and twentieth of the value and prosperity of the land?

4th.—Mr. Tupper is fortunate enough to be holding a position as principal of the Quincy High school at a salary equal to that received by three of the "infinitely superior" laborers. Now how much of the salary received by him was paid in gold or gold certificates; and taking it for granted that nearly all was paid in other than gold, what hardship was met in disposing of it, by him, in the markets of the world, although the much abused silver dollar, the backbone of a great part of the money used today is intrinsically worth but 53 cents. And if Mr. Tupper was so fortunate as to be able to lay by a portion of his salary in the savings banks of the country does he consider himself one of those poor unfortunate savings bank depositers who according to his own statements will receive but 50 cents on a dollar?

5th.—Does Mr. Tupper really believe that savings bank depositers, people who carry life insurance policies, and all others who deposited monies under the gold standard, will be obliged to lose one-half of the same should the silver people be successful. If Mr. Tupper really believes this, what would he consider a fair price for savings bank deposits, policies in life insurance companies etc., which he owns or might own? Very respectfully

BEN. BOLT.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A RELENTLESS ENEMY

Making Life a Burden For a Farmer In a Haverhill Suburb.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 6.—Nathaniel Mace, a farmer, residing at Nicholsville, near this city is afraid to go to sleep at night, for fear his house may be set on fire before morning. He says poison has been sprinkled about his premises, his buildings have been defaced, trees pulled up and placards have been placed on the premises containing vile inscriptions.

He called at city hall yesterday and got a warrant for the arrest of one of his neighbors, who is to blame, he says, for the persecution. He carried a big roll of the placards which have been posted in his fields from time to time. All were written on large pieces of brown paper.

On another occasion his chickens began to die. They were examined and it was found that the flesh beneath the feathers had turned black. Poisoning was suspected, and the fowl were cut open and the suspicion confirmed. His peach orchard next began to suffer, and his trees were uprooted. Mace claims to have seen the suspected neighbor doing this, and asked for a warrant on this ground. He furnished the names of those who had seen some of the cards posted, and those who had seen his orchard attacked, and they will be used as witnesses. Mace stated that he was in mortal fear of his life, not daring to leave his wife in the house while he came to this city. The warrant was given the police, and Judge Carter will solve the mysterious persecutions.

Li Hung Chang In London.

London, Aug. 6.—Li Hung Chang yesterday visited the queen at Osborne House, Isle of Wight. The Chinese statesman, accompanied by the members of his suite, took a train from London to Portsmouth, where one of the royal yachts was in waiting to convey them to Cowes. There carriages were taken to Osborne House, where Lord Salisbury introduced Li Hung Chang to her majesty. After the audience had terminated Li Hung Chang witnessed a series of revolutions by the British channel squadron in Cowes Roads.

Yachting Party's Narrow Escape.

Hull, Mass., Aug. 6.—A yacht owned by Mr. Burns of Boston, containing three ladies and three men, was capsized in the storm yesterday afternoon, off Hotel Pemberton. Assistance from shore was at hand, and timely rescues were made.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, THURSDAY, AUG. 6.
Sun rises—4:43; sets, 6:57.
Length of day—14:14.
Moon rises—1:20 a. m.
High water—8:45 a. m.; 9:15 p. m.

Forecast for New England: Local thunderstorms and partly cloudy weather; easy winds; probably cooler in western portions.

Reports of maximum temperatures received by the weather bureau show that the present warm wave is very general, and is probably the most severe during the present summer. The officials say it is very unusual for the temperature to reach such a high point in so many parts of the country at one time. The heat is due to an area of high barometer, which has been prevailing over the southern portion of the country, and low barometer in the northern part, which results in great waves of heat coming toward the north. The predictions of the weather bureau are that the warm weather will continue from the middle and south Atlantic coast westward to the Mississippi river, though some relief may be expected from thunderstorms in some sections. Among the temperatures reported to the weather bureau yesterday were: Washington, 96; Albany, 94; Philadelphia, 94; Montgomery, Ala., 96; Vicksburg, Miss., 98; Little Rock, 102 (the highest in the country); New York, 90; Memphis, 100; Indianapolis, 94; Oswego, 96; Cleveland, 92; Chicago and Springfield, Ills., 96; St. Louis, Kansas City, Dodge City, La., and Phoenix, A. T., 98.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

The Lobster and Some Ways of Using Him — New Designs In Denims. Some Savory Things to Eat.

The lobster is a very popular article of food, especially during the summer days, when his relative, the oyster, is not at his best. The lobster has the advantage in that he can be transported to almost any distance, can be kept alive till wanted for immediate use, and then being plunged into boiling water as a cooking process is at once ready for consumption. He comes to the table fresh and perfect. He is also capable of being canned and made very serviceable in that form, though, like all other canned goods, there are not the flavor and sweetness about what our English friends would call the "tinned article" that there is about the meat freshly prepared.

The adult lobster usually weighs from 1½ to 5 or 6 pounds, but instances are related of individual specimens weighing up to 30 pounds. For food purposes the smaller, firm meated specimens are to be preferred, the flesh of the larger being frequently coarse and less finely flavored. The best portion of the meat is found in the large claws, though all parts are edible except the stomach, which is a small, hard sack lying directly under the head and containing poisonous matter, and the small dark vein running the length of the tail, which is also accounted poisonous, and at any rate is liable to cause sickness if eaten.

A favorite salad is made of fresh boiled lobster and crisp lettuce leaves, with mayonnaise dressing, but there are many other ways in which lobster meat is delectable. In this connection Good Housekeeping gives a few recipes, including the following:

Deviled Lobster.—This is to be baked in the shells, and the most convenient way is to take two lobsters, each weighing about two pounds. In removing the meat, after boiling, do not break the body or tail shells, which should be washed and dried. With a sharp pair of scissors trim out the inside of the tail shell and fit it to the body shell. Cut the meat into small pieces. In a double boiler over the fire put 2 cupfuls of cream. While this is heating mix 2 tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, a level tablespoonful of mustard and a sprinkling, according to taste, of cayenne pepper. Stir with this 3 tablespoonfuls of the boiling cream; then turn the mixture into the boiling cream and cook for five minutes. Add the minced lobster, salt to the taste and remove from the fire. Put the mixture into the lobster shells, cover the top with fine bread crumbs and dot with small pieces of butter. Place the filled shells in a pan, so arranged that they will not get out of position, and bake till the crumbs are browned. They should be neatly served on a fish platter.

Curry of Lobster.—Cut into inch pieces the meat of a medium sized lobster. Place in a saucepan 3 tablespoonfuls of butter and an onion sliced fine. Stir till the butter is melted and the onion slightly browned; then stir in 2 tablespoonfuls of flour and a dessertspoonful of curry powder. When well blended, add slowly a scant pint of stock, with salt and cayenne pepper to the taste. Strain the sauce over the lobster, simmer over the fire for five minutes and serve on toast.

The Pretty New Denims.

There has been no season for years past that has catered so much for summer appointments as this one. For lounges or sofas we have the denims in pale shades of green. The new covers are loose, and in the middle is a medallion of linen etched in a floral or convention design. This is ornamented with narrow linen braid or couched in graceful lines, forming an artistic centerpiece. With this come pillows to match of the same material and in the same design—also table covers—the whole forming an admirable device for this cool summer room.

Pillows of denim in green, blue and old rose are particularly good if well ruffled and with conventional designs in white, says The Decorator and Furnisher.

A Tomato Omelet.

A tomato omelet would require a good sized tomato, 3 eggs, a tiny bit of chopped onion and 1½ ounces of butter. Put the tomato into a basin of boiling water for a few minutes and then skin it and cut it up into little pieces, mixing with it the chopped up onion. Then take the eggs and beat up the yolks and whites separately and mix the tomato, onion, pepper and salt with the yolks. Put the butter into an omelet pan and let it get quite hot. Then stir in quickly the beaten up whites of the eggs with the yolks and pour the united mixture into the pan. Cook for about three minutes, stirring all the time.

Blackberry Cordial.

An English recipe for blackberry cordial is to put in a pan 2 quarts of blackberry juice and 2 pounds of lump sugar, with half ounce each of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice and a little less of cloves. Let all stand together for several hours, then bring it to a boil very slowly and let it simmer for 20 minutes, skimming it carefully and repeatedly. Let it get quite cold, then add a quart of very good brandy and keep some months before using. The quantity of spice may be altered to suit various tastes. Only the best fruit should be used, and it should be carefully filtered before bottling.

Tutti Frutti Jelly.

Put half a box of gelatin to soak in half a pint of cold water. Dissolve in a pint of boiling water. Add the juice of 3 lemons, three-quarters of a pound of sugar and strain. When it begins to set, put a layer of jelly on the bottom of a mold, then a layer of sliced bananas, then a layer of jelly, next a layer of sliced oranges, another layer of jelly, a layer of peaches. The last layer should be of jelly.

TODAY'S COURT.

John F. Sheahan was arraigned for assault on John Sheahan at Randolph. Case continued until November 6.

Michael F. Gafney and Henry B. Daniels were arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell at Weymouth. These two men had a team near the rear entrance to Lovell's grove and to all appearances were selling fruit. Liquor Officers Fitzgerald and Butler had their suspicions aroused and upon overhauling the team they found several bottles of whiskey and a small glass. The men claimed they were going down through the country and that the liquor was for their own use and that they simply stopped at Lovell's grove for a little rest. The court found Daniels guilty and imposed a fine of $50. Gafney was discharged.

Phelix Neiver was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to supply the losses from excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily; it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of digestion to healthy action. Cures Rheumatic, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

DEFEATED

For Three Years He Suffered—Could Hardly Breathe at Night—One Nostril Closed for Ten Years.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of De Leon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the night's coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him.

DE LEON, TEXAS.

Messrs. Lippman Bros., Savannah, Ga.,

GENTS: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily.

I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night.

I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, } ss.:
County of Comanche, }

Before the undersigned authority, on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine, is true.

A. M. RAMSEY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this, August 4th, 1891.

J. M. LAMBERT, N. P.,
Comanche County, Texas.

CATARRH CURED BY P. P. P.

(Lippman's Great Remedy) where all other remedies failed.

Woman's weakness, whether nervous or otherwise, can be cured and the system built up by P. P. P. A healthy woman is a beautiful woman.

Pimples, blotches, eczema and all disfigurements of the skin are removed and cured by P. P. P.

P. P. P. will restore your appetite, build up your system and regulate you in every way. P. P. P. removes that heavy, down-in-the-mouth feeling.

For blotches and pimples on the face, take P. P. P.

Ladies, for natural and thorough organic regulation, take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and get well at once.

Temperance Folks In Session.

St. Louis, Aug. 6.—The Catholic Total Abstinence union of America began its 26th annual convention here yesterday. President Cleary delivered an address on the temperance cause, and at its close considerable routine business was transacted. A parade of Knights of Father Matthew, delegates and visiting societies was held at 5 o'clock, and last night there was a public demonstration at the Auditorium. Addresses were made by Governor Stone, Mayor Walbridge and many others.

An Uneasy Feeling.

Cleveland, Aug. 6.—A feeling of great uneasiness prevailed yesterday throughout the region affected by the Brown lockout. Block after block of the territory had the appearance of a city under martial law. Pickets were standing guard at every corner. There was no serious trouble. Non-union men came in groups from all directions and entered the Brown works without molestation. Occasional cries of derision and epithets greeted them, but there was no stone throwing.

Fugitives From Cardenas.

Key West, Aug. 6.—The pilot boat Jonett arrived last night with two Cubans, picked up off the bar in a small boat. One is a lawyer, the other his clerk. They say they fled from Cardenas, Cuba, whence they sailed last Monday. They refuse to state how they arrived on this coast, but the presence of a three-masted schooner hovering off the bar confirms the belief that they were sent ashore from her.

Escaped Outlaw Kills Two Men.

Guthrie, O. T., Aug. 6.—Bill Doolin, the outlaw, who escaped from the United States jail in this city four weeks ago, was surrounded by deputy mashals in Wewoka Tuesday night. A desperate fight took place, and during the excitement Doolin escaped. Deputy T. M. Gregory and Horace Reynolds were killed.

Maine Touched Bottom.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The Maine, while coaling at Key West, touched bottom and slightly bent several of her plates. When docked at Norfolk yesterday the plates were examined and the injuries found to be slight.

Turks Looked On.

Canea, Crete, Aug. 6.—A body of Mahometans, which broke through the cordon of Turkish troops at the third attempt, advanced to attack the insurgents near Coprana, but were met by the latter, and repulsed with heavy loss. The Cretans captured the arms and ammunition of the Mahometans, and pursued them back to the cordon, the Turkish troops passively watching the fighting.

Plate Glass Dealers Fail.

Chicago, Aug 6.—Judgments by confession aggregating over $70,000 were entered yesterday against Sprague, Smith & Co., dealers in plate window glass, and also manufacturers of furniture. The concern was considered one of the largest in the plate glass trade in the city. The assets, it is said, will run over $100,000.

BOTH CARLISLES OUT.

Secretary's Sons Will Not Support Bryan and Sewall Ticket.

Hot Political News From South and West.

Republicans, Democrats and Populists Hold State Conventions.

Washington, Aug. 6.—A good deal of comment was caused in political circles yesterday, by the report that Logan Carlisle, chief clerk of the treasury department, and a son of the secretary, would not support the nominations of Bryan and Sewall. Mr. Carlisle declined to be interviewed on the subject, but said to his friends that he had made no concealment of his position. His friends say that he has announced emphatically that he would not and could not support the Chicago ticket on a free silver platform. Only last week, in a public interview, W. K. Carlisle, another son of the secretary, who lives in Chicago, declared that he would not support Bryan and Sewall.

Chairman Faulkner of the Democratic congressional committee expresses gratitude at the manner in which the Democrats, Populists and Silver elements have gotten together in Minnesota, and over the prospects of an harmonious adjustment in Kansas. Speaking of the result in Alabama, he said that the cry of fraud raised by some of the "Middle-of the Road" Populists could not hold, owing to the fact that practically all of the white counties which were carried by the Populists in 1894, and in which it was admitted the elections were fair, were carried by the Democratic nominee.

Chairman Babcock of the Republican congressional committee is expected here in a few days. About the middle of the month Vice Chairman Apsley and Congressman McCall of Massachusetts will start on a six weeks' tour of the middle west. They expect to visit all the state headquarters and as many congressional districts as possible, to make a personal inspection of the situation.

At the Republican congressional headquarters letters are being received from the west, asking for "Bryan's free trade" record. These letters indicate that there is considerable sentiment in the west for protection. Lawyer Warren Pratt of Kearney, Neb., a life-long Democrat, wrote that he would support McKinley.

Congressman Livingston of Georgia was at the Democratic headquarters yesterday. "The Populists of Georgia," said he, "will have to uncover their hand at their convention, but no matter what action the convention takes, I feel warranted in saying that 50 per cent of the Populists of the state will vote for Bryan and Sewall."

Wisconsin Republicans' Convention.

Milwaukee, Aug. 6.—The Republican state convention adopted a platform which endorses the candidates and platform of the St. Louis convention, and condemns the Chicago Democratic platform as dangerous to the public good. The money question is dismissed in a simple declaration. "Sound money" and "an equitable protective tariff" is demanded; non-sectarianism in public affairs is favored, and the restriction of immigration is called for.

After the adoption of the platform, A. R. Hall offered a plank declaring against free railway passes for public officers, judges and members of legislatures. Judge Griffin ruled that it was out of order, and should have been referred to the committee on resolutions. Mr. Hall insisted, and it was necessary to call on the sergeant-at-arms to restore order. Nominating speeches for governor being in order, the names of Robert M. La Folette, Ira B. Bradford, Emil Baensch, Eugene B. Elliott, C. E. Estabrook and Edward Schofield were presented. Seconding speeches followed. An adjournment was taken until today, when a ballot will be taken.

Hot Politics In Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 6.—The Democratic state convention met yesterday and held three sessions. The third one lasted until long after midnight. A platform was adopted favoring among other things the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the co-operation of foreign nations, and the state ticket, partially settled. Lon V. Stevens of Cooper county was unanimously nominated for governor, all the other candidates having been withdrawn. There was an exciting contest for the lieutenant governorship, which was not decided until five ballots had been taken. A. H. Bolte of Franklin county was finally selected. A. O. Leseur of Lafayette county, the present incumbent, was unanimously nominated for secretary of state. An adjournment was then taken until today, when the ticket will be completed.

The Nebraska Fight.

Hastings, Neb., Aug. 6.—The entire afternoon, and up to midnight was consumed by the Populist convention in wrangling over the terms of fusion. During a brief intermission, Governor Holcomb was nominated for governor by acclamation, and John Z. Harris for lieutenant governor. Resolutions were finally passed giving the central committee authority to name an electoral ticket, in conjunction with the Democrats. At 9:30 a conference committee was appointed to confer with the Democrats in reference to giving them a place on the state ticket. After an hour's conference the committee reported its inability to arrange to give the Democrats any part of the ticket. The general sentiment of the convention seemed to be that the Democrats had sufficient, when their candidate for president was endorsed.

Morton Not a Candidate.

Nebraska, City, Neb., Aug. 6.—Secretary J. S. Morton, when asked whether he would accept the Democratic sound money nomination for president, in case it was decided to put another ticket in the field, said: "I have never been a candidate for any office. I am not a candidate now. My own opinion is that President Cleveland would poll more votes than any man who could be named. I don't believe with Bourke Cockran that the proper thing for the honest Democracy to do is to adopt a platform without naming a ticket. If anything is worth fighting for, it is worth fighting for properly and with method. We are now facing a rebellion. The best way to prevent catastrophe is to organize. The way to get Democratic votes is to have a Democratic candidate."

Fusion In Kansas.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 6.—The Populist state convention appointed a conference committee of 14 to meet with the committee appointed by the Democratic convention at Hutchinson, to decide upon a plan for fusion of the two parties. It was agreed that as soon as the conference committees reached an agreement and submitted a report, an electoral ticket be nominated. The convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for governor. The second ballot resulted: Haris, 203; Lewelling, 142; King, 103; Leedy, 96; Campbell, 12; Munger, 15. A dispatch from Hutchinson states that the Democratic delegates there last night adopted a resolution declaring their intention to stand by Bryan and Sewall, regardless of the action of the Populists.

Bentley's Stand.

Alliance, O., Aug. 6.—Charles E. Bentley of Lincoln, Neb., and James H. Southgate of Durham, N. C., have filed their letters of acceptance of the national Prohibition party's nominations for president and vice president, respectively. Mr. Bentley strongly urges the cause of prohibition, and holds that suffrage, without distinction of sex, is a cardinal principle of the party. He then declares the party's policy is opposed to the national banking system, and favors government owenership of national monopolies, the public school system, and a more just and more equal distribution of wealth. He denounces the Wilson and McKinley tariff as shields of the trusts, and makes demand for general reform of the government.

One Way of Fixing It.

Pittsburg, Aug. 6.—The Pittsburg Dispatch says that negotiations are in progress for perfect fusion with the Democrats on the national ticket. Chairman Leslie of the Populists stated to The Dispatch reporter that the Populists had made a proposition to National Chairman Jones to have Watson and Sewall withdraw, and then the executive committees will select a man acceptable to both parties. The Populists, he says, will guarantee that if Sewall will resign, Watson will do likewise. In that event, Mr. Leslie says the Populist settlement of the vice president tangle must be made by Aug. 12, the date when the notification will occur in New York.

Williams at New Haven.

New Haven, Aug. 6.—The nominees and the platform of the Democratic national convention at Chicago were ratified at a largely attended meeting here last night. George F. Williams of Massachusetts was the orator of the evening. His speech occupied nearly two hours, and during his remarks he bitterly attacked the newspapers of New York and New England, asserting that they were bought up. He urged Connecticut Democrats to act as he was trying to have Massachusetts' Democrats act, with charity for all.

Berry For Governor.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 6.—The state convention of the Prohibition party of New Hampshire was held here yesterday. Nominations were made as follows: For governor, John E. Berry of Plymouth; for presidential electors, Edgar L. Carr, Pittsfield, Eben Farrar, Manchester, Frances L. Sprague, Keene, Samuel P. Sawyer, Littleton; for congressmen, First district, Henry E. Brown, Lakeport, and Second district, Allen W. Weeks of Lancaster. All other nominations were left with the state committee.

Michigan Politics.

Grand Rapids, Aug. 6.—The state Republican convention adopted the report of the committee on resolutions without debate. The platform endorses the nominees and declarations of the Republican national convention; denounces the Democratic platform as "pandering to mob violence and anarchy;" heartily supports the Republican money plank, and declares strongly for protection. After the adoption of the platform the convention proceeded with placing in nomination candidates for governor.

Moore For Governor.

Indianapolis, Aug. 6.—The Socialist Labor party has nominated the following state ticket: Governor, Phil F. Moore, Indianapolis; lieutenant governor, Harry Sharpe, Indianapolis; secretary of state, Fred Adams, Fontanet; treasurer of state, S. Helbich, Evansville; electors-at-large, E. Vivugh, Indianapolis, and Chris Schaad, Evansville. The platform endorses the platform of the Socialist Labor party adopted in New York, July 4.

Republicans Meet at Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 6.—The annual convention of the Nebraska state league of Republicans convened here yesterday, with 2000 delegates present. Little but preliminary work was done. The great fight of the league is over the question of the presidency. A large number of candidates are in the field.

A Slim Attendance.

Pittsburg, Aug. 6.—Less than 100 of the 200 delegates expected, attended the state convention of the People's party, held here. The platform, as adopted, endorsed the St. Louis and Omaha platforms.

Armed Men Dispersed by Police.

Madrid, Aug. 6. — Further tax riots have occurred throughout the province of Valencia. In the outskirts of the city of Valencia, 50 men, armed with rifles, paraded about, shouting "Down with the taxes," "Down with the government!" and defying the authorities. The police charged upon the mob, which speedily dispersed. Five of the mob, including a woman, were wounded. Similar disturbances occurred in villages and many arrests have been made. The authorities allege that the trouble is fomented by the Republicans.

Williams' 6000 Mile Walk.

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 6.—J. G. Williams, who started from Boston on Oct. 1 of last year to walk to San Francisco and back for a wager of $25,000, passed through here yesterday on the return trip. He is accompanied by his wife and two attendants, and is several days ahead of schedule.

"Young Griffo" Locked Up.

New York, Aug. 6.—Albert Griffiths, better known as "Young Griffo," the lightweight boxer, was yesterday committed to the workhouse by Magistrate Denel, in the Jefferson market. Griffo was charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct.

A bride is always interesting. When a woman becomes a bride she is making one of the great changes in life. She is entering on duties entirely new to her—duties, which she is all too often wholly unfitted and unprepared for. It is a woman's duty, as well to herself as to her husband, that she shall be strongly healthy in every way—particularly in those organs which are to be called into play in bringing children into the world. Weakness and disease of the organs distinctively feminine undoubtedly cause much of the misery, unhappiness and incompatibility of married life. A woman whose nerves are continually nagged with torturing pains, whose vitality is low, and whose strength is unequal to her daily tasks does not find it possible to be always amiable and cheerful. And yet, amiability, cheerfulness, good looks and vivacity are the things most expected by a husband. Every woman may have these things if she will make and keep herself strong and healthy. The way is simple. It leads to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the preparation of a regularly graduated, experienced and skilled specialist in the treatment of the diseases of women, who has for thirty years been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. For thirty years this preparation has been marvelously successful—has been the means of bringing happiness into thousands of homes. Its most benign influence is in eliminating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Its benefit in this respect cannot be overestimated.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets permanently cure constipation, sick and bilious headaches, biliousness, heart-burn, sour stomach, foul breath, palpitation of the heart, and flatulence.

BUY ·TEA· Of Boston Branch Grocery. WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

"HILL IS ALL RIGHT."

Report That He Told Jones That He Would Hustle For Bryan.

Politics at Fever Heat Through the Country

Reports of Doings of Conventions In the East, West and South.

New York, Aug. 7.—In a column article, headed "Hill will help Bryan," The World this morning says that Senator David B. Hill will support the nominees of the Chicago convention. A formal announcement of his position, it is said, will be made public within a very few days.

The facts, The World says, were learned by Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee, on a visit to Senator Hill at Normandie-by-the-Sea, Wednesday night. Senator Jones has left for Washington, and will return to this city next Monday night. His meeting with Senator Hill is said to have been a cordial one. To a personal friend, Senator Jones remarked significantly: "Hill is all right."

The chairman, according to The World, had become somewhat anxious over the continued silence of the senator from New York on the presidential question. He desired to find out exactly where the senator stood, and how long he was going to stand there. Mr. Gardiner, it is said, made the arrangements for Wednesday night's visit, at the instance of Senator Gorman. Neither of the principals cared to have the matter reach the newspapers.

Mr. Jones dined with Mr. Hill at the Normandie, and met State Chairman Hinkley and Jno. B. Stanchfield. From mutual friends, The World says, it was learned that their talk was extremely frank. The World's article continues:

"Mr. Hill expressed his feelings freely about the Chicago convention and its platform, and of the contest that had been going on in his own mind as to his duty as a Democrat at this time. Before they were through, it is said, he told Senator Jones the New York state convention would in all probability endorse the ticket named at Chicago and reaffirm its own platform adopted at the last state convention. Mr. Hill, it is reported, told Senator Jones that he would stand by the action of his own state and work loyally for its nominees. That, he thought, is all that could be expected of him."

The World's article then continues to say that Senator Jones received the information that Senator Murphy was thoroughly in favor of endorsing the ticket.

Commenting upon the presence of J. B. Stanchfield at Normandie, The World says that it was nearly as much of an event politically as was the visit of National Chairman Jones, and says: "Mr. Stanchfield has been an avowed candidate for governor since January. Since the adjournment of the legislature he has made a pretty thorough canvass of the state. Mr. Hill appeared to oppose his candidacy all the time, and has been credited with favoring the nomination of Perry Belmont. Mr. Belmont has bolted the Chicago ticket, and is no longer considered a gubernatorial possibility.

Watson Has His Say.

Atlanta, Aug. 7.—Thomas E. Watson opened his vice presidential campaign last night with an address two hours in length, delivered before an audience of 3000 people, in the rough shed erected for the Moody revival meetings several months ago. Mr. Watson appeared at the outset for a non-partisan hearing, declaring that he spoke in behalf of the men who held the plow, who pulled the hoe, who wielded the hammer. If God gave him strength, he declared, he would plead the cause of these people through the pens of the reporters present, before 65,000,000 people. He entered into an enumeration of the reform demands of the Populist party, indicting the government for high crimes and misdemeanors in the granting of the governmental power of making money to a special class; in the unfair levying of taxes, which laid the heavy hand of tribute upon those least able to sustain it; in closing the mints to the free and unlimited coinage of silver; in leaving the great public highways of the country in the control of grasping corporations, who levied tribute upon the people who were compelled to use them, and in the corruption of the ballot. Mr. Watson said, among other things:

"At Chicago the Democratic politicians swallowed our platform and thought they had swallowed us. For a while after the Chicago convention they thought they had caught the bear. Now since the St. Louis convention they are beginning to feel sure the bear has caught them. The present political situation is the first case on record where half a loaf was not found to be better than no bread.

"We can stand by Mr. Bryan. He has been with us and has fought for our policies. But when we are asked to swallow Mr. Sewall, we beg to be excused. We cannot vote for Mr. Sewall, because he does not represent our platform. If we do, we say we did not mean what we said in the platform. You cannot consistently say this is a fight of the west and south and go off to Maine and get a candidate for vice president. Therefore, seeing that your Democratic leaders had made a mistake, we stepped into the breach and did what they ought to have done—nominated a southern man for vice president."

In concluding, Mr. Watson made this significant statement:

"We are not going to put up any candidate against Bryan. We are going to vote for Bryan, whether Sewall is withdrawn or not. I'm going to manage this campaign so that William J. Bryan gets every vote we've got. I see the dread evils of McKinleyism threatening, and I fear that if we are defeated in this fight, McKinleyism will be enthroned forever, and the battle for freedom had just as well be given up. I shall tell my people to stand by the contract made at St. Louis. Let Bryan have every vote you can muster. Let Jones say what he likes. Let him insult us if he will. Make no answer. Pray for your country. Work for her interests. Do your duty. Here's what we're going to do in our state convention:

"We're going to put out a full electoral ticket for Bryan and Watson. We can't vote for Sewall. Then we'll empower our committee to take off a part of our electors and put on a part of yours, whenever the Democratic committee retires Mr. Sewall. The Democratic managers may have made up their minds to put Tom Watson down and keep him down, but I thank God the people of the south have entered into no such contract. Let it be known henceforth that the south and west will never again sit as the footstool of the north."

Frank For Governor.

Waterville, Me., Aug. 7.—The second Democratic state convention, made necessary because of the refusal of the nominee of the first convention, Edwin B. Winslow of Portland, to become the standard bearer of the Maine Democracy, was held here yesterday. Winslow was nominated on a gold standard platform, but the diversity of sentiment on the financial question that has since sprung up throughout the Democracy of the state prompted him to decline the nomination. The convention was called to order by Chairman Hughes of the state committee.

The committee on credentials reported 389 delegates present. Mr. Scott, chairman of the convention, announced that the next business would be the nomination of a candidate for governor. M. P. Torrey of Bath placed the name of Melvin P. Frank of Portland in nomination. L. M. Staples of Washington nominated Mayor E. F. Hanson of Belfast.

Frank was nominated on the first ballot. The vote resulted: Frank, 192; Hanson, 166; scattering, 5. Hanson moved that the nomination be made unanimous.

Resolutions were offered favoring the Chicago nominees and the candidates just named. William H. Clifford of Portland opposed them, and the wildest scene ever witnessed in a Maine convention followed. Clifford was fairly howled down. W. H. McLellan offered as an amendment to the resolution the gold plank in the form adopted at the Portland convention. Clifford and the other gold standard men bolted from the convention and withdrew from the hall amid hisses.

The amendment was defeated and the following resolution, which practically endorses the work of the Chicago convention, was adopted:

"Resolved, That we take from our state platform the following declaration: 'We oppose free coinage and favor the single gold standard, unless a different standard is adopted through international agreement.' And that we endorse the national Democratic platform, with Bryan and Sewall."

Twenty-five bolting gold men, after leaving the Democratic convention, convened in session. W. H. Clifford of Portland presented a declaration of gold standard principles, and vigorously criticised the Chicago platform. The declaration was unanimously accepted. E. C. Jordan of Portland and W. H. Gardiner of Camden were elected, respectively, as chairman and secretary. W. H. Clifford was nominated as the gold standard Democrats' candidate for governor. He accepted. Owing to the short time to secure the necessary 1000 signatures for filing his nomination papers with the secretary of state, so as to be placed on the ballot, it was deemed best to have stickers prepared.

Pingree Wins In Michigan.

Grand Rapids, Aug. 7.—Lockerby hall was packed with delegates and spectators when Chairman Giddings rapped the Republican state convention to order yesterday, for its second day's session. The St. Clair delegation question was first taken up, and the convention, by a viva voce vote, sustained its action of Wednesday night, seating both contesting delegations, giving each delegate half a vote. Delegates then took the floor to second the nomination of the different candidates. The seconding speeches occupied nearly an hour, and rollcall was then ordered for the nomination of governor.

The first ballot resulted: Pingree, 339; Bliss, 286; O'Donnell, 83; Wheeler, 47; Aitken, 56; Conant, 22. The second ballot also resulted in no choice. The vote was as follows: Necessary to a choice, 417; Pingree, 358; Bliss, 293; O'Donnell, 78; Aitken, 49; Wheeler, 34; Conant, 17. The third ballot was taken amid much excitement. There were many changes, and when the ballot was finally announced Pingree lacked only 12 votes of a nomination. The official ballot was: Pingree, 405; Bliss, 308; O'Donnell, 89; Aitken, 17; Wheeler, 14; Conant, 5. Pingree was nominated for governor on the fourth ballot.

Reed, by Acclamation.

Portland, Me., Aug. 7.—The Republicans of the First district of Maine met in convention yesterday, to nominate Hon. Thomas B. Reed for congress. That was almost the sole business of the convention, and the gathering was to make formal what has all along been regarded as a settled fact. The convention was called to order by H. C. Brewer of Freeport, chairman of the district committee. He introduced Wilford G. Chapman of Portland as temporary chairman. Mr. Chapman made a brief speech, outlining the position of the party in the First district, and the country at large. He spoke for a sound financial policy, and argued against free silver coinage

J. T. DaVidson of York presented the name of Thomas B. Reed for nomination as candidate for congress from the First district. He made an eloquent address, eulogizing Mr. Reed, whose name was cheered whenever mentioned by the speaker. Mr. Davidson recounted Congressman Reed's public services, and spoke of his able administration as speaker and leader of the house. E. C. Reynolds of South Portland seconded the nomination of Reed.

Reed was nominated by acclamation by a rising vote, and then three cheers for Reed were given, great applause following the announcement of the nomination.

A Trade Effected.

Hastings, Neb., Aug. 7.—The Populist state convention finished its labors, and adjourned sine die yesterday, after having been in session all night. The convention was almost entirely dominated by the "Middle of the Road" delegates, and they very nearly overturned all the carefully laid plans for fusion with the silver Democrats. J. C. Smythe, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, was on the ground, with a proposition that the two places on the Populist ticket be left vacant. A conference resulted in a failure to agree, and a partial report was made to the convention, stating that the Democrats demanded the treasurer and the attorney general. The proposition evoked a debate which dragged along without result until Chairman Smythe broke off all negotiations, by withdrawing the request for two places on the state ticket. This had a pacific effect on the radical element in the convention, for after nominating nearly the entire ticket, a motion to leave the attorney generalship vacant was carried.

Struck a Snag.

Atlanta, Aug. 7.—The largest convention the Populists of Georgia have ever held was assembled here yesterday. The presence of Thomas Watson, the party's nominee for vice president, added to the interest of the occasion. The preliminary caucus held at 9 o'clock practically settled the action of the convention on the gubernatorial question. James K. Hines and W. L. Peek, the candidates of the "Middle of the Roaders," flatly declined to allow the use of their names, leaving the field to Rev. J. B. Gambrell. Thomas E. Watson called the convention to order. He made no speech.

The Journal sprang a sensation last evening which caused the complete collapse of the movement to nominate Rev. J. B. Gambrell for governor. There was a discovery that Dr. Gambrell is ineligible. The state constitution requires that to be governor a citizen must have resided in the state six years, and Dr. Gambrell has only been in the state three years. This puts the convention at sea for a gubernatorial candidate.

Kansas Politics.

Hutchinson, Kan., Aug. 7.—The Democrats and Populists of Kansas have practically effected fusion of interest in the coming election. Since Tuesday last the Democratic convention here has waited upon the Populists. The Democrats held two sessions yesterday. The morning session was adjourned until evening. The Populists at Abilene have during that time taken no action as to the proposed fusion. When the Democrats reassembled word was received from their ambassadors at Abilene that the Populists had accepted the ticket recommended by the Democrats for electors. This ticket, which was formally placed in nomination. The Democrats then took up the question of a state ticket, and there being practically no opposition, the Populist nominee for governor, J. M. Leedy, was nominated by acclamation. The other Populist nominees were as cheerfully nominated.

On the Sixth Ballot.

Milwaukee, Aug. 7.—Exposition hall was well crowded when Chairman Griffin called the Republican state convention to order yesterday. The seconding speeches for candidates were at once taken up where they were left off when the convention adjourned Wednesday night. On the sixth ballot Major Schofield had a majority, and his nomination was made unanimous. The entire old state ticket below the governorship was renominated by acclamation. The convention then adjourned.

Wonderful Robert J.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—Robert J won a wonderful free-for-all race before an immense crowd at the Columbus Driving park yesterday. He paced the fourth and deciding heat in 2:02¾, the fastest fourth heat ever paced. The last half of the third heat was paced by Robert J in 1:00½, or in a 2:01 gait.

That plank walk about the new Savings Bank block has come at last. This morning the contractor had a notice served on him by Commissioner Knowlton to the effect that unless a three-plank walk was built inside of 24 hours the license would be revoked. The notice had its effect for work was commenced before 11 o'clock.

The bridge over the creek on Billings road, Norfolk Downs, should be attended to at once. The planking is all rotted out and several horses have already gone through, so that it is very dangerous. This street is not a public way and the city is therefore not liable for any damage that may occur. The police however, have caused a lantern to be placed on the bridge at night.

Thursday's attendance at the lawn party in Barry's field, under the auspices of St. Mary's Sunday school, was considerably larger than on the first day. There was a pleasing entertainment in the evening and dancing from 9 to 11 o'clock. One of the amusing features during the evening was to see Inspector McKay, William Barry and W. F. Powers ride the donkeys about the field.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

One on the Bicycle Cop — The Public Pleased With the Broadway Cable Smokers — Stage Gossip.

[Special Correspondence.]

The bicycle policeman is generally conceded to be a good thing, and there is a tendency—at least in this city—to push him along in a helpful way. He is, of course, the natural enemy of scorchers and all other wheelmen and drivers who seem to labor under the delusion that the law was made to be violated. Still the average respectable wheelman who does not agree with this view of the case looks upon the bicycle cop as an ally who is hired to make it possible for the roads and streets to be used by those who have some respect for life and limb, to say nothing of the rights of others. Thus there has grown up a very strong feeling of friendship for the fearless cyclists of the police department, most of whom are men of more than average intelligence, who are always ready to give ear to the grievances of riders and to correct them when possible. However, they are only human, and in consequence likely to err at times. A good story, which has the merit of being true, is now being told of one of these officers. A few nights ago, as he was pedaling slowly along the boulevard, he espied a well dressed man coming toward him at a terrific rate of speed. He did not look a bit like a scorcher, but he was unquestionably going at a rate of speed far in excess of that allowed by the ordinance. As the rider whizzed by, his coattails standing almost horizontally out behind, the policeman started in pursuit. He did not gain on the flying figure as rapidly as he had expected and concluded to order him to stop. There came back a muffled reply which the officer was unable to catch, and the unknown man bent a little farther over his handle bars, while his machine went along at increased speed.

The policeman was now mad clean through, and he determined to catch the fellow no matter what happened, but, try as he might, his intended victim continued to gain until he was fully two blocks ahead, when, like a flash, he turned into a side street. When the cop got there, he was greatly surprised to see the man standing his bicycle alongside the area fence. He then ran up the steps and was about to ring the bell when the minion of the law arrived upon the scene and informed him that he was under arrest for scorching. The gentleman—for he was without doubt a gentleman—explained that he was a physician and had been hastily summoned to attend a man who had accidentally taken poison and that he had so stated when the policeman had first hailed him. The officer unbent sufficiently to agree to allow him to go into the house to see his patient, on condition that the bicycle be left outside as a guarantee of good faith. When, after an interval of about half an hour, the physician returned, he was surprised to find that his officious captor had departed. He was just preparing to mount his wheel when he observed a small piece of paper fluttering on the handle bar. Taking it off, he went to a lamppost near by and read the following, "Don't tell them that you saw me."

The Broadway Cable's Smokers.

The smokers of this city are in the saddle, so to speak, and this summer are enjoying privileges which they had never dared to hope for. Up to the present time there has been no passenger line, surface or elevated, on which lovers of the weed might indulge in a quiet puff. Over in Brooklyn they have for years been amply provided for, and "progressive" Gotham has been in the rear of "slow going" Brooklyn, as usual. During the summer some lines which operate open cars have permitted smoking on the three rear seats, but as these are as frequently as not occupied by women and other nonsmokers, the privilege has not amounted to as much as would at first appear. The Broadway cable line, which is said to carry more passengers than any other surface road in the country, is unique by reason of its being also the least progressive in the world. It has always used closed cars in summer as well as in winter, not because it loved the public less, but because it loved economy more. A few weeks ago the long suffering people of this city were horribly startled to observe that this road had actually made a step forward by putting on open cars.

When the first of these appeared, it was announced that they were intended principally for the convenience of smokers. But the open smokers were too popular with everybody for such a reservation to be successful. The number of them rapidly increased. Now the open cars are in the great majority, and they are usually crowded, while the old cars trundle along with many vacant seats.

The Third avenue line is now also operating smokers with trailers attached for persons who do not like to have bad cigarette and worse cheroot smoke puffed into their faces.

Palmer's Stock Company Redivivus.

Every one who takes an interest in the American drama and who sincerely desires its uplifting from the slough of despond into which it has been forced in recent years by reckless speculators, to whom art is not even a tertiary consideration, has hoped for a partial return to the stock system, under which alone a change for the better might reasonably be expected. So such it will be good news that A. M. Palmer's stock company, which for over 20 years was one of the prominent theatrical organizations of this country, is to be revived for the coming season.

Mr. Henry Miller, for several years leading man of the Empire Theater Stock company, has signed a contract to head Mr. Palmer's forces, and will be featured in all the productions. Miss Blanche Walsh, now in Australia with Nat Goodwin, will return to this country in time to assume the leading female role in the first play.

BUY
Of Boston Branch Grocery.
WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

The Most Popular
OF ALL TIES
IS TO ADVERTISE.

Gold Only.

Editors Daily Ledger:

The only logical legal tender, under the prevailing conditions of trade and commerce, seems to be, 1st, gold coins, worth one hundred cents to the dollar. 2d, paper money, issued by the United States government and redeemable on demand in gold.

Silver, as a standard of value, has undoubtedly outlived its usefulness, for its fluctuations in price render its relative value to gold too unstable for its use under the double standard. The immutable law of supply and demand determines its relative va'ue to gold and any attempt to bolster up its market value by legislation is preposterous.

The scheme advocated and adopted at the Democratic convention at Chicago, to arbitrarily maintain the relative value of silver to gold at 16 to 1, by purchasing the world's supply of silver at twice its market value and coining it into legal tender dollars is the quintessence of fraud and folly.

The use of a precious metal as a circulating medium or even as a standard of value must be regarded as merely a temporary expedient in the evolution of the trade and commerce of the world, and pending the final and complete comprehension of the true meaning and function of the measure of value called a dollar. It is admitted that metallic dollars are far less convenient than those of paper; though minor coins of metal are handy and desirable.

In its infancy trade was carried on by the clumsy and inadequate method known as barter, that is, the exchange of specific articles. Hence came the idea which has survived and now controls our monetary system, that a dollar, in reality merely a measure of value, as a yard is a measure of distance and a bushel a measure of quantity, must be a thing of value itself, or capable of being redeemed for the value it represents.

It is by no means an impossibility that a dollar, which is in reality a mere symbol, like a yard stick or bushel basket, may at some future day be simply a piece of paper stamped and issued by the Government, and accepted unquestioningly by everyone as a mere measure of value for use in the interchange of commodities, and not a valuable commodity, (as metallic money is) to be withdrawn from circulation and hoarded at the times when its presence would avert a panic.

Herein lies the weakness of metallic money as a circulating medium. There is no reason why a dollar, which is a mere measure of value should be a thing of value. Why have a gold dollar anymore than a gold yard-stick? The Aborigines used a peculiar kind of shell (which had no value as a commodity) for money, and the principle is defensible on the ground that money is really a measure of value not a commodity to be bartered for. Evolution will undoubtedly furnish the solution of the currency question and not revolution, as the mob at the Chicago convention seemed to favor.

MILLIONAIRE IS SUED.

Widow Clark Claims That Ex-Commodore Owes Her $12,000.

Advanced Money to Help Pay For Yacht, She Says.

Defendant Declares That It Is Certainly a Case of Blackmail.

Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 7.—Francis Burritt, the South Norwalk millionaire, and an ex-commodore of several yacht clubs, who has designed and built for personal pleasure over 30 sloop and schooner yachts, now has counsel to defend him in a suit brought by Mrs. Alice E. Clark, a widow, who attached his property yesterday afternoon, in order to secure $12,000, which she declares the commodore owes her on a series of notes.

Mr. Burritt resides with his wife on Judas island, in a handsome and very costly mansion, commanding a view of the harbor and sound. He has known Mrs. Clark several years.

The widow lived in East Norwalk at one time, but subsequently moved to Bridgeport, where Mr. Burritt frequently called. Two years ago she became engaged to a Bridgeport manufacturer, of mature age and considerable wealth, and jilted him later after receiving from him valuable gifts of money and real estate, as is alleged. The story of the affair caused considerable speculation at the time, but although legal action was threatened, the case never got into court.

Mr. Burritt made her acquaintance about 1890, or just previous to the building, in Bridgeport, of his famous yacht Rival, which defeated, in various races, all comers for purses of large amounts. During the construction of the craft Mr. Burritt boarded with the widow, who kept a fashionable boarding house in the heart of the city.

Deputy Sheriff Miller served the papers on Commodore Burritt yesterday afternoon. Ex-State Attorney James H. Olmstead of Stamford is Mrs. Clark's attorney, and he says the case will be pushed. In her own behalf, Mrs. Clark claims that she advanced Burritt several thousand dollars to assist in paying for his yacht, and that the rest of the money due her is on notes.

Commodore Burritt denies that he owes Mrs. Clark a cent, and declares that the case is one of blackmail, pure and simple. He denies all allegations in the complaint, and says he will fight to the bitter end.

The affair has created a profound sensation in the Norwalks, where both are well known.

RAILROAD SCHEMING.

Alleged Uncovering of a Deal Whereby Percentages Were Kept Up.

Chicago, Aug. 7. — Through the refusal of the Chicago and Great Western road to turn over $90,000 in cash to even up its percentage, the existence of a money pool among the roads west of Chicago has been discovered, says The Inter-Ocean. The facts in the case leaked out last night after the adjournment of the interstate commerce committee hearing. General Freight Agent Stohr of the Chicago Great Western was the last witness before the committee yesterday afternoon. Stohr was the first railroad official to acknowledge to the commission the giving of a cut rate. He said on June 18 he authorized a rate of 1 cent per 100 pounds below tariff, on a shipment of 30 carloads of export grain from Kansas City to Liverpool. After the adjournment it was discovered that the present attempts of competitors of this road to prove its officers guilty of rate cutting was on account of the refusal of this line to turn over $90,000, which it was ahead in a money pool now in existence among the roads of the Western Freight association. The pool has been in secret operation for nearly one year, and the Great Western's lack of confidence in its stability caused it to refuse to even up its balances.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY.

Li Hung Chang, the great Chinese statesman, will soon visit this country, and preparations are being made to receive him with all the honors due to his high rank and station. Li has visited nearly all the capitals of Europe since he attended the coronation of the czar and has been well received by the governments of all the great nations. He is now on his way back to China. He will probably stop a day or two in New York before he goes on to Washington, and a committee of prominent citizens will entertain him. At the capital he will be received officially, and he may return to New York after that as a guest at a banquet which is being talked about. Then he will start west, stopping for a few days in Chicago, where he will be wined and dined again. At San Francisco there will be more receptions before he finally sails for China.

Prince Li now holds none of the various high offices which he did at the close of the Japanese-Chinese war, and it is a much debated question whether he is a back number statesman, like Bismarck, or whether he will be restored to power on his return.

A Candidate For Vice President.

Thomas E. Watson, the Populist nominee for second place on the presidential ticket, is 40 years old and a native of Georgia. He is a slim, thin faced man, with red hair. He is quite an orator and has a strong, penetrating voice. He is a lawyer, and before the birth of the Populist party was prominent in the Farmers' Alliance movement. He served one term in the Georgia legislature and was Democratic elector for the state in 1888. As a member of the Fifty-second congress he caused considerable excitement by "calling down" Congressman Cobb of "Where am I at?" notoriety. Mr. Watson was also nominated as candidate for the Fifty-fourth congress, but his opponent, James C. C. Black, was declared elected. Watson protested the accuracy of the returns, and Black resigned, but was re-elected at a special election.

Putative Parent of the Populist Party.

Dr. Morton A. Pratt of Kansas is credited with being the father of the Populist party and with giving to that active political organization the picturesque name which it bears. Dr. Pratt is a native of Massachusetts and served with distinction through the civil war. Early in the seventies, while a resident of Illinois, he became identified with the granger movement and was instrumental in forming granges in many farming communities. Later he removed to Kansas, and in 1890 he called the union labor forces of Sedgwick county together for the purpose of allying them with the farmers' movement. This he followed by a call for the first Populist convention. In 1894 Dr. Pratt ran for lieutenant governor of Kansas on the initiative and referendum ticket, but was defeated.

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS.

The bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

If the groom carry a miniature horseshoe in his pocket, he will always have good luck.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed.

Ship marriages are considered anything but lucky. Get married on land or don't get married at all.

No bride, if she would have good luck, should bake her own wedding cake. To do so invites ill fortune.

No bride or groom should be given a telegram while on the way to church. It is positively a sign of evil.

Don't wear an opal in getting married. Some people declare that opals are lucky. History proves the contrary.

If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony, the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have evil luck.

Kiss a bride right after the ceremony and before the newly made husband has had a chance to do so and you will have excellent luck throughout the year.

Maidens eager to wed should give dish water heated to the boiling point a wide berth. It means that they will not marry for a long time if they attempt to cleanse dishes in water so hot.

Night weddings are better than none, yet they are by no means the best. The bride whom the sunshine cannot fall upon is sure to experience troublous times. If she have children, they will die young.

Should a bride perchance see a coffin while being driven to the railroad station prior to departing upon her wedding tour, she should order the driver to turn back and start over again or else she will surely meet with bad luck.—Philadelphia Press.

CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT THE SUN.

Sun spots were first observed in the year 1611.

Sun spots always travel from east to west across the sun's disk.

The largest sun spot on record was seen in 1858. It was 143,000 miles across.

A writer in Nature says that the temperature of the sun's surface cannot be less than 18,000 degrees F.

It is claimed that the sun's rays put out fire by rarefying the air, causing it to flow more slowly toward the burning article.

In order that the reader may make a comparison, I will say that a bessemer converter is never heated above 3,000 degrees.

Should the earth be accidentally moved to within a distance of 240,000 miles of the sun, it would wholly dissolve and pass away like vapor in less than an hour.

The sun is over 860,000 miles in diameter. The earth could be placed on the inside of it, and the moon, 240,000 miles away, could still revolve around the world, both the earth and the moon being on the inside of the great light giver.

Some astronomers, those who believe in the "annular," or "ring" theory of creation, believe that the earth and all the planets were once a part of the sun; that the earth is one of the rings thrown off by the great luminary, and that the earth in turn threw off a ring which became the moon.—St. Louis Republic.

OVER THE OCEAN.

Mont Blanc is in a bad temper this year. So far all attempts to reach the summit have failed either through heavy snowstorms or fogs.

The heat in India is most intense this summer. Throughout Sindh and the Punjab the range of temperature has fairly beaten the record.

The forest of Fontainebleau suffers nearly every summer from some destructive fire. Now one of the most picturesque districts is ruined by the flames—Mont Merle, with its 7½ acres of fine oaks.

Enormous goldfields have been found in the Orange Free State, on the Vaal river, so announces Herr Emil Holub, the African explorer. The deposits are so rich that the Free State is likely to rival the Transvaal in gold production.

Superstitions die hard in India. Quite a panic has been caused in several up country districts by the belief that the English were stealing women and infants to use their bodies as foundations for new railway bridges. So great was the alarm in one village that the magistrate sent round a crier to publicly deny the story.

INSECT CURIOSITIES.

WEAK AND WEARY WOMEN AND MEN

Are peculiarly benefited by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful Tonic and Blood Cleanser in the world.

P. P. P. restores shattered nerves, gives strength and tone to the entire system, revives the worn out, nervous and debilitated. You cannot but be nervous if your blood is impure.

P. P. P. gives the proper nourishment to the blood, and cures nervous prostration, debility and nervous headache.

P. P. P. cures that tired, languid, "all gone" feeling, cures dyspepsia, indigestion, and that awful distress of the stomach.

P. P. P. cures that weak, nervous condition, that dreadful jumping of the heart, followed by dizziness and sinking spells. Make your blood pure by taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and you will be well and happy. Women are benefited, their organization regulated, and their weakness and lassitude cured by P. P. P.

WEAK, TIRED PEOPLE

should take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, without delay. While not actually sick, you feel weak and tired, ready to get sick, and what you need is strength to drive out of your system that which is the cause of Spring Fever. P. P. P. is needed at once.

Mr Hattie Mylius, of 70 East 86th street, New York, says that she was in poor health, and that her case developed into nervous prostration. She suffered from nervous headaches, and at times was unable to do any work at all. She could not sleep, and was so nervous that she would have to get up at all hours of the night and walk the floor, and the opening of a door would startle her. But her weakness and nervousness is all gone. P. P. P. was what saved her. Her appetite improved, her nervousness is a thing of the past, and she thanks P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for her complete restoration to health.

Outdoors In the Country.

I really don't 'xactly understan
Where the comfort is fer any man
In walkin hot bricks an usin a fan
An enjoyin himself, as he says he can,
Up thar in the city.

It's kinder lonesome, maybe you'll say,
A-livin out here day after day
In this kinder easy, careless way,
But an hour out here is better'n a day
Up thar in the city.

As fer that, jus' look at the flowers aroun,
A-peepin their heads up all over the groun,
An the fruit a-bendin the trees way down,
You don't find such things as this in town,
Or ruther in the city.

Laureda Still In Business.

New York, Aug. 7. — The American steamship Laureda, of filibustering fame, is about to add to her laurels. The Laureda cleared from Philadelphia some days ago with the usual coastwise clearance. On leaving Philadelphia she had 500 tons of coal in excess of the usual amount needed for a round trip. She stopped at Greenwich point, near Philadelphia and took in more coal. Next she proceeded to Christiana creek, near Wilmington, Del., where she was flagged by the tug Martha, who ran alongside the Laureda, embarking 28 men and a large number of cases. The cases were handled with great care. It is believed that many of them contained dynamite. In addition to war material, the Laureda had eight large surf or whale boats in addition to the usual complement of seaboats. The Laureda's final clearance was from Wilmington for Port Antonio, in Jamaica. She has just left Wilmington, and is due off the coast of Cuba in 4½ days. Captain Murphy, of filibustering notoriety, is in command of the ship.

May Be Delayed.

London, Aug. 7.—The government proposes that the select committee of members of parliament to investigate the administration of Rhodesia by the British Chartered South Africa company, and the circumstances of the Jameson raid, shall be composed of Messrs. Chamberlain, Beach, Dyke, Bigham, Cripps, Wharton, Wyndham, Jackson and Webster, all supporters of the government, and the following members of the opposition: Messrs. Harcourt, Bannerman, Ellis, Labouchere, Buxton and Blake. Owing to objection urged by Mr. Labouchere, who has for years waged a bitter feud against Cecil Rhodes, and the desire of the Parnellites to substitute John Redmond for Edward Blake as a member of the committee, it is doubtful if the committee is constituted at the present session.

Heavy Fighting In Africa.

London, Aug. 7.—The Chronicle has a dispatch from Buluwayo, which says: Colonel Plumer engaged probably 5000 to 7000 rebels. They lost several chiefs. This engagement has broken the combined and hitherto undefeated impis, in their best stronghold. A messenger has been sent to Sekombo, advising the indunas to surrender. General Carrington's plan is to drive the rebels eastward to the upper country, and then repeat his offer of peace, which would probably be accepted.

No Electrics For St. John's.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 7.—The local legislature was prorogued yesterday. Governor Murray refused to sign the bill establishing electric tramways for St. John's city, with power over a radius of 20 miles. The Newfoundland steam railway people protested against this as an invasion of their rights. The British ministry will now have to decide the question. The next session meets in January, when general legislation will be enacted. The present session was only called to pass needed financial measures.

PLANT STRIKE GROWS.

Strikers Induce More Imported Employes to Leave the Factory.

Lasters In Ipswich Branch Join Their Ranks.

Usual Disturbance In Lynn but No Violence Offered.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 7. — Nine lasters from Rochester came to this city yesterday afternoon to go to work for the Thomas G. Plant company. They are Armenians. On their arrival they went into the Plant factory, but did not go to work. They were taken in charge by the pickets of the striking lasters and escorted to Lasters' hall. They were sent back to Rochester this morning at the expense of the lasters. Thirty-three lasters and 23 operatives in other departments of the T. G. Plant factory at Ipswich struck yesterday, in sympathy with their brother lasters in Lynn. The factory has closed down. At 9 o'clock last night about 25 Armenians attacked the house 11 Tremont street, where two non-union lasters for the T. G. Plant company board. Knives were flourished and stones were thrown through the windows. Two Armenians were hurt. A squad of police was summoned and quelled the disturbance. Nine men came out of the Plant factory last night at the close of the day's work, and were taken in a barge with an escort of 50 policemen. There was considerable disturbance, but no violence offered the men.

The Lasters' union of Lynn, acting under instructions from the national executive of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, succeeded, yesterday afternoon, in "carrying the war into Africa," in the fight of the union against the Thomas G. Plant company, by inaugurating a strike in the lasting department of the annex factory of the Plant company in Ipswich. Thirty-three of the lasters in the annex came out on strike, also 23 men out of the other departments of the shop, which brings the total number up to 56.

Secretary Carter of the Lynn Lasters' union and Edward T. Smith, secretary of the Heelers' union of Lynn, who were acting under instructions from local council No. 4 of the Boot and Shoe union of Lynn, and National President John F. Tobin of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, went to Ipswich a little before noon, and called a meeting of the lasters at work in the annex factory, to be held in Damon hall at 2 o'clock. The lasters were promptly on hand, and were addressed by Secretaries Carter and Smith. The struggle between the Plant company and the Lynn union was narrated in detail, and at the close, 33 of the lasters decided to strike.

The men immediately formed in procession and marched to the annex factory to get their "kits" and working tools, but the foreman refused them permission to enter, telling them that their belongings would be sent out to them. This was done after about an hour's time. In the meantime, 23 of the help in the other departments of the shop also joined the striking lasters, which makes 56 in all, and when the men put away their working tools, one of them, who is a skilled musician, went to his room, where he procured a fife, on which he played "Yankee Doodle" and a number of national airs. The strikers paraded the principal streets of the town, on some of which they were greeted with cheers.

Agent Carter said that everything was quiet and orderly in Ipswich, and that the strikers were behaving well. The reason why, it is understood, that the strike was not ordered earlier in the week was that the lasters employed in the Ipswich annex belong to different unions in New England, and it took time for the secretaries of these unions to communicate with the members in Ipswich. When this was done the men decided to strike at once, and their action yesterday afternoon was the result of that decision.

It is understood that a contingent of Lynn labor leaders will go to Ipswich today to make an effort to get the rest of the employes of the Plant company there to join the strikers.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 7.—The second annual fete day of Newport was celebrated yesterday, in honor of the New York Yacht club. The fete began with the presentation to the city of a flagpole, in Washington square, by the Lawrence club. Mayor Boyle accepted the gift in behalf of the city in a short address. Five bands of music were consolidated, and played national airs, while the light battery from Fort Adams fired a salute of 45 guns. The city and harbor were ablaze with light last night. There was a naval procession, in which prizes were awarded for the best illuminated boats. Bands of music and minstrel troops were stationed on floats in the harbor, while large parties of merrymakers were aboard all the yachts. At 10:30 every yacht in the harbor displayed its signal and burned colored fire. The fete was one of the finest in the city's history, and will be long remembered.

A Bad Smashup.

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 7.—An electric train was standing at the Hingham depot at 8 o'clock last night, waiting for the power to be turned on. Suddenly out of the mist the 7:12 passenger train from Boston, coming on the same track, but run by steam, loomed up and crashed into the electrics. The rear car of the electric train was telescoped, and the engine of the steam train was damaged. The open motor car was filled with people, but they were warned of their danger, and they managed to jump. Al of the passengers were badly scared, and had the steam train been an express, a collision of terrific force must have been inevitable. The engineer of the steam train was unable to see the electrics by reason of the sharp curve and absence of lights in the electrics, which was caused by lack of power.

Loss of the Welcome R. Beebe.

Highland Light, Mass., Aug. 7.—The schooner Welcome R. Boebe, from Islesboro, Me., for Richmond, with 400 tons of ice, ran ashore eight miles south of Highland Light. The vessel filled with water, and at high tide the water covered the decks. The crew of six men were taken off by Captain Cole of Cahoon's Hollow and Captain Rich of the Pamet lifesaving station. The vessel sprung aleak 25 miles east of Nauset, and the crew were running her close to the land when she struck. She will be a total loss.

Doctor In a Bad Scrape.

Boston, Aug. 7.—Dr. Edward F. Wells, 48 years old, is charged with committing a criminal operation on Hattie Green, 18 years old. The alleged operation occurred on Aug. 2, but the girl's condition was not discovered until yesterday, when another physician was called in, as the case was becoming alarming. The girl was immediately removed to the hospital, where she will probably die. The arrest of Dr. Wells was the result of statements made by the Green girl.

Lightning In Granite State.

Hanover, N. H., Aug. 7.—The storm yesterday was one of the worst for a long time in this vicinity. Lightning destroyed the large barn and shed on the farm of E. E. Langdon, six head of cattle and 12 tons of hay being lost. At Lyme, the dwelling house of George Downing was struck and burned. Standing timber was struck in many quarters by the excessively sharp lightning.

Had an Ax Handy.

Westbrook, Me., Aug. 7.—William Wallace, who had a narrow escape from being shot two weeks ago, is apparently a persecuted young man. He claims that Wednesday night someone entered his house, with the intention of killing him, but they were frightened away when Wallace awoke. The intruder had taken an ax from the woodshed and left it in the chamber. There is no clew.

Putnam's Statement.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 7.—W. F. Putnam, ex-president of the Granite State National bank of Exeter, who is in prison here, has made a long statement, in which he reviews the various phases of his case, disclaims all intentional wrongdoing, and asserts that but for the interference of Cashier Byington in the management of the bank it would be now doing business.

Firebug at Work.

North Swansea, Mass., Aug. 7.—An incendiary set fire to two barns and robbed a local store at an early hour yesterday morning. The two fires occurred within an hour of each other, while the robbery was not discovered until daylight. The loss by fire is $3000. A posse of citizens is scouring Bristol county for the criminal.

Market Over-Supplied.

Providence, Aug. 7.—Manufacturers of cotton yarns met here yesterday, and adopted resolutions providing for a curtailment to half the regular production during the month of August. Nearly every yarn mill in the north was represented, and the agreement was unanimously adopted.

May Have Killed Himself.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 7. — Francis Meyer, a district telegraph messenger, went to a baseball game on Tuesday, and was discharged. In the afternoon he loaded a revolver and left the house. He told his little sister that he was going to end his life. He has not been seen since.

Many New Citizens.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The United States courts in this city report that 5350 persons were naturalized during the year ending July 30. More Hebrews and Italians were naturalized than any other people.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 7.—Morris Leonard, who sold mackintoshes here for C. F. Adams & Co. of Hartford, was arrested in Meriden yesterday, charged with embezzlement of money from sales.

Fourth Attempt Successful.

Wiscasset, Me., Aug. 7.—Manuel Caton, who lived a mile out of the village, was found hanging from a beam in his barn, dead, this being his fourth attempt at suicide.

New England Briefs.

The Massachusetts training ship Enterprise has arrived at Lisbon.

Two icehouses were struck by lightning and burned at Dedham, Mass.

More than 5000 citizens were naturalized in Boston during the year ending June 30 last.

The Boston and Maine railroad is to expend $300,000 on a new repair shop at Concord, N. H.

A young son of Louis Gurney was drowned at Waterville, Me., while playing on logs in the river.

James D. Walker, charged with embezzling $2000 from Weeks & Potter, Boston, was held in $2000 for the grand jury.

Martha Kershaw, aged 60, was found dead in a stateroom off the ladies' cabin of the steamer Puritan, at Fall River, Mass.

Of Practical Value.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The New York harbor postal transfer service was inaugurated yesterday, and the result is viewed as fully meeting the expectations of postal officials. Harbor transfers were made in New York from the transatlantic steamers by tugs, direct to railway lines of such mail as comes from Europe, pouched so as to be transferred without going through the New York postoffice. Even in this crude, experimental way it made a difference of 2½ hours in the mail for Philadelphia, and mail reached Buffalo six hours earlier than it formally did on the regular run. Similar gains were accomplished for all the large cities, and the Mexican mail will reach the city of Mexico 24 hours earlier than formerly.

Long Prominent In Public Life.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Judge Samuel Shellabarger of this city died last night, after a lingering sickness, of general debility. He was born in Ohio, Dec. 10, 1817. For many years he was a prominent member of the Washington bar. He was United States minister to Portugal in 1869 and 1870, and was one of the civil service commission in 1874 and 1875. Prior to that time he had served in congress from Ohio.

Phenacetine and Chinamen.

Montreal, Aug. 7.—An authoritative statement was made yesterday by the United States customs office here that information had been laid against, and warrants had been issued for 15 men and women who have been guilty of assisting Chinamen and smuggling phenacetine over the border. The accused persons reside in Boston, New York and Canada.

SACRED CONFIDENCE.

No Woman's Letter Published Except by Request.

Mrs. Pinkham's Tender Relations With the Suffering of Her Sex—Women Who Cannot Hide Their Happiness.

There is a class of women who, from their own experience, sympathize with their suffering sisters, and in order that such suffering may be lessened, no bly put aside false modesty and in heartfelt gratitude publish to the world what every woman should know.

Mrs. W. L. Elliott, Liscomb, Iowa, is one of those women, and has requested us to publish the facts in her case, otherwise it would not be done, as all such evidence is treated in sacred confidence, unless publication is requested by the writer.

She says to Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish you would publish the circumstances of my case, in order that other women may be benefited by my experience.

"I doctored nearly all the time for two years. I spent several hundred dollars without receiving much benefit. Last June I wrote to you and described all my aches and pains. Such a long list as there was: headache, backache, bearing-down pains, terrible soreness, constipation, dizziness, feeling of extreme lassitude, irregularity and nausea; but you answered my letter and told me just what to do. I followed your advice.

"After taking eight bottles of the Vegetable Compound and three bottles of Blood Purifier, I am glad to write you that I have not enjoyed such good health for years, and I am able to do all my own work. I can surely sound the praises of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and a number of my friends are taking it upon my recommendation."—Mrs. W. L. Elliott, Liscomb, Iowa.

Of Boston Branch Grocery.
WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

With many people summer is the excuse for wearing all sorts and conditions of garments so long as they are cool and comfortable. Men particularly revel in being "vestless" and "starchless." Simple knickerbocker suits, that are equally good for golf or the wheel, are probably the most sensible costume for men for morning and afternoon wear, but when evening comes neglige toilet should not be tolerated. A Tuxedo coat, narrow white or black silk tie, the double-breasted white pique vest and black trousers for most summer entertainments and cottage life in the evenings is a correct costume, and perfectly safe to wear on all such occasions, save a ball or a very formal dinner.

They say the most popular man with the young people of this city is Mr. Henry H. Faxon for who else has a bay rigging with springs, good horses and a careful driver; who has more boxes of choice candies or who patronizes their fetes and fairs more liberally.

The Old Colony.

Summer travel is now at its height. The Cape Cod resorts are among the most popular in the land, hence the Old Colony system of the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R. fall in for their share of the summer traffic.

Among the most attractive spots along the route, or in connection with this line, are the Falmouths, Marion, the Warehams, Scituate, Chatham, Green Harbor, Oak Bluffs, Wood's Hole, Fairhaven, Monument Beach, Mattapoisetts, New Bedford, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and other places of note too numerous to mention.

Last week the travel from the Kneeland street station was enormous. During the week more than 56,000 pieces of baggage were shipped outward, and on last Saturday alone some 2500 pieces of out-going baggage was handled. Still an increase is expected next week, and days may come within the next fortnight when the above mentioned figures will be greatly exceeded —Journal.

John Sweeney was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

—The Dedham Sportsman's club is holding its first annual handicap tournament at its grounds at Islington on this afternoon. The events consist of eight regular events and one extra for a purse of $25. The event of the day will be the sixth, which will be shot at 100 birds, thrown at unknown angles, each man, the shooting being in five instalments of 20 birds each. The limit of handicap in this event will be 20 birds, and the scratch man's score, if over 93 or 94 birds, will be the highest possible. Gunners from several clubs in the State are participating.

IN FARAWAY BULGARIA

A New Side of Missionary Work.

The Sick Are Healed and Hearts Touched.

In Bulgaria, as in all eastern countries where misery abounds, the healing of the sick is the surest way to the heart of the natives. These extracts, from the letters of Mr. George D. Marsh, a missionary of the American Board, tell their own stories. He writes from Philippopolis, Bulgaria, as follows:

We have just received your very kind and generous donation of Arnold's Balsom, and wish to express our most hearty thanks for the gift. We have long known and valued this medicine, and were glad to receive this bountiful supply. We had hardly unpacked one box before we had two loud calls for the Balsam.

We use it for the many poor who come to us in distress, as well as for ourselves and our fellow workers in towns and villages where it is not possible to secure the aid of a doctor. Whoever has used it once does not like to be left without it.

In a little village, last summer, the wife of one of our pastors had only a little of the Balsam left, which she wished to keep in case of need for any of her children. A neighbor came in begging for some kind of medicine for her husband, whom she thought would soon be past help, if he could not check the diarrhoea that had laid hold of him. The last of the Balsam was given, and the man used it during the night. Not long afterward the pastor heard that the next morning the man, who was on his feet and around the village, said: "I want to get past the parsonage without being seen, or they won't believe I was so sick last night."

A merchant in a neighboring town told me he was distressed for his youngest child, as the doctors did not find any remedy to cure it's summer complaint. I had part of a bottle I could give. From the first using the child improved, and was soon well.

Later the father said to me: "That part of a bottle saved our child and three others also."

A dear Christian woman came to me asking if I could not give her something to take home. She had walked 10 miles from her village to attend church. She reported that many children were dying from dysentery, and their people did not know what to do for them, except call the priest to pray over them, and sprinkle them with holy water. She gratefully received a bottle of Arnold's Balsam.

Very often we find "Man's extremity God's opportunity." Mothers with sick children are very ready for heart medicine when they come to get help for their little, ones and your bottles of Balsam will, I have no doubt, many times prepare the way for him who delighted to heal the sick and bind up the broken-hearted. "In his name," again we thank you. Yours very truly,

George D. Marsh,

When a pair of lovers quarrel
And in pride and anger part,
Oft with hasty speech unkindly
Wringing each the other's heart,

As with high and haughty footstep
Trips offended maid away.
She will turn her head a moment,
Glancing only—so she'll say—
At the glow of dying day.
Maiden's way! Maiden's way!

When a pair of lovers weary
Of such comedy of strife
Meet again and sue forgiveness,
Vowing harmony for life,

As, with soft and tender glances,
For one little kiss he'll pray,
She will turn her head a moment,
Coyly feigning shy delay
Lest he think he's won the day.
Maiden's way! Maiden's way!

—St. Paul's.

"One thing I could never understand," said the judge as he looked around at three or four guests after dinner, "is why everybody seems to expect a man when telling a story orally to confine himself strictly to the truth while no one ever demands anything of the sort from a writing story teller. It isn't fair. Besides it is based on wrong principles. When a man tells a story, he ought to make it just as interesting as he can regardless of all considerations of truth."

"Dangerous doctrine. Might be extremely demoralizing," observed the dominie.

"I can't think so," returned the judge. "Take the case of a host, for instance. I hold that it is not only his privilege but his duty to entertain his guests with the best stories he can tell and give no thought to truth. And I'll undertake to show you that it is not demoralizing in any way. You remember having heard me mention the tramp trip which I took around the world when I was a young man, I presume."

"I believe so," answered the major doubtfully.

"I wasn't, of course, exactly what we picture when we think of a tramp, but I didn't have much money and naturally I fell in with all sorts and conditions of men. I reached my lowest ebb financially in Sydney, Australia. At a cheap boarding house I became acquainted with a man who was by profession an aeronaut. His name was Mudgett, though on the bills he scintillated as Signor Campanella.

"He was an excellent story teller and a good fellow, though, like myself, he was passing through a regular Oakhurstian streak of bad luck. He had lost his balloon. It seemed that the thing had blown away one particularly windy afternoon just before the ascent, and the poor fellow was waiting in hopes that it would be found out in the bush somewhere and brought in. It used to be quite pathetic to see him search through the want advertisements in the morning papers, looking for the heading of 'Found—Balloon,' but he never came across it. He also advertised it himself, giving a full description of the balloon and offering a reward of £10 for its return, but in this he was equally unsuccessful.

"At last he gave up all hope. 'Some woman found that balloon,' he would say, 'and couldn't resist the temptation to cut it up for silk dresses. Well, she's fixed for a good while anyhow; that balloon ought to make an ordinary sized woman about 200 dresses, though I'll bet a shilling she'll get tired of the color along on the last half of the second 100.' It was before the day of big sleeves, so I dare say he was right about the number.

"But my friend's fortunes changed finally, temporarily at least. He found a man willing to furnish money for a new balloon, and after it was finished he made regular daily ascents for a fortnight. He asked me to accompany him, and I did so several times. However, ill luck still pursued Campanella, and two weeks after he got his new balloon he one day had a row with a drunken sailor and went to the hospital with a broken head.

"The manager came to me in despair. Could not I make the ascent? I agreed and went over to the grounds. Here I put on the signor's gorgeous apparel and climbed into the basket. There was a trapeze below the basket on which the signor was wont to hang by his toes and otherwise to playfully disport himself while going up, but I judiciously kept off and stuck to the basket.

"The crowd made a great uproar about this, feeling that they were not getting their money's worth unless they saw a man endanger his life. I could hear the manager explaining that I would begin to perform as soon as I was up high enough to make it worth while, and later I understood that after I had passed out of sight above the clouds he assured them that I was then doing the most blood curdling feats on that trapeze that any human being ever attempted.

"There was a rather stiff breeze blowing and I sailed along at a good rate. I had shot up 6,000 or 7,000 feet, and far below was a mighty ocean of white cloud. Where I was the sun shone brightly, and it was cool and pleasant, but I could soon see the lightning thrashing about below and hear the thunder growl. I had no desire to go down into a thunderstorm, so I sailed on.

"At the end of two hours I was still driving along at the rate, I estimated, of 50 or 60 miles an hour. I had grown tired of watching the raging storm below and looked off toward what I suppose I may call the horizon. Far away against the sky I saw a speck. I thought it was a bird at first, but as we approached nearer what was my astonishment to see that it was another balloon.

"We were being driven by currents blowing at right angles and were rapidly coming closer together. Soon I could make out another person in the other balloon. I waved my hand at him, and, as he was a hundred feet above me, I threw out a few handfuls of ballast. I rose and instantly saw that we were going to meet. I prepared a rope, and as the sides of our great bags touched I threw one end into the oncoming basket. As the other aeronaut straightened up from making the end fast I was further astonished when my eyes met those of a beautiful young woman.

"The line was holding us only 10 or 12 feet apart. I took off my hat and, as a total stranger, apologized for addressing her, but hoped that the unusual circumstances of our meeting would excuse my apparent rudeness. Besides, I fancied that her face seemed familiar, though this, of course, was a flat lie. She smiled and gracefully accepted my apology. She was young, bright and, I thought, the handsomest girl I had ever seen. She was tastefully dressed in a fancy costume, with skirts reaching just below the knee.

"We were soon chatting pleasantly together, and I learned that she had gone up (or come up, rather,) that afternoon from Melbourne, and had been driving before the wind above the storm, as I had myself been doing. It was, she said, only her third ascent, but she was perfectly cool and laughed gayly over our somewhat strange meeting. I happened to look closely at her balloon, and suddenly it struck me that it answered the description of the one the signor had lost. I asked her delicately where she got it, and she said that it had come down one day in her father's front yard, and after a diligent attempt to find the owner by advertising in all of the Melbourne papers and putting up a notice in the post office she had decided to begin making ascents with the balloon herself, since there was a heavy mortgage on her father's farm and danger of his losing it if £500 was not raised soon.

"She was much embarrassed when I told her that I knew the owner of the balloon, and instantly said she would return it to him at the earliest possible moment. I was by this time so taken by her that I told her she should do nothing of the sort; that as the signor had got another balloon I would see that she was not dispossessed, though I had not the least idea how I should ever pay for it.

"At this she blushed, thanked me, but said that mamma would not allow her to accept such a gift from a comparative stranger. I was deeply touched by her delicacy in the matter, but resolved that she should own the balloon nevertheless. In fact, to tell the truth, I was, as you may guess, falling in love with the girl just as rapidly as it is possible for any man to fall in love with any young woman.

"And, to make a long story short, by the time the storm was over and we began to descend I was engaged to her, subject to the consent of her parents. As we settled toward the earth and I gazed across into her great, liquid eyes and saw there the light of awakening love I was the happiest man above the Australian continent. But one dark thought crossed my mind—that of my utter poverty.

"We soon reached terra firma, and a delicious thrill shot through me as I touched her hand for the first time in assisting her from her basket. I then turned and picked up a stone to use in staking down our balloons. I saw something gleam on it. I examined closely. Gold! A glance showed more all about on the ground. I used my stakes in marking out a claim. It became the celebrated Gas Bag mine, of which you have heard, and a month later I sold it for £200,000. We were married in Woolloomoolloo."

"See here, judge," broke in the dominie, "I thought this story was going to introduce an incident to prove that lying is not demoralizing!"

"I promised nothing of the sort," returned the judge. "This story is an example, not an incident to prove anything. However there may be proof in it after all. I have told it, and I'll leave it to any one here if I am demoralized."—Hayden Carruth in Chicago Post.

The Game as Played In Africa.

It can hardly be too often repeated that the Jameson raid and the Johannesburg rising are merely incidents in the game which has been played for years and is still playing between Mr. Rhodes as the representative of British hegemony and President Kruger as representative of Dutch and ultimately, though not willingly, of German. I have a good deal of admiration for President Kruger as a strong man in a difficult place and highly esteem the Boers as a resolute and hardy race, but President Kruger's government is intolerable, and if he were to win we should lose the headship of South Africa. There is a great deal of talk now about getting at the guilty person behind Jameson's raid and Johannesburg's revolt. This is assumed to be Mr. Rhodes—a short sighted assumption.

Behind the reform committee, who merely found an ally in Mr. Rhodes, looms the formidable first cause of the disturbances in the Transvaal, the ungainly figure of the old dopper dictator. Give him all praise for diplomacy, courage, tenacity and a certain diplomatic magnanimity, but remember that the oppression and corruption of his government, deaf to remonstrance or warning, is the real cause of the trouble, and that the guilt for the blood spilled at Krugersdorp, as for the suicides in the tronk at Pretoria, rests on the unrelenting, though somewhat unctuous, autocrat of the Transvaal.—Fortnightly Review.

Half a Loaf.

The Northern American Turnerbund, which recently met at Louisville, has a "woman question." It was recommended by the committee that women be permitted to take part in the big carnival at St. Louis next year, which was carried, but they were denied admittance into the convention by a vote of 215 to 167.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 9. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The conquest of temptation.—Eph. vi, 10-18. (A temperance topic.)

In the topical reference we have Paul's representation of the Christian life as a struggle and warfare against temptation to doubt and to sin, and his wonderful description of the armor or panoply of God which it is necessary for the soldier of Christ to have on to win the victory over the wiles of the devil. Satan, the enemy of the human soul, is both powerful and skillful. It is not against weak humanity, "flesh and blood," that we struggle, but against fallen spirits, "principalities, powers, the darkness of this world, spiritual wickedness in high places." The enemy being so powerful, the need of a powerful armor is apparent. God has supplied it. Paul here describes it in full, specifying each and giving its spiritual significance, using the armor of the Roman soldier as a model.

1. The first piece is the girdle. "Girt about with truth." The girdle was the ancient military belt. It not only held the sword or dart, but its chief purpose was to hold the rest of the armor in its place. This is why it is mentioned first. The spiritual girdle is truth, honesty and sincerity, and the "truth as it is in Jesus." If we are true and sincere, and stand firmly upon the eternal truth of God, satan and all his hosts cannot move us.

2. The second piece is the breastplate. The breastplate covered the chest, and in so doing protected the heart, the center of physical life. It was sometimes formed of linen or plates of horn, but usually of metallic scales or feathers. The breastplate spiritually represents righteousness. "Having on the breastplate of righteousness." Righteouness here is not moral rectitude, but as always with Paul the justifying righteousness of Christ. We are not righteous, nor can we be; but if we are clothed upon with the righteousness of Christ it becomes a breastplate to ward off all the attacks and insinuations of satan.

3. The third piece is the sandal. The legs of the Roman soldier were covered with greaves a kind of military leggings or boots, and the feet were covered with sandals, a kind of light, spiked shoe. The purpose of these sandals was to give sureness of footing and swiftness to the soldier. The Christian also needs to be firm and swift to do the will of God, and the sandals which assist him are the effects of the gospel of peace. "And having your feet shod with the preparedness of the gospel of peace." The gospel brings peace and serenity. It scatters doubts and misgivings and makes us firm and speedy in obeying God.

4. The fourth piece is the shield. Two kinds of shields were used by Roman soldiers, a small shield called a buckler or target, held in the left hand in a hand to hand struggle, and a large shield which covered the entire person. The large one is referred to here. Spiritually it is faith, unwavering confidence and trust in God, which wards off all the assaults of satan when he tempts us to doubt or to sin.

5. The fifth piece is the helmet. It protected the head and enabled the soldier to march with his head erect. The helmet of the spiritual armor is salvation, the positive assurance that we are now and forever saved.

6. The sixth piece is the sword. This is the word of God, the sword of the Spirit. Add to these prayer and we are invulnerable.

Bible Readings.—Gen. iii, 1-8; I Chron. xxi, 1; Prov. i, 10; iv, 14-18; Math. iv, 1-11; xxvi, 41; I Cor. x, 12, 13; Gal. vi, 1; I Thess. iii, 5; I Tim. vi, 9; Heb. ii, 18; iv, 15, 16; Jas. i, 1-16; I Pet. v, 9; II Pet. ii, 8, 9, 10.

How to Keep Young.

First, mingle with the young people, take an interest in their plans, share their enthusiasm, joys and hopes. Keep in close touch with all their activities. Do not patronize, but participate, and the quick, warm pulsations of their hearts will keep your own life currents warm.

Second, cultivate your imagination. The secret of perennial youth lies largely here. Freshness and vigor spring from this source. Read and commit poetry, live in the ideal. The unseen world is more real than the visible, and out from its mystic depths you shall command new worlds to appear. From the visionary you shall create the visible.

Third, walk close with God. A Christian should find his enthusiasm strengthening with his age, his faith in men and things stronger and wiser, his hope firmer based and the warmth and fervor of his affection for all the good and beautiful and grand in nature, man and God increasing continually. Youth ever remains with such a one. Angel faces have no wrinkles. Keep yours like theirs.

Purpose of the Senior Society.

The latest enlargement in Christian Endeavor is the Senior society. It is composed of older Christians and graduates from the Young People's society. The pledge of the Senior society is made applicable to the midweek prayer meeting. The society holds no meetings of its own and its purpose is wholly to strengthen the midweek church services and to retain the interest of the elder Christians in active church work.

Qualities Constituting Greatness.

Bear in mind that to be truly great it is not necessary that you should gain wealth and importance. Steadfast and undeviating truth, fearless and straightforward integrity and an honor ever unsullied by an unworthy word or action make their possessor greater than worldly success or prosperity. These qualities constitute greatness.—Peabody.

More Lasting Work.

The churches that cannot report their accessions by scores may be doing a far grander and more lasting work, which will appear when the "books are opened."—Christian Register.

STOP! You have run up against a Good Thing.

BattleAx PLUG

The best reason in the world why some things sell so well is because they are good. That is one reason for the great sales of "BATTLE AX."

But good quality is only half the story. The other half is the size of a 5 cent piece. It is as big almost as a 10 cent piece of other and poorer kinds.

Facts are facts. You can buy and see for yourself. Five cents isn't much to invest.

THE SEXTUPLET WON

RACE BETWEEN BICYCLE AND THE EMPIRE STATE EXPRESS.

The Train, However, Was Not Running at Her Full Speed—Cyclists Had Several Times Been In Severe Accidents—How the Race Was Run.

The sextuplet bicycle team on July 28 accomplished the wonderful feat of beating the Empire State express near Syracuse, in the presence of hundreds of spectators, who looked upon the spectacle with amazement. The riders showed as much bravado as a parachute jumper leaping from the clouds.

Although they had a trench four feet wide in which to speed their ponderous machine, they kept it under headway for a half mile and finished four lengths ahead of No. 999. The train was not, however, under full headway.

They had been riding the machine since spring in anticipation of this event. They had practiced at Kirkwood park, where it is smooth and level, and also in the early morning on plank roads. In this way they became accustomed to the bumping and jarring of riding over an uneven surface, and William H. Bex, who steered the machine, had become so expert that he could guide it over almost any kind of a road which would permit of passage.

The officials of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the New York Central were interested in the experiment, and a section gang spent several hours leveling up the passage between tracks two and three from the row of poplar trees opposite the old baseball grounds in Geddes.

The stretch was not as long as the men would have liked, it being cut off by a culvert at the pumphouse, through which the wooden brine pipes pass. On this account the undertaking was particularly hazardous, it being necessary to station a number of men on either side of the track to catch the sextuplet as it came up to the mark under headway.

Several times in practice the team had come very near plunging into the six foot trench. On one occasion nearly all the pedals on one side of the machine were smashed. Arrangements were made today whereby the Oswego special on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western tracks, which came near running into the sextuplet Saturday, came through a little ahead of time and was out of the way before the Empire State loomed up around the curve.

Here several men were stationed with white flags. As soon as the Empire showed around the curve the sextuplet was pushed off, and the men slowly got under headway, rapidly increasing their speed, however, until the train came almost abreast of them. Then they let out at full headway and slowly crept to the front.

The engineer and passengers of the train had been informed that a race was on, and heads were out of almost every window. There was great cheering and excitement along the line. A gang of boys followed, and two or three of them narrowly escaped being caught under the wheels of the big machine.

It was expected that Arthur Yates, the official photographer of the New York Central, who was present, would get a good picture of the race, but the sextuplet finished so far ahead of the train that he was unable to get a good negative. An attempt was made with another train which reaches the spot at 3:45 p. m. This time Mr. Yates got four good pictures. All the pictures show the train and sextuplet under full headway.—New York World.

VERDI'S GREAT GIFT.

Gives a Million Lire to Found a Home For Musical Artists.

During Signor Verdi's long musical career the great maestro has accumulated a colossal fortune, which he uses for the benefit of suffering humanity.

Several years ago he opened a hospital for the poor of his native city, Villanova, and there is yet another act of munificence on his part to register. On his arrival at the Grand hotel at Milan, where he usually spends the months of June and July, he deposited 400,000 lire in the People's bank of that city as the first installment of the sum of 1,000,000 lire which he intends to devote to the erection of a house for aged and needy musical artists. He has called it Casa Riposo per gli Artisi di Musica (House of Rest For Musical Artists).

The site chosen for the building lies in the healthiest part of Milan and consists of 4,500 meters of ground. The building, which is to be two stories high, will have in the center a large garden and room enough to accommodate 200 persons, besides a hall for concerts of 250 square meters. It will take a year to complete the work, which has already been begun, and it will cost nearly 1,000,000 lire. In two years the house will be opened. It is calculated that it will take 150,000 lire yearly to keep it up. This amount will also be furnished by the maestro.—New York Herald.

The Next Great Goldfield.

There seems warrant for the belief that Madagascar will provide the world's next great goldfield. Since the French conquest the country has begun to be prospected, and the results have been very encouraging. No reefs have been discovered yet, but there is scarcely a district of the island which has not yielded alluvial gold in paying quantities and finds of big nuggets have been made, but if the French can help it nobody but Frenchmen will be allowed to share these riches. While not absolutely excluded from the country, foreigners are viewed with suspicion, thwarted at every turn and concessions of any kind are refused to them. The policy is a shortsighted one and intelligent Frenchmen deplore it, but the government is afraid of the Paris newspapers and dreads interpellations in the chamber of deputies, where speculators who hope to exploit Madagascar are strongly represented.—New York Sun.

Gave His Life For His Master.

His faithful watchdog was all that saved a Burlington (Ia.) farmer named Daniel Fritz from death in an awful form, and as it is the dog is dead and Fritz has a broken arm and is badly hurt. Fritz and his dog were passing through a pasture in which a bull, which was not supposed to be dangerous, was feeding, when they were suddenly charged by the animal. Before he could reach shelter Fritz was caught on the sharp horns of the bull and tossed high in the air. His arm was broken, and, unable to escape, he shut his eyes just as the bull charged a second time. His dog, however, sprang at the bull's throat and held on long enough for Fritz to escape. The dog was gored and trampled out of shape by the bull.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

I WON'T BE A NUN!

I could not bear confinement, no, it would not do for me,
For I like to go a shopping and to see what I can see.
So I won't be a Nun!
No, I won't be a Nun!
I'm so fond of pleasure that I cannot be a Nun!

3.

I love to hear men flattering—love fashionable clothes,
I love music, and dancing, and chatting with the beaus.
So I can't be a Nun!
No, I won't be a Nun!
I'm so fond of pleasure that I cannot be a Nun!

4.

So mother, don't be angry now, but let your daughter be,
For the Nuns would not like to have a novice wild as me.
And I can't be a Nun!
No, I won't be a Nun!
I'm so fond of pleasure that I cannot be a Nun!

THEY BUILT AN EAR.

CONNECTICUT DOCTORS' SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

Child Was Born With but One Ear—Surgeons Not Only Make an Orifice For Hearing, but Shape a Respectable Looking Organ.

Ears can be made to order now almost while you wait.

If your next baby, instead of having a fine, shapely shell of an ear that the nurse and all the women in the neighborhood will rave over, should happen to have just a kind of a bump that doesn't look like anything at all, don't be discouraged.

Modern surgery is not dismayed by any such trifle as that. It goes to work and builds noses and ears and anything else almost that the human face and figure lack to be symmetrical.

One of the most ambitious, most delicate as well as the most successful of the recent ventures of the new surgery was the construction of an ear to supply the sad deficiency of a Connecticut baby.

The patient in this very skillful operation was an infant with the euphonious name of Michael Kopeske. The child's parents keep a thriving boarding house in Union City, Conn.

Michael was a healthy baby and comely in all respects, save that some mischievous fate had sent him into this breathing world scarce half made up in the matter of ears. It was the source of vast embarrassment to the fond father and mother that the baby should be thus incomplete, and they knew that their discomfort was small compared with that which the lack of the ear would cause little Michael when he grew older. His left ear was nothing more than a meaningless lump, and the absence of a genuine ear made the child look sadly one sided.

The father and mother consulted Drs. Clemens, De Wolfe and Ford of Bridgeport. They decided to see if some means could not be devised of making an ear—not alone an outer ear that would improve the youngster's looks, but an orifice through which he would be able to hear, for there was no opening at all in the shabby substitute for an ear with which nature had provided him.

The baby, now sacacrely seven months old, was taken to Dr. Clemens' office, and the council of physicians set to work upon it.

The child was carefully examined, but it was impossible to find any sign of an opening whereby sound might be transmitted to the ear drum and thence to the brain.

The first step, after an anæsthetic had been applied and the child made unconscious, was to locate the spot where the opening should have been. Then the operation began—an operation which, so far as records tell, has never been undertaken before.

An incision was made in the place where the ear ought to be and a way found from the exterior of the lump to the tympanum. It was found that the interior formation of the hearing apparatus was all normal. Dividing and turning back the unornamental knob of flesh which had disfigured the infant, the three doctors sewed the flaps to the head to hold them back and stitched the four sections together.

That was plastic surgery with a vengeance. Then a spectrum was inserted in the opening, to prevent its closing as the healing process went on. Altogether the operation was a very successful one. It was a bold one, too, but was performed deftly and very quickly. In all, the child was under the influence of chloroform for less than an hour.

His health and strength were not impaired by the ordeal, and the "made to order" ear is growing into a really good looking member. Dr. Clemens is afraid that as an organ of hearing it will not be in any great degree serviceable. He thinks that the cartilaginous structure about the inner ear may have developed a tendency to ossification from having been so long kept in an unnatural condition.—New York Journal.

GIRLS IN GREAT LUCK.

They Escape From Cloudbursts, Floods and Bandits.

Misses Laura McCaw, May and Edith Thurston and Beatrice Terhune, a party of ladies from Chicago representing the publishing house of J. H. Moore & Co., have been put through their paces in swift time. They got left on Pike's peak on Monday and spent the night above the clouds and next day, after a most exciting experience, returned to the lower world. The following day they were in the stagecoach that was held up on the Cripple Creek road, but through the gallantry of the road agents escaped with their funds.

Next they were heard from in the vicinity of the cloudburst near Morrison and again came out of the escapade, while others in their neighborhood lost their lives. Later they were left alone in a Morrison hotel, when all the others had fled on account of a second cloudburst, and when they tried to escape were confronted by five feet of water on the lower hotel floor that compelled them to remain. Fortunately the hotel withstood the storm and they arrived at Denver with hope of eventually reaching Chicago if their luck does not abandon them.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Lucky Baldwin to Quit the Turf.

It is probable E. J. Baldwin will retire from the turf. His racing string this season has been a failure, and he says that unless there is improvement he will abandon racing and devote his attention to breeding.

Baldwin has raced horses for 30 years, and has been one of the most successful men on the American turf. His Santa Anita farm has produced more Derby winners than any similar establishment in the country, and many a stake race has gone to the black and Maltese cross. Santa Anita horses have five times won the American Derby and finished second twice.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE WEEK PAST.

No meeting of this year's City Council has caused so much talk as that of Monday evening, and as the main topics under consideration have not yet passed we may hear more discussion. On a moment's reflection one would be surprised to see a minority of one over-ride a majority of six but the arguments of Councilman Claflin were convincing and he did not mince matters. Any one who has business with the city officials is painfully aware of the necessity of better accommodations. They are not convenient; they are not attractive; they are very ill arranged, poorly lighted, and not ventilated. A corporation doing business of over half a million dollars annually should have better office accomodation. Nothing rich or elegant is wanted or advocated, but a rearrangement of the rooms which will give ample accommodations for many years. Now the Superintendent of the Water department has elegant quarters outside City Hall. What is to prevent the Commissioner of Public Works and other city officials from securing other quarters outside. They are entitled to just as good if not better offices than the Superintendent of the Water department. The Mayor, the Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Overseer of the Poor, and Chief of Police should have better offices, where the officials may be consulted privately without disturbing others.

Now is the time to remodel City Hall because it is a necessity. It can be done within the sum mentioned in the order and will be money well spent. It should be remodeled before some extravagant City Council conceives the idea that a new City Hall is needed and plunges the city into a debt of $100,000 or more. The amount saved in rent will pay the interest on the debt, and the convenience will be worth all that will be required to meet the maturing debt.

The other important topic at the City Council meeting was street railway affairs, which were debated at length during the hearing. The matter seemed to pivot more on "public convenience," than upon rights of the company in the premises. Arguments which one would hear at a petition for a location rather than on the order. No grants of locations were read or submitted, and they were alluded to but briefly. The City Council and Street Railway company have both erred, the former in obstructing improvements and the latter in taking liberties. The former does not excuse the latter, although it aggravates the case. The public want to see better service on the street railway, a good construction, frequent trips, low fares and through trips—and for this reason any obstructions by the City Council are unpopular.

The addition to City Hall for a police station does not seem practical or wise. Undoubtedly some day it will be necessary to enlarge City Hall, and the only feasible way is by an addition in the rear, which might extend to the railroad property. The police department has already asked for a signal service, hurry-up wagon, etc., and a stable could not be annexed to the police station as proposed. Then, the location in the depot yard is a congested one. Some other location would seem better for a police station, which must soon be provided.

Weymouth is better pleased to be in a Representative district with Braintree, and Quincy is glad that she is. A district with three Representatives is too large, and it has always been charged that Quincy voted for its candidates and Weymouth for the Weymouth men. The present apportionment is the only one which would be satisfactory.

MAY SHUT DOWN.

Quiet August is Unusually Quiet this Year in Granite Business.

The granite business as a whole is very quiet in Quincy. It is always quiet in August as far as new orders are concerned but the manufactures usually book orders enough in the previous months to keep their yards running to full capacity through the dull season, but this year this has been impossible, and unless business takes a decided start for the better, some of the yards may shut down for a few weeks. There seems to be quite a lot of work in the market but money is scarce and the uncertainty as to when they will get pay for work done causes the manufacturers to be cautious.

A. Marnock & Co., have quite a lot of orders for ordinary work.

The Nichols Granite Co. have just completed a very pretty cottage monument of medium Quincy granite, the base of which was 3 10 square.

McDonnell & Sons have recently booked orders for several good sized jobs, among which is a column die sarcophagus with an 8x5 base, a rock face sarcophagus with a 7-6x4-2 base, and one with 4-6x2 base, all of which are to be of dark Quincy stock.

Fuller, Foley & Co., report that they are booking a few orders.

Swingle & Falconer are running at full capacity. They have just increased their office help, and Mr. J. S. Smith of Chicago occupies a prominent desk as an assistant.

Biganess, LeClair & Co. have recently booked an order for a sarcophagus monument of dark Quincy granite for New York parties. The base is 8-6x5.

Burke Bros. are cutting a handsome canopy urn job for Massachusetts parties. The monument which is to be of dark Quincy stock consists of three bases, die, neck piece, cap, plinth, columns for canopy and a draped urn. The bottom base is 7-3 x 4-10 and beneath the canopy is a very handsome carved vase.

McIntosh & Sons have considerable work on hand just at present among which is an all-polished sarcophagus monument of dark Quincy for western parties, the base of which is 7x4-6. They are also providing more shed room and when completed will have 100 feet of shed.

John Thompson & Son have just completed a very handsome sarcophagus monument with a 6-6x4 base. The monument consists of a bottom base, moulded plinth, polished panel die with projecting columns which are polished with carved capitals and terminate with a frieze and cap. The monument is for western parties.

Joss Bros. Co. are quite busy and are turning out some work which is not only a credit to the firm but will serve as a lasting advertisement to their constantly increasing business.

A recent letter from S. Henry Barnicoat now in Europe says his health is very much better.

County Commissioners in Print.

The Norfolk County Commissioners feeling that they did not have a fair chance to present their side of the case in the recent Court House investigation are now issuing a pamphlet in which will be found many facts not brought out at the hearing.

Our reasons for presenting this report, say the commissioners, are as follows:

First,—Because the public press deliberately suppressed our good intentions and magnified our faults.

Second,—Because the committee, though giving the prosecution three weeks to present their case, gave us only two days for the like purpose.

Third,—Because the committee was either so prejudiced against us, or controlled by Mr. Storey, the counsel for the committee, that his argument became their report, and its foundings demand refutation.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Three More Stores.

Work has been commenced on the foundation for another business block on Hancock street near the new Kincaide block. The new block, which is to be of wood, is to be a one story building similar to that occupied by T. L. Williams. The building will have a frontage on Hancock street of about 45 feet and a depth of 60 feet. It will be finished for three stores, the dimensions of which will be 15x60 feet.

You and Your Grandfather

Are removed from each other by a span of many years. He travelled in a slow-going stage coach while you take the lighting express or the electric car. When he was sick he was treated by old fashioned methods and given old fashioned medicine, but you demand modern ideas in medicines as well as in everything else. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine of today. It is prepared by modern methods and to its preparation are brought the skill and knowledge of modern science. Hood's Sarsaparilla acts promptly upon the blood, and by making pure, rich blood it cures disease and establishes good health.

ALONG THE SHORE

Work Done for Yachting in Past Years by Ex-Commodore Faxon.

A Boston daily lately failed to give our townsman Henry M. Faxon sufficient credit for what he has done for yachting here. He commenced a mere boy to sail, and his example was taken up slowly by one and another. His success in sailing and his ability soon gained him prizes. His qualities of mind, developing from strictly business habits in other walks, kept him at yachting, improving models, working hard for the prizes that came to him. For years he captured prizes. Now his example has brought into this noble pastime a large number of contestants, and he no longer takes all the first prizes. His purchase of the Cleopatra is another step forward for him.

On Thursday night a party of Quincy youths started for Marblehead to take part in the Beverly open races of this afternoon. The dense fog soon drove them in shore. The party left again late yesterday and at ten o'clock last evening another party left, exchanging a heated ball room for the refreshing breeze that sprang up at eight o'clock. They sailed out under a deep sky with the stars points of light over head. After the unusual drain upon the system that yesterday brought, this method of getting to today's race was wise. The yachts were ready, being sailed around Thursday. Sailing "around" in Quincy means going from the moorings at "Ambrose's," as Mr. Lelois is called, down river, around Germantown point, up to the club house. Preparations for leaving had been made, and all was tight and trim, ready for starting. Our friendly electrics have done a mild expressing in conveying blankets, extra pails, boxes, dress suit, cases, cooking utensils, etc., to Houghs Neck. The conductor has kindly allowed good byes and God speeds to be said. Private teams had gone down laden with other lads and their freight, and by the time mother had sent up a petition for the safety of their lads and were asleep, the little crafts were silently sailing out across the bay for today's races.

MORE ELECTRICS.

A Quincy & Boston Extension From North Weymouth to Hingham.

Commencing Sunday a new line from Quincy to Downer Landing and Nantasket beach will be opened to the public and as it provides a pleasant and quick method of reaching these famous resorts it will immediately become popular.

The new line extends from the present line of the Quincy & Boston street railway at North Weymouth over the Hingham turnpike to the old toll bridge between Weymouth and Hingham where the Quincy & Boston line joins that of the Hingham street railway.

Upon a hot sultry night, such as that of last night, it will afford a cool and unusually pleasant ride, as the line skirts along the shore for nearly its whole length, as those who took the trial trip over the new line Friday evening can testify. While on the move a cool invigorating breeze was constantly wafted through the car.

A special car for the trial trip left Quincy at 6 50 Friday night in charge of Superintendent of Construction, Daniel McLane, and Conductor Dunn, having on board President Graham, Henry H. Faxon and a representative of the LEDGER. The run to North Weymouth was quickly made, Dr. W. A. Drake and Mr. Graham's sons being picked up en route. At North Weymouth Selectman Newton, Elias S. Beals and others were taken on board, and from here the run was quickly made to the bridge.

Arriving at Hingham bridge it was found that all that separated the two lines was a short piece of track about twenty feet long which will be laid today.

After viewing the new bridge put in by the street railway the start on the return trip was made and this provided a forcible illustration of the need of additional turnouts on the Quincy Point line.

The special car was followed by the regular car from East Weymouth which was loaded with passengers who desired to connect with a train for Boston. When Chubbuck street was reached the car had just about time enough to make the 8.15 train. The down car was not in sight and a start was made to try and make the turnout at Graham's factory.

When North street was reached the downward car which had waited its 3 minutes at the Graham turnout came in sight and as a result the upward cars were obliged to go back to Chubbuck street and the passengers lost their train. Had there been a turnout at North street this delay would not have occurred, and as this state of affairs happens every day, it is for the benefit of the travelling public that the turnouts should be put in.

The running time between Quincy and Downer Landing will be about thirty minutes while the running time between Quincy and Nantasket by the new line will be one hour.

The present running time between Quincy and Nantasket via street cars to East Weymouth and thence to Nantasket via N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., electrics is one hour and twenty minutes and it will readily be seen that twenty minutes will be saved by the new line.

Keith's New Theatre.

The great series of living pictures which are to be put on at Keith's on Monday next will be the talk of New England before the week is out. No expense has been spared to make them the greatest ever exhibited, and judging by the list of subjects already made public there is a rare treat in store for all who attend the "model playhouse" during the coming weeks. The latest and most perfect invention for projecting pictures on a screen, the Cinomtographe, will also be exhibited for the first time. This machine is noted for the steadiness of its pictures, the simplicity of its working and that it has continuous pictures. Of course the vaudeville portion of the entertainment will be of the customary high standard, and the Symphony Orchestra players will be heard in new selections.

Justice Brewer on Vermont.

Hon. David J. Brewer, associate justice of the U. S. Supreme court, is passing the summer under the shadows of the Green Mountains of Vermont, near Burlington, on the shores of Lake Champlain. He says it is the most delightfully restful place in the world and in a letter to a friend recently he described the state and its summer charms in the following characteristic way: "Although territorially one of the smaller states of the union Vermont verifies in her intellectual and moral greatness the old saying that the best things are put up in small parcels. Lying between the Connecticut river and Lake Champlain, 157 miles in length and with a width varying from 35 to 99, she has an area of only 10,212 square miles. The Green mountains run north and south through her borders as a sort of spinal column, from which ridges as ribes extend east and west towards the river and lake. Over these ridge ribs and in the valleys between is poured the rich soil, like the abundent flesh of the well formed man, while brooks and streams course as veins and arteries in every direction. Mount Mansfield toward the north lifts up the profile of a human face towards the heavens.

"From hill-tops and mountain summits eastward and westward stretch visions of beauty. There may not be the awful grandeur which arrests attention in Switzerland and the Rocky Mountains. One does not hold one's breath in mingled fear and wonder. And yet you may travel the wide world over and see no picture of such rich and quiet charm as that which the valley of Lake Champlain gives to one standing on the western slopes of the Green mountains. The lake itself is a thing of beauty. Dotted all its length with islands, many of them only large enough for a summer cottage, yet some toward the north like North Hero and Grand Isle of considerable size. West of it rise the lofty peaks of the Adirondacks, grand background to the picture. Its blue waters at the foot of those peaks bring to mind Whittier's lines on Galilee:

Blue sea of the hills—in my spirit I hear
Thy waters, Genesaret, chime on my ear.

Its shores, especially on the Vermont side, are not as abrupt and striking as those of Lake George. The earth comes near to its waters gently and lovingly.

"No one can spend a summer on the shores of that lake or on the slopes of the Green Mountains without coming to appreciate something of the strong attachment which binds every true Vermonter to his native state. It is like the love of the Swiss for his Alpine peaks and snow-girt valleys. It is a love that never fades away. Go where he may on the face of the earth the child of Vermont ever turns in memory a loving gaze on her hills and waters."

The army worm has arrived at Dedham and is doing considerable damage.

Dean Hole made a scene in Rochester cathedral on a recent Sunday. A canon whose business it was to read the first lesson omitted certain passages which he thought improper. The dean was to read the second lesson, but before beginning he solemnly read the passages omitted in the first lesson.

Ysaye, the violinist who plays like an angel and looks like a butcher, is simple in his tastes. "All I ask," said he, "is a fishline and some water. The less fish the better. I can sit for hours with a line in the water in perfect happiness. When a nibble comes, my dream is over. I also confess to a weakness for the bicycle, but care nothing for politics."

THE NOSE.

The Greek nose was straight and tolerably prominent.

Pugilists say that a blow on the nose is attended with more pain than one on any other part of the body.

The Chinese nose is of a different type from the Japanese. The Japanese big nose showed its superiority to the Chinese snub during the late war in eastern Asia.

It is said that Napoleon, when he needed a man for a sudden emergency, generally chose a soldier with a good Roman nose. He was seldom deceived in his choice of men.

Mozart had a very large, straight nose. During the last few years of his life his extreme emaciation made his nose seem much more prominent than it should have been.

All the batrachians have a communication between the nose and the mouth. They breathe through their noses, and hence a canal uniting the nose and mouth is necessary.

The olfactories of wolves are mightily tickled with the odor of asafetida, and many practical jokes, some of which had a tragic turn, have been based upon this singular fact.

Vultures do not, contrary to the common idea, detect a carcass by the smell. Vultures have been known to pass within a few feet of a body which has been hidden from their view and not detect its presence.

TIRE PUNCTURES.

A bicycle is as much trouble as a baby. —Atchison Globe.

To thoroughly enjoy bicycling one must learn to ride with one hand on the guiding bar while the other holds an umbrella.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

The supreme court of Michigan declares that bicyclists must be on the lookout for stones, human beings and other obstructions that may cause an accident.—Detroit Free Press.

There is a record of over 14,000 bicycles having been stolen thus far this year. If this thing keeps on, the average wheelman will be unable to swear that his wheel belongs to him. There was a time when horse thieves were hanged. Bicycles have taken the places of horses, but no wheel thief has yet been lynched.—Wilmington News.

THE COOKBOOK.

A sprinkling of freshly ground coffee will keep game sweet for several days.

The oil left from sardines is an excellent substitute for butter in fish balls or any kind of minced fish.

Drawn butter when served with asparagus should be flavored with lemon juice, a tablespoonful to a half pint.

The addition of a little salt to sweet foods helps to bring out the flavor, and acid things are improved by the addition of a little sugar.

Any vegetables may be used for vegetable soup, but judgment should be shown in the combination. It is well to cut the vegetables into fancy shapes with cutters or into balls with a small potato scoop.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Dainty cookery is impossible without exquisite cleanliness.

Remember slamming the door of the oven makes cake fall.

Do not use a coarse, bristle broom to sweep a carpet. It will scratch and cut the pile.

Little sticks put upon a dying fire will rekindle it, but large sticks will put the fire out.

There should be just as much conscience put into dusting a room as in managing an estate.

Non-Union Men Went Home on Foot From the Plant Factory.

Strike of Whole Factory Is Called For Today.

Ipswich Branch of the Concern Is Now Practically Tied Up.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 8.—There was another demonstration in the streets of Lynn last evening, on account of the determination of the English-speaking non-union men who have taken the places of the lockedout men in the Plant company's factory, to go to the company's boarding house on Ireson street on foot. Heretofore it has been the custom of the non-union men to be transported to their homes in a barge, under guard of the police, and last evening this practice was deviated from, and as a result, the seven non-union men, who braved the presence of the large crowd which assembled near the factory, were given anything but a pleasant reception.

Fully 2000 persons had gathered in the vicinity of the factory. A large detail of police was on hand and kept the crowd on the move, or else in vacant lots. The report that the non-union men were going to attempt reaching their boarding house on foot became known to the gathering about half an hour before the non-unionists made their appearance, closely guarded by several policemen. When they reached the junction of Broad and Washington streets the crowd surged about them, and for a time it looked as if the police would be unable to restrain the crowd from doing as it wished. When Central square was reached, and, pending the passing of a train, traffic in Central square was rendered impossible.

When they crossed the Boston and Maine tracks Deputy Marshal Nelson attempted to execute a coup by sending four of the non-union men through the depot yard to Silsbee street, and having the remaining three continue up Union street, thus dividing the crowd. The scheme did not work, for as soon as the officers lowered their clubs and turned their backs the crowd rushed up to Silsbee street, and, with the crowd that had proceeded up Union, formed a veritable blockade. The non-union men were securely guarded, and as their pursuers ran along the street hardly a word of any kind was directed toward them. When Ireson street was reached the crowd lined up on either side, while the non-union men entered the boarding house to the jeers and hoots of the crowd. The police then started to clear the streets, and in doing so found it necessary to arrest two alleged offenders.

About one hour later two other non-union men left the factory, and were escorted to their homes by union pickets.

Last evening a meeting of the employes in the factory was held in Lasters' hall, and at its conclusion the general executive board of the international union decided to order the Lynn factory on strike today. It is expected that the order will be generally complied with.

About 300 of the employes attended the meeting, which was addressed by President Tobin and Secretary Eaton of the general executive board, and Edward F. Swith of the Lynn Heelers' union. The speakers urged the need of united action in fighting the Plant company, as upon the result of the present contest depended the future of the organized shoe workers of Lynn.

Reports from Ipswich were received, showing that nearly all the emyloyes of the Plant factory in that town were on strike, and this was held up as an example for the Lynn operatives to follow. A committee appointed for the purpose will today meet the employes who were not at last night's meeting, at the factory, and inform them of the action of the general executive board. All who decline to comply with the strike order will come under the ban of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

There are many K. of L. workmen in the Plant factory, and as both organizations have been fighting for supremacy in Lynn for some time, a doubt is expressed as to whether or not the K. of L. men will come out. Representatives of the general executive board believe they will. Secretary Stevens of the Cutters' union, K. of L., states that his union will not order the K. of L. cutters out, and that if they leave their positions it will be upon their own responsibility. It is expected that all who attended last night's meeting will join in a sympathetic strike today.

Key West, Aug. 8.—It is openly declared here that Captain General Weyler has reached an understanding with the chief insurgent leaders, and that negotiations will be begun with a view to the cessation of hostilities in Cuba on terms favorable to all concerned. It is also stated here that the captain general and his department commanders have held a conference in relation to this important movement.

Murder Mystery Explained.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Aug. 8.—Robert Hooper and Mattie Johnson, whose bodies were found on the Louisville Southern track so mangled that the coroner's jury could find no evidence of foul play, were murdered, it has been discovered, by five negroes, who were playing craps at the time. A negro who witnessed the murder has told about it, and the sheriff, with a posse, has gone to arrest the negroes. Robbery was the motive.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Has But Little to Say of a Highly Encouraging Nature.

New York, Aug. 8.—Bradstreet's says: In nearly all lines trade is unchanged, and in some departments lifeless. South and southwest the heat has had unfavorable influence, but merchants in all directions continue to buy for needs only. While it is too early for fall trade to assume large proportions, distribution of clothing and shoes at Chicago has improved somewhat, although less active than one year ago. At several centers bankers have preferred not to loan as freely as heretofore. Merchants not wishing to be refused have accordingly curtailed their requests for accommodation. Mercantile collections are slow, in some instances more difficult to make. Renewed scrutiny of credits has had an effect in restricting the same.

Iron and steel industries remain excessively dull. Makers of pig are piling stock. Large lots could be obtained at concessions. Cotton yarn manufacturers have agreed to curtail production 50 per cent during August, and owing to the lack of demand western packing house employes have been laid off. There is no improvement in wool, and some Philadelphia mills have shut down.

Although reflecting mid-summer dullness, July bank clearings are larger than those for June, and, in fact, larger than for any month since January, 1896, 4.4 per cent smaller than July last year. Only one-third of the cities show gains over a year ago. Heaviest decreases are outside of New York city. Most numerous gains are in the northwest. The smallest increase is in the south.

Weaker quotations for iron and steel are followed by those for hides. Indian corn is off on the effects of the intense heat on the crop, and wheat in sympathy with it, and free sales and lack of buying demand. Other declines are for coffee and petroleum. In addition to a higher price for cotton on damage to the crop from extreme heat, prices for sugar, lard and pork are higher, the last two in sympathy with a speculative movement on those products.

The week's clearings at 77 cities during the past six business days amount to $912,000,000, 12.5 per cent more than last week, but 6.6 per cent less than in the first week of August, 1895.

Stocks of available wheat here, in Canada and afloat for Europe are 21,700,000 bushels, smaller than a year ago, 45,200,000 bushels smaller than two years ago, and 53,900,000 bushels smaller than on Aug. 1, 1893, these heavy decreases being due to the extraordinary falling off in the quality of wheat being carried in and afloat for Europe compared with like dates in years referred to. For seven months American and Canadian supplies have fallen away a little more than one-half what they did in 1895, and about two-thirds the decline in seven months of 1894.

Business failures throughout the United States this week number 269, a decrease, compared with one week ago, when the total was 294. The falling off is principally in the middle and New England states. As compared with one year ago, this week's total shows an increase of 60, and with two years ago, an increase of 72. In the first week of August, 1893, during the panic, the total number of failures was 474.

President Saved His Money.

Tucson, A. T., Aug. 8.—President John Dessart of the International bank of Nogales was the only person in the bank, when two armed men stepped into his presence at noon yesterday and demanded the money in his care. President Dessart showed fight, and fired in return, and the robbers attempted to kill him. He succeeded in holding them off till the noise of the firing brought assistance. Mr. Dessart was hit by one shot, but was not seriously wounded. The robbers escaped.

Bald Beats Cooper.

Buffalo, Aug. 8.—Eddie Bald and Tom Cooper fought it out in the mile open at Buffalo athletic field yesterday afternoon, and Bald not only won, but clipped 5 1-5 seconds off the world's record for the single mile, paced, in competition. The race was intensely exciting.

Your Watch is No Good.

"That is fighting talk," you say, but wait until we finish the sentence—if it fails to tell you the correct time.

A watch will sometimes run several years without being cleaned, but it is wearing out, and, when it finally stops, some genius who advertises "Clean your Watch for a Dollar," and whose kit of tools comprise a brush, tack hammer and a screw driver, brushes out the dirt, ignorant of the damage the watch has sustained, and your watch, once your faithful friend, can no longer be relied upon.

Think This Over

Friend, and take your watch to a place where they have every modern tool known to the trade, and work with a thinking cap on.

NEW PARTY FORMED.

Friends of Gold Standard Christen It National Democratic Party.

Call For a Convention to Name Candidates.

Claim That Chicago Convention Surrendered Principles of Democracy.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—The provisional national committee of the gold standard Democrats met at the Commercial club at 3 p. m. yesterday. Mr. Bynum called the meeting to order. He announced that General Bragg and Senator Palmer were delayed by washouts. The meeting was open to visiting Democrats, as well as to the members of the committee, and the assembly room was packed.

HON. W. D. BYNUM.

The temporary organization was continued till the evening session. In the absence of Mr. Robbins of Illinois, Mr. Ewing of Illinois was made temporary secretary. A call of the states showed 33 states represented by committeemen present.

The secretary read the resolutions adopted at the conference held in Chicago, July 23, by 10 middle western states, the object of which was to arrange for the holding of another Democratic national convention, at which an independent gold Democratic ticket should be named. J. H. Outhwaite moved that a committee of five should be at once appointed, whose duty it should be to select a time and place for the convention. There was loud cheering over this motion. Delegate Martin seconded this motion, and it was passed unanimously.

The chairman then appointed the committee, and the states were called for the location of the convention. D. W. Lawler presented the claims of Minneapolis, followed by John L. Griffiths for Indianapolis. H. M. Davis presented the claims of Louisville. The strongest speech on the locating was made by S. O. Pickens, president of the Indiana Gold Standard Democratic league. He said there were Democrats in this pivotal state who would not vote for either Bryan or McKinley, and as it had been decided to have a third ticket it would be a great help to the gold standard Democrats of Indiana, and do much to defeat the Chicago ticket and platform in this doubtful state if the convention was held in Indianapolis. This settled the location. The ballot resulted: Indianapolis, 19; Minneapolis, 6; Louisville, 2.

The Indianapolis people then celebrated their victory with invitations to luncheon at the Commercial club rooms, and announced carriages for evening drives about the city. A recess was then taken to 8 p. m.

It was 3:40 when the committee reassembled. The visitors filled the assembly room. Senator Palmer was given an ovation when he entered the hall. General Tracey nominated General John M. Palmer of Illinois for chairman of the national committee. General Palmer was selected unanimously.

General Palmer said he sympathized most earnestly in the purpose of the meeting. He would work for the preservation of the integrity and future usefulness of the Democratic party.

J. R. Wilson of Indiana was elected secretary, and J. R. Felenzeil of Indiana treasurer. Joseph H. Outhwaite, as chairman of the committee, on a call for the national convention and plan of organization, reported the following, which was repeatedly interrupted by applause in its reading, and adopted unanimously:

"To the People of the United States:

"The Democratic party, during its whole history, has been pledged to promote the liberty of the individual, the security of private rights and property and the supremacy of the law. It has always insisted upon a safe and stable money for the people's use. It has insisted upon the maintenance of the financial honor of the nation, as well as the preservation inviolate of the institutions established by the constitution. These, its principles, were abandoned by the supposed representatives of the party at a national convention recently assembled at Chicago. The Democratic party will therefore cease to exist unless it be preserved by the voluntary action of such of its members as still adhere to the fundamental principles. No majority of the members of that convention, however large, had any right or power to surrender those principles.

"When they undertook to do so, that assemblage ceased to be a Democratic convention. The action taken, the irregular proceedings and the platform enunciated by that body were, and are, so utterly and indefensibly revolutionary and constitute such radical departures from the principles of true Democracy, which should characterize a sound and patriotic administration of our country's affairs, that its results are not entitled to the confidence or support of true Democrats.

For the first time since national parties were formed, there is not before the American people a platform declaring the principles of the Democratic party as recognized and most courageously and consistently administered by Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland, nor are there nominees for the offices of President and vice president of the United States pledged to carry those principles into practical effect. The faithful and true Democrats of the United States are determined that their principles shall not be ruthlessly surrendered, nor the people be deprived of an opportunity to vote for candidates in accord therewith.

"Therefore, the National Democratic party of the United States, through its regularly constituted committee, hereby calls a natianal convention of that party, for the announcement of its platform and the nomination of candidates for the office of President and vice president of the United States, and the transaction of such business as incident thereto, to be held at Indianapolis on Wednesday, the second day of September, at 12 o'clock noon, and hereby requests that the members of the party in several states who believe in sound money and the preservation of law and order, and who are unalterably opposed to the platform adopted and candidates nominated at Chicago, will select, in such manner as to them shall seem best, a number of delegates to the same, equal to twice the number of electoral votes to which said states are respectfully entitled. Such delegates shall be duly accredited, according to the usages of the Democratic party. Their credentials shall be forwarded or delivered to the secretary of this committee with all convenient speed, and this committee will make and announce the roll of the delegates entitled to participate in the preliminary organization of the convention."

After the adoption of his report, Mr. Outhwaite moved that the names of all committeemen be appended thereto. This created much enthusiasm. The list was headed by Chairman Palmer.

Chairman Palmer was directed to appoint an executive committee of nine, who should take charge of the campaign at once and report to the general committee of the new party at a meeting to be held in Indianapolis Tuesday, Sept. 1, the day preceding the national convention.

Chairman Palmer was authorized to go outside of the membership of the national committee in selecting the nine members of the executive committee. The general committee adjourned to meet in Indianapolis on Sept. 1. A select conference was then held at Senator Palmer's room over the selection of the nine members of the executive committee.

Bryan Starts East.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 8.—The Bryan trip to the east was inaugurated at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After Mr. and Mrs. Bryan had entered the car there was a request for them to appear on the rear platform, which they did. Mr. Bryan said: "In ordinary times I would have desired to have the notification take place at my home. But this is not an ordinary campaign, and I felt that the cause should arise above any personal desires we might have, and therefore expressed the wish to be notified in New York, in order that our cause might be presented first in the heart of what now seems to be the enemy's country, but which we hope to be our country before this campaign is over. I appreciate the kindness which the neighbors have shown, and all that I can promise you is that whether I do what meets with your approval or not, I shall do my duty as I see it, and accept all consequences which may follow." As the train drew away from the station, fluttering handkerchiefs waved a parting adieu.

Epileptic Attack Made Peace.

Abilene, Kan., Aug. 8.—The Populist state convention adjourned sine die yesterday. The following nominations were accomplished: L. C. Boyle, attorney general; W. E. Rush, secretary of state; D. N. Heffenbower, treasurer; W. H. Morris, auditor; W. D. Stryker, state superintendent of publication. It has been a session of tiresome talk. There was a big fight on the re-election of State Chairman Breidenthal, which was precipitated by a motion offered by McLean, a friend of Breidenthal, that the convention proceed to the election. At this juncture a delegate was seized with an epileptic attack, and the leaders seized the opportunity to hold a peace conference. Briedenthal advised that the motion be withdrawn, and the question left for the state central committee to decide. The advice was followed, and McLean and Costigan crossed hands before the applauding convention, in token of a suspension of hostilities.

Contest of Oratorical Giants.

New York, Aug. 8.—Bourke Cockran has consented, under the auspices of the "Democratic Honest Money league," to answer William J. Bryan in the following letter of acceptance: "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and to state that I will gladly contribute anything in my power to the success of the object which the Democratic Honest Money league has been organized to promote. It will afford me great pleasure to address a mass meeting under the auspices of your association, at any date that may be selected by it."

As Watson Predicted.

Atlanta, Aug. 8.—The Populist convention fulfilled the prediction as to its action on the national ticket, made by Thomas E. Watson in his address Thursday night, by adopting unanimously a resolution presented by the platform committee, authorizing the state executive committee at any time that Arthur Sewall should be withdrawn from the Democratic ticket to withdraw six Populist electors and place six Democrats in their stead. This done, the convention adjourned sine die.

Quickly Done.

Hutchinson, Kan., Aug. 8.—A dozen men, representing the remnant of the Kansas state Democratic convention, assembled here yesterday, to perform the formal duty of nominating the state ticket selected at the Populist convention at Abilene. When the names were read from a telegram they were taken down by Secretary Pepperill and at once declared the nominees of the Democrats, without discussion or remarks. Thus was the Democratic party of the fusion agreement fully carried out.

Joint Debate on Currency.

Fryeburg, Me., Aug. 8.—Yesterday was political day at the Chautauqua assembly. E. C. Plummer spoke for the Democrats. He made a careful address in favor of the free coinage of silver. It was well received by most of his party friends. Seth L. Milliken spoke on the world's standard of money, arguing that we could maintain only that kind of currency which the great commercial nations regarded as standard money everywhere.

Fears He Would Be Elected.

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—Judge E. P. Brandin, the free silverite, has withdrawn from the state Democratic ticket, upon which he was placed as candidate for the supreme court. His reason for withdrawing is that he values his practice more than the position of judge.

A CHARGE OF MURDER

Preferred Against Luke Gibbons Because of His Wife's Death.

Said to Have Been Result of a Drunken Row.

Husband Had Previously Been Arrested For Ill-Treating Wife.

Boston, Aug. 8.—Luke Gibbons, unemployed, was arrested at his home, a tenement, 2 Appian place, East Boston, yesterday afternoon, on a charge of murdeath, already recorded inetaoisuleachp dering his wife, Abbie A. Gibbons, whose death occurred on Wednesday morning, Aug. 5, under mysterious circumstances.

It appears, from facts in possession of the police, that the woman's death was the result of a drunken row between wife and husband, on the night of Aug. 4. Two witnesses, named Gardner Nickerson and Annie Nickerson, his wife, who were present on that occasion, and who have been detained by the police, say they saw Gibbons seize the deceased woman by the neck and throw her violently over the back of a chair. Shortly after that she became sick, and died on the following morning. Dr. Kier, a local physician, examined the body and pronounced it the result of alcoholism. A son of the dead woman and stepson to the prisoner, named Prime, saw Captain Irish of police station No. 7, and demanded that a more searching examination be made of the remains.

This was done by Medical Examiner George Stedman, who made a hasty examination of the body, and found that the wrist of the left hand and two ribs had been broken. The examiner ordered the body to be removed to Undertaker Tinkham's, 20 Howard street, where it was understood an autopsy would be performed.

The arrest was made as a result of the "medical examiner's findings," so the police report states.

There is a rumor in the neighborhood that the woman died from the effects of a dose of arsenic, but neither the police nor Dr. Stedman are prepared to say anything on this matter until after the autopsy. A reporter called on Dr. Stedman, who resides at 1080 Boylston street, last night, and asked for his opinion. The doctor declined to say anything until after the autopsy.

The sergeant refused to allow the reporters access to the prisoner's cell, but he said that Gibbons came to East Boston a few days ago from Chelsea, where he was under bonds to keep the peace for ill-treatment of his wife. Her former name was Mrs. Abbie Prime.

Police Chief Deposed.

Naugatuck, Conn., Aug. 8.—As the outcome of charges preferred against George D. Hosford, which has been under consideration for the past two months, the board of burgesses last night expelled him as chief of police and suspended him from the police for 10 months, without pay. There were 14 charges preferred against him for malfeasance in office, and he was found guilty of 11. Hosford was deposed as chief about three months ago and a successor appointed, but he refused to abdicate until the matter had been tried. The charges against him included drinking after hours, accepting money, having knowledge of saloons keeping open after hours, discriminating in favor of some liquor dealers, etc.

An Alleged Firebug.

New Haven, Aug. 8.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Councilman John Morse, one of the best known men in the city. The charge is one of incendiarism. Three months ago Councilman Morse's residence was partially destroyed by fire. The suspicion of the authorities was aroused, and officers have been at work on the case. As a result Detective Cowles of New Haven arrested Mr. Morse in Ohio yesterday. As soon as extradition proceedings can be finished the prisoner will be brought to this city.

Corset Saved Her.

Hartford, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Francis McLaughlin, colored, was shot by her husband at their home on Sandford street yesterday afternoon. Four shots were fired, one bullet entering the woman's right groin and another, which undoubtedly would have proved fatal, flattened against a steel rib in her corset, the other two missing. After the shooting, McLaughlin fled. Jealousy is believed to be the cause of the attempted murder. The couple have been married scarcely more than a month.

Hartford, Aug. 8.—Since the death of Elizabeth J. Shepherd, a wealthy aged maiden lady, at her home in Wethersfield several days ago, interested parties have assiduously searched for records of her property. Yesterday her grand nephew, Charles S. Huling, of Cleveland, was awarded by finding the records and $23,000 in stocks and bonds, neatly hidden in a secret compartment of the deceased's chamber. She left property which is estimated to be worth over $80,000.

Burial of Mrs. Crampney.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 8.—The funeral of Eliza W. Crampney, the woman about whose death at Grape island there is a shroud of mystery, was held yesterday afternoon in Rowley. Rev. J. T. son, a retired clergyman, officiated. The Baptist church, where the services were held, was crowded with people, and among those present was Henry H. Mather, the Boston lawyer, who is involved in the case. The services were very simple.

One Victim Is Dead.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 8.—William A. Herrick, one of the victims of the lobster poisoning case, died at his home, 36 Esse court, yesterday afternoon. Ever since he attended the supper of the Friends f Maine he has been sick, and his condidion at times had been critical. Several of the other victims are critically sick, though so far fatal results are not imminent. An investgation will be mad , to determine the actual cause of death.

Banigan Wants His Money.

Providence, Aug. 8. — Ex-President Banigan of the United States Rubber company, yesterday, attached the Alice rubber mill at Woonsocket and the funds in the Industrial Trust company, the Hospital Trust company and the Merchants' bank here for $125,000. It is the beginning of litigation threatened for some time by Mr. Banigan, who has large claims for money loaned the company.

Fishermen Safe.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 8.—James Ring and John Powers, two of the crew of the fishing schooner Norma, who were lost off the Grand Banks in a fog, arrived here yesterday from St. John's, N. F. The men were picked up by the brigantine Dione, from Cadiz, after drifting five days in the fog. The men were sent home by the United States consul at St. John's.

Manchester Mills to Close.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 8.—The Stark corporation will close its mills Aug. 15, and will remain shut down until Sept. 7. This will throw 1650 hands out of employment. The Amoskeag will close tonight for an indefinite period. This corporation ordinarily employs 8000 hands, but has been running only about two-thirds its total complement of late.

"Worked" Knights of Pythias.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 8.—A man giving the name of C. R. Acker has been victimizing local members of the Knights of Pythias, by obtaining money under various pretences. He claims to be a member of Columbia lodge of New Orleans, but that lodge requests his arrest and detention, as they assert he is a fraud, and wish to prosecute him.

Watching Milkmen.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 8.—About a week ago State Inspector of Milk Perry visited this town and took samples of milk from several dealers. Yesterday afternoon warrants were issued and served on four dealers. They will appear in court to answer to the charge of retailing milk below the standard.

Child Run Over and Killed.

Providence, Aug. 8.—Mary Burgess, an infant daughter of John Burgess of 17 Brook street, was instantly killed by being run over by a heavy wagon yesterday afternoon. Edward Lupton, the driver of the team, was arrested upon a warrant charging him with manslaughter.

Wanted For Forgery.

Washington, Aug. 8.—A warrant has been issued by the state department for the surrender to the German authorities of Moritz Wolff, charged with forgery and the utterance of forged paper at Lissa, Prussia. Wolff was a brewer, and it is charged forged acceptance drafts, which he afterward negotiated upon his business connections to the extent of about 10,000 marks. He was held by Commissioner Lyman at New York.

Would-Be Robber Foiled.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 8.—An ineffectual attempt was made yesterday by Walter L. Chamberlain to hold up the paying teller of the Southern Savings and Trust bank to secure $5000. Chamberlain entered the bank and asked to see Cashier Perry. The cashier was out, and Chamberlain waited for him. The paying teller, Archie Hubbard, was suspicious of the stranger, and making an excuse went to the teller's appartments and secured a revolver. The stranger later walked up to Hubbard and threw a note on his desk, demanding $5000. Hubbard told the man he had no money. A struggle then ensued between the two, during which Hubbard discharged his revolver, the ball going into Chamberlain's abdomen and coming out through his hip. Chamberlain will die.

Three Verdicts In Inquest.

Atlantic City, Aug. 8.—The jury came in last night and returned three verdicts. The first, signed by all six jurymen, states the manner of death of the persons over whom the inquest was held. The second, signed by three jurymen, finds Engineer Farr, who was killed in the collision, guilty of not following the rules governing approaches to crossing, and censures the towerman, George Hauser, for not giving an express the right of way over an excursion train, and Engineer Grainer for not using greater care. The third verdict, also signed by three jurymen, expresses the opinion that the cause of the collision was the failure of Engineer Farr to give heed in time to the signals, and also declares that Towerman Hauser may have used poor judgment.

Society Man Shoots Himself.

New York, Aug. 8.—Franklin Seaman, son of Samuel H. Seaman, a wealthy retired shipowner, and himself long a leader in Brooklyn society, shot himself to death with a rifle last night. There were no witnesses to the tragedy, but the shooting is believed to have been wholly accidental. There was no apparent reason for suicide. The young man enjoyed good health, was an heir to wealth, was popular in society, was fond of sports, and had the means and leisure to gratify his taste. He had lately entered into an engagement to marry a charming and beautiful girl. The young woman, it is said, is Miss Sewall of Bath, Me., niece of the Democratic candidate for vice president.

Terrible Floods In Hungary.

Buda-Pesth, Aug. 8.—Terrible hurricanes, accompanied by disastrous hailstorms, occurred in various parts of Hungary yesterday. Many persons are known to have perished in the floods from the mountains, and it is feared that later reports will show a much greater loss of life. The damage to property all through the country districts was very heavy. In one town, which numbers about 50,000 inhabitants, and is about 50 miles southeast of Buda-Pesth, it is said tha almost every house has been injured, to a greater of less extent, and the loss is estimated at millions of florins.

No More Stock Wanted.

Boston, Aug. 8.—The Textile Manufacturers' Review and Industrial Record says this morning that "the so-called syndicate of cotton machinery builders, located in Massachusetts, which has been supplying machinery to southern mills and taking a large portion of the payments in the shares of the capital stock, will no longer furnish machinery to southern mills, except for cash or its equivalent."

Advanced Another Stage.

London, Aug. 8.—The house of lords yesterday passed the Irish land bill through the committee, after five hours' further debate. The hostility shown toward the measure was less marked than was expected. Several of the amendments offered were withdrawn. The report on the committee stage and the third reading of the bill are fixed for Monday next.

Death and disease are no respectors of persons. The young are taken as well as the old. Carelessness of health, transgression of Nature's laws, and hereditary influences are continually digging pitfalls. Apparently strong, healthy young people start downhill every day. They lose health and life just when the possibilities of life seem greatest. Some slight disorder, carelessly neglected, is reinforced by other kindred troubles. Indigestion, indicated by sourness of the stomach, flatulency, heartburn, and distress after eating, are followed by disordered liver, constipation, headaches, kidney disease, loss of appetite, nervousness, debility and loss of flesh. Loss of flesh prepares the way for the most serious consequences. Weakness from any cause is an invitation to consumption. The germs of consumption are in the air and in our food—in the water we drink. They are everywhere. But they are harmless to the perfectly healthy body. It is only when the body is weak that they do any harm. Prompt measures should be taken at the first indication of disease. When indigestion shows itself in any form it calls for the immediate use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This wonderful medicine is an invigorating tonic for the whole system. It purifies and enriches the blood and searches out the disease germs wherever they may be in the body. It builds up firm, solid, healthy, useful flesh. It strengthens the nerves, stimulates the appetite, makes digestion and nutrition perfect and brings sound, refreshing sleep. The marvelous success of this truly wonderful medicine has brought into existence scores of imitations. DYSPEPSIA DID IT

Weakened One Man's Constitution Until It Brought Him to Death's Door.

Mr. James S. Harrison, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Cleveland, O., was for years a sufferer from dyspepsia and general debility, and in his weakened condition, resulting from the above causes, he had the additional ill-luck to fall a victim to malaria from this complication of disorders. Mr. Harrison's condition was becoming very serious, when he commenced to take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. Its effects were marked and immediate. Read his letter to us. Its earnestness is apparent:

GENTLEMEN: For the benefit of all suffering from dyspepsia and general debility I beg to submit my testimonial as to the efficacy of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, as a positive cure for all the distressing complaints from which I suffered.

My system was also full of Malaria and my condition was growing very serious; I had no appetite, was losing strength and was completely broken down in health, but now my health is completely restored, and I can eat like a field laborer, without the slightest fear of any serious results.

I take great pleasure in telling the world that P. P. P. did the grand work of restoring me to my accustomed health.

Yours truly,
JAMES S. HARRISON,
Cleveland, O.

If you get up feeling tired and stupid, P. P. P. should be taken—it will make you feel well.

P. P. P. cures eczema, that torturing, itching disease of the skin and blood. If your blood is kept pure, you will not be disfigured with pimples, boils and blotches.

P. P. P. is the deadly foe and vanquisher of rheumatism. Its effects are immediate and lasting, and it not only relieves, but permanently cures.

Scrofula, which is hereditary and deep-seated in the blood can be cured by P. P. P. It is the one and only positive cure for this dread disease.

Sufferers from kidney troubles find immediate relief when they take P. P. P. as it cures all irregularities and restores to nature her proper functions.

HOUGHS NECK.

Summer Residents Not Always Consistent in Their Wants.

The wants of Houghs Neck people are many and they seem hard to satisfy. We have been given city water, a fire alarm and hose wagon and five cent fare on the electric cars, and now we are demanding electric lights, an offal wagon, that Sea street be widened, and an eight-cent transfer on the street cars. Someone must lay awake nights thinking up what they can ask for. With all these wants we do not appreciate what we have got, particularly so in regard to city water, the income does not pay the city. The local papers are expected to take up and help along these many wants but when the local fire company gives a ball or the Improvement association holds its illumination, the committee instead of patronizing Quincy go to Boston for what they want.

Three weeks more and many of the families will be wending their way toward their winter homes.

The booth keepers are not very enthusiastic this year over the illumination and do not feel as though they could afford to contribute much.

The annual race between the cape cat boats of Quincy is announced for an early date off the club house of the Quincy Yacht club. Vice-Commodore John W. Sanborn will officiate as judge and the course will be that sailed by the second class of the Quincy Yacht club.

The old steamers Metropolitan and Island Home were beached at Nut island Friday, where the machinery, etc., will be removed, after which they will be burned. The Metropolitan is a screw propellor and has been used as a freight boat between New York and New Haven, and the Island Home has for many years been a passenger boat between New Bedford and Nantucket.

Coming Our Way.

The Massachusetts Highway commission have surveyed the portion of Bridge street between Quincy bridge and Newton street at North Weymouth. Supt. of Streets Eames is to put a force of men upon the job as soon as the portion between Hingham bridge and Neck street is completed, which will be in a week or ten days.—Weymouth Gazette.

A New Daily.

Hyde Park has a daily paper, and a bright little sheet too. The newspaper field has been well covered in Hyde Park, but an enterprising town needs a daily, although the proprietor will find it will require hard work.

Muscle Oil Testimony

THE PITCHER OF THE SALEM BASE BALL CLUB SPEAKS:—

DANVERS, July 3, 1894.

Muscle Oil Co.:—

Gentlemen:—I used your Muscle Oil for a severe rupture of the tendons caused by a hitch kick. It not only relieved the pain, stiffness and soreness, but strengthened and hardened the muscles. I cheerfully recommend to all ball players and other persons in need of such a liniment. Yours respectfully,

ERNEST C. MAINS,
Pitcher of the Salem Base Ball Club.

Your druggist knows all about the wonderful magic in Muscle Oil for rheumatism and all muscular ailments.

TALK ON OLD MAIDS.

Somewhat Unusual Sermon by a New Jersey Preacher.

"Miriam, the Old Maid," was the subject of a sermon by the Rev. S. A. Sammis of the Tabernacle Baptist church of New Brunswick, N. J. Mr. Sammis is a bachelor. His remarks caused the spinsters in the front pews to beam with pleasure. The preacher said: "I have no sympathy for those wealthy girls who will go out into the woods and pick up an isolated prince or a God forsaken duke and bestow large sums of money upon them for their titles. I don't care for dukedom, princedom or any other kind of 'dom.' They find when it is too late the mistake they have made and then expect the sympathy which no one has for them."

Mr. Sammis told of the part Miriam played in the finding of Moses. He spoke of the Egyptian princess, who was, he said, an old maid, in taking the child. "If she had been one of our new women, she would have had a poodle dog with a fine coat spangled with buttons in her arms, and Moses would have stood no chance at all.

"Next," said the dominie, "we find Miriam with the children of Israel in the desert. After her triumphant song she was made a prophetess. Bad results came of it. She became ambitious. Then she became jealous of her brothers, then slanderous and was finally punished by being afflicted with leprosy. Here is a striking lesson. Give a woman too much power, and you will repent it. Universal suffrage would be an excellent thing were it not for this. If the lady of the house gets full control of domestic affairs, you will soon see her coming it over her husband in an alarming manner. Just limit her power a little and all will go on pleasantly, but give her complete control and that settles it."—New York Sun.

FAME FOR A NUN.

Second Woman to Be Decorated With the Legion of Honor Ribbon.

For years Rosa Bonheur has enjoyed the glory of being the only woman on whom has been bestowed the cross of the Legion of Honor. It was her celebrated picture, now reposing in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in this city, that brought her the decoration. Now, however, she must share the honor with another of her sex, who, though not known by her palette and brush, has nevertheless the deference and homage of the French nation.

It has just been announced that Sister Marie Chantal, a French nun, who has been superior of the hospice general of Tours since 1868, has been made chevalier in the Legion of Honor. She accompanied the French troops through the disastrous war of 1870-1 and rendered incalculably great services on the battlefield. Though her own life was constantly in danger, she directed with Christian intrepidity the ambulance brigades and was untiring in her attentions to the wounded. It was stated at the close of the war by one of the generals who accorded her such eulogistic praise as seldom befalls to mortals while in the flesh that she saved more lives than did half the medical men in the army.

And for her bravery under trying circumstances and her aid this sweet faced, black robed bride of the church has been decorated with a medal for which a Frenchman would lay down his life or go through untold suffering. For the last 28 years her services have been mainly directed toward ministering to the patients of the military hospitals.

A FATAL DRAFT.

Girl Drank From an Egg Stone and Became Petrified.

Judge Edward Marchinet of Wichita, Kan., received a message from Cleo Springs, O. T., giving an account of a peculiar death of his relative, Miss Frances Perkins, there. At Cleo Springs there are what are commonly called the "egg stones" in great abundance. These stones are probably as big as an ostrich egg, and they are hollow. In the interior of the stones there is probably a pint of very clear water. Miss Perkins broke one of the stones over a basin and then put the water in a glass. "Friends," she said to a party accompanying her, "I will now drink water that never came from heaven." And she tossed off the drink. She fell dead. The most peculiar part of the story is that the body turned into stone inside of eight hours, so that when her sister's finger ring came in contact with it it sounded as hard as marble. A. L. Perkins, her brother, buried the body near his house to prevent any one from stealing it.

Miss Perkins was 18 years old and lived formerly at St. John, Kan. Some of the stones containing the water will be sent to the Territorial college for analysis.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CLEVELAND IN MARBLE.

Life Size Bust of the President Being Completed In Italy.

A life size bust of President Cleveland, the gift of one of his admirers, is receiving the finishing touches at Carrara, Italy. It will reach here in a few weeks. Meanwhile a photograph of the bust, taken before it was quite finished, has been sent to Gray Gables, in order that the president may see how his features look when commemorated in marble.

The bust is being made from the clay model of Professor Fidardo Landi of Rome, who is a well known sculptor. Attention was attracted to his work recently by a bust of Henry Ward Beecher, which was criticised most favorably. The sculptor has never seen the president, and he has been guided entirely from descriptions and from a series of photographs made especialy to aid him.—Chicago Times.

Beware of This Catch.

There is a new "catch" going the rounds, and some of the bright boys have been bitten on it already. Some apparently enthusiastic Republican declares that he knows of a city of over 50,000 inhabitants where Bryan will not receive a single vote, and offers to back his statement with a two to one bet. When the rabid Bryanite is duly landed and the money posted, the campaign bunko steerer calmly cites Washington as the place, where, indeed, no votes will be cast for anybody, and gathers in the money.—Washington Post.

Jim Corbett's Plans.

Jim Corbett has arrived at San Francisco from Bartlett Springs and is making preparations for a trip to the east. Corbett is looking well, and is enthusiastic over his coming match with Sharkey. Corbett will do his training at Asbury Park. He said that the place of meeting and the date of his battle with the sailor would be definitely settled within the next 60 days. He has no objection to fighting in Mexico, provided he has the assurance that a proper concession is secured.—New York Sun.

Routes and Rates for Summer Tours

The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. illustrated book, "Routes and Rates for Summer Tours," published for gratuitous distribution, will be mailed to any address, upon receipt of 10 cents for postage, on application to Theo. Butterfield, General Passenger Agent, Syracuse, N. Y.

This book is exceedingly handsome and has many new features this year. It contains 100 new, beautiful half-tone illustrations of the principal scenery in the county described by the book. These pictures are faithful reproductions of actual scenes.

The book has 150 illustrations, seven very valuable maps, a list of 800 hotels and boarding houses, and routes and rates for 600 combination tours. It is the handsomest book of its character published, and describes all the country from Niagara Falls east to the Atlantic Ocean, including the St. Lawrence River, Canada, White Mountains, Green Mountains, Adirondack Mountains, and the sea-coast resorts of Maine and New England. 10t

—In one large operating room, 125 Milk street, Boston, of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, 120 young women work during the day and 15 men at night. They answer from 50,000 to 100,000 calls in 24 hours. The busiest time is from 9 to 11 A. M.

—The Dorchester Beacon says, the prospects at Norfolk Downs for an investment never looked so bright as at the present time. There is being built a nine-room school house, all of stone and brick at a cost of $40,000 which will greatly enhance the value of property.

—New York has 36 electorial votes, which in all probability, will be cast for the gold standard, as against 30 electoral votes, the total number to be thrown by the silver states, namely, Colorado, Idaho, the Dakotas, Wyoming Utah, Nevada, Washington and Montana.

A RAILROAD MYSTERY.

A Terrible Squeaking on a Track That Cannot Be Explained.

Between the 49 and 55 mile posts on the Carolina Central railroad there is a piece of track for a distance of nearly six miles that presents a singular condition that so far amounts to an inexplicable mystery.

All trains going and coming go to grinding and start a terrible squeaking when they get on this six miles of track. The noise comes from not only one car, but every locomotive, every coach and every car of whatever kind sets up a grinding as if turning a curve. The noise is something like the screeching of an ox cart that has no grease on it, and it is made by every truck on a train. The track is perfectly straight, and as there is no curve at all the cause of the grinding and squeaking has mystified the railroad people. Every effort has been made to ascertain the cause of the difficulty. The locomotives have been scrutinized, every cross tie and every rail has been inspected, every joint has been looked at, and every foot of the track has been regauged; but no explanation could be found. The section master has almost crawled over the six miles on his knees in search of the cause. The roadmaster has tried his best to ferret out the matter, and the superintendent has been over the track and inspected it—all of them making repeated efforts time and again to find out what is the matter—but they have given it up as a bad job. They have not only not been able to discover the cause of the noise, but have been unable to discover any theory to explain the mystery.

It is one of the railroad mysteries of the age, and has been going on for 20 years. During that time the cross ties and rails have been replaced several times with new ones, but without effect.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE NEW DOLLAR BILL.

It Misspells a Common Word and Misrepresents Columbia.

The new $1 silver certificates turned out from the treasury a few days ago have been severely criticised by artists and others because of their alleged lack of beauty both in workmanship and design. A writer in the Washington Times, however, has discovered a serious fault, amounting to a blunder, not heretofore noticed. In the quotation from the constitution of the United States, engrossed on a scroll for the edification of youth, the word "tranquility" is spelled with one l, but in all the standard dictionaries and in all the reprints extant of the constitution the word is spelled with two l's. It is curious that such a mistake as this could have been made, as all of the engrosser's and designer's work must have been inspected by the higher officials of the treasury department.

The Times reporter also calls the attention of the public to the fact that if the work of the engrosser on the new certificate is to be accepted as correct Miss Columbia must go down to history and fame as a left handed maiden. In the engrossing she is shown with her right arm about the form of the vigorous and manly figure representing youth and with her left arm extended, with index finger pointing to the constitution. The new certificates have been declared to be inartistic by the æsthetic portion of the public, and will now probably be condemned by defendants of our American type of physiology and anatomy.

FAITH CURE REVERSED.

Boy Dying of an Imaginary Attack of Hydrophobia.

Walter Platt, the 11-year-old son of B. J. Platt, a farmer of Woodbury county, Ia., is dying from what physicians pronounce a purely imaginary case of hydrophobia.

While playing with a pet dog three weeks ago the boy was bitten on the hand. The wound was not serious, and nothing was thought of it until a day or two ago, when the child related his experience to an older companion. To frighten him the latter gave a graphic account of a case of hydrophobia of which he had been reading and predicted that young Platt would soon be a victim of the same disease. The child, terrified, hurried home, and symptoms of the disease immediately began to manifest themselves. The physician found the dog to be perfectly healthy. The boy is attacked at short intervals with violent convulsions, during which he barks, froths at the mouth and snaps at whoever approaches him. He is unable to touch water or even to bear a breath of air upon his body.

A consultation of physicians has been held, and all agree that no cause exists for the disease other than the imagination of the sufferer. It is impossible to convince him of the fact, however, and his life is despaired of.—New York World.

SCHWEINFURTH MOVES.

The Bogus Messiah Takes His Outfit to California.

It is related by several of those who have recently deserted the so called "heaven" at Rockford, Ills., that George Jacob Schweinfurth has left Mount Zion for good and all, with the intention of locating on property in California. He left the settlement a month ago, and it was said he would return shortly, but not only has he not come back, but several of the favorites among his followers have joined him—Mrs. A. I. Tuttle and her two celebrated children, claimed to be born of the Holy Ghost, Miss Schweinfurth, said to be the leader of the Church Triumph; Albert Tefft, the general factotum and valet, and two private watchmen of the bogus Christ. Sadie Freeman, one of the "angels," has purchased a location 25 miles south of Los Angeles which it is said will be the seat of the colony.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Bride His Legacy.

Without having seen his bride before the wedding day Harlen L. Livengood of Peru, Ind., married Miss Anna Cossaboon of Alton, Ills., the other night.

Miss Cossaboon was affianced to a young man at Peru who was recently killed in a railroad accident. Livengood was the dead man's friend, and wrote to his chum's fiancee the story of the accident. A correspondence resulted, which finally developed into a love match, and Livengood went to Alton and personally met his bride elect. The wedding followed.

A Goldbug In Earnest.

F. A. Reynolds of Arcadia, Neb., is a warm advocate of the gold standard and wears gold coins for buttons. He attracts attention on the street, for he is a walking goldbug. He has a couple hundred dollars' worth of gold on his coat and vest. For coat buttons he has four $20 goldpieces. His five vest buttons are $10 goldpieces, and he wears $5 goldpieces for buttons on his coat sleeves. His scarfpin is made of a $5 goldpiece and a 50 cent goldpiece.—Philadelphia Press.

Taunton Police Have Supposed Murderer of Fred Strange.

Willis' Cave Had "All the Comforts of Home."

Filled With Goods Stolen at Many Different Times and Places.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 10.—When Herbert Willis, aged 19, was arrested in this city Saturday morning it was on the charge of breaking at Dawson's Providence store, more than for connection with any other case. However, suspicion had been directed against him as the possible murderer of Frederick N. Strange, who was shot by a masked man at the corner of Winthrop and Highlands streets, on the evening of June 22.

The suspicion had arisen, perhaps, as much from the general appearance of the man as from any other circumstance. Of all the bicycles which have been discovered, and of all parts of bicycles in the young man's dens, none have yet been found to correspond with the description of the Cleveland racing wheel stolen from Irven M. Lincoln by the man who shot Strange. The suspicion of the police, then, was upon general principles. Since the arrest, however, the suspicions have grown almost to the point of conviction on the part of the authorities that Willis fired the shot which took young Strange's life. Irven Lincoln was the only witness present with Strange at the time of the shooting. He was given a chance to listen to Willis while the latter was making his confession Saturday afternoon, and he at once declared the voice to be the same, or wonderfully similar, to the one which had said: "Change wheels with me," on that fatal night.

Mr. Lincoln was not brought face to face with Willis Saturday. The description which he gave of the general appearance of the masked man who stole his wheel, and shot Strange, however, corresponds very closely with Willis' specifications. On the night of the shooting, the murderer turned from the corners into Highland street, and the next morning his wheel tracks were traced to Fisher street, and there they were lost. Last evening, acting on information received from Joseph Thorpe, a farmer living on Fisher street, the police went to the woods near Thorpe's house, just across Three Mile river, and located a cave, about quarter of a mile back from the street, near the river banks. Information had been given the police previously that Willis had a den in the neighborhood, and witnesses have been found who say that he was seen to drive up into that comparatively backwoods section, sometimes two or three times a day, for the week preceding his arrest.

The cave had been discovered accidentally, the farmer coming upon it while looking for a cow in the woods. When the police reached the place, the fine artistic hand of Willis was to be seen in every detail of the arrangements. The cave was perhaps six feet deep and 12 feet square. The roof had been formed by laying boards, stolen by the way, from the fair grounds fence, half a mile away, and was covered with leaves, so as to render discovery impossible, except by accident. The officers cleared away the litter and lifted the trap door.

The first thing to meet their gaze was a pair of bicycles. These were landed outside and were at once identified. One was the Stearns, stolen from Fred Reed at North Dighton, and the other was a wheel which had been taken from a curbstone in Providence some time ago. The cave itself displayed a homelike interior. There was a bunk and blankets and pillows, and beside it lay two loaded revolvers, one on each side, where they could be snatched up instantly by a person lying down. The cave was almost filled with goods, which the police have been busy identifying as property stolen from stores in this vicinity. Canned and bottled goods, groceries, cigars, shoes, firearms, knives, dime novels and the like were removed to the extent of an express wagon load.

The murderer of Fred Strange turned into the street leading to this cave on the night of the shooting, and the tracks of the wheels were traced almost to the edge of the woods. So confident are the police that they have locked up the murderer, as well as the highwayman, burglar and thug, that a complaint was drawn up yesterday afternoon charging him with the murder, and he will be arraigned on that charge.

Willis passed a pleasant, though sultry day yesterday, disposing of a hearty chicken dinner at noon. The cave was viewed by hundreds of curious visitors. The plunder has been all removed, but the ingenious arrangements for comfort still remain. The river near the cave was dragged yesterday for Irven Lincoln's wheel, on which Strange's murderer escaped, but nothing of interest was found.

It is reported this morning that Willis, yesterday afternoon, confessed to Chief of Police Cash and two others that he fired the fatal shot, besides being responsible for a score of criminal offenses, which have kept the police of two states on the move for the past two months.

Found Escape Easy.

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 10.—Just before sunset last night, 24 boys made a break for freedom from the yard at the state industrial school. The inmates of the school had supper at about 5:30, and then the boys were allowed to go out in the yard. There was only one keeper in charge of the boys, J. A. Williams. The fence which surrounds the playground is not of a very strong character, being intended more as a boundary to limit the area over which the boys may roam, than as a barrier. A little after 6 o'clock Mr. Williams was startled by a sound of breaking of wood on one side of the yard, and saw the boys break through the fence and rush for the woods behind the buildings. The alarm was given, and Superintendent Ray and his men started in pursuit of the runaways. The search was kept up through the night, and eight have been captured.

Over $100,000 Pledged.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 10.—All records of camp meeting collections were broken here yesterday, when Rev. Dr. A. B. Simpson of New York, the Christian Alliance leader, raised $101,324 for foreign missions. Gold and silver, greenbacks, pocket-pieces, gold watches, bicycles, gold rings, diamonds, rubies, opals, heirlooms, a piano, corporation stock and a homestead were included among the contributions. It was a sensational climax to the fortnight's meetings held here under the Christian Alliance auspices. There were 10,000 people present at the forenoon service, and a total attendance of about 30,000 at the 11 meetings that were crowded into the day and evening.

A Lively Street Episode.

Boston, Aug. 10.—A colored man named William Jackson was complained of yesterday by a woman who gave her name as Annie Williams, as threatening her life. A warrant was issued, and an officer started out to find Jackson. He met the colored man on Tremont street, but the latter pulled out a razor and defied the policeman. The officer fired two shots in the air with the hope of intimidating the man, but the latter closed in on him, and for a few minutes there was a lively fight between the two. Jackson, however, when the crowd began to gather, ran into a neighboring house, and going out the back way, escaped.

Cellar For a Grave.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 10. — Lenora Veksvewska, a Pole, 21 years of age, and unmarried, was arrested yesterday on the charge of killing her newly born babe. It appears that she gave birth to the infant Saturday noon, and Jacob Brackenwak, a lodger in the house, on going into the cellar Saturday night discovered her in the act of burying the child. He took the child away from the mother, and upon finding it dead sent for an undertaker. The latter notified the medical examiner, who, after making the autopsy, ordered the arrest of the woman, but refused to make known the result of his labors.

Young Robber Shot.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Three young South Boston toughts held up a man on Broadway at an early hour Sunday morning, and tried to rob him. A policeman, hearing the cries, ran to the assistance of the man, and the three toughs took to their heels. One of them, Daniel Kelley, was not as fleet-footed as the rest, and the officer kept him in sight. Kelley, however, refused to stop, and the officer fired a shot after him. The bullet hit Kelley in the back of the head, and he dropped. At the hospital the bullet was found beneath the skin of the head, and the injured man will probably recover.

The Crampney Case

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 10.—Medical Examiner Hurd says, as to the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Eliza Crampney, who died suddenly at a house on Grape Island, last Wednesday, that he is becoming of the opinion that there was no real cause for suspecting foul play, although the actions of Mr. Mather in abandoning the woman were singular. "The examination of the woman's internal organs," he said, "indicated that death was probably due to alcoholism, a nervous shock which she received by the fall at the hotel being a possible factor in the case."

A Deliberate Suicide.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Hattie Simmons, 17 years old, a domestic living in the family of Wolff Levy, 34 Wall street, committed suicide last night by taking gas. She had been despondent for some weeks over some unknown cause. The girl was found on the bed, while attached to the gas jet was a long pipe, the end of which was in the mouth of the victim. The gas was turned on, and it is probable that death was painless.

Victim of Footpads.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 10.—John Sullivan, while on his way home to Groveland, late Saturday night, was held up by three men on the outskirts of this city, and robbed of a gold watch and chain, besides $12 in cash. Sullivan fought the men desperately, but was overpowered after receiving numerous bruises. There is no clew to the highwaymen.

Turf Records Lowered.

Medford, Mass., Aug. 10.—Two new world's records for half-mile tracks were made Saturday at Combination park. One at the trot, the other at the pace. Joe Patchen, 2:04, holder of half-mile track records at 2:08, placed the mark at 2:05¼. Cephas, 2:11¼, equalled his own record and made a new record for half-mile tracks at the diagonal gait.

FORMALITY OF TRIAL

Waived In the Cases of Three Murderers In a Louisiana Town.

Taken From Jail and Hanged by a Mob.

Brought Along Their Axes and Made Short Work of Jail Doors.

Hahnville, La., Aug. 10.—There was a triple lynching in this town just before 12 o'clock Saturday night, and yesterday morning the bodies of three Italian murderers were found swinging from the rafters of a shed near the courthouse. One of the men is Lorenzo Saladino, who assassinated Jules Gueymard at Freetown last Tuesday night, and the two others were Decino Sorcoro and Angelo Marcuso, who murdered an old Spaniard on the Ashton plantation, near Bouttes station, some time ago.

Ever since the murder of Gueymard, this parish has been at fever heat of excitement over the affair, and even the first night after the murder it was with great difficulty that Sheriff Oery prevented the lynching of Saladino. He spirited him away in the woods, and kept him there over night, and then the next day took him to the new jail in Hahnville. In the meantime the evidence grew against Saladino and the feeling grew correspondingly intense. About 11:30 o'clock Saturday night the mob which had concentrated on the outskirts of the town began to move on the jail. They captured the old negro guard, and by the vigorous use of axes, with which they were well supplied, soon demolished the doors of the jail, and took the prisoners out and executed them.

Lorenzo Saladino was charged with the murder of Jules Gueymard, one of the prominent planters and merchants of this section. The murder occurred on Tuesday night, at Freetown, in St. Charles' parish, just a short distance from the river bank. Mr. Gueymard was on the gallery with several friends playing cards, while awaiting the arrival of a boat with some freight.

When the whistle of the boat blew, Mr. Gueymard arose to go, and as soon as he was a few feet away from his party a shot was fired. It was from a shotgun loaded with all sorts of missiles, and the load struck him full in the throat, almost tearing his head from his body, killing him instantly, besides wounding Robert Espenard. Search for the murderer was made, but he was not found. The shot was fired from behind a tree, at the edge of the road, and the assassin escaped through the thick growth.

Suspicion pointed to the Sicilian, who bears a bad character. He had threatened Mr. Gueymard's life because the latter testified against him in a suit brought because Saladino endeavored to defraud New Orleans creditors. A visit to his house revealed the shotgun, which he said had not been fired in six months. One barrel was found freshly discharged. While he was not told of the charge against him, he disclaimed the killing. Later on, an old Italian woman, arrested at his place, confessed that Saladino, when he returned home that night, said: "I got him."

The crime for which the other two Italians besides Saladino were hung was the wanton and cowardly murder of an old Spaniard on the Ashton plantation, near Boutte station. The incentive to the crime in this case was that the old Spaniard was their rival in the business of gathering moss. They had frequently threatened his life.

For Use In Fuller Case.

Halifax, Aug. 10.—An order has been given a carver of this place to make wooden figures representing the bodies of Captain and Mrs. Nash and Mate Blamberg. Cuts and gashes on all three bodies will be reproduced, showing the cuts on Mrs. Nash's face and breast, as well as marking how the fingers were almost severed from her hand, gashes, etc., found on the captain's and mate's bodies being made, and marks set out with red ink. These will be used in evidence as descriptive of how the victims were butchered on board the Herbert Fuller, and will help the jury in understanding the state of affairs when they were first exposed to view.

Awful Carnage In Crete.

Athens, Aug. 10.—At Anapolis Pediada, near Heraklion, in the Island of Crete, on Saturday, 1000 armed Mussulmans butchered 30 unarmed Christians in the precinct of the St. John monastery. Several priests and women and children were among the victims. One woman was slaughtered after seeing her children and her husband butchered on her knees. Several churches were desecrated, and a priest named Jeremia had his ears and nose severed from his head, and was then burned alive on a pyre of sacred pictures.

Rebels Severely Punished.

London, Aug. 10.—Earl Grey, the administrator of the British South Africa company, has telegraphed the government from Puluwayo that Colonel Alderson attacked, on Aug. 3, and carried at the point of the bayonet, Makonils kraal. He killed 200 rebels and captured a large quantity of cattle and sheep. Alderson had three of his force killed and several wounded. Earl Grey notifies the government that this victory completes the opening of the Salisbury and Umtali road.

A Slight Fire.

There was quite a little excitement at The Greenleaf shortly before 7 o'clock this morning caused by one of the rooms filling with smoke. Landlord Hayden instead of pulling in the fire alarm and causing a commotion, telephoned to the Chief Engineer, who responded with the Combination. After some difficulty the fire was located in a chimney leading from the laundry, and extinguished without any loss except in one room, by smoke alone.

Shoe Manufactory Closed.

The employes at the shoe manufactory of John R. Graham & Co. went out Saturday night, having refused to accept a reduction of 10 per cent.

Saturday morning the men were informed that owing to the conditions of business the firm had not been able to realize over one per cent, and unless the men would consent to a reduction the factory would have to be closed but if they would accept, work would be continued. The men however decided not to accept the reduction, and as a result the factory is closed.

Mr. Graham has carried on business as a shoe manufacturer for thirty years and this is the first labor trouble he has ever had.

Hot! Hotter!! Hottest!!!

We are having unusually hot weather this season, both day and night. Not only one or two days at a time, but for a long spell.

It was so hot yesterday that it was very uncomfortable everywhere; even in a shady nook.

The Herald said that they were able to get along in Boston without fur coats.

There was a big rush for the beaches; the street cars went loaded all day; and thousands were out on their bicycles.

The heat has not only been oppressive in New England but has been terrible in the Middle and Western states. The dead roll in New York, Chicago, and other cities has been very large.

The Heat, Sunday.

The continued heat yesterday affected the heads of our usually accommodating motor men and conductors.

Two patrons, an old resident and a stranger reported the trial of waving of hats and handkerchiefs, and voice added, while two electric cars on Washington street saw them and went by. A third car, they stopped.

Our friends overcome with exertion interviewed Supt. Weeks, and asked him if he was responsible for this seeming neglect. Mr. Weeks said he did not know what the men on the road were doing.

The day was more cruel to horses than any this season. More than half of the teams to Houghs Neck were drawn by skinny tired horses. In most of these cases single teams contained from three to five people, while two-seated ones contained from six to nine grown persons and children. We counted eleven men in one wagon drawn by one poor horse.

We scarcely saw a single team with two, or a double one with four occupants. Many of the horses could hardly get along, and for an hour or two at night it was pitiful to see horses drag along. Many of which had done their week's work and were entitled to their Sunday rest. Such swarms of people sought the cool retreat of the beach, that great cruelty was inflicted upon the animals.

In one instance a fond father had a dear little baby boy on the front of his wheel, whose feet unsupported hung, dangling with every turn of the wheel; his little legs getting too much of the motion.

☞ All kinds of jobbing done cheaply, for cash, by NELSON HERSEY. His job wagon can be found every morning, between 7 and 8 o'clock, corner of Hancock and Granite streets,—near the town pump. tf

WOLLASTON BICYCLE RACES.

Witnessed by a Large Crowd—Several Accidents.

There was a large crowd of interesting spectators at Wollaston, Saturday, to witness the ten mile handicap road race, held under the auspices of several young men of that place.

The course was three times over the following route. Starting from Newport avenue over Beale street, to Adams street, to Newport avenue, to the starting point.

There were eighteen entries to the race, fifteen of whom started, and ten finished, and as there were several good riders among the contestants the race was quite exciting.

A. L. King, one of the three minute men met with an accident at the start and had a narrow escape from serious injury. As he rounded the corner of Newport avenue into Beale street he had a little too much speed and as a result he brought up against the curbing near the hotel. He was thrown head first onto the sidewalk his head just clearing the telegraph pole. He was but slightly injured but his wheel was badly smashed.

The second accident of the race occurred in nearly the same spot and that the man who caused it was not killed was a wonder. Among the crowd at this point was William Dickey of South Quincy. Dickey had a friend in the race and as his friend rounded the corner in the centre of a bunch of riders, for some reason best known to himself, Dickey rushed out hat in hand directly in front of the riders.

In an instant there was a confused mass of bicycles and riders piled in a heap, with Dickey at the bottom. When the wreck was cleared Dickey's face was badly scratched, his stiff hat smashed in and his clothing covered with dust and dirt, but otherwise he was apparently uninjured. He refused to tell why he rushed out as he did, but the impression was that he intended to cheer his friend but got too near.

R. W. Badger won the first prize, a gold medal, and H. S. Wessell the time prize, a revolver. There were also a number of other prizes so that every man who finished will get a prize.

The riders finished in the following order:

Rider,	handicap. m.s.	actual time. m s.
R. W. Badger,	3 00	29 45

NEW POLICE STATION.

A Few Facts About the Present Quarters Under City Hall.

A meeting of the City Council will be held tonight, at which time the order for remodelling City Hall and building a new police station will probably be taken from the table and put on its final passage. The order should pass if for no other reason than to give the city a new police station. The present police quarters under City Hall are a disgrace to any city with a population as large as that of Quincy. There are but six cells and in these six cells fifteen prisoners were confined on a recent Saturday night.

It is a wonder that the Board of Health has not condemned it long ago, for the stench that arises from it is very perceptible in their room, which is directly over the station, and so strong was this stench one day recently that it overcame one of the young lady clerks.

Then again when it becomes necessary to fumigate in the station, which is almost every day, the vermin are driven upstairs into the offices, and their presence makes it anything but pleasant for those who transact the business of the city in these rooms.

The floor of the police station is but two inches from the ground, and it is, consequently, very damp, and several officials who have been obliged to remain in the station for any length of time have caught severe colds and malaria, which has nearly ended their existence, and for their health, if not for the poor unfortunates who are confined there, there thould be a new police station.

FOUND IN QUINCY.

A Missing Girl From Boston Located in This City.

Boston officers visited Quincy last Friday afternoon in search of a young girl who had run away from one of the public institutions in Boston. It seems the girl whose parents lived in Harrison Square, was unruly and being unable to do anything with her she was placed in a home from which she escaped and joined a travelling troup, which was recently exhibiting at South Quincy. When the concern failed up the girl and a companion were taken in charge by parties at Quincy Centre, with whom they have been stopping and from whom the Boston officers took her last Friday. During their stay in Quincy the girls have been almost constantly on the street, especially at night, making a nuisance of themselves. It is understood that the Boston officers are also desirous of finding the young man who had frequently been seen in the girl's company, but he has thus far succeeded in eluding them.

Miss Mary Kent and Mrs. James Tower of Newton, sisters of Mrs. John A. Pratt, have been spending the past week with friends in this city.

Dennis Ford, a well-known resident of Ward Two, died at his residence on Sumner street, Sunday, after a brief illness. He was 68 years of age and leaves a widow.

Mrs. N. B. Furnald, Mrs. Joseph M. Glover, Mrs. John A. Pratt, Mrs. James Tower, Mrs. Justin Hardwick and Miss Mary Kent, had an outing at Anderson's, Fort Point, on Friday last.

Work was suspended in nearly all the stone yards and quarries this morning on account of the oppressive heat. The farmers, too, are taking life easy, and many a hay cock will remain undisturted today.

State officers Proctor and Delano paid a visit to Quincy bay one day recently and overhauled Jose Alberto, a Nut Island lobsterman, of whom they purchased eight short lobsters. The officers then procured a warrant upon which Alberto was arraigned in court this morning and paid $40.

THE HOSPITAL FETE.

The Dates Changed to Sept. 16, 17 and 18 at Merry Mount Park.

A meeting of the general committee who have the coming annual fete of the City Hospital in charge was held in the council chamber at City Hall, Saturday evening.

Herbert M. Federhen presided and after the reading of the records of the previous meeting the executive committee made its report which was to the effect that the dates of holding the fete be changed to Sept. 16, 17 and 18, and that it be held at Merry Mount park.

This report was accepted and adopted.

Hon. William B. Rice, for the committee, stated that the committee on amusements desired that the various societies and organizations should decide as early as possible what they would do toward the attractions at the fair and report that the committee might lay out its programme.

Continuing Mr. Rice said the trustees were dissappointed in the amount appropriated by the city and that the Hospital was considerably in debt and this year it was desired to raise $10,000 at the fete, and he believed it possibly to raise that amount.

The holding of this fete was a good thing for the city if no money was made, as it brought the people together. He urged all of the citizens to organize in their sections and work to have the affair a grand success.

There was then some informal talk on the place selected. Mr. Henry H. Faxon was for holding it at Lovell's grove, but the vote was not reconsidered.

Upon motion of Mr. T. King the chairmen of the several committees were added to the executive committee.

Sweet Peas.

People who admire beautiful flowers should call at the residence of N. B. Furnald, on Washington street, and feast their eyes upon his display of sweet peas, of which he has a row some twenty feet in length, that are over eight feet tall, the tops of which are one mass of blossoms whose fragrant odor can be detected some distance away.

—The tax rate of Abington is $22 60. About high enough.

Base Ball.

The T. R. & S. Co.'s nine lost the game to the Neponsets, Saturday afternoon, 14 to 11. The T. R. & S. Co.'s nine were strengthened by the addition of H. Faircloth, J. Faircloth and Canfield, but lost the game by having no pitcher. Stevens their short stop having to go into the box.

The batting on both sides was very heavy, Stevens and Mahoney leading for T. R. & S. Co. and H. Raymond for the visitors. Two fine catches in the field by Martell and Nicholson shut off several runs from T. R. & S. Company.

Next Saturday the T. R. & S. Co. play the Medfords at the Park and the following Saturday go to Hyde Park.

—Lodz, in western Poland, which is now called the Polish Manchester, has grown in the last ten years from a town of 50,000 inhabitants to one of 300,000. They are nearly all engaged in cotton spinning. The growth of the place is ascribed to the prohibitive Russian duties, which compel foreign traders to set up their mills within the Russian boundary.

Swithin Bros., Room 12, Durgin & Merrill's Block.

A SCRUB RACE.

The Cape Cats Have Their Annual.

The annual race between the Cape cat boats, has been held, no matter when, off Houghs Neck, the course being that sailed by the second class of the Quincy Yacht Club. Charles F. Colby officiated as judge and their were eight entries, but five only put in an appearance, the Myth, Restless, Hestor, Thisbe and Dorothy.

The wind was fresh from the southwest and the start was at 11 05 and the boats were well bunched and crossed the line nearly together. The Dorothy rounded Sheep Island buoy first closely followed by the Restless and Myth.

Shortly after rounding, the Myth parted her throat halliards and withdrew. On the windward work the old time racer, Thisbe, pulled away from the bunch and took the lead which she held until the finish.

After rounding Jacknife ledge buoy the Restless started the step of her mast and withdrew.

The last seen of the Hestor was off Sheep Island and it is not known whether she has finished yet or not.

The Thisbe developed considerable speed and with a new sail would give some of the racers a hustle. The summary:

	Start.	Finish.
Thisbe, J. Robbins,	11 05	12 38 45
Dorothy, F. F. Crane,	11 05	12 34 40
Myth, J. W. Nightingale,	withdrew.
Restless, E. W. Newcomb,	withdrew.
Hestor, Herbert Holmes,	withdrew.

TODAY'S COURT.

As usual on Monday morning there was considerable business at the District Court, as will be seen by the following report:

Edward Dwyer was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Saturday.

John Haley was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Daniel Cronin was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Constant Hermanson was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Quincy and was fined $10.

Timothy Bowler was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy. Bowler was also arraigned on a default warrant issued in June, 1895, when the complaint was disturbing the peace. He was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

Patrick Fitzpatrick was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Saturday.

Gerald Kiley was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph and was sentenced to thirty days at the House of Correction.

Michael Proctor was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Daniel J. O'Connell for drunkenness was called and he was defaulted.

Joseph Alberto was fined $40 for having in his possession eight short lobsters at Quincy.

Ginianni Dellamolle, Bonano Meates Longo Barde were fined $5 each for disturbing the peace at Randolph.

MONTANA BOYCOTT.

A Mining King is Said to Have Subscribed $200,000.

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 8.—The free silver fervor has manifested itself in its most violent form in this state since the Chicago convention, and life-long republicans in these mining centers find it imprudent and even unsafe to openly advocate the election of McKinly, while sound money Democrats are compelled to maintaine silence as to their convictions.

In the stock-growing counties the sound money men in both parties are more numerous and are allowed to express their opinions freely, but let the merchants in Butte or Helena, who trade with the mining camps, beware. The boycott is enforced against them, they get threatening letters and personal insults heaped upon them, if they do not bow down to the 53 cent silver idol.

Boycotting resolutions are being adopted by labor organizations in different parts of the State against gold bugs in business.

It is understood here that W. A. Clark, the mining king and banker, has subscribed $200,000 to the Bryan campaign fund, and it is expected that other mine owners will swell the amount $500,000. A like sum is to be raised in Idaho and in Colorado.

With the free and unlimited coinage of silver, the contributors to the fund would get their money back in a month. Montana's silver output alone would bring the mine owners of this state an additional profit of at least $20,000,000 a year, the bulk of which would go into the swollen pockets of less than 100 silver barons.

Thanks, Kind Friends.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Will you kindly allow me, through the columns of your paper, to thank the friends who have so unexpectedly contributed towards my new chair, which has just been completed.

To Mr. Frank Field and Mr. M. Minchin I return my sincere thanks for their efforts in my behalf, and to all who responded so generously to their solicitations. To Mr. L. Myers of Payne's hill, whose skill and ingenuity enabled him to see wherein he could make a chair many pounds lighter, much faster in movement, and much easier to propel; all of which he has successfully accomplished to my great satisfaction. And last, but not least, to Mr. Frank Holmes for the tasty sign which he painted for me, which shows to all that they can have their razors honed, scissors and knives sharpened, and saws filed; all of which has been made possible for me to do by the kindness of friends in the past and present. Thanking you all once again, I am

Yours most sincerely,

Passengers All Saved.

Monterey, Cal., Aug. 10.—The Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer St. Paul went ashore at Point Pinos yesterday morning, and will probably be a total wreck. There were about 50 passengers on board, but all were landed safely, and no lives were lost. There was a dense fog at the time, and it is supposed the captain lost his bearings. The St. Paul ran between San Francisco and San Pedro, carrying freight and passengers, and was on her way up from San Pedro at the time of the wreck.

A Failure.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—The observation of the sun's total eclipse, visible in northern Europe, northern Asia and Japan, and for which elaborate preparations had been made, has proved a failure, both at Vadso, on the west coast of Nova Zembla and at St. Petersburg, owing to the clouds. Sir Robert Ball of Cambridge conducted the observations at Vadso.

HE SCENTS WAR.

Spanish Statesman Who Thinks America's Friendship Is a Sham.

Madrid, Aug. 10.—Senor Sagasta, the well known Liberal leader, in an interview on the Spanish outlook, said that he feared, like Senor Conovas, the premier, a conflict with the United States. He believed, he said, that a Franco-Spanish alliance was impossible, because France was already allied with Russia, who was the friend of the American and English policy, and that German commercial interests would militate against an alliance between Spain and either of those powers.

In Senor Sagasta's opinion, President Cleveland's proclamation, calling upon citizens of the United States to observe the neutrality laws, was a clever move to alleviate European sympathy from Spain. Senor Sagasta believes that it is imperative for Spain to issue a loan in order to purchase men-of-war. Senor Sagasta said further that he considers the government's financial plans opposed to the public interest, but that circumstances will probably compel their adoption.

Three Killed In Trolley Accident.

Columbia, Pa., Aug. 10.—Three persons were instantly killed and 15 injured, some fatally, by the derailing of a trolley car on the Columbia and Doneghal electric road last night. The place where the accident occurred is at the base of a steep incline, alongside of which runs a high embankment. Once on the incline the car began to slip, owing to wet tracks. The motorman applied the brakes, and at that moment the gear wheel broke, rendering the brakes useless. The car dashed along at a terrific rate of speed, while within the terror-stricken passengers were stupefied with fear. The car, on reaching the bottom, took a sharp turn and was thrown up against the embankment.

American Silver Not Wanted.

Toronto, Aug. 10.—The Standard bank has given notice that hereafter American $1 bills or silver certificates will be discounted at the rate of 10 per cent. The other city banks will adopt the Standard's methods. The regulations will be a great inconvenience in Toronto, especially where there is a large amount of United States money. Other parts of Canada will also suffer.

A Gift of $45,000.

Trenton, Aug. 10.—Daniel Morris of Atlantic City has presented $45,000 to Bishop McFaul of this diocese, for the purpose of erecting an orphan asylum and industrial school for boys. The plans have been drawn and the contract awarded. The asylum and school is to be at Hopewell, 12 miles from Trenton, on a farm of 180 acres.

Love's Mission Ended.

Constantinople, Aug. 10.—Miss Clara Barton, president of the American branch of the Red Cross society, has started on her return to the United States, her mission of distributing relief to the Armenian sufferers having been ended.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The report of fatality, resulting from the heat in various sections of the country yesterday, indicate that the present hot spell will be as disastrous in its effect as a national calamity or plague. The death roll of the day exceeds 125 in the principal cities. In Greater New York, including New York, city, Brooklyn and Staten Island, the number of deaths from heat reaches 50. In Baltimore the deaths were 19, and in Philadelphia 18. Eastern cities appear to have suffered most severely, although the death list in the west continues to be high. The reports cover only the principal cities, and all the fatalities will doubtless swell the list very materially. Following is the death list, so far as reported from the various cities: New York and vicinity, 50; Philadelphia, 18; Washington, 6; Baltimore, 19; Bayonne, N. J., 2; Newark, N. J., 3; Albany, 2; Jersey City, 1; Pittsburg, 1; Chicago, 6; Rochester, 1; Louisville, 1; Memphis, 1; Cleveland, 2; Cincinnati, 5; San Antonio, 1.

—It gives a cue to the condition of the money market when we hear of New York being unable to place her city bonds at 3 1-2 per cent. Out of $400,000 face value, only $120,000 were paid for. These went in lots, some at 100.50, and some at 101.14 These bonds are payable in gold, so that the silver agitation has nothing to do with the case, apparently, and the rate of interest is one-half cent higher than the rate on the bonds eagerly bought up last year. There is evidently a scare underlying capital and we don't yet know all that is to be known about it.

—Brookline's tax rate is also higher. It is $12.40 this year. Other rates announced are: Canton, $16.80; Avon, $17.60; Walpole, $17.30; Franklin, $18.00.

The Honorable J. F. Greer, one of the best known and most highly respected county Judges of the State of Florida, writes of his horrible sufferings from Inflammatory Rheumatism:

OFFICE OF J. F. GREER, COUNTY JUDGE, Green Cove Springs, Clay Co., Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Twenty-three years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I was attended by the most eminent physician in the land. I visited the great Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the noted Hot Springs of Arkansas, and many other watering places, always consulting with the local physicians for directions, and finally came to Florida, ten years ago. About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism, was confined to my room for twelve weeks, and during that time was induced to try P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, knowing that each ingredient was good for impurities of the blood. After using two small bottles I was relieved. At four different times since I have had slight attacks and each time I have taken two small bottles of P. P. P., and have been relieved, and I consider P. P. P. the best medicine of its kind.

Respectfully, J. F. GREER.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio, says he bought a bottle of P. P. P. at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and it did him more good than three months' treatment at Hot Springs.

Rheumatism, as well as sciatica and gout, is cured by a course of P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is a friend indeed to weak women. It is a positive and speedy cure for general weakness and nervousness.

All skin diseases are cured by it; anything from pimples to the worst cases of eczemas succumbing to the wonderful healing powers of P. P. P.

Dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst form are cured by it. As a tonic to restore the appetite and to regain lost vigor, it is simply marvelous.

P. P. P. is the best spring medicine in the world. It removes that heavy, out-of-sorts feeling and restores you to a condition of perfect physical health.

For Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Failure, Fever, Chills, Debility and Kidney Diseases, take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful medicine in the world

Gossip.

The south wind, of course, was the first to know
As it swayed the green grasses to and fro.
The grasses, awake to the slightest sound,
Heard the news come rustling along the ground
And bent and whispered and murmured in glee
At the foot of the gnarled old apple tree.
They spoke so loud that a violet near,
Which they thought asleep, could not help but hear.
O'erburdened, perhaps, by the secret sweet,
In her joy forgetting to be discreet,
She whispered the news to the meadow rill,
Who was greatly epris of the daffodil.
Then the lovesick rill, who knew well the charm
Of secrets, decided there'd be no harm
In whisp'ring it softly, so none should hear
Save only the daffodil, bending near.
The frailty, alack, of a flowery vow
The poor little rill had not known till now!
No sooner the secret did he impart,
While begging she'd lock it within her heart,
Than a butterfly passed along that way,
And, paying the compliments of the day,
Inquired for news. The temptation strong
O'ercame the vows. Then 'twas not very long
Ere the wand'rer, sinking upon a rose
For a short, luxurious, noontide doze,
Ere he slept, with well feigned indifference, told
What he had just heard from the lips of gold.
'Twas heard by a robin in scarlet vest,
Who trilled and chirped with such joy and such zest
That a daisy near raised its tiny head,
And, full of a timid wonderment, said:
"Have you found a worm, that you sing so loud?
Have your blue eggs hatched, that you look so proud?"
With a dainty scorn said the tiny bird:
"You don't mean to say that you have not heard!
You poor little uninformed, backward thing!
Why, the apple tree is blossoming!"

Mrs. Lease, it is reported, has grown very stylish in her attire.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan is a member of several women's clubs and is not an equal suffragist.

"I do not belong to any woman's club or organization," says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "with the single exception of the Daughters of the American Revolution."

PREPARING TO NOTIFY.

Arrangements For Handling Crowd In Madison Square Garden.

Sherman Will Open the Campaign In Ohio.

Bits of Political Gossip Gathered From Various Parts of the Country.

New York, Aug. 10.—The arrangements for the Madison square meeting on Wednesday night, at which the Democratic national committee, through its committee on notification will inform Messrs. Bryan and Sewall that they have been chosen, respectively, as the standard bearers of the Democracy of the United States, have been completed, as far as the distribution of tickets is concerned.

The arrangement of the speeches will not be completed until Tuesday next, when the national committee meets. Senator J. K. Jones, the chairman of the committe, will preside, and Governor Stone of Missouri will, in all probability make the notification speech. Then Mr. Bryan will make his speech of acceptance, and Mr. Sewall will follow him.

Mr. St. John, the treasurer of the Democratic committee, has charge of the arrangements for the meeting. Madison square garden will hold about 20,000 people, and there will be seats for about half that number, for which tickets have been issued. Five thousand of the tickets have been given to Tammany Hall for distribution among the members of that organization. The boxes, balconies and part of the arena will be filled by ticket-holders. On the floor, in front of the platform, there will be 300 press seats, and in a semi-circle around there will be 2500 chairs reserved for ticket holders. The rest of the floor space will be filled by those who are able to fight their way in without tickets. Applications were received for 50,000 tickets and for 1200 press stands.

All who can get into the garden will be admitted, but the police will close the doors as soon as they think the arena is comfortably filled. To handle the crowds there will be 300 policemen, in charge of six captains, and a reserve force of 200 has been detailed to assist in case of an emergency. The entire glass roof of the garden will be taken off to secure ventilation.

Mr. Bryan will arrive in the city tomorrow afternoon, and will not be quartered at a hotel, but will be the guest of Mr. St. John while here. He will have a conference with the members of the national committee, which body will hold a meeting on Tuesday. Members of the notification committee are already arriving.

WORK FOR SHERMAN.

Will Open Ohio Campaign With Exposition of the Financial Question.

Canton, O., Aug. 10.—The Ohio campaign will be opened on Saturday night at Columbus. The event will be of more than ordinary importance. The meeting will be addressed by Senator Sherman and Senator-elect Foraker. Senator Sherman's speech will be looked upon very generally as the first step in his campaign for re-election to the United States senate. Senator Sherman says he is preparing his speech with great care, and it is his wish to have it the most effective exposition of the financial question he has ever made.

SENATOR SHERMAN.

The prominence of finance in the politics of the day leads Senator Sherman's friends to believe that the "logic of the situation" points to the re-election of Senator Sherman. Mr. Sherman will no doubt find some opposition when the next legislature meets to choose his successor. The name of Mark Hanna is frequently mentioned in connestion with the senatorship, but wholly without the warrant of Mr. Hanna himself.

The Columbus meeting will call forth Mr. Foraker's first political utterance since the week of the Republican convention at St. Louis. He has prepared his speech thoroughly, and it, with Senator Sherman's and Major McKinley's letter of acceptance, will show very clearly upon what lines the Republican campaign is to be conducted.

To Retire From Congress.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Representative L. D. Apsley, who has represented the Fourth congressional district of Massachusetts in the house during the Fifty-third and the first session of the Fifty-fourth congresses, has notified the managers of his district that he would not, under any circumstances, accept a renomination. Mr. Apsley was vice president of the Republican congressional committee in the last campaign, and was unanimously re-elected by his associates to act in the same capacity during the present campaign, and, while he will not stand for re-election to congress, he will remain with Chairman Babcock at the head of the Republican congressional committee in Washington until the close of the election in November.

A Day of Rest.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Thousands of enthusiastic free silver Democrats called at the Clifton House to see W. J. Bryan and his wife yesterday. They came with their wives and babies and children. But it was late in the afternoon before their desires were satisfied. In the first place, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan slept until the middle of the forenoon. When they had breakfasted they drove to the Presbyterian church at Englewood and listened to an orthodox sermon, preached by Rev. Dr. John C. Hill. While there were thousands of eager Democrats calling at the Clifton House to see their national candidate, they were disappointed. After returning to the hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan took dinner and then took an afternoon nap, which lasted until near 6 o'clock in the evening. After that they went to the parlors and held an informal reception. The throng then began to pour in. The Democratic nominee and his wife were kept very busy shaking hands, kissing babies and children until near the time for their departure. They left on the 11:30 train over the Pennsylvania for the east. They will arrive at Pittsburg tonight. As yet they have made no definite plans as to what route they will take from there to New York.

The Fight In Maine.

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—A special to The Sunday Telegram from Lewiston contains an interview with the Populist candidate for governor, L. C. Bateman. Concerning the Maine fight, he said:

"Here in Maine we are going to make a vigorous fight, and we shall gain heavily. The Democrats have put up a man for governor who was a gold standard man six weeks ago, but who, like Saul of Tarsus, saw a new light after the Chicago convention open up the vision of the Portland custom house. As I have before stated all their nominees for congress are gold men. Without even a blush of shame they play the role of hypocrites. They are doomed to the most terrible defeat, for the sense of decency is not yet dead in the human heart. The same old gang of pie-counter politicians are leading them. They would flop back to gold again tomorrow if it would bring them the offices any quicker. The People's party is the only party in this state that represents the free coinage idea from principle. We expect to have the aid of Tom Watson and Senator Butler during the campaign. The people are with us, and we have no fear of the result. We have fought this gang of pie-counter paupers for 20 years, and we shall continue to fight them to the end. They are in this thing for revenue only, while the Populists are in it from principle. May God pity Bryan and his cause if his supporters in other states are governed by the same motives as are his supporters in Maine."

For Hanna to Consider.

New York, Aug. 10.—The McKinley league state executive committee has written a long letter to Mark Hanna, in which H. F. Gibbs, the Republican national committeeman for New York, and the regular organization of the Republican party in the city and state, is denounced. It reviews in detail the alleged wrong-doing of some of the Republican leaders, touches upon the methods adopted by the organization in the last state legislature, and accuses Mr. Gibbs and his associates of using their official positions to disrupt the Republican party in the county of New York, if not to prevent the election of the Republican ticket. The manifesto says: "We believe that in a majority of the districts the party is thoroughly and heartily desirous of the election of McKinley and Hobart, but in many places the machinery of the party is under the control of discredited and unscrupulous traitors."

A Possible Cabinet Vacancy.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Star says that the retirement of Secretary Smith from the cabinet may be expected, and it assigns as the reason the fact that the secretary and the president are not in accord on the present political situation. Mr. Smith believes that notwithstanding the free silver platform adopted at Chicago, to which he continues, opposed Democrats should support the ticket, while Mr. Cleveland, The Star states, is strongly and positively opposed to such a course, and believes effective measures should be taken to accomplish Bryan's defeat.

Interested In Gold Ticket.

Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 10.—A call has been issued requesting the Gold Democrats of Vermont to meet in a mass convention at Bellows Falls, Aug. 18, to elect eight delegates to the national Democratic convention at Indianapolis, Sept. 2, and to nominate four presidential electors in support of the ticket nominated there.

Uncle Sam Out of Pocket.

New York, Aug. 10.—An accident which caused upwards of $100,000 damage occurred at the navy yard in Brooklyn Saturday night. The officers at the navy yard were extremely reticent when asked for an explanation of the trouble. As nearly as can be ascertained, a wave caused by a passing Sound steamer, which forced itself past the heavy caisson at the mouth of the dry dock, and capsized it, throwing it into the dock and allowing the water to rush in, was the cause of the mischief. The dock was nearly empty at the time, and the force of the water rushing in caused the moorings of the torpedo boat Ericsson to snap. The torpedo boat was hurled against the end of the dock, carrying away about 12 feet of the forward end of the boat. The Monitor, Puritan and Terror also broke their cables. These boats were not seriously injured, however.

Steamers Will Beat Trains.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Consul Germaine, in a report to the state department from Zurich, Switzerland, tells of a new invention made by the French Ship Engineer Bozin. It is called "Bozin's roller express," and it is claimed that by the device the movements of boats will be increased to about 62 miles an hour. This vessel will not slide, as in the case of ordinary ships, but rolls on the water by means of enormous hollow wheels or rollers. It consists of a large platform, supported by movable wheels or rollers.

Anderson's Great Feat.

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after three preliminary trials, E. E. Anderson wheeled a mile in 1:03 over a plank path. He was paced by a locomotive pulling a coach, and rode a wheel geared to 92. Anderson could have bettered this time a few seconds, but he mistook the signals and slowed up a little too soon. The trial took place near Oldenburg, Ills.

A Growing Country.

Berlin, Aug. 10. — Owing to the increased importance of the commercial relations between Germany and Venezuela, the government has promoted Count von Rex, the diplomatic representative at Caracas, to the rank of minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary.

ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN

Discussed Before Big Audiences at Pittsburg by Candidate Bryan.

An Explanation of the Term "Sixteen to One."

Something About Freedom of Ballot and Right of Self-Government.

Pittsburg, Aug. 11.—At every station during William J. Bryan's journey from Chicago to Pittsburg, the train made brief stops, and crowds of people greeted the Nebraska candidate with handshakes and cheers. His arrival in this city was the signal for a tremendous outburst of enthusiasm. He addressed two big meeting during the evening.

At the first meeting Mr. Bryan was introduced by James Mills, editor of the Pittsburg Post, and spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow Citizens: I thought it might be necessary in coming so far toward the east, to bring a few of our people to keep up the enthusiasm, while I presented the truths set forth in the Democratic platform. But after I have seen a few audiences like this, I wondered whether I might not take back a few of you to set an example of enthusiasm to the people of the west. There is no more "wild west;" it is the wild east. I am not expected to enter into a discussion of the issues of the campaign, because it is not considerate to discuss the campaign—at least for a candidate to do so—until he has been formally notified by the committee on notification. Therefore, I shall simply thank you for this extraordinary and unexpected manifestation of interest.

"When I left home I told them that I was coming upon a campaign in what was now considered the enemies' country, but which we hoped would be our country before the campaign closed. Therefore I have been more than gratified that it was not necessary to open the campaign in the east, it has already been opened here, but I shall promise you this, that in the progress of this campaign not a single private in the ranks will stand nearer to the enemies' guns than he in whose hands is the standard. We are prepared to defend our platform. It represents those policies which are for the best interests of all the people, and we are not terrified because our enemies have sought to apply to us epithets and hard names when they find it impossible to oppose the positions which we have taken.

They shall not be permitted to put us in the attitude of opponents of government. What we attack is the abuses of the government, and not the government itself. Who is the best friend of the government? Not the man who secures vicious legislation, because of the pecuniary profit which it brings him, but the man who loves his government so well that he would make it so good that it would deserve the love of every citizen in it.

"In this campaign there is only one great issue. If that is settled it will not give us a government perfect in all its details, but that one question must be settled first before other questions can be settled. A nation that is not able to adopt its own financial policy is too impotent to legislate on any question where the people are concerned. We do not say that our opponents are insincere; we do not say they are less honest than we, but we do say that when they attempt to say to the American people that we must be dependent upon the legislative act of some other government, we say it matters not how honest they may be, we dare not entrust legislation in their hands.

"There are people today who believe that this nation is not strong enough to legislate for our own people, and there are people who honestly believe that an attempt to do so would bring distress and many evils. We may respect their honesty, but must we enter into a life and death struggle with them, because we assert here that the financial domination by a foreign power is as dangerous to the liberty of the people as political domination. I believe that the toiling masses of this country—those who have achieved and who must achieve its greatness—are willing to risk their all in this republic, and rise and fall with it; and that to them we can appeal in this campaign with a confident assurance that when the vote is counted, an enormous majority of the American people will declare in favor of the American system of finances for the American people, administered by Americans."

At the meeting in the Avenue theater, Mr. Bryan was introduced to the audience by Joseph Holley as the next President of the United States. Mr. Bryan was received with great applause, and spoke as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen and Fellow-Countrymen: I do not consider the enthusiasm which has been manifested all along the road has aught in it of personal nature. It simply proves that respect which our people feel for those who stand in positions of authority, or stand before the people as candidates for those positions. We are a people who love government, who recognize its necessity, and stand ready to defend it at all times. And no matter how much we may differ with those who may for the time being, under the forms of law, make, decide or execute laws, we sustain them in authority until we can change them and make them to exceed to our purposes. It shows the capacity of our people for self-government. We differ very much, we present our views with all the ability and all the vigor that we have, but yet when it is all gone we bow to the will of the majority.

"We are entering upon a campaign which will exceed in interest and intensity any campaign through which we have passed. We have reached a new era. We have come upon a period when all war questions are settled, and when the people come face to face with great industrial problems, when people come face to face with great economic questions. The great principles of right and wrong are easily observed, and that is why it is that the people are competent to settle every question that can arise in a government like ours. No question is too deep for the American people, and the 70,000,000 people acting as a great jury must finally decide, and they alone can decide, every public question.

"I read the other day a little pamphlet sent out by some of the advocates of the gold standard money, and it contained this paragraph, that all of the financiers and capitalists, the only people who are competent to express an opinion on the subject, are in favor of the gold standard. It first appeared in an article written by a distinguished Frenchman, and was then reproduced and scattered over this country as literature, by the advocates of the gold standard, and therefore we must suppose that it expresses their ideas, that only capitalists and financiers are competent to express an opinion on this subject.

"My friends, I believe that each man, whether he is high or low, rich or poor, is the best judge of every proposition upon himself, and he alone has the right to say how his vote shall be cast, and on which side his influence shall be thrown. It is the principle of the broadest Democracy that these questions must be settled by the common people, and that this government has never created a particular class to legislate for others.

"We stand upon the declaration contained in that immortal document, penned by the greatest constructive statesman the world has ever seen, the Declaration of Independence. That declaration says: 'All men are created equal.' I shall challenge you to search the constitution, founded upon the declaration, and point to a single sentence that gives to any class of society superior rights or privileges over any other class of society. We are not preaching a new doctrine, we are not preaching a new idea. We are simply asserting that the principles that underlie this government should apply to new conditions as they rise, and that you can find out what ought to be done by measuring every proposed public act by the propositions contained in the Declaration of Independence, and by the provisions of the constitution which is based upon that declaration. That is all we ask.

Being asked to explain "sixteen to one," Mr. Bryan said: "Sixteen to one simply means that, according to law, the debt-paying power of one ounce of gold, when coined, shall be equal to the debt-paying power of 16 ounces of silver when coined. It simply means that the silver dollar is 16 times as large as the gold dollar. That is what 16 to 1 means. And when we say that we are in favor of the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, we simply say that we are in favor of having the silver dollar remain the same size as it is now, and having the gold dollar remain the same size as it is now. That is what we mean. We mean that that is the ratio. That has been so since the days of Andrew Jackson, that it shall be the ratio at which the mints shall be opened to the free and unlimited coinage of free silver. It means this, that if you owe a debt you can go out into the market and buy silver and have it coined and use that silver to pay your debts. Already you can go out into the market and buy gold and pay your debts after it is coined, and when you have the right to use either one, if they attempt to corner one metal you can use the other. Whereas, if you have but one metal which you can convert into money, and that metal is cornered, you are at the mercy of those who are managing the corner.

"The silver mine owners are people who produce silver, as gold mine owners are the only people who produce gold. The silver, when produced, is of no use to the man who produces it, until he either exchanges it for money or converts it into money for his own use, and the moment he brings that silver from the mine and converts it into the money, that money is in use to buy the commodities produced by the toilers of the country, and until that money is brought into existence there is no money to buy the things which people produce. Therefore, when we legislate to prevent money coming into existence, we legislate against the interest of those who have muscle to sell, or produce to sell, and cannot sell them until there is money to buy them."

Dull at Washington.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Political affairs went rather slowly at the several headquarters yesterday. The weather seemed to affect even the politicians. At the Republican headquarters no one was about save the clerical force, which was active in looking after the immense correspondence received. The Democratic congressional campaign committee issued a document yesterday on the "Business Man's Campaign." It seems that the Republicans propose such a campaign, and that the Democracy accepts the issue. The document asserts that from the Republican standpoint only the few bankers, brokers, wholesalers and corporation officers are business men, while from the Democratic standpoint the millons of farmers, producers and laborers of all classes are as much business men as the few who live, thrive and grow rich by trading in the products of labor.

In the Wrong Book.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Consternation seized upon treasury officials yesterday, when they discovered that many copies of circular 123, recently issued, containing financial information, had incorporated in them a silver speech by Senator Stewart of Nevada. In some way, when the circular was bound at the government printing office, the Stewart speech got mixed up with the other pages of the circular. A new edition is now being printed, with the Stewart speech eliminated.

STRIKERS ENCOURAGED

Have Induced Hundreds of Men to Leave Plant Factories.

Two Big Shops May Have to Shut Down.

Plant Says Properous Concerns Are Marks For Labor Agitators.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 11.—It appears to be war to the hilt between the labor unions and the Thomas G. Plant company in this city, and it looks as though it would be simply a question of endurance. So far the labor unions have been victorious, and have not only succeeded in preventing the Plant company from getting non-union men to work in its factory, but have also succeeded in getting hundreds of men that the company brought to this city at heavy expense, to return to their homes and leave the Plant shop empty.

Lynn labor leaders have, to a certain extent, been more successful in ordering a strike in the Ipswich annex factory than in Lynn, and it looks as if the Ipswich annex shop would have to shut down in a few days for want of operatives, unless the company succeed in getting help from other places.

Union leaders last evening reported that not only have they succeeded in getting all who came out in the strike at Ipswich to join the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, but have also succeeded in getting a majority of those at work in the factory to apply for membership in the union. A large number of the hands in the Ipswich factory joined the strikers yesterday, and went on a picnic to Grape island. The big factory on Washington street in this city was nearly deserted yesterday, and but a handful of the force that came out on Saturday returned to work. It is possible that the factory may have to shut down.

Thomas G. Plant, president of the Plant corporation, declares his firm will win. He said: "You may say that the published statements that the Plant corporation will discontinue business in Lynn, owing to the events of Saturday, are wholly misleading, and have no foundation, in fact. This company will continue to run its Lynn factory until the new building, now being erected for it in Roxbury, is ready for occupancy, and that will probably be in December. We have made no attempt to fill the places of the employes who struck on Saturday. We do not expect to replace them with Lynn operatives, but are confident we shall have little difficulty in securing men to come here from other parts of the state and country."

Mr. Plant went on to say that he was aware the burden of sympathy in this city seemed to be with the workmen, but he believed that the fact that his concern was soon to leave Lynn was the sole reason for this. "We are going to a place where conditions are more favorable for carrying on business, with less interference from labor organizations, and in doing so we are simply repeating the experience of nearly every large manufacturer who has of late done business in Lynn. The bigger and more prosperous the factory, the more shining mark it is for the labor agitator. But you can state emphatically that we are not going to move one whit the sooner on account of the strike of Saturday. If these men do not want to work for us there are others who will, and we shall get them. I will add emphatically that people who believe that the Lasters' union are going to win this struggle are harboring a delusion. The Thomas G. Plant company will not, from this date, recognize or have anything to do, in any way, with the Lasters' union or its representatives, nor with any of the organizations involved in this struggle. We are through with them, once and forever."

An Extensive Program.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The state department has been notified that there will be a national celebration in 1897 in Lisbon, of the fourth centenary of the departure of Vasco Da Gama for the discovery of India, and the Portuguese government requests that the United States government take part in this celebration by sending some men-of-war to Lisbon on that occasion. The program contemplates among other things the holding of many scientific congresses, international competitive sports, national exhibitions, special musical services and naval processions.

Perhaps a Murder.

Washington, Aug. 11.—A. W. Pile of California, secretary of the national Silver committee, was found dead yesterday under circumstances which lead to a suspicion of foul play. He had been missing since last Thursday. His body was found yesterday under the aqueduct bridge. When last seen he had considerable money on his person, which was missing when the body was found. A silver watch, however, had not been disturbed. There is no evidence of suicide.

An Immense Business.

Notwithstanding the very hot weather on Sunday, our people could not keep still. Many who owned horses or bicycles rode to the parks or beaches; and those who did not, went on the street cars.

The Quincy and Boston Company had all they could conveniently attend to most of the time; and a few hours towards night it was almost impossible to accommodate all who wished to ride.

President Graham and his able Superintendent Weeks are excellent managers, and are bound to please the travelling public if possible; but when there is such a rush as on last Sunday, it is almost an impossibility.

On this day the Quincy and Boston on its various routes carried over twenty-eight thousand people; more than the total population of this city. It does not seem possible, but this is the fact and if any of our citizens think that there is no need of extra turnouts, or double tracks, they are mistaken.

Kindness Unappreciated.

Sunday a young man rode up to the street railway office on his wheel and said he did not feel well, and wanted to leave his wheel there for a little while. He was told he could and he placed it in the room used by the conductors and motormen. Toward night the fellow returned for his wheel and was soon on his way toward home, or somewhere else.

A little later it was discovered that the fellow instead of taking his own wheel had taken an almost new one, owned by Jack Hayes, and left his old wheel.

A Delightful Trip.

There is nothing more enjoyable these hot days than a sail on the pretty steamer from Quincy Point to Nantasket. The cool and refreshing breeze from old ocean is always attractive in hot weather; and it has never been better enjoyed, we think, than during the present heated term.

The people of Quincy are certainly blessed in having at their own doors the street cars and the steamer to take them away from their cares and troubles, these extremely hot days.

WE WERE the recipients this morning at the LEDGER office of a handsome bunch of sweet peas from Mr. Fred B. Holmes.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Order for Remodeling City Hall Fails to Pass.

Afterwards Reconsidered and Laid on the Table.

Order for Raising Grade of Newbury Avenue Passed—A Vacation.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. It was unusually warm in the Council chamber and the most of the Councilmen present were not slow in laying aside their outer garments that they might be as cool as possible, and none were sorry that the session was a short one.

Twenty members were present; the absentees being Councilmen Field, Nickerson and Russell.

A communication was received from the Mayor, inclosing a communication from the Selectmen of Hingham, stating that they had paid James T. Prouty soldier's relief from June 1895 to June 1896, at the rate of $4 per month, making a total of $52. Referred to Committee on State Aid.

The City Solicitor sent a communication inclosing a legal form of an order for the assessment of betterments for the Walker street extension.

This order called for assessments as follows:

Estate of	Total Assessment.	On Estate.
Larise B. Hinckley,	$340.00	$17 00
Cynthia P. W. and G. W. Hinkley,	328.00	164.00

Charles H. Allen,	84.00	42.00
Seth Burrell,	84.04	42.02
James H. Churchill,	137.00	68.50
George C. and Flora S. Alden,	303.24	151.62
Total,	8,318.96	1,559.48

Upon motion of Councilman Moxon the order was substituted for that of the Committee on Streets and under suspension of the rules was passed to be ordained.

Petitions.

Petitions for license for tent shows were received from A. M. Drake for Washburn's circus, and Major English; from John A. Galvin for common victualler's license and from Ernest W. Gourd for a billiard and pool table license. To Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Holt presented a petition of William Everett and others for the acceptance of Miller's stile as a public street. To Committee on Streets.

Report of Committees.

The Committee on Streets, on petition of Albert Keating for permission to allow a certain building on Canal street which projected six inches on the street to remain, reported that the petition be referred to the executive department. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets, on communication from the Mayor relative to the acceptance of Washington street by the Mass. Highway Commission, recommended it be referred to next City Council. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on order appropriating $800 for raising the grade of Newbury avenue near Teele pond. Passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass on order authorizing the Mayor to contract with the Electric Light and Power Company for two years additional, making five years in all. Read twice and referred to Committee on Finance.

Upon motion of Councilman Claflin the order appropriating $24,000 for remodelling City Hall was taken from the table and under suspension of the rules was put on its final passage.

The order failed to pass. Not receiving a two thirds vote of the whole council, the vote being as follows:

YES,—Badger, Barker, Claflin, Cleaves, Geary, Hayden, Holt, Lamb, Little, Moxon, Murray, Parker, Phillips, Sidelinger, Sprague-15.

No,—Anderson, Pinkham, Rice, Rideout-4.

The vote was then reconsidered and the order laid on the table.

Rule 1 was then suspended and it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Sept. 4.

The order granting the Electric Light & Power Company a location for three poles on Goffe street and six polls on Dimmock street was passed to be ordained. Adjourned at 8.05.

Houghs Neck Illumination.

The Houghs Neck Improvement Association held an adjourned meeting Monday evening to take action on the matter of the annual illumination of the beach but as there was some doubt expressed as to whether the proprietors of the stores and booths would feel like contributing as the season has been a little quiet, it was thought best not to take any definite action at this meeting but to canvass the beach and see how the proprietors felt about contributing and a committee was appointed to do this work and report later.

Basket Party.

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor held a very enjoyable basket party at Mears' pavilion, Houghs Neck, on Saturday last. There were present about one hundred; the party consisted of Loyal Ladies with their sweethearts, husbands and children. Mr. Mears supplied clam chowder, which was splendid; also ice cream and tonic, and kindly granted them the use of his piazzas and grounds.

The following is the prize list of the tables, games:

Little girls' race,—First, Olive Smith; second, Lizzie Ross.

Girls' race under 12,—First, Ada Malcolm; second, Mary Lizzie Marnock.

—Is it any wonder that our woolen mills are closed and their workmen idle? The statistics show that under the McKinley tariff the average half-yearly exports of worsted coatings from Bradford to the United States amounted to 319,208 pounds; but under the free trade Gorman tariff the average has been 645,913 pounds—more than double the shipment made under our protective tariff. In the same way Bradford's exports of woolen stuffs, which averaged 412,044 pounds during the McKinley tariff half-years, have increased to 782,845 pounds under the existing free trade law.—Boston Traveler.

That Tired Feeling
Makes you seem "all broken up," without life, ambition, energy or appetite. It is often the forerunner of serious illness, or the accompaniment of nervous troubles. It is a positive proof of thin, weak, impure blood; for, if the blood is rich, red, vitalized and vigorous, it imparts life and energy to every nerve, organ and tissue of the body. The necessity of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling is therefore apparent to every one, and the good it will do you is equally beyond question. Remember —The conductors in the employ of the Brockton Street Railway Company are generally courteous and careful, and their example might be followed by others on connecting lines. There is a particularly "fresh" young fare-collector on one of the cars running from Holbrook to Quincy. He's abrupt in manner, careless in making change and insolent when a passenger calls his attention to a mistake. He neglected to give the proper change to a passenger last Saturday. It was only a matter of four cents, and the appearance and manner of the individual in question didn't warrant the first young man's insinuation of fraud.—Brockton Times, Aug. 8.

The Hot Weather.

Sunday and Monday will pass as the hottest days of the season. The temperature of Sunday was so bad that nearly everybody was prostrated by it. But yesterday was so pervading that it was almost impossible to do business. Everywhere people wore as light clothing as possible, and sought to make the most of what comfort they could command. Even the newsboy felt the heat so that his shrill cry was not at the usual note, and nobody did anything that he was not obliged to. This was sensible. It put a limit on the danger of exertion. In these hot days it is a good rule to avoid stimulants and to drink as little as possible. In this way the the physical system, with a tendency to extreme temperature, is kept from dangerous extremes, and one is free from the risk of danger.—Boston Herald.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A REALLY GOOD LAMP.

One that is Clean, Light, Bright, and Will Stay Lighted.

Now that the evenings are growing longer it behooves every cyclist who enjoys a ride in the best part of the day to provide himself with a good light giver to show the way. One of the best we have seen is the new improved Globe Vapor Lamp which we have had the pleasure of testing. It gives a brilliant white light; will stand the hardest knocks and laughs at the wind and weather. It is light, beautiful in shape and extremely simple.

The manner of attachment is unique, no bracket being required, the lamp fastening directly to head tubing or forks quickly and securely. It is well made, finely nickel plated and is as much better than the old style lamps that flood the market as daylight is over darkness. It possesses one feature which every one will appreciate—absolute cleanliness. If cleanliness is next to Godliness, then the Globe Lamp should an idol to the bicycle rider, and it is. It is the original "Vapor Lamp," and contains patented features to be found in no other make.

To add to the other good qualities, the price has been reduced to $3 00. Trade supplied by Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., Chicago, who control output of factory.

The Champions of Silver.

At the ratification meeting this evening Hon. G. F. Williams and Timothy W. Coakley, Esq., will be the speakers; Brooks Adams, Esq., will preside. Something concerning these gentlemen may be of interest:

Hon. George Fred Williams, lawyer, politician, and last, but not least, persistent advocate of the unlimited coinage of silver, 16 to 1, is well known in this city. His services as a member of the Massachusetts house, and as a congressman, are of such recent date as to be quite familiar, and while many at the present moment are antagonistic to him, they are, however, appreciative of his past labors. This will be his second appearance in Quincy.

Timothy W. Coakley, the other speaker, is one of the most unique characters among the young Democrats of Boston. He is a lawyer, with a good practice in the high courts and has made a good reputation by his handling of matters before legislative committees. Mr. Coakley is a most effective speaker from the stump, and rarely fails to gain the sympathy of his audience. He is a graduate of Boston college and law school of Boston university. Mr. Coakley is married and lives in Roxbury, with the exception of the time spent at his summer house at Nantasket.

Brooks Adams, Esq., who will preside was gained to the cause of silver it is said, by his extensive travel and observation, particularly in India. He stumped for Cleveland upon his first candidature. Mr. Adams has lived much of his time in Washington. He is a finished writer, and lays claim to the authorship of two or three books. Mrs. Adams is the sister of Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, the colleague of Senator Hoar of this state. He resides at present at the old family mansion on Adams street, in this city.

AT M'KINLEY'S HOME.

His Fellow-Townsmen Show Their Great Admiration For Him.

Canton, O., Aug. 11.—When the 1:24 p. m. Pennsylvania train pulled into Canton, 15 minutes late, bearing Mr. Bryan into populous Stark county, the home of McKinley, with 100,000 population turned out in thousands to greet their fellow townsman's opponent, and Mr. Bryan returned the compliment in his speech. Special trains had brought delegations here from all over southeastern Ohio, and the Pittsburg Bryan delegation was here on a special train to escort Mr. Bryan to their city. Allen Cook, the local Populist leader, escorted Mrs. Bryan to a flat car adjoining the Pullman car Hungary, followed by Mayor James Rice of Canton with Mr. Bryan. After the applause had subsided, and Mayor Rice had finished his presentation, Mr. Bryan said:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: When I received notice a short time ago of the organization of a silver club in this city, I little imagined the tremendous sentiment which seems to be behind that club. I am glad in this city, the home of my distinguished opponent, to testify to his high character and personal worth. (Applause, tremendous cheering for McKinley). I shall be satisfied — (the speaker was here interrupted by renewed cheering for McKinley). I shall be satisfied if, as a private individual, I may be able to stand beside him in public esteem, but my friends this is not a contest between persons. It matters little to the American people whether your distinguished townsman or myself, as individuals, occupy the chief executive position in the greatest nation upon the earth. But it does matter for what policies a president shall stand. In this campaign persons are lost sight of in the interest of the cause which those persons represent.

"In my own state and in my own city are many people who believe the interests of the country will be better served by the election of my opponent, and I am gratified to know that in his home city there are so many who believe that the interests of the country will be best served by his defeat. (Applause, cheers for McKinley). He is your neighbor, and we understand neighbors. If you will turn to the Bible you will there read a parable of the neighbor, and I ask you to believe that in this contest I am the neighbor of those who have fallen among thieves. (Applause.) He is the neighbor who in the hour of distress brings relief that is needed; in my humble judgment when we are cursed by European financial policy. I believe that the true neighbor of the toiling masses is the man who asks for the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver (applause) at the legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation on earth. (Applause.)

"To my neighbors at home I say that if according to their convictions of public duty they believe my opponent should be elected, that I shall bear them no ill-will, and I have so high a regard for my opponent that I know he will say to his fellow townsmen here that evry one of them should feel free to make his ballot represent a freeman's will, although it may result in keeping your distinguished citizen among you as a townsman still. I thank you for your kind attention, and bid you good day." (Applause.)

For Two Reasons.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 11.—Following the lead of Montreal and Toronto banks, and board of trade, the banks of Hamilton have refused to accept American silver and silver certificates. This is said not to be entirely due to agitation in the United States, but partly because there is too much American silver in circulation in Canada.

Two Diseases That Cause Their Victims to Be Shunned by Their Fellow-Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: I commenced taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, last Fall, for Erysipelas. My face was completely covered with the disease; I took a short course of P. P. P., and it soon disappeared. This Spring I became much debilitated and again took another course, and I am now in good condition. I consider P. P. P. one of the best blood preparations on the market, and for those who need a general tonic to build up the system and improve the appetite I consider that it has no equal. Will say, anyone who cares to try P. P. P. will not be disappointed in its results, and I, therefore, cheerfully recommend it.

ARTHUR WOOD,
Springfield, Mo.

Erysipelas and Scrofula cured by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, surely and without fail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: Last June I had a scrofulous sore which broke out on my ankle. It grew rapidly, and soon extended from my ankle to my knee. I got one bottle of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and was agreeably surprised at the result. The entire sore healed at once. I think I have taken almost every medicine recommended for scrofula and catarrh, and your P. P. P. is the best I have ever tried. It cannot be recommended too highly for blood poison, etc.

Yours very truly,
W. P. HUNTER.

P. P. P. cures all blood and skin disease, both in men and women.

Rheumatism, which makes man's life a hell upon earth, can be relieved at once by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. It makes a PERMANENT cure.

P. P. P. is the great and only remedy for advanced cases of catarrh. Stoppage of the nostrils and difficulty in breathing when lying down, P. P. P. relieves at once.

P. P. P. cures blood poisoning in all its various stages, old ulcers, sores and kidney complaints.

Sold by all druggists.

Rich Enough To Keep Dogs.

Ephrum Eels, he had to scratch durned hard to keep ahead,
But he always kept three dogs;
He couldn't keep a dollar bill to save his life,
they said,
But he always kept three dogs;
He said he might have been some one if he'd had half a chance,
But getting grub from day to day give Ephrum such a dance
He never got where he could shed the patches off his pants,
But he always kept three dogs.

Ephrum's young ones always looked as though they was half fed,
But he always kept three dogs;
The house would be so cold his folks would have to go to bed,
But Ephrum kept those dogs.
One was sort of setter dog, and two of 'em was houn's,
Their skins was full of satan; they was always on their roun's
Till people durned their pictures in half a dozen towns,
But Ephrum kept his dogs.

They hated Ephrum's poll tax 'cause he was too poor to pay,
But Ephrum kept his dogs.
How he scraped up cash to license 'em it ain't in me to say,
But I know he kept his dogs.
And when a sniff'rin neighbor ambuscaded 'em,
Eph swore
Then in a kind of homesick way he hustled round for more.
He struck a lucky bargain, and, by thunder, he bought four—
Jest kept on a keepin dogs.

Trip May Be Abandoned.

Vadsoe, Norway, Aug. 11.—News has been received from Spitzbergen that Professor S. A. Andree has discovered four rents in his balloon. Professor Andree's original intention was to have his balloon inflated, and ready for his trip to the pole by the first week in July. The accident to the balloon will probably end the prospects for the expedition this season, as the period of the midnight sun of the Arctic latitudes, beyond which Professor Andree did not intend to attempt his experiment, has almost passed.

Li May Visit Gladstone.

London, Aug. 11.—Li Hung Chang was tendered a banquet last night by 250 China merchants residing in London. The banquet was given at the Crystal palace, and was accompanied by a great fireworks display, for the entertainment of the guest. It is probable that Li Hung Chang, who has been called "The grand old man of China," will have an interview on Saturday at Hawarden, with Mr. Gladstone, England's "Grand old man."

The Seal Question Again.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—Several special conferences between Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, the Russian minister for foreign affairs, and the other ministers have resulted in a decision to continue the Behring sealing agreements of 1893 and 1894, but to make overtures to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, with the view to establish better protection for the seals.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

A Week of Plenty of Heat and Rain Throughout New England.

Only Frost Can Now Cut Off Good Corn Crop.

Fruit, Grass, Vegetables and Berries Are All Coming Along Finely.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The United States agricultural bureau, New England section, issues the following bulletin:

The weather in New England for the week ending Aug. 10 has been unusually hot and sultry, with rain enough generally to keep the crops well supplied with moisture. Heavy local storms have prevailed, and some light damage has been done in northern sections by wind and hail, and in central and northern sections by lightning. From one to two inches of rain fell in the northwestern half of the district during the week, and from one-half to one inch in the southeastern. Pastures are very good, and the second crop of grass very promising. Apples are making a fine growth. Corn and tobacco are pushing ahead unusually fast. The weather is favorable for the growth of fungi and potatoes, grapes, pears, etc., are being attacked locally.

Pastures are very fresh and green in Maine, and the grass is starting up well after the scythe. The week has been more favorable for harvesting, and it has been pushed as fast as possible. The heavy rains lodged grain quite badly, and potatoes are rusting some in southern counties. Apples and berries were beaten and blown off to some extent also. Grain is very promising. All field crops have grown well, and the outlook is very encouraging.

Reports from New Hampshire say that the past week has given excellent "corn weather," and that crop is pushing ahead very fast. Unless cut off by frost, a good corn crop is now assured. Pastures are excellent, grain is good, and the second crop of grass is very promising. Berries are plenty, and correspondents in Hillsboro and Rockingham counties report that apple trees are breaking down with their load. Potatoes have been growing well generally, but there are reports of blight or rust from Hillsboro, Rockingham, Belknap and Coos counties.

Potatoes are advancing well in Vermont, and as yet there are no reports of rust. Corn is in excellent condition, and a large crop is indicated. Early apples have fallen considerably, but there is a large crop left on the trees in most places; they are reported to be unusually good, and to have grown remarkably fast in the past two weeks. Berries are fine, and there will be a large crop of wild blackberries. Pastures are good. Many fields of oats are being cut green for fodder.

On account of wet weather there are some meadows yet to be cut in Massachusetts, and the grass on them is about an average in quantity. Corn has made a vigorous growth, and is very promising. Tobacco has grown wonderfully during the week, and is nearly ready to cut. Market garden crops are bearing abundantly, and the quality is excellent. Root crops are doing well. There are signs of potato blight reported from Middlesex, Worcester and Barnstable counties, though it is not general, except in the last named; they are rotting considerably in Barnstable county also. Cranberries on bogs that were out of water in winter are scalding. Grapes promise a large crop, but are considerably diseased in Worcester county. Apples are ripening early, and are a good crop. Pears are ripening, but are very light.

The season of 1896 promises to be known as one of more than average yields in Rhode Island. Early tomatoes have been scarce in Newport county, but other crops promise well. Corn indicates a heavy yield. Onions are ripening, and crop promises well. Rains have benefited celery and late cabbages very much. Meadows and pastures look well.

The week has been one of rapid growth in Connecticut, and all crops are very promising. The greater part of the first crop of hay is now secured, and some rowen is being put in. The grass is making a fine growth, and there is promise of a large yield. Pastures are generally good. Barley is being sown for fall feed. Tobacco is showing a very luxuriant growth, with less damage reported from grasshoppers and green worms than usual. Corn is growing very fast. Potato blight is spreading, especially in New Haven county. Apples are making a splendid showing, and are ripening rather earlier than usual.

Willis Waives Examination.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 11.—Herbert Willis, the young desperado, was brought to the district court before Judge Fox yesterday. The room was packed to suffocation, and several people had to be helped out for air. Contrary to expectation, he was not arraigned for theft or burglary, but for the murder of Frederic N. Strange, aged 20, on the evening of June 22. Willis was pale, but cool, and eyed the crowd as if he were the central figure in a show. In a clear voice he waived examination, and was ordered to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Say They Were Branded.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 11.—A secret hearing was held before Judge Luce yesterday, of a peculiar charge. The complainants, Frank Preble and a man named Arch, charge that three officers of Victoria lodge, Sons of St. George, branded them on the body in several places with red-hot irons while being initiated into Victoria lodge. Both sides were represented by counsel. All the evidence and the testimony of those concerned is kept a secret. Judge Luce took the matter under advisement and will render his decision later.

Wants Apsley's Place.

Ayer, Mass., Aug. 11.—Senator George J. Burns has announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination from this district, to succeed L. D. Apsley of Hudson, whose intention to retire has just been made public. Mr. Burns has just completed his second term in the state senate.

With Affianced by His Side.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 11.—Dr. Wilmer L. Pressey of Bangor was killed by lightning while standing in the door of his father's cottage in Islesboro. He was to be married in September to the daughter of J. G. Brown of Boston. Miss Brown stood by his side at the time of his death, but was uninjured, though the cottage was damaged throughout, and the bolt struck his hand as it rested on her shoulder.

Couldn't Convict.

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 11.—James W. Downing and Patrick Reardon, charged with setting fire to the barn of B. R. Jewell of South Hampton, were arraigned in court here yesterday, on a continued hearing, but were discharged upon the motion of County Solicitor Hoyt, who said that the state had failed to make out a case against the respondents.

Wanted In Connecticut.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 11.—Herbert Steele, the burglar captured in Brooklyn, is said to be the man who tried to rob the postoffice in Fairfield a week ago, and is also wanted for several jobs committed in this vicinity. Upon his release by the New York authorities he will be brought to this city for trial.

Easy Prey For Thief.

Boston, Aug. 11.—A thief entered an open window of a house in South Boston, occupied by Mrs. Mary Sugarman, and stole $17 in cash and jewelry valued at $1000. The family at the time were in the front of the house, and did not discover the robbery until late yesterday afternoon.

Poor Whaling Season.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 11.—Reports from the Arctic fleet of whalers give discouraging news. The bark Alice Knowles of New Bedford has taken only one whale. Bark Mermaid reported clean. The catch of the whaling fleet before getting into the Artic ocean was but two whales.

Lowell's Wealth.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 11.—The tax rate for this city will be $15 per $1000, a decrease of $3 per $1000. The total valuation of real estate and personal property is $69,901,947, an increase of $1,119,967 over last year.

Keeping Tabs on Filibusters.

Washington, Aug. 11. — The revenue marine officials are bestirring themselves to stop the departure of any of the filibustering expeditions making ready to sail for Cuba, and have established a close watch at all Atlantic ports over the movements of suspicious crafts. The Colfax is laying near the suspected steamer Commodore at Charleston, and telegraphic orders were sent to the captain of the cutter Boutwell yesterday to go to Jacksonville at once to aid the collector at that port in keeping under espionage the Three Friends, which has a reputation of having done great deeds in aid of Cuba and of intending to do still more. A watch has been set also for the Laureda, which has slipped down the Delaware, and is believed to be about to take men and arms aboard in the Horsa style somewhere off the Jersey coast.

No Hope of Relief.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Major Dunwoody, the weather forecaster, scanned the map last night in vain for a prospect of relief from the torrid heat under which the country has been sweltering for the past week. Out on the prairies of Nebraska and Kansas, and to the southward along the Gulf states, humanity struggles to exist at 100. The Atlantic coast, as far as Boston, showed very high temperatures. At the latter place it was 94, which was also the maximum at Atlantic City. The same temperature existed at Albany. There is no prospect for relief in this territory today. Away up in the extreme northeast, in the Rockies, Major Dunwoody saw a ray of hope. The barometer has risen there, and has fallen in the lower central valleys and lake region. If these high and low areas develop, the hot spell will be broken.

Land Bill Further Advanced.

London, Aug. 11.—There was an atmosphere of compromise in the house of lords yesterday, when the Irish land bill came up on its third reading. The Marquis of Lansdowne submitted three amendments, which were somewhat in favor of the landlords, and these were accepted by the house. About a dozen amendments were offered by landlords, but after brief debates they were withdrawn. Speaking on the motion that the bill be passed on its third reading, Earl Spencer (Liberal) contended that, if the measure was passed as it had been altered, it would be a serious damage to Ireland, and would also damage the strength and independence of the house of lords. The bill then passed its third reading.

Brazil Will Raise Her Flag.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 11.—The British legation has informed the Brazilian chancellor that Great Britain has surrendered the island of Trinidade. The English flag will be struck on the island after certain formalities. Brazil will send a warship to Trinidade and raise the flag of that republic.

Leads Revolution at Ninety-Two.

Athens, Aug. 11.—Dispatching of European diplomacy and Turkish bad faith, the Cretans have finally cut the gordian knot. The revolutionary camp at Campos has dissolved the reform committee, and has established a provisional revolutionary government, under the presidency of Gerokostaros, a Cretan leader, who headed the Cretan embassy to the Berlin congress. He is still hale, despite his 92 years, and is an ardent advocate of British influence in Crete.

Life Saving Appointments.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Dennis Haley, surfman at Cahoon's Hollow lifesaving station, Mass., has been promoted and appointed keeper of the new floating station for Boston harbor, near City Point. Silas H. Harding, keeper of the Jerry's Point station, N. H., has been promoted and appointed superintendent of the first lifesaving district, coast of Maine and New Hampshire, vice J. M. Richardson, deceased.

Not on the Playbill.

London, Aug. 11.—At the Novelty theater last evening, in a stabbing scene, the spring dagger made for stage uses failed to act, and an actor was stabbed to the heart so that he died in a few minutes.

Given More Time.

Cape Town, Aug. 11.—A proclamation has been issued which extends the time of grace for the surrender of the Matabele rebels to Sept. 28.

In our great grandmother's day women did not have to submit to the examinations and local treatment so uniformly insisted upon by present-day physicians. Perhaps they were naturally healthier—anyway, doctors did not insist on such things so much. That sort of treatment was not a "fad" as it is to-day. Many a woman goes on suffering tortures in silence because her natural modesty prevents her taking the step she knows will follow when she calls on a doctor. There is relief for these women and others. It is in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is an absolutely certain remedy for all the weaknesses and diseases of woman's peculiar organs. It is the preparation of an eminent and successful specialist—a regularly graduated, experienced and skilled physician, who has for over thirty years made a specialty of diseases of women. This is the only medicine for women that emanates from such a source. It is sold by all good druggists, and its sales amount to more than the combined sales of all other preparations designed for the same purposes.

HEAD HEAVY? Do you feel sleepy and sluggish and half-dead all day? Is your sleep restless? Do you have bad dreams? Does a little exertion tire you out? Are you short-winded? Do you have palpitation of the heart? If you do, you probably need Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. All of these symptoms come from constipation more frequently than they do from any other cause. Ninety-nine times in a hundred Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure them by curing constipation. The "Pellets" are the only absolutely permanent cure for this prevalent disorder. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules, and a little vial holds forty of them. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic.

Strikers Made Still Further Gains In Their Fight at Lynn.

Locked-Out Lasters Head of Would-Be Workers.

Plant Says His Shops Will Be Full In Less Than a Week.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 12.—The labor unions were even more successful in their fight with the Thomas G. Plant company here yesterday than on Monday, for the reason that the force of hands that went to work in the Plant shop yesterday was less than half of the number that reported for duty the day previous. In all, only 21 women stitchers, out of a force of nearly 200, went into the factory yesterday, and less than 40 men, most of the latter being foremen and second hands in several departments of the shop. George Wood, the only man who refused to strike in the cutting department on Saturday, and who was the only cutter at work Monday, struck yesterday, and in less than half an hour he had a job in another factory.

Only the foreman and assistants are at work in most of the departments of the shop, and the big factory in which more women's fine shoes have been manufactured the past year than in any other factory in the world, might almost as well be shut down for all the work that is being done. Mr. Plant states that he will have all the men he requires to work in his shop inside of a week, but the strikers do not agree with him, for the reason that his company has brought several large invoices of men to Lynn already to take the places of the locked-out lasters, but most of these were sent away again by the Lasters' union officials. There are all kinds of rumors floating about that the Plant company will have 300 men in Lynn before the end of the week, but the pickets say: "Let them come, and we will take care of them."

There is much enthusiasm for the big demonstration and the street parade of the Plant shop's crew that is being arranged for this evening. The labor leaders say they will have a large number of members of local unions in line, in addition to the strikers, and that it is the intention to hold a meeting in some large hall after the demonstration, at which addresses will be delivered by prominent members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

William J. Whitten, the non-union employe of the Thomas G. Plant company who drew the revolver on John White, was arraigned in court yesterday on a charge of assault with a revolver, to which he pleaded not guilty. William H. Niles, attorney for the Plant company, appeared for Whitten. There was a surprise in store for White, the commonwealth witness, for when he entered court, he was arrested on a warrant issued at the request of Lawyer Niles, on a charge of assault on Whitten. Both cases were continued.

Alliance Holds the Gold.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 12.—Just before the Christian Alliance camp-meeting closed yesterday, a Boston lady, who had contributed her gold watch toward Rev. A. B. Simpson's big missionary collection, interviewed the parties in charge of the jewelry contributions and pleaded for the return of her watch. She said it was a present to her from her mother, now dead, and that it had been contributed to the missionary cause during a moment of undue excitement. As it is an invariable rule of the Christian Alliance leaders not to return gifts under such circumstances, her plea was in vain. She will, however, receive in return for her gold watch a watch with steel cases, such as are given in exchange for all gold watches donated to the alliance cause.

Boston Girl Missing.

Boston, Aug. 12.—The police are much mystified as to the whereabouts of Florence May Collings, 17 years old, of 33 Cottage street, East Boston, who disappeared from her home and has been seen but once since Aug. 1. The girl was seen to get on a Boston bound Arlington car at Lake street, last Wednesday. She has been receivinn the attentions of a young man of Arlington named Herford Saunders. Saunders denies that he saw Miss collings while she was in Arlington. She has been in the employ of Barnard & Co.'s bindery on Province street, and is highly spoken of by her employer. She is said to have told a fellow-worker that she was tired of working for the money she was receiving, and that she intended to go to Portland, Me.

Orangemen Summoned to Court.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 12.—Complaints were issued yesterday by Judge Luce against J. G. Graham, G. O. Vickerson, Edward O'Neil, Daniel Tracy, Leander Wetherbee and William Mayble, officers of the Loyal Lodge of Orangemen here, charging them with committing assault and battery on Frank A. Preble and Edward Auch of Waltham, two men who wished to become members of the lodge, and who were being initiated into the order. The alleged assault consists in the branding of the complainants. Mr. Preble bears two marks, said to have been made by a hot branding iron, while Mr. Auch's injuries are similar.

Bananas Will Be Scarce.

Boston, Aug. 12.—A rise in the banana market is imminent. Of a cargo of that fruit just arrived, 3000 of the 7000 bunches were landed in good condition, while the remainder was taken out to sea in the city garbage scows. The great damage inflicted on the Cuban fruit trade has followed the enforcement of Captain General Weyler's order, closing the ports of Banes and Sama. The fleet of steamers now in Cuban waters have been ordered north, in ballast, and the fruit trade with Cuba is at an end for the time being.

Injured by Dynamite.

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 12.—Daniel Dean and Daniel Hawkins, both colored, in the employ of E. D. Smith & Co., aqueduct contractors, while drilling at the West Berlin shafts yesterday, set the drill in a hole in which a stick of dynamite had been placed for a previous blast, and the stick of deadly explosive was fired. Both men, together with others in the shaft, were knocked about. Part of Dean's eye was badly cut, while Hawkins suffered a small scalp wound. His eyes are also badly injured. Dean will probably lose the sight of his left eye.

A Sensible Move.

Providence, Aug. 12.—Superintendent of Health Chapin and Inspector of Provisions Gladding began a series of raids yesterday, upon the venders of poor and decomposed food. They visited eight stores in ward 1, and confiscated a large quantity of vegetables. In one instance the store was found to be in such a filthy condition, and nearly all the stock was so bad, that nothing was molested, the proprietor being reported to the board of health as deserving of more severe treatment.

Disease Spread by Milkman.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 12.—A large number of typhoid fever cases having appeared near Central square, Dr. Farnham and Professor Sedgwick of the state board of health have, they believe, traced the cause to an employe of a local milk man, who has been suffering from the disease, and, the physicians think, has communicated the germs to the milk cans. The milkman has been ordered to discontinue the serving of milk, and has done so.

Funds Running Low.

Boston, Aug. 12.—The gypsy moth commissioners have had to discharge about 25 men, and more will go soon, as the funds have been nearly expended. The appropriation made was $100,000, and the state board of agriculture wanted $250,000. The plan is to discharge the men as slowly as possible, without going outside the limit of the appropriation About all the work of the commission is now confined to Malden.

Recovered at Last.

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 12.—A persistent search was made yesterday for the bicycle which Herbert Willis stole at the time he had trouble in Taunton, during which F. N. Strange was shot. A longshoreman dragged the water near the Providence station and drew up the machine. It had been smeared over with grease to keep it from rusting. It answers the description of the wheel stolen.

Charges Withdrawn.

Boston, Aug. 12.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, last night, resolutions were adopted, withdrawing charges against W. M. Crane of Dalton. At a meeting of the committee, on Aug. 4, Mr. Crane was charged with being a stockholder in a non-union newspaper. The committee found that the charges were not proven upon investigation.

Miraculous Escape From Death.

Boston, Aug. 12.—James Riley, a roofer, was working on the top of the building at 48 Lowell street, and when the roof derrick broke, and carried him down with it, he struck a tree in his descent of nearly 75 feet, and landed on his feet in the gutter with a slight wrist wound, which was dressed against his protest at the city hospital, and 30 minutes later he was back at work.

Old Soldiers Meet.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 12.—The Thirteenth Maine Regimental association held its annual reunion in this city yesterday. General Neal Dow commanded the Thirteenth Maine. About 150 old veterans attended this reunion. At a business meeting officers were elected.

Case Dismissed.

Malden, Mass., Aug. 12.—A nol prosse was entered and allowed in the district court yesterday, in the case against George H. Albee of Medford, charged with blowing up his buildings, as the government contended it had not enough evidence to make out a case.

After a Three Days' Debauch.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 12.—Thomas Doutney, a well-known temperance lecturer, after a three days' debauch, was in court yesterday and fined $5 and costs.

NewEngland Briefs.

Two burglars were caught in the act of robbing a Cambridge (Mass.) store.

An unknown man threw himself into the Merrimac river at Lawrence, Mass., and was drowned. He was probably demented, caused by the heat.

John O'Neil, employed by the Fall River (Mass.) Machine company, was caught between a planer and a wall, receiving injuries which will prove fatal.

John Seaman, aged 40, fell from a wagon at Providence. The wheel passed over his body, breaking a rib and forcing it against his heart. He died instantly.

PLANS FELL THROUGH.

Seventy Convicts Had a Scheme For Breaking Jail at Elmira.

Pitched Upon and Pounded Two Keepers.

Squad of Guards With Winchesters Promptly Ended the Riot.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Seventy of the lower second grade inmates of the state reformatory were taken out on to the large parade ground yesterday to drill, under the charge of Keeper Sample and Captain Adams. After the exercises were over, and as the inmates were returning to the building, some of the men pitched upon Sample and Adams. It appears evident that a plot had been laid to escape, and had the convicts succeeded in getting Sample and Adams out of the way they would have made a dash for the walls, and some of them might have got over. Had it not been for the prompt action of the guards the attempted wholesale jail delivery would have been successful.

The men implicated are the worst in the institution, having been reduced for some violation of the rules. These 70 men marched out into the drillyard in three squads, in charge of Keeper Sample and Captain Adams. After an hour of marching and running the men were sent to the end of the parade ground, where they deposited the wooden guns, and returned, lockstep, to the door leading through the bucket house to the prison hall. The convicts evidently had formulated a plan of attack, for no sooner had they passed the door in the bucket house when half a dozen of them attacked Captain Adams, while about the same number assaulted Keeper Sample. Adams was thrown to the floor, pounded without mercy, while Sample, who is large and powerful, was felled to the floor with a heavy iron bucket by a convict named Decker, who seemed to be the leader of the rioters. Blood flowed profusely from the keeper's head. He did not lose his presence of mind, but pulled his revolver and shot one of the rioters, who fell to the floor. The ball had passed through the leg just under the skin above the knee. A general alarm was then sounded, and the 25 officers rushed out, armed with Winchester rifles. By this time the convicts had reached the hospital yard. Rifles were pointed at them, and being commanded to halt or be shot, they had no alternative but surrender. All were put in solitary confinement, and will probably be taken to Auburn or Sing Sing. Decker, the leader, was received from New York in 1891, and would have been released in three weeks.

Story Needs Confirmation.

City of Mexico, Aug. 12.—It is reported that a British man-of-war has seized the Mexican island of Clarion, which belongs to the state of Colima, and that there will be a coaling station established there. The report is given circumstantially in the newspapers, but is not yet confirmed. It is also asserted that the English have planned to seize the island of Revillegiedo, on the Pacific coast. In view of the present amicable relations between Mexico and England, and the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine by the United States, the reports appear incredible, although affirmed in the press.

Can't Raise Money.

New York, Aug. 12.—Bank Examiner Kilburn says: "I have closed the Murray Hill bank, after consulting with the clearing house committee and the board of directors of the bank. The trouble is, as far as I am able to ascertain, that they have not sufficient money to do business and no way of raising it. A great many of the assets are represented by real estate and other securities, which cannot be realized upon at this time without great sacrifice. It is my opinion that the depositors will be paid in full.

Much Suffering.

Yesterday was another hot day and there was much suffering not only in this city and state, but in many states and cities in east and west. But we have the welcome news that a cold wave is coming today, which will be gladly welcomed by thousands.

We have cold waves in winter and hot waves in summer, which bring intense suffering; but the severe heat the past week, we think, has caused more deaths and misery than any cold spell we ever experienced.

There were twelve deaths in Boston yesterday from the heat, and hundreds in other parts of the country; and everybody will be thankful this afternoon to know that the mercury is falling. After five long days and nights of ferocious heat, it is good news to know we are to have a welcome change.

Very Attractive.

It is very attractive, even in these hot days, to walk in the shade of the trees in front of Col. Packard's beautiful estate and enjoy the handsome beds of plants and flowers, so nicely arranged and kept in order. It is a great task these hot days to keep anything in good order, and the public should enjoy the beautiful grounds, and feel at the same time thankful that they have a citizen in the centre of Quincy who is willing to spend his time and money in making his grounds alluring to the passers by. Many have fine plants, but few arrange them by the roadside, so that every pedestrian, rich or poor, can drink in their beauties, and enjoy their fragrance. Such acts are certainly a blessing to any community.

Thief Captured and Punished.

Tuesday a young lad named Gilbert Bovin, who is frequently in trouble, entered the fruit store of Mrs. Mercurio, on Water street, and opening the show case he grabbed a handful of cigarettes and started up the street.

But as quick as he was, he was not quite quick enough for Mrs. Mercurio, who gave chase, and although the thief had quite a start, she proved to be a faster runner than the boy, whom she soon overtook. Once within her grasp, she commenced to administer corporal punishment and the echo of the blows, as they fell quick and fast, could be heard for some distance; and it is safe to say that the boy will give her place a wide berth the next time he desires to steal cigarettes.

WE SHALL score one for a team marked — with two well known names, and which, while it was drawn by one horse and held fourteen people big and little, had consideration for the horse that drew them. The horse was neither thin, tired or over worked. He held his head up courageously this piping hot day.

When the team reached Coddington street, the driver kindly let his beast stop to breathe, to get wind and rest. We watched them and when pony got ready to start, and not before, he went on towards Houghs Neck.

A good time to our friends, old and young, and the little colony of yellow haired babies in the party.

We live in a country of which the principal scourge is stomach-trouble.
It is more wide-spread than any other disease, and, very nearly, more dangerous.
One thing that makes it so dangerous is that it is so little understood.
If it were better understood, it would be more feared, more easily cured, less universal than it is now.
So, those who wish to be cured, take Shaker Digestive Cordial, because it goes to the root of the trouble as no other medicine does. The pure, harmless, curative herbs and plants, of which it is composed, are what render it so certain and, at the same time, so gentle a cure.
It helps and strengthens the stomach, purifies and tones up the system.
Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

BRYAN AND SEWALL.

Local Democrats open Their Campaign in Quincy.

By a Ratification Meeting at Hancock Hall.

Address by Brooks Adams, George Fred Williams and Timothy W. Croakley.

The Democrats of Quincy opened their campaign Tuesday night at Hancock hall with a grand ratification meeting, and although the weather was hot, and extremely so in the hall, there was a large attendance, many prominent Republicans being seen among the audience.

Just before the speakers arrived there was an explosion of rockets from the lot near the bakery, which served to herald their approach.

Brooks Adams presided, and with him on the platform were ex-Mayor Hodges, Councilman Thomas J. Lamb, ex-Councilmen William T. Shea and Horatio N. Holbrook; William B. Orcutt, Hon. Frank A. Hobart, of Braintree; George D. Cahill, Cornelius Moynihan, and the two speakers of the evening, Hon. George Fred Williams and Timothy W. Croakley.

William B. Orcutt called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Adams as the presiding officer of the evening.

Mr. Adams in his opening remarks said these questions were ones upon which the most patriotic men must differ. Everybody agrees that the country is in a deplorable condition. Of the two evils he preferred silver. The Republican people are to take up Cleveland's policy as it stands now, and supply the treasury with gold; but the question is can the country stand another four years like the last? There is great discontent among the people and the way to treat it is to give them relief, and if we can not get our price for our crops we can never pay our debts.

George Fred Williams when introduced was received with loud applause. He said in part that the fundamental principles upon which our Democratic institutions are based, are that the will of the majority of the people shall be the law to govern the whole country. The party has recently held a convention, and no one denies that it was a fair representative of honesty and character and good judgment of the average American.

At that convention a new policy was adopted effecting the monetary system of the country, but to the surprise of the people who have been accustomed to treat the two-thirds as decisive, there has been a dissent of a minority of the convention.

These men in the main represent a class who have been principals in councils of the Democrats for sixteen years; not because they were so smart, but because they were able to contribute a large amount of funds to the party. These are the men who have bolted the Chicago convention. They have worked by the underground system, and have not so high a regard for the interests of the people, as those of us who go about and meet the public in honorable debate.

All the disturbance comes in the main from that small set of political leaders who, having been over-ruled by a majority of the party, are now pouring out their wrath upon the majority that has defeated them; and it is from these men that we get the abuse. Their leadership is gone and the democracy of this state and the nation is now cleansed and purified thereby. Our money contributors have gone, and with them has gone that order that a few can rule the Democratic party. Good riddance to them.

Mr. Williams then took up the money question, upon which he spoke briefly, and then read at length from Henry Chernewsky, the father of bimetallism, and urged his hearers to carry it about with them in their pockets during the campaign for reference.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Williams and Mr. Adams were each presented boquets of flowers, by one of the two ladies present.

Mr. Croakley said the trouble today with the men who have made false issues is that they have been found out. The money power has held these United States in its grip, and denies to labor the fruits of its toil, and has been controlled and dominated by both political parties. We now have a contest of money lenders.

It makes no difference whether he runs a pawnshop on Merrimack street, or is a director in a national bank; they are in the same business. We have lost blood enough; if there be any more to lose let it be his.

The convention in Chicago enunciated the truth when it enunciated the principal 16 to 1. We of New England find men on our street corners asking: "What is bimetallism? What does 16 to 1 mean?"

When I speak of money I mean the man who deals in money, not the man who builds factories, but the man who lends money. You can not eat gold or silver either, then wherein lies its value?

Not in its intrinsic value, but as a medium of exchange and we have got to have something as a medium to exchange.

Mr. Croakley was frequently applauded, and at the conclusion of his remarks three loud and long cheers were given for Williams.

Swedish Lutheran Conference.

The monthly conference of the Swedish Lutheran churches of the Boston district opened Tuesday evening at the Granite street church, but owing to the heat the attendance was not as large as usual.

The exercises were presided over by Rev. C. F. Johansson, president of the district, and brief remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Tureene of Campello, Rev. Mr. Brandell of Lynn, and Prof. Zesterstand of Worcester. These addresses were followed by Holy communion.

Today's exercises commenced this morning with a business meeting which was held upon the lawn at the residence of C. F. Carlson on Saville avenue.

This afternoon at three o'clock the meeting will be held at the church, and will take the form of a discussion on "The institution, aim and power of the ministry."

Rev. Mr. Henderson will open the discussion with a paper, and will be followed by the clergymen present.

The conference will close this evening, with the installation of Rev. J. W. Eckman as pastor of the church. The ceremonies being conducted by Rev. C. F. Johansson, assisted by the visiting clergymen.

The services are held in the Swedish language.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

President,—James Thompson.
Vice-President,—A Marnock.

Committee on Violation of Rules,—Walter R. Fegan, William Deacon, Charles Biganess.

Circus Coming.

So much has been said and done in advertising a circus, that to a certain extent the public have become weary of announcements concerning them. Leon W. Washburn claims however that he has several novelties that are worthy of attention and in presenting his Museum, Menagerie, and Hippodrome he feels confident of giving the patrons of his shows the full worth of their money. He is one of the few progressive managers that believe in trying to better the style of his show every season and he is fully satisfied that this year he has the largest ensemble of first-class performers, more wild animals and more spirited contests in his hippodrome than he has ever had the pleasure of presenting to the public before. The baby lions, the little elephant, the cat minstrels, Charlie the oldest and largest elephant alive, and a hundred other attractions that amuse, mystify and fill the beholder with awe and amazement, are to be seen with his Great Allied shows this season. Captain Bailey's perilous dive from a ladder one hundred and twenty-five feet high into a life saving net below, is one of the free features of this colossal exhibition. The entire show is new and ought to fill the tent to overflowing. This show will be seen at South Quincy, Wednesday, Aug. 19.

☞ The W. R. C., 103, will hold a lawn party at Mr. G. H. Crane's, 159 Washington street, this evening. Admission to the grounds, 10 cents.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Steer and Edward Fogg were arraigned for destroying certain plants to the value of $10 the property of Benjamin M. Seelye. Case continued until Thursday morning.

Edward Sullivan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The liquors seized from John Shatzel: t Quincy were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

Merit Talks

"Merit talks" the intrinsic value of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Merit in medicine means the power to cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses actual and unequalled curative power and therefore it has true merit. When you buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, and take it according to directions, to purify your blood, or cure any of the many blood diseases, you are morally certain to receive benefit. The power to cure is there. You are not trying an experiment. It will make your blood pure, rich and nourishing, and thus drive out the germs of disease, strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mr. George Richards is resting from work at Marblehead for a week.

The Sewer Commissioners have opened an office in the Adams building.

Mr. J. C. Dorgan, manager of Derby's store, is back from his vacation.

Miss Knox of Somerville has been passing a week at Rev. Mr. Yeoman's.

Miss Lizzie Gibson has gone to visit friends at Fair Haven, Vt., for two weeks.

Wm. P. Martin leaves tonight for a few weeks' visit and rest at his farm in Maine.

Austin & Winslow lost a horse on Monday. Cause of death, overcome by the heat.

Work was suspended this noon at the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co. on account of the heat.

The excessive heat has delayed work somewhat on the Gridley Bryant school building.

Dr. Joseph W. Sheahan has sailed for Paris. The doctor is accompanied by his son George.

Mrs. J. H. Yeoman and Miss Annie Clean left Tuesday for a two weeks' stay at Wareham.

Mr. C. G. Batson and family have gone to Houghs Neck for the months of August and September.

Mr. Frank Weston of Savin Hill and Miss Spear of Quincy were guests of Mrs. Jane Clean last Sunday.

The sojourners at the beach say that the cool, easterly breeze at Houghs Neck this morning was very refreshing.

Commencing today the street cars from Hingham come through to Thomas' corner, North Weymouth without change.

Misses Ruth and Elenora Randall of Adams street are at the Pilgrim House, Plymouth, Mass., for a short visit.

Rev. Mr. Shanor, formerly of the Atlantic M. E. church, is now pastor of the Congregational church in Rochester.

Arthur Horton of the Freeman National bank, Boston, was househunting at Atlantic a few days ago. We need such citizens as he.

Many who attended the Democratic rally Tuesday night expected that Mr. Williams would make some argument in favor of free silver, but they were disappointed.

The only people who like this kind of weather are those who run soda fountains and ice cream parlors, and they are reaping a harvest of the much talked of silver coin.

It is a jolly sight to watch the bathers who flock to the shore these hot days or nights at high tide. It is a great pity, however, that Atlantic should be so poorly supplied with bath houses.

Sydney Somes, a driver for the O. T. Rogers Granite Company, was overcome by the heat at the quarry on Tuesday. He was taken to his home in East Milton, where he is in a precarious condition.

Mr. Geo. E. Todd assumed his duties as Governor of Mass. Bay Colony, U. O. P. F., last Monday evening. The Colony is in a flourishing condition with a membership of 64 and a good surplus in the treasury.

The lawn party in aid of St. John's church will be held on next Tuesday evening instead of Wednesday. Wednesday is circus day, and it is not the desire of the parish to collide.

Those of our citizens who are spending their vacations this week in cool summer resorts are fortunate in being able to escape the intense heat that has been with those who have been obliged to stay at home.

There is no more popular a resort in Ward Six than the lawn of Ex-Councilman E. G. Hall. Every day and evening during the vacation period the young people congregate and enjoy the charming hospitality of Mrs. Hall and her daughters.

There has been a good deal of joking about the Quincy yacht club's new tender. Its model bears a striking resemblance to a flatiron. It was made for hard, rough work and not for fancy rowing. On Tuesday it was floated over a 2,500 pound mooring stone and made fast. It lifted the stone and carried it off as though it were but a chip of wood, to the surprise of a large number of spectators. Ordinarily it requires two dories to lift a stone of that weight.

Reply to "Ben Bolt."

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Permit me to thank "Ben Bolt" for his courtesy in giving me the benefit of the doubt as to my sincerity. It is a courtesy to which I have always been accustomed, and the mission of it might have made me feel less at home than I feel at present in answering so many queries.

1. It is true that the ratio of silver to gold previous to 1873 was even better than 16 to 1 for a long period. But what of it? There have been times when silver was more valuable than gold. It is not so now. The demonetization of silver is not the sole cause of its fall in value. Silver, like any other product, is subject to the laws of supply and demand. Given over production a fall in value follows. The output of American mines since 1873 has been enormous. Consequently the price has fallen on account of the abundance of the supply. The assumption that the United States can increase the price of silver by free coinage without regard to the cooperation of other nations is purely an assumption.

If the great nations of the world would enter into a compact to restore silver; if with a semi-free coinage there might also be a restricted production; then the nature of the proposed change would be different. But for the United States to cast in its lot with Mexico, Russia, the Central American States, the South American States, Japan, India, China, and the Straits Settlements nations, all of which have populations and conditions diametrically opposed to the "spirit and tendency" of American institutions; this, I say, would be an act accompanied with dangers of the gravest kind.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Roumania, Servia, Austria, Hungary, the Netherlands, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Turkey, Australia, Egypt, Cuba, Hayti, Bulgaria, and the United States, have good and sufficient reasons for maintaining a gold standard? Free silver is evidently not the money of civilization.

It has been stated that the British nation has ten times as much silver as the Mexicans possess, and twice as much as that possessed by the inhabitants of the United States. If the value of this silver can be doubled by legislation why does not the Parliament of Great Britain change its $1,200,000,000 of silver into twice that sum? A question like this is asked by a Texas paper.

2. As the Rothschields, Vanderbilts, and Morgans are largely interested in the bonds of nations, states, counties, cities, and towns, it is not likely that they will compel "national as well as private creditors to go to the wall through inability to get the gold to pay either principal or interest." Men of wealth desire a sound and stable currency. It is idle to attempt to excite class feeling between the rich and the poor. Both classes are vitally interested in sound money. A man is not necessarily bad because he is rich, nor is he necessarily good because he is poor. You do not have to go out of Quincy to find numerous examples of public spirit and liberality on the part of men of wealth. It is better to consider each individual on his own merits.

3. "Strikes, lockouts, murders, suicides and riots" are not restricted to the United States. As all these unfortunate occurrences happen in countries having a silver standard as well as in those which have a gold basis. Even in the United States "strikes, lockouts, murders, suicides and riots" were by no means unknown previous to 1873. If you would learn the causes of such misfortunes, you must study the individual cases. For example some strikes are wise and justifiable, many are not. Some lockouts are unnecessary and tyrannical, some are unavoidable.

Murders and suicides may be due to alcoholism, or insanity, or inherited criminal impulse, or ungovernable passion, or a dozen other causes. A young man in Fitchburg recently inherited a handsome fortune, and committed suicide because he was afraid that his money would be stolen. Dozens of well-to-do farmers have committed suicide, because they were afraid that they might "come to want."

As to the rich and the poor the facts of the case are these: Some of the rich are growing richer; some of, the rich are growing poor; some of the rich are neither increasing nor decreasing the total of their wealth. Some of the poor are growing poorer; some of the poor are growing rich; some of the poor are growing neither richer nor poorer. Prudence, industry, temperance, perseverance and ability, have always worked wonders, and always will do so. By the wise exercise of such qualities many a man in Quincy has raised himself from poverty to wealth. And this change has taken place since 1873. Similar changes have occurred in all the countries employing the gold standard. And this fact shows that a gold standard does not prevent the poor from growing rich. The history of our country is the history of poor boys who became rich men. That process did not stop in 1873.

Free silver is not the cause of prosperity, for many a nation including the United States has been wonderfully prosperous without it. If silver is the panacea for all our ills why is Costa Rica going back to the gold standard after a disastrous struggle with the silver Chimaera? How is it that the Mexican laborer receives only 40 cents a day in his precious currency equivalent to about 20 cents in United States money? But the Mexican silver mine owners are strangely prosperous. Shall the intelligent people of the United States fall into the trap of the owners of silver mines?

Here are the prices in a country on a silver basis. I refer to Guatemala. Butter $1 per pound; ordinary wool hats $4; ordinary board $40 per month; pay of an engineer $7.30 per day, but this sum in Guatemala means only about $3.00 in the money of the United States. Engineers in the United States get higher wages than these, while the cost of living is distinctly lower. An American engineer now in Guatemala writes: "Tell my friends to do all in their power to defeat silver. If the country is placed on a silver basis, it is ruined.

4. If a man is at the head of a city High School, the law of supply and demand will undoubtedly regulate his salary. In comparison with the salaries paid head masters in similar positions, the salary of the head master of the Quincy High School is in no sense excessive. A teacher who has spent more than ten years in the preparatory school and college in order to fit himself for his profession, and who has been engaged in that profession for more than fifteen years, may fairly expect such remuneration of his services as the law of supply and demand dictates.

This salary has been paid with great regularity in paper money, all of which has been as good as gold, because "secured by bonds of the United States deposited with the United States Treasurer at Washington." No hardship whatever has been met in disposing of this salary in the markets of the world. On the contrary, there has been considerable difficulty in retaining much of it. Even if the salary had been paid in silver certificates, it would have been as good as gold, for the very reason that we have not free coinage and the government stands ready to redeem all of its currency on a gold basis. For the same reason the salary, even if paid in silver dollars, would have been as good as gold to one who had the facilities for carting home his monthly pay. Such being the case, how unwise it is to plunge from certainty into the most serious uncertainty. As to deposits in savings banks it is highly probable that wide-spread disaster would make no exception of teachers' funds. Therefore, it is fair to assume that whatever affects unfavorably the deposits of others, will also affect unfavorably the deposits of teachers.

5. In view of the ideas advocated by the adherents of silver one may well have grave doubts as to the consequences of the success of the Silver Party. Just exactly how many cents on a dollar would be paid by savings banks and insurance companies it is difficult to state. A law that will permit a man who borrowed 100 gold dollars to pay his debt with 100 dollars worth intrinsically half as much, while the government uses none of the means for maintaining the face value of such dollars,—such a law, I say, will inevitably lead to disaster so widespread and appalling, that those who receive fifty cents on a dollar, for their savings banks deposits, their insurance policies, and their real estate, will be considered fortunate.

At present, however, trusting to the honor and the intelligence of the American people, I hold my property at par. If it shall appear probable later in the campaign that the ideas of the silver men will prevail, I shall take such measures to secure my property as prudence may dictate.

I would like to ask "Ben Bolt" some questions, but this article is already too long to meet the wishes of the publishers, therefore I will wait until my next.

Faithfully yours,
FREDERIC ALLISON TUPPER.

Thieves.

It has been reported to the police that the residence of City Solicitor Blackmur was entered Monday night by burglars, who ransacked the house but as far as known nothing was taken. Entrance was made through the basement. The parties left a chisel handle and bicycle lock behind them when they took their departure.

LARGE DEATH ROLL.

Intense Heat Claims Many Victims In the Eastern States.

Boston, Aug. 12.—From all parts of the country reports of deaths and prostrations, caused by the extreme heat, continue to pour in. Up to yesterday, Boston had not sufferd as had other cities, but now Boston figures prominently in the sad record. The fatal effects of the heat experienced in many places are shown by the following reports received up to midnight: Philadelphia, 12; New York, 91; New York suburbs, 71; Middleton, Conn., 2; Fall River, 1; Nashua, N. H., 2; Baltimore, 10; Providence, 7; Washington, 3; Chicago, 30; New Haven, 3; Boston, 11; Brooklyn, 20; Lowell, 5; Malden, 1; Haverhill, 1.

How Cuba May Prosper.

London, Aug. 12.—The Times today publishes a letter from Habana, which gives the evidence of a high military officer there that 25 per cent of the Spanish troops in Cuba are on the sick list, or are unfit for duty. Discussing the desperate state of sugar industry, the letter states: Much misery on this account might be avoided, if Cuba, by purchase or otherwise, became a state of the American Union. Free Cuba may be a good catch cry in the United States, but it does not commend itself to the business people of Cuba. With the sugar and tobacco industries in their present condition, the outlook is gloomy, and Spain would do well to consider carefully any offer for the purchase of the island by the United States.

British Capital In Mexico.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—An English syndicate has just concluded a lease with the Mexican government of the Tehuantepec Isthmus railway. The terms of the lease include an agreement on the part of the syndicate to finish works already well advanced. The road itself will be greatly improved and put in first-class shape. A line of ships plying between Salina Cruez and San Francisco will be put on and deliver freight to the many lines plying in the Gulf of Mexico.

Getting After Turkey.

London, Aug. 12.—The Chronicle asserts that it learns that England and Russia are on the point of an agreement to save both Armenia and Crete from Turkish oppression, without disturbing the peace of Europe. An editorial in the same paper hints that the agreement will involve the presence of a Russian army in Armenia and of a British fleet at Crete, to guarantee Turkish compliance with the terms of the agreement.

General Uprising Not Improbable.

Athens, Aug. 12.—It is stated that the revolutionary assembly, which has been established in Crete, under the presidency of Gerokostaros, the well known Cretan leader, now 92 years old, will issue a proclamation shortly, which will be a signal for a general uprising in the Island of Crete. A state of absolute anarchy now prevails in the district of Loikilon, where the Mussulmans have burned four more villages.

Prisoner Behaved Themselves.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 12.—A fire at Anamosa penitentiary started at 9 o'clock last night, in the cellar of the prison dining room, in a short time the fire was beyond control and the entire building was destroyed, including a large library of 3000 volumes. The loss will be $20,000. The fire was brought under control about 11 o'clock, and no difficulty with the prisoners was experienced.

Five Victims of Fire.

New York, Aug. 12.—There was a fatal fire yesterday afternoon in the buildings 465, 467 and 469 Greenwich street, occupied by the A. K. Warren electrical repair works and a number of smaller firms. Five lives were lost, eight persons were injured and two are missing. The property loss will probably be $200,000.

Morrill Renominated.

Topeka, Aug. 12.—The Republican state convention, yesterday, nominated E. N. Morrill for governor. The opposition named J. F. Greenlee of Hutchinson.

THE TELEGRAM.

In an office of palatial size and magnificently appointed sat Eugene Vandergould, by profession a millionaire. The clock on his table—a tiny enameled toy, fitted with historical associations and worth far more than its weight in gold—whispered in a soft, sweet voice that it was 11 o'clock. In a fit of irritation he flung the clock into the fireplace and once more bent his attention on the papers before him. There were two of them, both in his own handwriting. The first ran:

"Mrs. Vandergould, The Hall, Dollington—Find I can be back to dinner after all. Am taking special train, reaching Dollington at 7. Send carriage to meet it. Am bringing Henry with me."

Once more he counted the words. There were 32 of them, and a telegram of 32 words costs 1 shilling and 4 pence instead of a normal sixpence. A spasm of pain passed over the millionaire's face, and he turned hurriedly to the second paper. It was as follows:

"Vandergould, Hall, Dollington—Find can return dinner. Taking special. Arrive Dollington 7. Send carriage meet. Bringing Henry."

He sighed.

Yes, it was better—much better. It had brought it down to 17 words, but 17 words cost 8 pence halfpenny, and a telegram can be sent for sixpence. "Can be!" he exclaimed. "It must be; it shall be! It shall be got down to 12 words if I die in the attempt."

A clerk knocked and entered. A royal duke had called to see Eugene Vandergould by appointment. The millionaire stamped his foot impatiently.

"Tell him," he said, "that I'm sorry, but I can't see him. I am particularly busy this morning. He can call again on Wednesday if he likes."

He buried his head in his hands and ground his heel into the priceless Persian carpet. Light broke at last. The word Hall in the address was unessential and could be struck out. A few more moments' thought and light broke again. "Arrive 7" would do just as well as "arrive Dollington 7." He had got it to 15 words now. Three more words cut out and his task would be accomplished.

His secretary entered, white to the lips. An important cable had arrived from the manager of the mine belonging to a company of which Vandergould was a director. The cable ran:

"Mine flooded. All the gold stolen during night. Hands have struck. Entire machinery burned down. But am doing my best."

"I do wish," said Vandergould, "you wouldn't bother me with these trifles when I'm busy."

Only three more words to go! If he could have struck out "Send carriage meet," the thing would have been done. But he could not take it for granted that the carriage would meet him in any case. He had given general instructions that it was never to meet him unless ordered. That little walk from the station to his house was often the only exercise that he got in the day, and he valued that exercise for his health's sake.

At 1 o'clock, when Vandergould entered an adjoining room for luncheon, the telegram still stood at 15 words. He ate little and kept the copy of the telegram before him.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon it was impossible to wait any longer. The telegram now ran:

"Vandergould, Dollington—Shall return dinner by special, arriving 7, with Henry. Send carriage."

It was 13 words, just one word too many. He summoned a clerk and told him to have it sent off.

"It will be," he seemed to speak with difficulty, "it will be sixpence halfpenny." His face was distorted with mental anguish and his prolonged effort at compression of style. The clerk had hardly shut the door before a pistol shot rang through the building.

They found Vandergould dead on the floor, killed by his own hand.

* * * * * * *

At the inquest the clerk gave evidence that the deceased had sent a telegram of 13 words which might have been brought down to 10.

A juror asked if he was sure of this.

The coroner said that if it was so it practically settled the case.

The clerk read the telegram as given him. He then pointed out that it might have run:

"Vandergould, Dollington—Arriving by special, 7, with Henry. Send carriage." The words "Shall return dinner" were immaterial, as the sense of them would be understood from the fact that he was arriving at 7.

The coroner said that it could be hardly necessary to take up the time of the jury with further evidence, and they at once returned a verdict of "temporary insanity."—Barry Pani in Today.

Says Davis Was Not Disguised.

One point which has always been warmly contested concerns the costume worn by Jefferson Davis at the time of his capture. The first official dispatches declared that the Confederate president wore a full outfit of his wife's clothing as a disguise. This point has been strongly controverted by Davis and his friends. Casper Knobell of 2574 Frankford avenue, Philadelphia, who was one of the captors, declares that Davis did not wear women's clothes. Knobell was a private in Troop A, Fourth Michigan cavalry, and has the documents to substantiate his assertion that he was one of the captors. He says that he and Corporal Munger of his troop were the first men to reach Davis' tent and that Mr. Davis wore a gray suit and no feminine garments, excepting a light shawl, which Mrs. Davis threw over his shoulders. Mr. Knobell has been a resident of Philadelphia since the war and is an active member of cavalry post No. 35, G. A. R.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WEYMOUTH LANDING—W. E. Cunningham.

NO. WEYMOUTH—B. F. Thomas.

The Man of the World.

Only a little brown woman, she;
Man of the world and profligate, he.
Hard and conscienceless, cynical, yet
Somehow, when he and the woman met,
He saw what other there is in life
Than passion feeding and careless strife.
There came resolve and a sense of shame,
For she made as his motto, "Faith and fame."

The world is foolish; we cover truth;
We're barred by the gates that we built in youth.
Two were they surely, and two might stay,
But she turned him into the better way.
His thoughts were purified, even when
He chafed and raged at the might have been.
He learned that living is not a whim,
For the soul in her entered into him.

The Louisville Cycle Meet.

Louisville, Aug. 12.—Wheelmen have poured into the city from all sections of the country. The weather, though hot, is tempered with a good breeze. Yesterday's program consisted of a number of runs to different parks on the outskirts of the city and to Mount Washington. The wheelmen also visited the stock farms and other points of interest near Louisville. Last night, from 8 to 12 o'clock, a "smoker" was held at the headquarters.

Lasker Takes First Prize.

Nuremberg, Aug. 12.—After the conclusion of the Tarrasch vs. Albin game, won by Tarrasch yesterday, the prizes in the international chess mast s' tournament, which has been in progress in this city since July 20, were awarded as follows: First prize, Lasker; second prize, Maroczy; third and fourth prizes divided by Pillsbury and Tarrasch; fifth prize, Janowski; sixth prize, Steinitz; seventh prize, divided by Schlechter and Walbrodt.

Was It Andree's Balloon?

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—The following telegram, dated Aug. 10, was received by the Indian department yesterday from its agent at Victoria, B. C.: "Creditable information received by Agent Lomas from two Indian parties, separated by long distances at time of observation, says that the Andres balloon had been sighted at lat. 55.15, long. 127.40, pursuing a nearly northerly course.

Italy Is Irritated.

Rome, Aug. 12.—The government has sent a dispatch to Baron Fava, Italian ambassador at Washington, directing him to forward to Rome at once precise detailed information concerning the lynching of three Italians near New Orleans on Sunday last. The Italian newspapers are filled with articles on the subject, inciting the government to take energetic action in the matter.

Routes and Rates for Summer Tours.

The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. illustrated book, "Routes and Rates for Summer Tours," published for gratuitous distribution, will be mailed to any address, upon receipt of 10 cents for postage, on application to Theo. Butterfield, General Passenger Agent, Syracuse, N. Y.

This book is exceedingly handsome and has many new features this year. It contains 100 new, beautiful half-tone illustrations of the principal scenery in the county described by the book. These pictures are faithful reproductions of actual scenes.

The book has 150 illustrations, seven very valuable maps, a list of 800 hotels and boarding houses, and routes and rates for 600 combination tours. It is the handsomest book of its character published, and describes all the country from Niagara Falls east to the Atlantic Ocean, including the St. Lawrence River, Canada, White Mountains, Green Mountains, Adirondack Mountains, and the sea-coast resorts of Maine and New England. 10t

TAKING A BRIEF REST.

Bryan Was All Tired Out When He Reached New York Metropolis.

His Right Hand Disabled and Voice In Bad Shape.

"Silver Dick" and Mrs. Bryan Helped Please Large Crowds Yesterday.

New York, Aug. 12.—The free silver army of the south and west, under command of its leader and candidate for the presidency, William J. Bryan, is in the enemy's country. The candidate and his party effected the invasion last evening, about 9 o'clock, when, after a ride from Pittsburg, by way of Philadelphia, they arrived in Jersey City. Mr. Bryan was travel-stained, voice-strained and hand-weary.

He was met at the station by Chairman James K. Jones of the national committee; Arthur Sewall, candidate for vice president; Treasurer St. John, J. W. Tomlinson of Georgia, and Sergeant-at-Arms Oliver. The police arrangements were very bad in Jersey City, and there was a delay of 20 minutes, during which the thousands of men and women fought to get a glimpse of the candidate.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were driven to the house of William P. St. John, 121 East Twenty-seventh street. Here the candidate gave a brief reception to newspaper reporters, and then devoted the rest of the evening to listening to the trouble which is raging in the national committee.

Mr. Bryan wants the committee relentlessly purged of gold men. Chairman Jones told New England free silver men who want an active campaign in their own states, that the national committee would not try to carry any states north of the Potomac or east of the Alleghenies.

An effort will be made to get Mr. Bryan to abandon his trip to Maine, because it would look like an effort to reduce the Republican majority in September, which is regarded as impossible.

Mr. Bryan's trip through Pennsylvania, while not a triumphal march, was one which indicated that he has a hold on many voters of that state. Big crowds turned out at almost every stop and many demands were made for speeches. Owing to the huskiness of his voice he was unable to respond to these demands, but Mr. Bland and Mrs. Bryan succeeded in keeping the crowds in good humor. Mr. Bryan was greeted on the way from Philadelphia by crowds varying in number from 300 to 3000. The latter gathering was at Newark, where the red fire and noise appeared to culminate.

Mr. Bland and other members of the Bryan party expressed the greatest surprise at the demonstrations en route. As the train neared the eastern end of Pennsylvania the confidence of the Bryan men increased. At Harrisburg Mr. Bland swung his hat in his hand, and declared that the Nebraskan would carry the state.

The reporters were invited to meet Mr. Bryan at 10 o'clock. Half an hour later Mr. St. John received them in the dining room of his house, and gave out for publication this statement:

"Neither Mr. Bryan nor Mrs. Bryan nor Mr. Sewall will receive at all during Wednesday. Mr. Bryan will speak briefly from the Broadway balcony of the Hotel Bartholdi, corner of Twenty-third street, after the Madison Square meeting, Wednesday night. Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, on the invitation of the proprietor of the Windsor hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. Sewall will receive the people on the Fifth avenue stoop. Positively no handshaking will be allowed. Thursday at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Sewall will receive women only in the large parlor of the Windsor hotel. No formal addresses will be received. Now," said Mr. St. John, "Mr. Bryan will see you for five minutes, but he will not talk, and he will not shake hands. He is thoroughly worn out."

The folding doors dividing the parlor from the dining room were then opened, and Mr. Bryan appeared. He looked utterly tired out, and as if he had not slept soundly for a week. He complained that his right hand was disabled, but nevertheless he started in to shake hands.

Mr. St. John interposed and declared that there should be no handshaking. The same injunction was declared in respect to Mr. Sewall, who appeared and stood beside Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan was so hoarse that the few words of greeting he said to the reporters were barely audible across the room. Mr. Bryan said that he did not know where he would go when he left New York. He would be guided by the wishes of the campaign committee.

Hanna Consults Employers.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Chairman Hanna of the Republican national committee spent very little time at headquarters yesterday. He devoted most of his time among men in the leading clubs and enlisting men for service in the coming struggle. After looking through his mail he drove around to see the big manufacturers, merchants and the employers of many men. He is reported as saying that the best way to reach the great armies of voters and workmen is to consult with those who employ them, and to that end it has been arranged, it is said, for employers to hold meetings in their shops and factories for the purpose of educating employes on current issues. He has ordered a long distance telephone put in between headquarters here and those in New York, so that the two offices can be in constant communication and maintain a complete system of exchangeable reports. Mayor Dick of Akron, O., who will be Chairman Hanna's Chicago secretary and right-hand man, and Colonel W. C. Haskell of Cleveland, who is to be sergeant-at-arms, in charge of headquarters here, arrived yesterday. United States Senator Brown of Utah and other prominent men throughout the country called at headquarters and made encouraging reports.

Corrections Necessary.

Washington, Aug. 12. — Messrs. McMillan, Richardson and Fithian left the Democratic headquarters last night for New York, to take part in the Bryan notification meeting. Mr. Richardson will confer with Chairman Jones as to rectifying two errors which crept into the platform. Mr. Richardson acted as the chairman of the convention at the time the platform was adopted. One of these corrections relates to the amendment of Senator Hill to the financial plank, declaring that existing contracts shall not be affected by any change in the financial standard. This appears in the official draft of the platform, although Mr. Richardson says it was not adopted. The other change is verbal, and relates to the plank limiting the tenure of office. These corrections in the platform must be made before Mr. Bryan is notified.

Palmer Doesn't Want Presidency.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 12.—Charles Ewing of Decatur, chairman of the gold standard Democratic state committee, was in the city yesterday, in conference with Senator John M. Palmer. At the conclusion of the conference, Chairman Ewing issued the call for the state convention of gold Democrats, to be held Aug. 27, in Chicago. Senator Palmer states he would refuse to accept a nomination for president.

Bentley on the Road.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 12.—C. E. Bentley, candidate for president of the National party, left yesterday for an active tour on the stump. He will spend two weeks in Indiana and Illinois, thence going to New England for a number of engagements. On his return he will doubtless go for a few weeks to the Pacific coast, closing the campaign in Nebraska.

Li May Visit Yankee Land.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Arrangements are progressing for the reception of Li Hung Chang, when he arrives in this country on the 28th inst. The Chinese minister and his suite will go to New York to receive the earl, by which title Li Hung Chang is known among his countrymen of rank. Ex-Secretary John W. Foster will take part in the reception. Besides the visits to Washington and Philadelphia, which Li will make, strong efforts are being made to have his trip extend to Boston, where a reception will be given him. The first arrangements were such as to make the Boston visit impossible, but it is felt among the officials here that after arrival some changes will be made, so as to permit the Boston trip. General Miles and others, representing various branches of the government, will confer with the Chinese minister here as to the arrangements for the reception. It is probable an officer of the army and one from the navy will be assigned to meet the Chinese statesman and accompany him on his trip. It is probable also that a detail of troops from Governor's island will take part in the reception at New York, and that a troop of cavalry from Fort Meyer will assist in the exercises here.

Sequel to Triple Lynching.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The attention of Ambassador Fava, who is now at Bar Harbor, has been called to the lynching of three Italians at a place called Hahnville, La., last Saturday night, and in turn he has applied to the state department for information upon the subject. His telegram has been forwarded through the department, to the governor of Louisiana, thus following the same procedure as was observed upon the occasion of the lynching of members of the Mafia in New Orleans several years ago. It is presumed that the governor will call upon the district attorney for a report for the information of the department of state, and thus initiate another international incident, and pave the way for the payment of indemnity.

Tailors Going Back to Work.

New York, Aug. 12.—Two hundred and forty contractors have settled with the Brotherhood of Tailors, enabling 4500 men to return to work. Sixty co-operative shops have been opened by the union, in which 800 men will receive employment. The clothing workers of Philadelphia sent for Leader Shoenfeld yesterday, to make speeches to them and urge them to go on strike. They assert that the New York manufacturers intend to send their goods to Philadelphia to be made up. Twenty-five trousers makers contractors settled with the Pants Makers' union yesterday.

Twenty-Five Firemen Overcome.

Norfolk, Aug. 12.—A terrible conflagration broke out here last night, destroying the Atlantic sawmills, the old Dominion guano factory and the Merritt wrecking warehouse and the docks. The fire covered several blocks on the water front in Atlantic City ward, and was fiercely fought by the firemen. The heat was terrible, and no less than 25 firemen were stricken down at their post of duty and removed to the hospital and their homes. The loss will reach $100,000.

Jim Hall In Jail.

Coney Island, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Jim Hall, the pugilist, who was arrested at the Academy of Music in New York, as he was about to don the gloves with Steve O'Donnell for a six-round go, on the charge of defrauding Garret Katens, a Coney Island hotel keeper, out of $218, due for board, was arraigned in West Brighton yesterday, pleaded not guilty, and was held in $1000 bail for examination on the 19th. He was taken to Raymond Street jail.

Li Won't Make Promises.

London, Aug. 12.—There was a large gathering at the reception tendered by the merchants of London to Li Hung Chang yesterday. Among those present was the Japanese minister. Through an interpreter, the Chinese envoy replied to the address of welcome, and said in part, that it was a wrong principle for a statesman to make promises, adding that, however, he would endeavor to extend the railroads and commerce of China.

Fifty-Eight Years on the Throne.

London, Aug. 12.—Queen Victoria has issued a message to the nation, thanking the people for their expressions of loyalty and affection as the period approaches when the length of her reign will have exceeded that of any other English monarch, but asking that any national celebration be reserved until she has completed 60 years of her reign. Queen Victoria was crowned on June 28, 1838.

Bay State Stands High.

London, Aug. 12.—A financial article in The Times today, in commenting upon the issue of Massachusetts gold bonds, gives special mention to the creditable record of Massachusetts in always having her liabilities in gold, even at periods when she was legally justfied in paying them in paper.

Killed Herself.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Frank Remington was found dead in the bathroom of her house Saturday night. The death certificate was signed by the board of health, but not by the coroner. Now it is stated that Mrs. Remington committed suicide by stabbing herself in the neck with a knife. No reason is assigned for the act. She was the widow of the late Rev. Frank Remington.

Falling Off In Internal Revenue.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—The internal revenue collections for the month of July, for the district embracing Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, amounted to $90,182.26. For the same month of 1895 the receipts were $96,112.77. The figures show a falling off this month of nearly $6000.

Left No Will.

Providence, Aug. 12. — It has been learned that George J. Webb, the leading criminal lawyer of the state, died without leaving a will. His widow and Thomas F. Webb, a brother, have applied for papers of administration. The estate is worth several thousand dollars

A WOMAN'S STORY.

It Should Be of Interest to Every Thinking Woman.

Women who reason well know that no male physician can understandingly treat the complaint known as "female diseases," for no man ever experienced them.

This, Lydia E. Pinkham taught them twenty years ago, when she discovered in her Vegetable Compound the only successful cure for all those ailments peculiar to the sex. Many women have a fatal faith in their physician, and not till they can suffer no longer, will they think and act for themselves.

The following testimony is straight to the point, and represents the experience of hundreds of thousands of now grateful women: "For six years I was a great sufferer from those internal weaknesses so prevalent among our sex. After having received treatment from four physicians of our city and finding no relief whatever, I concluded to try Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has proved a boon to me. It can truly be called a "Saviour of Women."—Miss. B. A. PERHAM, Waynesboro, Pa.

SAVED FROM THE SURGEONS KNIFE

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, Saves a Man From Becoming a Cripple.

Mr. Asa Ammons, a well-known citizen of Jacksonville, Florida, was afflicted by a terrible ulcer. Medical skill seemed unavailing in stopping the ravages of the terrible disease. The leg was swollen and intensely painful, as the ulcer had eaten its way down to the very bone. All medicines and treatments having failed to effect a cure, the doctors said the leg must come off. Just when it seemed that Mr. Ammons would become a disabled and a crippled man, he tried P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and the result was wonderful.

P. P. P. SAVES HIS LEG.

"Jacksonville, Fla., July 1, 1895.—Two years ago I had the worst ulcer on my leg I ever saw. It had eaten down to the bone, and my whole leg below my knee, and my foot was swollen and inflamed. The bone was swollen and painful, and discharged a most offensive matter. My physicians said I had necrosis of the bone, and my leg would have to come off. At this stage I commenced to take P. P. P. and to bathe my leg with hot castile soap suds. It began to improve at once and healed rapidly, and is to day a sound and useful leg.

"I think P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is all a man could ask for as a blood purifier, as I have known it to cure so meterrible cases of blood poisoning in a remarkably short time.

"ASA AMMONS."

TERRIBLE BLOOD POISON.

The body covered with sores—two bottles of P. P. P. made a positive and permanent cure. This is only one of many thousand similar cases.

Catarrh yields at once to P. P. P. That smothered feeling at night, that heavy feeling in the day—can and should be removed; P. P. P. will do it if you only give it a chance.

Indigestion and constipation go hand in hand. Headaches and total loss of appetite are the results. Regulate yourself and tone up your stomach with P. P. P.

Bryan and Sewall Accept Nominations Tendered by Democrats.

Bryan Discusses Money Question at Great Length.

Free Coinage, Without Waiting For Any Other Nation, the Slogan.

Some 20,000 gathered at Madison Square garden last evening, where William J. Bryan and Arthur Sewall were formally notified of their nomination by the Democratic party for president and vice president.

The speech of the young statesman from the west occupies six columns, and is printed in full in today's issue:

Mr. Bryan read from manuscript, but occasionally he dropped the sheets of paper and spoke earnestly and vehemently without looking at them. During Mr. Bryan's speech he was frequently interrupted by cheers of approval. His reference to the income tax was loudly cheered, as was also his reference to the sale of bonds.

The audience also manifested approval at various stages of his free silver argument. When some of the more telling points in this discussion were reached the audience yelled with all its might.

Mr. Sewall's speech of acceptance was very brief. He said that the Chicago convention was the greatest and most earnest convention in the history of the party. It was closer and more in touch with the people. The delegates were there to voice the sentiments of their constituents, the people of the party, for the people of the party controlled and conducted that convention. Mr. Sewall declared that unequivocally and through sincere congratulation he endorsed the platform on which he had been nominated. "I believe we are right," said Mr. Sewall, "the people are with us, and what they declare is always right and must prevail. I accept the nomination, and with the people's confirmation, every effort of which God shall render me capable will be exerted in support of the principles involved."

MR. BRYAN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Convention and Fellow Citizens:

I shall, at some future day and in a formal letter, accept the nomination which is now tendered by the notification committee, and I shall at that time touch upon the issues presented by the platform. It is fitting, however, that at this time, in the presence of those here assembled, I speak at some length in regard to the campaign upon which we are now entering. We do not underestimate the forces arrayed against us, nor are we unmindful of the importance of the struggle in which we are engaged, but relying for success upon the righteousness of our cause, we shall defend, with all possible vigor, the positions taken by our party. We are not surprised that some of our opponents, in the absence of better argument, resort to abusive epithets, but they may rest assured that no language, however violent, no invectives, however vehement, will lead us to depart a single hair's breadth from the course marked out by the national convention. The citizen, either public or private, who assails the character and questions the patriotism of the delegates assembled in the Chicago convention, assails the character and questions the patriotism of the millions who have arrayed themselves under the banner there raised.

It has been charged by men standing high in business and political circles, that our platform is a menace to private security and public safety, and it has been asserted that those whom I have the honor, for the time being to represent, not only meditate an attack upon the rights of property, but are the foes both of social order and national honor.

Those who stand upon the Chicago platform are prepared to make known, and to defend, every motive which influences them, every purpose which animates them, and every hope which inspires them. They understand the genius of our institutions—they are staunch supporters of the form of government under which we live, and they build their faith upon foundations laid by the fathers. Andrew Jackson has stated, with admirable clearness, and with an emphasis which cannot be surpassed, both the duty and the sphere of government. He said: "Distinctions in society will always exist under every just government. Equality of talents, of education, or of wealth cannot be produced by human institutions. In the full enjoyment of the gifts of heaven and the fruits of superior industry, economy and virtue, every man is equally entitled to protection by law."

We yield to none in our devotion to the doctrine just enunciated. Our campaign has not for its object the reconstruction of society. We cannot insure to the vicious the fruits of a virtuous life; we would not invade the home of the provident in order to supply the wants of the supposed thrift; we do not propose to transfer the rewards of industry to the lap of indolence. Property is and will remain the stimulus to endeavor and the compensation for it. We believe what is asserted in the Declaration of Independence, that all men are created equal; but that does not mean that all men are, or can be equal in possessions, in ability, or in merit; it simply means that all shall stand equal before the law, and that government officials shall not, in making, constructing or enforcing the law, discriminate between citizens.

I assert that property rights, as well as the rights of persons, are safe in the hands of the common people. Abraham Lincoln, in his mesage sent to congress in December, 1861, said: "No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty; none less inclined to take or touch aught which they have not honestly earned." I repeat his language with unqualified approval, and join with him in the warning which he added, namely: "Let them beware of surrendering a political power which they already possess, and which power, if surrendered, will surely be used to close the doors of advancement against such as they, and to fix new disabilities and burdens upon them, till all of liberty shall be lost." Those who daily follow the injunction, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," are now, as they ever have been, the bulwark of law and order—the source of our nation's greatness in time of peace, and its surest defenders in time of war.

But I have only read a part of Jackson's utterance—let me give you his conclusion: "But when the laws undertake to add to those natural and just advantages artificial distinctions—to grant titles, gratuities and exclusive privileges—to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful—the humble members of society—the farmers, mechanics and the day laborers—who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors for themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their government." Those who support the Chicago platform endorse all of the quotation from Jackson—the latter part, as well as the former part.

Opposition as an Endorsement.

We are not surprised to find arrayed against us those who are the beneficiaries of government favoritism—they have read our platform. Nor are we surprised to learn that we must in this campaign face the hostility of those who find a pecuniary advantage in advocating the doctrine of non-interference when great aggregations of wealth are trespassing on the rights of individuals. We welcome such opposition—it is the highest endorsement which could be bestowed upon us. We are content to have the co-operation of those who desire to have the government administered without fear or favor. It is not the wish of the general public that trusts should spring into existence and override the weaker members of society; it is not the wish of the general public that these trusts should destroy competition and then collect such tax as they will from those who are at their mercy; nor is it the fault of the general public that the instrumentalities of government have been so often prostituted to purposes of private gain. Those who stand upon the Chicago platform believe that the government should not only avoid wrongdoing, but that it should also prevent wrongdoing; and they believe that the law should be enforced alike against all enemies of the public weal. They do not excuse petit larceny, but they declare that grand larceny is equally a crime; they do not defend the occupation of the highwayman, who robs the unsuspecting traveler, but they include among the transgressors those who, through the more polite and less hazardous means of legislation appropriate to their own use the proceeds of the toil of others.

The commandment, "thou shalt not steal," thundered from Sinai and reiterated in the legislation of all nations, is no respecter of persons. No government is worthy of the name which is not able to protect from every arm uplifted for his injury the humblest citizen who lives beneath the flag. It follows as a necessary conclusion that vicious legislation must be remedied by the people who suffer from the effects of such legislation, and not by those who enjoy its benefits.

Right to Dissent.

The Chicago platform has been condemned by some, because it dissents from an opinion rendered by the supreme court, declaring the income tax law unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered that we expressly recognize the binding force of that decision so long as it stands as a part of the law of the land. There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the supreme court. The party is simply pledged to use "all the constitutional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may hereafter be constituted." Is there any disloyalty in that pledge? When courts allow rehearings they admit that error is possible; the late decision against the income tax was rendered by a majority of one after a rehearing. While the money question overshadows all other questions in importance, I desire it distinctly understood that I shall offer no apology for the income tax plank of the Chicago platform.

Not only shall I refuse to apologize for the advocacy of an income tax law by the national convention, but I shall also refuse to apologize for the exercise by it of the right to dissent from a decision of the supreme court. In a government like ours, every public official is a public servant, and the people have a right to criticize his official acts. Truth will vindicate itself; only error fears free speech. No public official, who conscientiously discharges his duty as he sees it, will desire to deny to those whom he serves the right to discuss his official conduct.

Now let me ask you to consider the paramount question of this campaign—it is scarcely necessary to defend the principle of bimetallism. No national party during the entire history of the United States has ever declared against it, and no party in this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties—the Democratic, Populist and Silver parties—have not only declared for bimetallism, but have outlined the specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position by the side of gold. The Republican platform expressly declares that bimetallism is desirable when it pledges the Republican party to accord in securing it, as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. Those who represented the minority sentiment in the Chicago convention opposed the free coinage of silver by the United States by independent action, on the ground that, in their judgment, it "would retard or entirely prevent the establishment of international bimetallism—to which the efforts of the government should be steadily directed." When they asserted that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed toward the establishment of international bimetallism, they condemned monometallism. The gold standard has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Take from it the power of the support of the money-owning and the money-changing classes, and it cannot stand for one day in any nation in the world. It was fastened upon the United States without discussion before the people, and its friends have never yet been willing to risk a verdict before the voters upon that issue.

There can be no sympathy or co-operation between the advocates of a universal gold standard and the advocates of bimetallism. Between bimetallism—whether independent or international—and the gold standard there is an impassible gulf.

The Test of Honesty.

What is the test of honesty in money? It must certainly be found in the purchasing power of the dollar. An absolutely honest dollar would not vary in its general purchasing power; it would be absolutely stable when measured by average prices. A dollar which increases in purchasing power is just as dishonest as a dollar which decreases in purchasing power.

It cannot be successfully claimed that monometallism or bimetallism, or any other system gives an absolutely just standard of value. Under both monometallism and bimetallism the government fixes the weight and fineness of the dollar, invests it with legal tender qualities, and then opens the mints to its unrestricted coinage, leaving the purchasing power of the dollar to be determined by the number of dollars. Bimetallism is better than monometallism, not because it gives us a perfect dollar—that is, a dollar absolutely unvarying in its general purchasing power—but because it makes a nearer approach to stability, to honesty, to justice, than a gold standard possibly can. Any legislation which lessens the world's stock of standard money increases the exchangeable value of the dollar; therefore, the crusade against silver must inevitably raise the purchasing power of money and lower the money value of all other forms of property.

Our opponents sometimes admit that it was a mistake to demonetize silver, but insist that we should submit to present conditions rather than return to the bimetallic system. They err in supposing that we have reached the end of the evil results of a gold standard; we have not reached the end. The injury is a continuing one, and no person can say how long the world is to suffer from the attempt to make gold the only standard money. The same influences which are now operating to destroy silver in the United States will, if successful here, be turned against other silver-using countries, and each new convert to the gold standard will add to the general distress. So long as the scramble for gold continues prices must fall, and a general fall in prices is but another definition of hard times.

Our opponents, while claiming entire disinterestedness for themselves, have appealed to the selfishness of nearly every class of society. Recognizing the disposition of the individual voter to consider the effect of any proposed legislation upon himself, we present to the American people the financial policy outlined in the Chicago platform, believing that it will result in the greatest good to the greatest number. The farmers are opposed to the gold standard because they have felt its effects. Since they sell at wholesale and buy at retail, they have lost more than they have gained by falling prices, and besides this, they have found certain fixed charges have not fallen at all. Taxes have not been perceptibly decreased, although it requires more of farm products now than formerly to secure the money with which to pay taxes. Debts have not fallen. The farmer who owed $1000 is still compelled to pay $1000, although it may be twice as difficult as formerly to obtain the dollars with which to pay taxes. Railroads rates have not been reduced to keep pace with falling prices, and besides these items there are many more. The farmer has thus found it more and more difficult to live. Has he a just complaint against the gold standard?

The wage-earners have been injured by a gold standard. They know that while a gold standard raises the purchasing power of the dollar, it also makes it more difficult to obtain possession of the dollar; they know that employment is less permanent, loss of work more probable, and re-employment less certain.

A gold standard encourages the hoarding of money, because money is rising. It also discourages enterprise and paralyzes industry. On the other hand, the restoration of bimetallism will discourage hoarding, because, when prices are steady or rising, money cannot afford to lie idle in the bank vaults. The farmer and wage-earner together constitute a considerable majority of the people of the country. Why should their interests be ignored in considering financial legislation? A monetary system which is pecuniarly advantageous to a few syndicates has far less to commend it than a system which would give hope and encouragement to those who create the nation's wealth.

Sherman and Blaine Quoted.

Let me say a word now in regard to certain persons who are pecuniarily benefited by a gold standard, and who favor it, not from a desire to trespass upon the rights of others, but because the circumstances which surround them bind them to the effort of the gold standard upon others. I shall ask you to consider the language of two gentlemen whose long public service and high standing in the party to which they belong, will protect them from adverse criticism by our opponents. In 1869 Senator Sherman said: "The contraction of the currency is a far more distressing operation than senators supposed. Our own and other nations have gone through the operation before. It is not possible to take that voyage without the sorest distress. To every person, except a capitalist out of debt, or a salaried officer or annuitant, it is a period of loss, danger lassitude of trade, fall of wages, suspension of enterprise, bankruptcy and disaster. It means ruin to all dealers whose debts are twice their business capital, though one-third less than their actual property. It means the fall of agricultural production, without any great reduction in taxes. What prudent man would dare to build a house, a railroad, a factory or a barn with this certain fact before him?"

As I have said before, the salaried officer referred to must be the man whose salary is fixed for life, and not the man whose salary depends upon business conditions. When Mr. Sherman describes contraction of the currency as disastrous to all the people except capitalists out of debt, and those who stand in a position similar to his, he is stating a truth which must be apparent to every person who will give the matter careful consideration. Mr. Sherman was at that time speaking of the contraction of the volume of paper currency, but the principle which he set for applies, if there is a contraction of the volume of the standard money of the world.

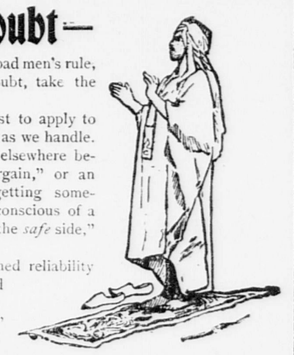

Mr. Blaine discussed the same principle in connection with the demonetization of silver. Speaking in the house of representatives on Feb. 7, 1878, he said: "I believe the struggle now going on in this country and other countries for a single gold standard would, if successful, produce widespread disaster in and throughout the commercial world. The destruction of silver as money, and the establishing of gold as the sole unit of value, must have a ruinous effect on all forms of property, except those invested which yield a fixed return in money. These would be enormously enhanced in value, and would gain a disproportionate and unfair advantage over every other specie of property."

Is it strange that the "holders of investments which yield a fixed return in money" can regard the destruction of silver with complacency? May we not expect the holders of other forms of

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to supply the losses from excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily; it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of digestion to healthy action. Cures Rheumatic, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

SHOULD THERE not be a system for removing rubbish from gutters and street corners in the business centre? Cannot city teams for a nominal sum collect what may be put in barrels and remove it? Property owners should keep the rear of their places neater and our streets would present a more modern appearance. They are not up to date. In conversation with the Commissioner of Public Works, he alluded to the enormous amount of work needed in Quincy and the inadequate appropriation. This is doubtless true, yet our citizens must do more to help Quincy be a source of pride, as it is not these days. More public spirit, more pride in these things is needed. It means work, thought and some expense, but it should be more generally done.

THIS TERRIBLE hot wave is a strong reminder of what Australia has recently passed through. The atmosphere became practically "burnt out" so that it was almost impossible for man or beast to live in some sections. Yesterday, Mr. John Cavanagh of Houghs Neck, lost a valuable cow, death being caused by a sunstroke. A pet canary at Wollaston also died yesterday from the same cause. The heat is so intense that several of the granite dealers are doing their Boston teaming at night.

QUINCY YACHTSMEN can justly feel a little puffed up, at the fact that four of the five first prizes given yesterday at the Corinthian races off Marblehead were taken by Quincy boats. Our Mayor, laying aside cares of state, took a first prize and Ex-Commodore Henry M. Faxon followed suit, as did also Mr. John T. Cavanagh in his Beatrice. The young aspirant, Mr. Harold B. Faxon, was not left, taking first in his class. Hurrah for our Quincy boys this time.

ANOTHER HOT day was experienced yesterday, although the heat was not so severe as on the previous days. At times during the day there was an easterly breeze. There were twelve deaths and sixty prostrations in Boston. It was somewhat cooler during the night, and many arose this morning more refreshed than at any time this week. The thermometer is lower today, and there is a fine northerly breeze.

OWING TO the severe heat, the Wollaston Laundry and many other places were oblige to stop work one or two days the first of the week. But now, since the slight change in the atmosphere last night, work has been resumed and the Laundry Company is in hopes to complete all orders by Saturday night.

THE BEAUTIFUL shower this morning helped to cool the parched earth, and made it more delightful for both man and beast. After the intense heat of the past week a shower is very refreshing, if only for a short duration.

A FEW FACTS.

Relating to Marriages and Deaths in '95 and '96, from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1.

It is a little surprising how near the total number of marriages and deaths of one year come to those of another year for a corresponding period. Take this year for instance, it seems as though there had been less marriages and deaths this year than in 1895, but when compared side by side, it is found that the total number of marriages recorded this year between January 1 and August 1, is six more than in the corresponding period last year; while in the deaths the number recorded this year is two less than in 1895 for the same period.

When the two years are compared month by month it will be seen that there seems to be certain popular months for marriages, while as far as deaths are concerned one month seems to be equally as healthy as another although if anything the month of February is the healthiest month while June seems to be the popular month for marriages.

The following table compiled from the records of the City Clerk gives the marriages and deaths from Jan. 1, to Aug. 1, for 1895 and 1896 side by side.

	Marriages.		Deaths.

A Few Questions.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Allow me through your columns to ask "Ben Bolt" some questions:

1. "The world's production of silver in 1873 was 61,000,000 ounces; in 1895 it was 165,000,000. In the former year the silver in a dollar was worth $1.04 in gold; in the latter, .50 7-10 cents." Now supposing that demonetization of silver had not taken place, is there any good reason for thinking that the increased supply would not have lowered the value? If so, what is the reason?

2. Has the fact that within a few years the United States has purchased $625,000,000 worth of silver, prevented that metal's price from falling?

3. Is it not true, that Venezuela, on a silver basis, the rate of interest is from ten to twelve per cent., while across the line in British Guiana on a gold basis, the rate of interest is from four to six per cent?

4 Does not a higher rate of interest indicate a greater scarcity of money?

5. Was not the demonetization of silver in 1873 a calm and deliberate act? If there was any secrecy about the matter, how do you account for the fact that the Congressional Globe contains 196 columns of speeches on the subject?

6. Was the dollar substituted in 1873 for the silver dollar a more expensive one?

7. Has the country enjoyed no prosperity since 1873?

8. What has been the increase in population and wealth since 1873?

9. If the condition of American laborers is not superior to that of laborers in the principal silver and bimetallic countries, why do not our laborers emigrate from this country to those?

10. In which one of the silver countries would "Ben Bolt" live in preference to living in the United States?

11. What is the average number of revolutions annually in the silver countries of Central and South America?

12. Can you prove that gold has actually appreciated since 1873? If so, will you kindly give us the demonstration? Mr. Reed says: "whether gold has appreciated or not, I do not suppose any man knows."

13. Where is the silver sentiment strongest?

14. Is this sentiment stronger among debtors or creditors?

15. What are the comparative ability and experience of American statesmen and political economists advocating the different views on the silver question?

16. If workingmen expect higher wages under a silver administration, and are encouraged to hope for such wages, would it not be well for such laborers to get a written promise of increased wages from their sanguine employers? Such is the suggestion of a southern journal.

17. Has "Ben Bolt" any objections to signing his or her name to the articles appearing in the LEDGER above the assumed name "Ben Bolt"?

Faithfully yours,
FREDERIC ALLISON TUPPER.

More Evidence Against Willis.

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 13.—A bicycle found in Bristol harbor was identified yesterday afternoon by Irving Lincoln as the one he rode on the night of June 22, when Fred S. Strange was shot at Whites' four corners. He was standing with Strange when Willis, the alleged murderer, took the wheel from him and escaped on it. Since his capture, Willis has told the police where he left the wheel, and they went there yesterday and recovered it. The finding of this bicycle is the last link in the chain of evidence which connects Willis with the murder of Strange. The importance of this find lies in the fact that Willis has refused to sign a written copy of the confession he made to the chief of police.

Free Coinage Element Won.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1 won the day at the convention of the Negro National Democratic league, and an enraged majority of goldites fumed and claimed the convention was packed and proceedings irregular. The following officers were elected: A. E. Manning of Indiana, president; Con A. Rideout of Washington, vice president; W. A. Clark, Chicago, secretary; E. W. Johnson, treasurer; W. T. Scott, Cairo, chairman executive committee.

Powers Can't Agree.

London, Aug. 13.—It is semi-officially stated that there is no truth in the report published by the Daily Chronicle of this city, that Great Britain and Russia are on the point of reaching an agreement. It is stated on the other hand that there is great discord among the powers as to the measures which should be adopted in regard to Crete, and Russia, it is further asserted, is showing marked disinclination to allow great pressure to be brought to bear upon the sultan.

Fired From the Navy.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Acting Secretary McAdoo has remitted the sentence of one year's imprisonment imposed upon Machinist Dunphy of the ram Katahdin, and has ordered his dismissal from the naval service. Dunphy brought charges against the officers of the Katahdin of ill-treatment of the men, which led to the court of inquiry, which acquitted the officers. Incidentally it was found that Dunphy had been guilty himself of fraudulent enlistment.

Governor Will Look Up Facts.

Washington, Aug. 13.—In answer to the inquiry from the state department and the request from the Italian ambassador for information respecting the lynching of three Italians, who were in jail at Hahnville, La., awaiting trial on charges of murder, the governor of Louisiana has telegraphed that he knows nothing officially of the affair, but will take steps to procure a report upon it.

Conductor and Brakeman Blamed.

Dedham, Mass., Aug. 13.—Trial Justice Terry, yesterday, filed his findings in regard to the death of Charles M. Austin, the rear brakeman of a train wrecked at Hyde Park, Oct. 24. By the findings, Engineer Burnham, who was severely injured, has been exonerated of all blame in the matter, and the blame placed solely upon Conductor Holden and the deceased brakeman, Austin.

Failure Caused by Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Watson, Little & Co., one of the largest coal firms in Chicago, made an assignment yesterday to Matthew D. Morton, as assignee. No statement was filed with the assignment. The failure, it is said, was caused by a strike of the workmen at the company's mines at Brazil, Ind.

Appropriation Petered Out.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 13.—Acting under legal advice, City Treasurer Pierce has refused to pay out money on work on improvements at the water works, as the appropriations have been expended, and operations have stopped there. Mayor Beal has called a citizens' meeting to consider the matter.

No doubt lonely pedistrians plodding along Newport avenue, Wollaston, last evening, were attracted by the merry peals of laughter which issued from the lawn of Mrs. Ferguson, where a party of young people were having a private reception.

The heavy shower this morning came as a welcome relief to the oppressive heat which we have been having for a week past, and served to cool the air somewhat. While today is warm enough for most people it is not as hot as yesterday and everybody is hoping that the back bone of this hot spell is broken.

The regular meeting of Philedian senate, K. A. E. O., will be held this evening, at which time the new semi-annual pass will be imparted to the brother Knights. By-laws will also be presented for adoption, and several candidates will receive the work. The committee on paraphenalia will also have samples present for inspection.

The Massachusetts Street Railway Superintendents held their annual outing Tuesday at Fall River and New Bedford. The party left Boston on a special train and upon their arrival special cars were taken. All the famous resorts of these two cities were visited and a grand good time enjoyed. Among those from Quincy to participate were President Graham and Superintendent Weeks of the Quincy & Boston, E. F. Dyer, Roger H. Wilde and Elbridge Porter.

Last evening was a perfect one for a drive and the generosity of Mr. Faxon was again demonstrated in furnishing for the young people the popular hay rigging, a horse fresh as a daisy and a driver the pattern of patience and good nature, and sweetest of all a large box of "Lowney's best." The route was through Weymouth and Hingham and the inhabitants were not left in doubt as to where the party was from, as cheers for Mr. Faxon were frequently given with hearty good will. Walter Fitts and Arthur Patterson, who had charge of the ride did the handsome thing by taking along a gallon of Wales' ice cream. Miss Elliott chaperoned the party.

Well, it's small wonder that these sultry August days exercise so debilitating an effect—the close, humid weather we've been having makes a great drain upon the vital forces.

Thousands, when out of condition physically, rely upon

which are now supplied to meet almost every form of ailment, from mere lassitude to the more serious diseases.

We call attention to the

CUT PRICES

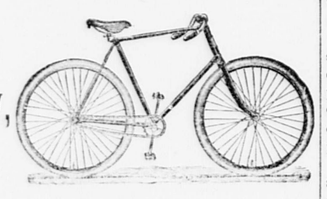

which we are naming on all this class of goods.

It's only by purchasing in immense quantities, and by making heavy sales, that the balance is kept on the right side.

We can supply all the leading "patent" remedies at prices that are really absurdly low.

The Tenth District.

The Massachusetts 10th Congressional district contains, as representative citizens, a large number of intelligent business men. Under the new apportionment it is possible, says the Boston Herald, for a Republican candidate to be elected to Congress, even though he has in opposition to him only a single Democratic candidate. But in order to secure such a triumph it will be necessary for the Republicans to put up a first-class man who could appeal for support to those voters of the district who under ordinary conditions would favor a Democratic nominee.

The district is not wanting, says the Herald, in able, conscientious and responsible citizens, who would honor both their constituents and the state by service at Washington. Ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter of Quincy is a man who deservedly commands the confidence of his friends and the respect of all who know him. He has filled a prominent place in the public life of the state, and both as a soldier and a citizen has always done his duty.

The more business men Massachusetts can send to Congress the better it will be for her interests. The Herald mentions other men of ability and integrity whom the Republican party could select for this honor.

Quincy Yacht Club Cruise.

An unusual amount of interest is being aroused among the members of the Quincy yacht club over the first annual cruise of the club which takes place Saturday, and from the present indications a large fleet will participate.

The Commodore and Fleet Captain have secured four very handsome gold yacht club watch charms which they will give as prizes. Two for the quickest run from Quincy to Marblehead and two for the quickest run from Marblehead to Newburyport.

Those who have notified the Commodore and Fleet Captain that they will participate are:

Yacht Hattie, which will be the flag ship; Gismonda, Vice Commodore Sanborn; Beatrice, John Cavanagh; Mudjekeewis, Davis & Abbott; Arbutus, Merritt & Hall; Dorothy, F. F. Crane; Moth, J. W. Nightingale; Evelyn, Dr. H. A. Jones; Moondyne, Shaw Bros.; Nokomis, A. W. Ryder; Gipsy, H. R. Drinkwater; Don, C. E. Pierce, and Adolph, H. Moebs.

Trouble on Baxter Street.

The usual quiet and sereneness of Baxter street, of Ward Two, was somewhat disturbed Monday evening, when the flower garden of Mrs. Benjamin M. Seelye was despoiled of its beauty.

Mrs. Seelye resides with her husband in one of the double houses on this street, the other side of which is occupied by William Steer and Edward Fogg.

On Monday evening, about ten o'clock, while everybody was gasping for breath, Mrs. Seelye says she stood in her kitchen and heard Steer and Fogg, who were in in their back yard, say they were going to clean her out.

The two men then jumped over the fence, kicked the goat and then they kicked the dog several times. Fogg then stood at the dog house while Steer cut and destroyed her plants. She then went to one of the neighbors, whom she requested to go for a policeman.

She then went back into the house and sat in the parlor, and while there the two men came around the front of the house and closed the blinds in the room where she was, which she opened again. The two men then cut the plants in the front yard.

The two families are not upon good terms as neighbors should be, but why the two men should desire to avenge any real or imaginary wrong by destroying plants is not known, for they offered no explanation of their acts in court, when the affair was settled.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HE TOOK A HEADER.

Charles Hutchinson Was Fleeing From Pursuers on a Bicycle.

Was Wanted For Passing an Alleged Bad Check.

Liveley Chase Finally Resulted In His Capture In Nashua.

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 13.—Charles, alias Robert, Hutchinson, of 66½ Appleton street, Boston, aged 16 years, is locked up at the station on a serious charge. He claims to be a landscape sketcher, and went from Boston to Amherst on his bicycle on a sketching tour. He stopped at Maple Shade farm, in Amherst, and presented for payment a check on a Boston bank, in the name of A. R. Fisher, which is claimed to be forged. This check was cashed by R. H. Prince to accommodate H. H. Belden, the proprietor, and his change handed. Then Hutchinson asked to see the check, stepped to get a drink of water, and before the parties knew it he was off on the Milford road on his bicycle with both money and check.

The parties followed him, and then commenced a race, until Hutchinson's wheel struck a stone, and he took a header, wrecking his wheel. When he found he was to be arrested, he threw off his coat and hat, running for the woods. On examining his thrown-off clothing, both money and check were found in the pockets, and thus recovered. Hutchinson ran to Milford, broke into a shed and stole some clothing to replace that discarded. Then officers tried to arrest him in that town, firing four shots at him from a revolver, but he escaped to this city, where he was arrested on Laurel street, by Assistant Marshal Wheeler.

He claims to have acquaintances in Lynn, where he has been stopping, as well as in Newport, R. I. He states further that he has influential friends in Boston. There is no 66½ Appleton street, Boston, no one by the name of Hutchinson has lived in the vicinity in recent years.

May Be Same Hutchinson.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 13.—City Marshal Wells is of the opinion that the Hutchinson arrested at Nashua, N. H., is one Robert Hutchinson, who has had friction with the local police because of his borrowing a team from Professor Clausen without the latter's permission. The marshal says that while Hutchinon does not look to be over 16, he is really nearer 20.

Yesterday's Heat Casualties.

Boston Aug. 13.—The promised drop in the temperature came yesterday, but not before the thermometer in various places had again reached the blood heat mark. Hundreds of names were added to the dread list of victims of the fatal heat. Men and women were prostrated; many died in their beds, and many more dropped in the streets and breathed their last before help could reach them. This is the story that comes from all the larger cities. It is Boston's story, too. The recapitulation of deaths is as follows. Boston, 12; Livermore Falls, Me., 1; Middletown, Conn., 3; Weymouth, Mass., 1; Fall River, Mass., 2; New York and suburbs, 118; Lynn, Mass., 1; New Haven, 1; Providence, 7; Peabody, Mass., 1; Lowell, Mass., 4; Westboro, Mass., 1.

A Father's Vengeance.

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 13.—Stephen Darling (colored) was shot by Burt Bacon at Sheffield. Darling confessed to assault on Margarite, the 8-year-old daughter of Bacon. He met the girl on a lonesome road near Curtis' mill, dragged her to the roadside and assaulted her. When confronted by the father of the girl, the latter shot him in the back. He was then locked up in an unconscious condition. He is still alive, but will die. Bacon will give himself up to the officers when wanted. There are fears that the girl will die.

Another Defeat For Turks.

Athens, Aug. 13.—In a fight at Vodena, Macedonia, between 150 insurgents and a body of 500 Turks, the former were re-enforced after four hours' fighting and routed the Turks, 50 of whom were killed. Macedonian peasants, armed with rifles stolen from the Turks, are joining the Greek raiders.

Has Been In Portland.

Portland, Me., Aug. 13.—Miss Florence M. Collins, a young woman reported as having been missing from her home in Boston since Aug. 1, has been in this city, and tried to obtain employment in a book bindery here, but failed, and all trace of her has since been lost.

An Alleged Check Swindler.

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 13. — Robert Hutchinson, giving his address as Boston, was arrested here last night, charged with passing a $50 check, which it is alleged was forged, on R. H. Prince, in Amherst, and then purloining the check.

Failed For $60,000.

Amesbury, Mass., Aug. 13.—The second meeting of the creditors of the Merrimac Wheel and Gear company, yesterday, found the liabilities to be $60,000. No offer of settlement will be made until the stockholders have a meeting.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

J. F. Ober, a Boston architect, died suddenly.

Clifford Hale, aged 15, was drowned at Newburyport, Mass.

Thomas J. Vickery and William Montgomery were drowned while bathing at Portland, Me.

The Neal Morse company of Boston, dealers in woolens, assigned. No figures are given out.

James A. Hagley, aged 16, was instantly killed on the Consolidated road at Hyde Park, Mass.

E. S. Sanborn & Co., shoe manufacturers, of Lynn, Mass., have failed, with estimated liabilities of $75,000.

GOWN GOSSIP.

Red morocco belts are new and popular.

Black hats with red roses are in high favor; also black with turquoise blue.

The shirt waist with detachable collar and cuffs is not liked so well as those made complete.

White dresses are fashionable. Indeed it is many a year since white has been in such favor.

Dresses for mourning are growing more and more elaborate, and there is no telling where the fancy for elaboration may stop.

Girls and young ladies are wearing hats made of shirred tulle, and these are trimmed with fine flowers and clusters of delicate ostrich tips.

White dresses are made of all sorts of materials. They may be of the plainest as well as the most elegant of fabrics, and they are also found in all intermediate qualities.

A new dress of grass linen has an Eton jacket of all over embroidery. There is a pointed corselet of embroidery to which the skirt is attached, and a full vest of ivory white chiffon.

Silk dresses are trimmed with alternate ruffles of chiffon and the silk. This is very pretty in plain silk, and when the skirt is made this way the bodice is covered with chiffon and lace.

Bonnets made entirely of flowers and flower stems are very much liked for dressy wear. They are pretty, light and likely to be very becoming if the style and color are properly selected.

A new bicycle costume has a skirt of heavy cloth, a shirt waist of any popular material—silk, cheviot, cambric or percale being preferred—and over this for cool days is an Eton jacket with sleeves.

Bird of paradise feathers and algrets were never in greater demand than at present, but the bird of paradise is very scarce and exceedingly expensive, and modern ingenuity has prepared some excellent imitations of them.—New York Ledger.

THE GREATEST MEN.

Archimedes is considered to be the founder of the science of physics.

The most noted of encyclopedists was Diderot, whose work began an entirely new style of literary effort.

Bichat must be considered as the founder of the science of anatomy and its greatest practical demonstrator.

The most noted monk was St. Bernard, the preacher of the second crusade and the founder of an order which endures to the present day.

The greatest Jesuit was Ignatius Loyola, who at the age of 33 began his studies and subsequently founded the order of the Society of Jesus.

Harvey was the pioneer of modern surgery. Discovering, as he did, the circulation of the blood, he laid the foundation of the modern science.

The chief murderer was Tamerlane. It is estimated that from 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 of the human race were butchered in his wars of conquest.

Moses was the ablest lawgiver who ever lived. He was also an executive manager of matchless resources, and the system of state government founded by him has ever since been a model.

Raphael has been styled the prince of painters. He was the first among artists to give delicacy and refinement to his pictures, and in this respect his paintings have never since been equaled.

Michael Angelo was the greatest architect of his own or any other age. His monument is St. Peter's at Rome, but besides his architectural genius he was a great painter and a sculptor of the first rank.

PERT POLITICS.

Some people in the country have a lot to learn between now and Nov. 3.—Boston Globe.

The proverb "figures can't lie" will not take a holiday while the ante-election statistics are compiled.—Washington Star.

While the ballots will be secret in more states than ever this campaign, it is confidently believed they will tell the story.—Philadelphia Times.

Sometimes it would seem that the number of political parties in the future will be limited only by the number of male adult children.—Chicago Record.

Perhaps it's as well that neither of the candidates rides a wheel. It's bad enough to see those in less exalted places running each other down.—Philadelphia Times.

There are lots of voters who wish they knew what Thomas Jefferson or Abraham Lincoln would do were they alive. Here's a chance for mediums.—Springfield Republican.

This year has been strikingly prolific in new political factions. There are bolting Prohibitionists, Republican silverites, Democratic goldites and middle of the road Populists. Where there isn't fusion there's confusion.—Hartford Herald.

Many of our very best educated men will know more about political economy before this campaign is over than they knew even on the morning of the day when they took their final examination in that course of study at the university.—Providence Journal.

EMERALDS.

Don't wear emeralds unless you are of a high type. As usually worn they are vulgar and assertive.

Don't wear emeralds alone; they need other greens to soften them and are best with the chrysoprase, the peridot and the beryl.

Green must be worn with the greatest care and always in complexity. Emeralds need the support of other green stones. Attain the effect of the peacock, not the parrot.

Don't, if searching for emeralds, overlook their setting in the historic enamels of Hungary; also the Hungarian use of the beautiful chrysoprase, said to be the favorite stone of Queen Victoria.

Don't combine emeralds with rubies. They have the tawdry effect of all arrangements based on complementary colors—the old stupidity that has such a hold on people that two things entirely different must harmonize.—Edmund Russell.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

Pulverized tiger bones are used as medicine in China. It is believed that they impart to the invalid the strength of a tiger.

Dr. Wittstein, a well known botanist of Leipsic, Germany, has just issued a book on plants, in which he says that the White mountains are in the state of Utah.

The Siamese have such a superstitious dislike of odd numbers that they studiously strive to have in their houses an even number of windows, doors, rooms, closets, etc.

TODAY'S COURT.

James McVey, Jeremiah Haley and James T. Cuffe were each fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Donovan was fined $5 for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

Margaret Maloy was arraigned for disturbing the peace and drunkenness at Milton. She was fined $10 for disturbing the peace and the complaint for drunkenness was placed on file.

The continued case of John Kelley for drunkenness at Quincy was called, but John did not answer and he was defaulted.

The continued case of William Steer and Edward Fogg for destroying plants to the value of $10, the property of Benjamin M. Seelye, came up for hearing. They were found guilty and fined $10 each. Appealed.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY Virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage deed given by Lydia Clapp and George A. Clapp to Charles H. Hardwick, dated April 19, A. D. 1890, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, libro 637, folio 353, the undersigned, who are assignees of said mortgage, will, by reason of the breach of condition thereof, and to foreclose the same, sell at public auction on Garfield street in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and State of Massachusetts, on FRIDAY, Aug. 21, A. D., 1896, at 10 o'clock A. M., on the premises first below mentioned, the following described property, viz :

Two certain lots of land, with all the buildings thereon, all situated in said Quincy and severally bounded and described as follows, viz : The first lot is bounded northerly on land now or late of Hardwick; easterly on land of Bradley, and one hundred and nineteen feet on land of Roberts; southerly on land of Roberts, and fifty-three feet on Garfield street and on land of John L. Miller; westerly, one hundred and fifty-four feet on land of said Miller, and also on land now or formerly of James Smith. Being the same premises conveyed to Lydia Clapp by Peter Bisson, by his deed dated April 19, 1890.

The second lot is bounded northerly on land now or formerly of the heirs of J. Q. A. Wild; easterly on land of the same; southerly on Granite street; westerly on land now of Burke, formerly of Page. The title of said Lydia herein is by the will of Fanny Whiting, her mother, duly proved and allowed. This lot is now subject to a mortgage for $1,300, given to John J. Clapp, dated August 12, 1867, and recorded with Norfolk deeds, libro 358, folio 19, and assigned to Judith Spear, September 15, 1876, and recorded as above, libro 483, folio 85, also to another mortgage for $200 of date last named, given to said Judith Spear and recorded as above, libro 483, folio 85.

Said premises will be sold subject to the taxes for the current year and to the two mortgages above mentioned.

Two hundred dollars to be paid down at time of sale; other conditions will be made known at time of sale.

property to protest against giving to money a "disproportionate and unfair advantage over every other species of property?" If the relatively few whose wealth consists largely in fixed investments have a right to use the ballot to enhance the value of their investments, have not the rest of the people the right to use the ballot to protect themselves from the disastrous consequences of a rising standard?

The well being of the nation—aye of civilization itself—depends upon the prosperity of the masses. What shall it profit us to have a dollar which grows more valuable every day, if such a dollar lowers the standard of capitalization and brings distress to the people? What shall it profit us, if in trying to raise our credit by the increasing purchasing power of our dollar, we destroy our ability to pay the debts already contracted by lowering the purchasing power of the products with which those debts must be paid? If, as it constantly is asserted, the gold standard will enable us to borrow more money from abroad, I reply that the restoration of bimetallism will restore the parity between money and property, and thus permit an era of prosperity which will enable the American people to become loaners of money instead of perpetual borrowers. Even if we desire to borrow, how long can we continue borrowing under a system which, by lowering the value of property, weakens the foundation upon which credit rests?

Looking Into the Future.

Even the holders of fixed investments, though they gain an advantage of the appreciation of the dollar, certainly see the injustice of the legislation which gives them this advantage over those whose incomes depend upon the value of property and products. If the holders of fixed investments will not listen to arguments, based upon justice and equity, I appeal to them to consider the interests of posterity. We do not live for ourselves alone; our labor, our self-denial and our anxious care—all these are for those who are to come after us as much as for ourselves, but we cannot protect our children beyond the period of our lives. Let those who are now reaping advantage from a vicous financial system remember that in the years to come their own children and their children's children may, through the operation of this same system, be made to pay tribute to the descendants of those who are wronged today.

As against the maintenance of the issue of a gold standard, either permanently, or until other nations can be united for its overthrow, the Chicago platform presents a clear and emphatic demand for the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. We are not asking that a new experiment be tried; we are insisting upon a return to a financial policy approved by the experience of history and supported by all the prominent statesmen of our nation, from the days of the first president down to 1873. When we ask that our mints be opened to the free and unlimited coinage of silver into full legal-tender money, we are simply asking that the same mint privileges be accorded to silver that are now accorded to gold. When we ask that this coinage be at the ratio of 16 to 1, we simply ask that our gold coins and the standard silver dollar—which, be it remembered, contains the same amount of pure silver as the first silver dollar coined at our mints—retain their present weight and fineness.

If there are two kinds of money, the option must rest either with the debtor or with the creditor. Assuming that their rights are equal, we must look at the interests of society in general. In order to determine to which side the option should be given. Under the bimetallic system, gold and silver are linked together by a law, at a fixed ratio, and any person or persons owning any quantity of either metal can have the same converted into full legal tender money. If the creditor has the right to choose the metal in which payment shall be made, it is reasonable to suppose that he will require the debtor to pay in the dearer metal, if there is any perceptible difference between the bullion values of the metals.

This new demand created for the dearer metal will make that metal dearer still, while the decreased demand for the cheaper metal will make that metal cheaper still. If, on the other hand, the debtor exercises the option, it is reasonable to suppose that he will pay in the cheaper metal, if one metal is perceptibly cheaper than the other; but the demand thus created for the cheaper metal will raise its price, while the lessened demand for the dearer metal will lower its price. In other words, when the creditor has the option, the metals are drawn apart, whereas, when the debtor has the option, the metals are held together approximately at the ratio fixed by law; provided the demand created is sufficient to absorb all of both metals presented at the mint. Society is, therefore, interested in having the option exercised by the debtor. Indeed, there can be no such thing as real bimetallism, unless the option is exercised by the debtor. The exercise of the option by the debtor compels the creditor classes, whether domestic or foreign, to exert themselves to maintain the parity between gold and silver, at the legal ratio, whereas they might find a profit in driving one of the metals to a premium if they could then demand the dearer metal.

Government Obligations.

The right of the debtor to choose the coin in which payment shall be made extends to obligations due on the government, as well as to contracts between individuals. A government obligation is simply a debt due from all the people to one of the people, and it is impossible to justify a policy which makes the interests of the one person who holds the obligation superior to the rights of any who must be taxed to pay it. When, prior to 1873, silver was at a premium, it was never contended that national honor required the payment of government obligations in silver, and the Matthews resolutions adopted by congress in 1878, expressly asserted the right of the United States to redeem coin obligations in standard silver dollars, as well as in gold coin.

Upon this subject the Chicago platform reads: "We are opposed to the policy and practice of surrendering to the holders of the obligations of the United States the option reserved by law to the government of redeeming such obligations in either silver coin or gold coin."

It is constantly assumed by some that the United States notes, commonly called greenbacks, and the treasury notes, issued under the act of 1890, are responsible for the recent drain upon the gold reserve, but this assumption is entirely without foundation. The fault does not lie with the greenbacks and treasury notes, but rather with the executive officers, who have seen fit to surrender a right which should have been exercised for the protection of the interests of the people. This executive action has already been made the excuse for the issue of more than $250,000,000 in bonds, and it is impossible to estimate the amount of bonds which may hereafter be issued, if this policy is continued. We are told that the attempt upon the part of the government at this time to meet its obligations in silver would put a premium on gold, but why should it? The Bank of France exercises the right to redeem all bank paper in either gold or silver, and yet France maintains the parity between gold and silver at a ratio of 15½ to 1, and retains in circulation more silver per capita than we do in the United States.

It may be further answered that our opponents have suggested no feasible plan for avoiding the dangers which they fear. The retirement of the greenbacks and treasury notes would not protect the treasury, because the same policy which now leads the secretary of the treasury to redeem all government paper in gold, when gold is demanded, will require the redemption of all silver dollars and silver certificates in gold if the greenbacks and treasury notes are withdrawn from circulation. More than this, if the government should retire its paper and throw upon the banks the necessity of furnishing coin redemption, the banks would exercise the right to furnish either gold or silver. In other words, they would exercise the option, just as the government ought to exercise it now. The government must either exercise the right to redeem its obligations in silver when silver is more convenient, or it must retire all the silver and silver certificates from circulation and leave nothing but gold as legal-tender money. Are our opponents willing to outline a financial system which will carry out their policy to its legitimate conclusion, or will they continue to cloak their designs in ambiguous phrases?

There is an actual necessity for bimetllism, as well as a theoretical defense of it. For the last 23 years legislation has been creating an additional demand for gold, and this law-created demand has resulted in increasing the purchasing power of each ounce of gold. The restoration of bimetallism in the United States will take away from gold just so much of its purchasing power as was added to it by the demonetization of silver by the United States. The silver dollar is now held up to the gold dollar by legal tender laws, and not by redemption in gold, because the standard silver dollars are not now redeemable in gold, either in law or by administrative policy.

Silver at $1.29 an Ounce.

We contend that free and unlimited coinage by the United States alone will raise the bullion value of silver to its coinage value, and thus make silver bullion worth $1.29 per ounce in gold throughout the world. This proposition is in keeping with natural laws, not in defiance of them. The best known law of commerce is the law of supply and demand. Gold and silver are different from other commodities, in that they are limited in quality. Corn, wheat, manufactured products, etc., can be produced almost without limit, provided they can be sold at a price sufficient to stimulate production, but gold and silver are called precious metals, because they are found, not produced. These metals have been the objects of anxious search as far back as history runs, yet, according to Mr. Harvey's calculation, all the gold coin of the world can be melted into a 22-foot cube, and all the silver coin in the world into a 66-foot cube. Because gold and silver are limited, both in the quantity now in hand and in annual production, it follows that legislation can fix the ratio between them.

The only question upon which international bimetallists and independent bimetallists differ is: Can the United States, by the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the present legal ratio, create a demand for silver which, taken in connection with the demand already in existence, will be sufficient to utilize all the silver that will be presented at the mints? They must rest their opposition upon one ground only, namely: That the supply of silver available for coinage is too large to be utilized by the United States.

In discussing this question, we must consider the capacity of our people to use silver, and the quantity of silver which can come to our mints. It must be remembered that we live in a country only partially developed, and that our people far surpass any equal number of people in the world in their power to consume and produce. If our mints are opened to free and unlimited coinage at the present ratio, merchandise silver cannot come here, because the labor applied to it has made it worth more in the form of merchandise than it will be worth at our mints. We cannot even expect all of the annual product of silver, because India, China, Japan, Mexico and all the other silver-using countries must satisfy their annual needs from the annual product; the arts will require a large amount, and the gold standard countries will need a considerable quantity for subsidiary coinage. We will be required to coin only that which is not needed elsewhere; but, if we stand ready to take and utilize all of it, other nations will be compelled to buy at the price which we fix.

Many fear that the opening of our mints will be followed by the enormous increase in the annual production of silver. This is conjecture. Silver has been used as a money many thousands of years, and during that time the world has never suffered from an overproduction. If, for any reason, the supply of gold or silver in the future ever exceeds the requirements of the arts and needs of commerce, we confidently hope that the intelligence of the people will be sufficient to devise and enact any legislation necessary for the protection of the public. It is folly to refuse to the people the money which they now need, for fear they may hereafter have more than they need. I am firmly convinced that by opening our mints to free and unlimited coinage at the present ratio, we can create a demand for silver which will keep the price of silver bullion at $1.29 per ounce, measured by gold.

Some of our opponents attribute the fall in the value of silver, when measured by gold, to the fact that during the last quarter of a century the world's supply of silver has increased more rapidly than the world's supply of gold. This argument is entirely answered by the fact that, during the last five years the annual production of gold has increased more rapidly than the annual production of silver. Since the gold price of silver has fallen more during the last five years than it ever fell in any previous five years in the history of the world, it is evident that the fall is not due to increased production. Prices can be lowered as effectually by decreasing the demand for an article as by increasing the supply of it, and it seems certain that the fall in the gold price of silver is due to hostile legislation, and not to natural laws.

The Gold Exports.

Our opponents cannot ignore the fact that gold is now going abroad, in spite of all legislation intended to prevent it, and no silver is being coined to take its place. Not only is gold going abroad now, but it must continue to go abroad as long as the present financial policy is adhered to, unless we continue to borrow from across the ocean, and even then we simply postpone the evil, because the amount borrowed, together with the interest upon it, must be repaid in appreciated dollars. The American people owe a large sum to European creditors, and falling prices have left a larger and larger margin between our net national income and our annual interest charge. There is only one way to stop the increasing flow of gold from our shores, and that is to stop falling prices. The restoration of bimetallism will not only stop falling prices, but will, to some extent, restore prices by reducing the world's demand for gold.

Perhaps the most persistent misrepresentation that we have to meet is the charge that we are advocating the payment of debts in 50-cent dollars. At the present time, and under present laws, a silver dollar, when melted, loses nearly half of its value, but that will not be true when we again establish a mint price for silver, and leave no surplus silver upon the market to drag down the price of bullion. Under bimetallism, silver bullion will be worth as much as gold coin, just as gold bullion is now worth as much as silver coin, and we believe that a silver dollar will be worth as much as a gold dollar. The charge of repudiation comes with poor grace from those who are seeking to add to the weight of the existing debts by legislation, which makes money dearer, and who conceal their desires against the general welfare, under the euphonious pretense that they are upholding public credit and national honor.

In answer to the charge that gold will go abroad, it must be remembered that no gold can leave this country until the owner of the gold receives something in return for it, which he would rather have. In other words, when gold leaves the country, those who formerly owned it will be benefited. There is no process by which we can be compelled to part with our gold against our will, nor is there any process by which silver can be forced upon us without our consent. Exchanges are matters of agreement, and if silver comes to this country under free coinage, it will be at the invitation of some one in this country who will give something in exchange for it.

Those who deny the ability of the United States to maintain the parity between gold and silver at the present legal ratio, without foreign aid, point to Mexico, and assert that the opening of our mints will reduce us to a silver basis and raise gold to a premium. It is no reflection upon our republic to remind our people that the United States is much greater than Mexico in area, in population and in commercial strength. It is absurd to assert that the United States is not able to do anything which Mexico has failed to accomplish. The one thing necessary in order to maintain the parity, is to furnish a demand great enough to utilize all the silver which will come to the mints. That Mexico has failed to do this is not proof that the United States would also fail.

It is also argued that since a number of the nations have demonetized silver, nothing can be done until all of those nations restore bimetallism. This is also illogical. It is immaterial how many or how few nations have open mints, provided there are sufficient open mints to furnish a monetary demand for all the gold and silver available for coinage.

The Cost of Production.

In reply to the arguments that improved machinery has lessened the cost of producing silver, it is sufficient to say that the same is true of the production of gold, and yet, notwithstanding that, gold has risen in value. As a matter of fact, the cost of producing does not determine the value of the precious metals, except as it may affect the supply. If, for instance, the cost of producing gold should be reduced 90 per cent without any increase in the output, the purchasing power of an ounce of gold would not fall. So long as there is a monetary demand sufficient to take at a fixed mint price all the gold and silver produced, the cost of production need not be considered.

While it is not the purpose of free coinage to specially aid any particular class, yet those who believe that the restoration of silver is needed by the whole people should not be deterred because an incidental benefit will come to the mine owner. The erection of forts, the deepening of harbors, the improvement of rivers, the erection of public buildings—all these confer incidental benefits upon individuals and communities, and yet these incidental benefits do not deter us from making appropriations for these purposes whenever such appropriations are necessary for the public good. The argument that a silver dollar is heavier than a gold dollar, and that therefore silver is less convenient to carry in large quantities, is completely answered by the silver certificates, which is as easily carried as the gold certificate, or any other kind of paper money.

There are some whom, while admitting benefits of bimetallism, object to coinage at the present ratio. If any are deceived by this objection, they ought to remember that there are no bimetallists who are earnestly endeavoring to secure it at any other ratio than 16 to 1. We are opposed to any change in the ratio for two reasons: First, because a change would produce great injustice; and second, because a change in the ratio is not necessary. A change would produce injustice because, if effected in the manner usually suggested, it would result in an enormous contraction in the volume of standard money.

There is another argument to which I ask your attention. Some of the more zealous opponents of free coinage point to the fact that 13 months must elapse between the election and the first regular session of congress, and assert that during that time, in case people declare themselves in favor of free coinage, all loans will be withdrawn and all mortgages foreclosed. If these are merely prophecies indulged in by those who have forgotten the provisions of the constitution, it will be sufficient to remind them that the president is empowered to convene congress in extraordinary session whenever the public good requires such action. If, in November, the people by their ballots declare themselves in favor of the immediate restoration of bimetallism, the system can be inaugurated within a few months. If, however, the assertion that loans will be withdrawn and mortgages foreclosed is made to prevent such political action as the people may believe to be necessary for the preservation of their rights, then a new and vital issue is raised. Whenever it is necessary for the people as a whole to obtain consent from the owners of money and the changers of money before they can legislate upon financial questions, we shall have passed from a democracy to a plutocracy. But that time has not yet arrived. Threats and intimidations will be of no avail. The people who, in 1776, rejected the doctrine that kings rule by right divine, will not, in this generation, subscribe to a doctrine that money is omnipotent.

The money which is by law made a legal tender must, in the course of ordinary business, be accepted by 99 of every 100 persons. Why should the 100th man be permitted to be exempt from the general rule? Special contracts have a tendency to increase the demand for a particular kind of money, and thus force it to a premium. Have not the people a right to say that a comparatively few individuals shall not be permitted to derange the financial system of the nation in order to collect a premium in case they succeed in forcing one kind of money to a premium?

International Bimetallism.

In conclusion, permit me to say a word in regard to international bimetallism. We are not opposed to an international agreement, looking to the restoration of bimetallism throughout the world. The advocates of coinage have, on all occasions, shown their willingness to cooperate with other nations in the reinstatement of silver, but they are not willing to await the pleasure of other governments, when immediate relief is needed by the people of the United States, and they further believe that independent action offers better assurance of international bimetallism than servile dependence upon foreign aid. For more than 20 years we have invited the assistance of European nations, but all progress in the direction of international bimetallism has been blocked by the opposition of those who derive a pecuniary benefit from the appreciation of gold.

How long must we wait for bimetallism to be brought to us by those who profit by monometallism. If double standard will bring benefits to our people, who will deny them the right to enjoy those benefits? If our opponents would admit the right, the ability and the duty of our people to act for themselves on all public questions, without the assistance and regardless of the wishes of other nations, and then postpone the remedial legislation which they consider sufficient, we would meet them in the field of honorable debate; but, when they assert that this nation is helpless to protect the rights of its own citizens, we challenge them to submit the issue to a people whose patriotism has never been appealed to in vain.

We shall not offend other nations when we declare the right of the American people to govern themselves, and, without let or hindrance from without, decide upon every question presented for their consideration. In taking this position, we simply maintain the dignity of 70,000,000 citizens, who are second to none in their capacity for self-government.

The gold standard has compelled the American people to pay an ever-increasing tribute to the creditor nations of the world—a tribute which no one dares to defend. I assert that national honor requires the United States to secure justice to all its creditors. For a people like ours, blest with natural resources of surpassing richness, to proclaim themselves impotent to frame a financial system suited to their own needs, is humiliating beyond the power of language to describe. We cannot enforce respect for our foreign policy so long as we confess ourselves unable to frame our own financial policy.

Honest differences of opinion have always existed, and ever will exist, as to the legislation best calculated to promote the public weal; but, when it is seriously asserted that this nation must bow to the dictation of other nations, and accept the policies which they insist upon, the right of self-government is assailed.

Citizens of New York: I have traveled from the center of the continent to the seaboard that I might, in the very beginning of the campaign, bring you greeting from the people of the west and south, and assure you that their desire is not to destroy, but to build up. They invite you to accept the principles of a living faith rather than listen to those who preach the gospel of despair, and advise endurance of the ills you have. The advocates of free coinage believe that in striving to secure the immediate restoration of bimetallism they are laboring in your behalf, as well as in their own behalf. A few of your people may prosper under present conditions, but the permanent welfare of New York rests upon the producers of wealth. This great city is built upon the commerce of the nation, and must suffer if that commerce is impaired. You cannot sell unless the people have money with which to buy, and they cannot obtain the money with which to buy unless they are able to sell their products at remunerative prices. Production of wealth goes before the exchange of wealth; those who create must secure a profit before they have anything to share with others. You cannot afford to join the money changers in supporting a financial policy which, by destroying the purchasing power of the products of toil, must in the end discourage the creation of wealth.

I ask, I expect your co-operation. It is true that a few of your financiers would fashion a new figure—a figure representing Columbia, her hands bound fast with fetters of gold and her face turned toward the east, appealing for assistance to those who live beyond the sea—but this figure can never express your ideas of this nation. You will rather turn for inspiration to the heroic statue which guards the entrance to your city—a statue as patriotic in conception as it is colossal in proportions; it was the gracious gift of a sister republic, and stands upon a pedestal which was built by the American people. That figure—liberty enlightening the world—is emblematic of the mission of our nation among the nations of the earth. With a government which derives its powers from the consent of the governed, secures to all the people freedom of conscience, freedom of thought and freedom of speech, guarantees equal rights to all and promises special privileges to none, the United States should be an example in all that is good, and the leading spirit in every movement which has for its object the uplifting of the human race.

Saving a man's life is looked upon as the greatest service that can be rendered him. If he is in danger, he feels forever grateful to the friend who saves him. If he is delivered from savages, or from wild animals, or from drowning, or from the teeth of a shark, he can hardly find words to express his gratitude. Is it surprising then that Dr. Pierce has received thousands and thousands of enthusiastic letters from those who have been saved from death and lingering disease by his wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery?" Hundreds of these people write to say that they had suffered for years; that life had become miserable; and that death would have been welcome. Some of them say that doctors had given them up to die, when the use of the "Discovery" brought them back to happy life and health. This great remedy is meant for any one who has any disease of the throat, lungs, or bronchial tubes. Its strengthening and purifying effect on the lungs is so great that it will positively cure ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is a cleansing, strengthening, purifying, invigorating tonic. It puts new life into the blood and nerves, into the brain and body. It cures every form of indigestion, makes the appetite good, the sleep sound, the nerves steady.

You should have Dr. Pierce's great work, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." This handsome, illustrated, thousand-page volume has had a greater sale, at its regular price—$1.50—than any other family medical book ever published. It is now offered absolutely free, paper-covered, to all who will send 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. Those who wish to have it in handsome, substantial, French cloth binding should send 10 cents additional (31 cents in all).

NEURALGIA BOUND HIM WITH BANDS OF PAIN

He is now Cured, and He Thanks God and P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, For It.

Mr. George Briggs, of Moore, Okla., suffered almost indescribable torment for three long years. Neuralgia held him captive. The right side of his face was so badly affected that the slightest touch would cause the unfortunate man intense agony. For several weeks he could open his mouth just wide enough to be fed with liquid nourishment, and in this manner life was sustained. Read the following extract from his letter: "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

NEURALGIA, CATARRH AND RHEUMATISM COMPLETELY CURED.

George Briggs, of Moore, Oklahoma, writes that P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him of catarrh, facial neuralgia and rheumatism, after three years of intense suffering. The pain lay in his cheek bone and temple, down the right side of his face, along his upper lip, and from the slightest touch he suffered agonies for weeks at a time. Could only open his mouth wide enough to admit a teaspoon, and any acid in his food would put him in torture. He had a consultation of the best physicians in Texas, but all to no purpose.

Catarrh and rheumatism were also causing him much trouble, until he tried P. P. P. He says he is well and will swear that there are no cases of neuralgia, catarrh and rheumatism, no matter how chronic or how old the cases are, that P. P. P. will not make a total cure of.

Mr. Briggs winds up his testimony by saying he thanks God and our medicine, P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for the great cure.

Kidney troubles, if neglected, bring about serious and painful and very often fatal results. P. P. P. removes the irregularities, and cures the diseased parts.

Dyspepsia and indigestion, skin and blood diseases, can be speedily removed by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

Ladies, take P. P. P. and rid your face of pimples, blotches, freckles, yellow or muddy skin, wrinkles and vulgar redness.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Disastrous Rainstorm Strikes Pittsburg and Its Immediate Vicinity.

Pittsburg, Aug. 14.—At 8 o'clock yesterday morning this city was visited by one of the heaviest and most persistent downpours of rain that has been seen here for years. It carried death and destruction with it, and as a result six lives are known to have been sacrificed and thousands of dollars of property laid waste.

The storm came from the southwest, preceded by dark and threatening clouds. As the gloom began to dispel, the rain came in torrents, and for an hour the downpour was terrific. It then let up slightly, but for three hours or more it rained without ceasing. Up to noon, 2.24 inches had fallen, 1.80 of this being precipitated during the first hour.

In the city, little damage was done, but the suburbs and small towns nearby suffered severely. Dehaven, a small oil town, about 10 miles from here, received the brunt of the storm's fury, and it was there most of the lives were lost. The little town of 600 inhabitants is situated in a valley, just at the junction of the two creeks, and every heavy storm fills these creeks and floods portions of the place. When the storm burst, the house of James Robinson was made a place of refuge by 10 people. Of this number, three women were drowned.

Little Martin Cochran was in bed sick with scarlet fever when the flood entered his father's house. The shock brought his life to an end within an hour or two. Omiel Schaffer was standing on the Pittsburg and Western bridge at Sharpsburg, with thousands of others, watching the high waters. He attempted to catch a piece of driftwood, fell into the water and was drowned.

The west end of Sharpsburg and Etna were flooded, and the water was four feet deep in Spang & Chalfant's mill, putting out the fires and compelling the workmen to abandon the building, some having to swim out. The firm's loss will be about $10,000, and new furnaces will have to be built.

The mining village of Claridge, on the Manor Valley railroad, near Greensburg, was almost wiped out by the cloudburst, but no lives were lost.

It is a Fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier, has proved, over and over again, that it has power to cure, even when other medicines fail to do any good.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists, 25c.

Outlaws In an Idaho Bank.

Montpelier, Ida., Aug. 14.—About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, three masked men rode into town on horseback, stopping in front of the Bank of Montpelier. They dismounted and compelled six men, who were standing in front of the bank, to go inside. Two of them covered the men with revolvers, while the third went behind the counter and emptied all the cash in sight into their sacks. The robbers then mounted their horses and rode out of town. Sheriff Davis organized a posse of 30 men, who are in pursuit of the robbers. The bank officials refuse to disclose the amount secured, but it is believed to be fully $10,000.

Cadets Dismissed For Hazing.

Washington, Aug. 14.—By order of the president, two West Point cadets, convicted by court martial of hazing, have been dismissed from the military service of the United States. The order contains a severe arraignment of the offense, and a declaration of a determination not to permit its continuance. The two cadets now dismissed are Giles Bishop, Jr., and H. S. Commager, members of the second class. Their offense consisted in "inflicting arbitrary punishment" upon fourth class cadets, or "plebes," as they are familiarly called at the academy.

Outwitted Watchers.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 14.—A Cuban filibustering expedition has undoubtedly left this port. On Tuesday night the tug Dauntless, the fastest tug on southern waters, discharged her ballast on the docks here. That night four wagon loads of stores and boxes were put aboard. The Dauntless put to sea next day with 70 men aboard. United States Marshal Harriet and Spanish Vice Consul Torras made every effort to apprehend the Dauntless, without success.

The Louisville Races.

Louisville, Aug. 14.—Tom Cooper won the best and fastest race of the year at Fountain Ferry park yesterday, winning the two-mile national championship for amateurs and professionals in 4:26 2-5. Tom Butler of Cambridge, Mass., captured the mile open, professional, in 2:03. Nat Butler, from the 30-yard mark, won the one-mile handicap in 2:03.

Talking on School Question.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Clifford Sifton, attorney general for Manitoba, had a long interview with Premier Laurier yesterday upon the school question. It is expected that settlement can be reached without any difficulty. Sifton will be certain to get the vacant interior portfolio. This will be after the school trouble is disposed of.

Penal Offense Charged.

New York, Aug. 14.—A complaint was lodged yesterday with the district attorney by a depositor of the Murray Hill bank. He charges that the officers accepted a $3000 deposit when they knew the bank was insolvent. This is a penal offense. The matter will be laid before the grand jury.

The Maine Bolt.

Rockland, Me., Aug. 14.—The following call was issued last night in behalf of the gold standard Democrats of Maine: "Hon. William Henry Clifford of Portland, having chivalrously accepted the nomination for governor of Maine, unanimously tendered by the sound money Democrats who withdrew from the recent Waterville convention, all Democrats of Maine who repudiate the revolutionary and radically undemocratic proceedings and teachings of the so-called national convention, at Chicago, and who deprecate and condemn the Waterville convention in unnecessarily overturning the principles adopted by the state convention at Portland, are invited to attend a mass convention, to be held in Portland, Aug. 20, for the purpose of answering the patriotic summons of the national committee of the National Democratic party, issued at Indianapolis, Aug. 7, by electing 12 delegates to attend the national convention of the party, to be held at Indianapolis, Sept. 2, by nominating six presidential electors to support the nominees of that convention, and by transacting any other business which may properly come before them."

Printers Kept Busy.

Washington, Aug. 14.—At Republican headquarters, Chairman Babcock's return has given renewed activity to all branches of wark. He sent for the several printers who are getting out large supplies of literature, and directed an increase of the supply. The magnitude of this work is unprecedented. The committee is working three large printing establishments in Philadelphia, two in Baltimore and two in Washington. The offices at Philadelphia and Baltimore are working double time, and with two reliefs of men. They turned out 450,000 documents Wednesday, and 500,000 yesterday, and this supply will be increased.

Split on Politics.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The Window Glass Workers' association of the United States has withdrawn from the Knights of Labor. The action was due to politics, to some extent. C. S. Cake of the Glass Workers' association, said: "I think the window glass workers are strong enough to go it alone. We have about 6000 members, and will do better by not being tied up with another order. The Knights of Labor, I understand, are all for Bryan, while the majority of the glass workers are for McKinley."

Will Be a Big One.

Chicago, Aug. 14. — The anti-Silver Democrats have issued the call for their state convention. It is to be held in Chicago, Aug. 25. The convention will have 1069 delegates—the same as in the regular Democratic convention—and will be conducted in the ordinary manner. It is believed that Senator John M. Palmer will be chairman of the convention. Lloyd Hamilton, Thomas A. Moran, Charles A. Ewing, John T. Black and James H. Eckels are talked of for governor.

Gold Men Drew Out.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 14.—At a meeting of the Young Men's Democratic association, held here last night, the silver men obtained control. This was followed by the resignation of C. S. Canfield, the president of the association, Judge P. Kane, Aldermen Thompson and Hincks and many others, who refuse to endorse the Chicago platform.

Sticking to Gold Standard.

Baltimore, Aug. 14.—The executive committee of the Honest Money Democratic league of Maryland has adopted resolutions setting forth its purpose to stand on the platform adopted by the recent Democratic state convention, which declared for gold standard, and against the free coinage of silver.

Signs of Peace.

London, Aug. 14.—A dispatch from Buluwayo, dated Aug. 13, says: Cecil Rhodes and Colebrader, commander of the Cape "Boys," will go to the Matoppo hills tomorrow to treat with the rebels, who are desirous of submitting. The Chronicle declares, in an editorial, that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain ought to insist upon the recall of Cecil Rhodes, who, it says, is making a wrong move. Earl Grey seems putty in Mr. Rhodes' experienced hands, The Chronicle adds.

Long Struggle at an End.

New York, Aug. 14.—All but seven contractors, it is stated, have signed the new agreement submitted by the Vest Makers' union, and the strike will be called off today. The leaders of the Pant Makers' union report that 45 contractors in that line of the tailors' trade have signed new agreements, giving work to 600 hands.

Famous Artist Dead.

London, Aug. 14.—Sir John Millais, the distinguished painter, president of the Royal academy, died at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. On May 10 last he underwent the operation of tracheotomy for the relief of cancer of the throat, and never fully rallied from its effects. Sir John Everett Millais was born at Southampton in 1829. His end was painless. The queen, Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York have telegraphed their condolences, and many messages have been received from Europe and America. All the morning papers have editorials pointing out the incalculable loss to British art, and the difficulty which the Royal academy will find in selecting a worthy successor.

The Wage Earners Interest.

The report of the Senate Finance committee in 1893, embracing the subjects of prices and wages in this country during a period of fifty-two years, gives in reliable form and easy of access facts of experience as to the results upon labor of a depreciation of currency. When specie payments were suspended during the war, the prices of merchandise appreciated rapidly in proportion to the premium on gold, but wages not only followed at a slower pace, but for years did not equal the rise in value of the necessities of life. In the report above alluded to, it is shown that in 1862 the wages of labor paid in the then moderately depreciated currency were not quite three per cent. higher than the gold rates previously paid, but that the prices of 223 articles of daily consumption were nearly 18 per cent. higher; in 1863 when paper money was worth 69 cents as compared with gold, wages of labor were 10 1-2 per cent. higher than when paid in gold, but the prices of food, clothing, etc., were nearly 49 per cent. higher; in 1864 with the paper dollar worth 49 cents, wages had risen 25 1-2 per cent. but the prices of the necessaries of life had advanced 90 1-2 per cent.; in 1865 with the paper dollar worth 63 cents, wages showed a gain of 43 per cent. but the prices of merchandise an advance of 117 per cent., having thus more than doubled; in 1866 with the greenbacks worth 71 cents on the dollar, wages recorded an advance of a fraction more than 52 per cent., and commodities an advance of 90 per cent.

It is well for the wage earners to come to the realization of the fact that they are really more vitally interested in preserving the stability of our currency than are property owners. Merchandise, rents and all for which the laborer has to spend his earnings will increase under depreciation out of all proportion to the advance in wages and it will be a long and distressing period before their relationship shall be re-established upon a fair footing. The proportional heaviest portion of the burden proposed will not come upon the employer and capitalist but upon the employe, and the latter should be very slow to favor any course that would cause the purchasing power of their hard earned dollars to grow less.

Quincy to Nantasket.

Commencing today a new arrangement goes into effect on the Quincy & Boston street railway and hereafter it will be possible to get into an electric car at the depot and go direct to Nantasket beach without change of cars and in order to do this the cars of the Hingham street railway will run through to Quincy leaving this city every half hour from 9.20 A. M. to 9.50 P. M., for Nantasket beach running direct by one of the most picturesque routes to this famous summer resort. At Hingham close connection is made with cars for Downer Landing.

Leaving Quincy the cars pass down through Quincy Point to North Weymouth, where they branch off and follow the new state road from North Weymouth through Hingham to the beach the route skirting along the shore for nearly its whole length thus forming an unusually pleasant ride. The running time by this route when a change of cars was necessary, was one hour and twenty minutes but now that cars run through without change, the trip will be made in a little over an hour, saving nearly thirty minutes over the route via East Weymouth and the New York and New Haven electrics.

Although the weather was rather unfavorable for the beach this morning the first car had fifteen passengers when it left the Quincy depot.

Wanted to Look Pretty.

Jessie McPartland and Dollina McRae up to last Saturday were employed as domestics at the residence of Alexander W. Thompson on Elm street. Last Saturday night Jessie ceased to be employed by Mr. Thompson, and when she left the house it is alleged that she helped herself to Dollina's pretty shirt waist without first obtaining the required permission. Dollina did not like this method of doing business, and as she valued the waist at $5, she reported the matter to the police who placed Jessie under arrest Thursday night and this morning had her before the court.

Altgeld's Gold Leases.

Gov. Altgeld's attempt to explain his gold leases, wherein it is stipulated that his rentals shall be paid in gold, fails to explain. His private secretary says that the form is the same as is used in all leases in Chicago, and that Gov. Altgeld knew nothing personally about the way they read, whereas the facts are that Gov. Altgeld's leases were printed especially for him on a form drawn up by himself, and each lease is signed by Altgeld. The Chicago Chronicle, which brings out these facts, pointedly remarks that Gov. Altgeld, while denouncing corporations, is the president of a corporation. Denouncing classes, he belongs to the landlord class. A professed silverite, he exacts gold leases from his tenants. Protesting a philanthropic regard for debtors, his leases have the most tyrannous covenants by which debtors for rent may be evicted, harassed and distressed,—Boston Herald.

Stole Feed Wire.

Antonio Restollo was arrested Thursday night by Inspector McKay for the larceny of a coil of feed wire, owned by the Quincy & Boston street railway. The wire was left in the yard near Hodges' bakery. Early last Saturday morning the wire disappeared. The matter was reported to the police and Inspector McKay succeeded in tracing the wire to Restollo whom he arrested as noted above.

The wire which was valued at $40 was stolen by Restollo, who sold it to a junk dealer for $6. The wire was recovered.

A Lively Painter.

A painter, who does not boast of his fancy dancing, tried his skill at graceful movements one morning recently. An outrageous mosquito had presented his bill and this so enraged our quiet friend that he commenced to scratch, which he continued until blood came. Not quite satisfied with the result he went to his medical chest and found a bottle of neuropathic hot drops. This, said he, is just the thing, and accordingly commenced to apply a few drops, but it did not need many to send him spinning, and it is said for the next half hour he surpassed any of the graceful dancers that have been seen at Lovell's Grove this season.

—The Salem Gazette says the anti-Atwood campaign in the 10th Congressional District is to be pressed with vigor. The conductors have issued invitations for a meeting at the Parker House or at Young's next Wednesday. There is a determination manifested by a goodly portion of the Republican voters that the present incumbent shall be allowed to retire to private life.

—Secretary George G. Brown of the Brooklyn Board of Education has declined an increase of salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year because he says the city cannot afford it while its bonds go begging. Very commendable, but still $5,000 a year is a pretty fair salary.

HOUGHS NECK.

The Houghs Neck Improvement Society held an adjourned meeting at Pierce's hall Thursday evening, at which it was voted to hold the illumination on Tuesday evening, Sept. 1.

The following executive committee was appointed to have full charge of all arrangements: John Cavanagh, president; B. C. Leonard, secretary and treasurer; John F. Cullen, J. L. Harvey, Ira D. Whittemore, W. F. Macy and W. H. Taylor.

The programme this year will include band concerts in the afternoon and evening.

In the afternoon there will be a series of sports for the young people, sailing parties and a treat of ice cream and cake for the children. In the evening there will be an illumination of all the cottages along the beach.

The work making repairs on the Union Chapel at Houghs Neck, which was recently damaged by being struck by lightning, is nearly completed and services will be resumed Sunday.

The building was insured for $1000 through the agency of George H. Brown & Co., who promptly adjusted the loss, and allowed $150.

Mrs. E. B. Harriman and family of Brockton arrived at the Grapevine cottage today for two weeks.

The McAulley cottage on Bay View avenue has been occupied by Joseph Coleman of Ashmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Hood and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Alger are among the new arrivals at Pierce's hotel.

Mr. Murray of Ashmont is in the Miller cottage an Darrow street.

Harlow's Brockton band will give concerts Sunday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. McHugh and family of Hyde Park have engaged the Seaview cottage from August 22.

Miss Edith Giles and party of friends from Hyde Park are quartered at the Daisy cottage.

Charles Rich and family of Brookline are in their cottage on Manet avenue.

Mr. Coveney and family of Hyde Park are in the Cavanagh cottage.

M. L. French is building a cottage on Island avenue.

John Sullivan and family of South Boston are in a cottage on Bell street.

The tide is just right for bathing this week and many have taken advantage of it and enjoyed a dip in the briny deep.

A large number of Italians are camping at Germantown this week.

Dishonest Room-mate.

Among the boarders at John Shea's on Hancock street are Fred Boss and a blacksmith, employed by S. Scammell, whose name could not be learned. These two men roomed together and Wednesday while the blacksmith was at work Boss pried open his room-mate's trunk and stole $15. Thursday night, in the presence of Inspector McKay, Boss was accused of the theft and upon the promise that he would not be prosecuted he acknowledged the theft and returned the money.

Sales Talk

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than accorded any other proprietary medicine. This is simply because it possesses greater merit and produces greater cures than any other. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story. All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest. We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have abiding confidence in it, and buy

Warren Nelson is enjoying his vacation at home.

Miss Inez Dunbar is spending her two weeks' vacation at New Haven.

Miss Emma D. Coughlin and Miss Addie Perry spent Thursday at Winthrop.

Mr. Fred E. Bennett of Rockland is spending several days in Atlantic.

G. V. Bowditch will accompany the Quincy yacht club on its annual cruise.

W. M. Wight and family of Wollaston are enjoying a two weeks' outing at Dublin, N. H.

The Rev. Granville Yager of Dighton supplied at the Memorial church, Atlantic, Sunday.

A load of iron for the new Savings Bank building arrived on Friday, and work will now begin with a rush.

The Electric Light & Power Company are now running a day circuit to furnish current for electric fans.

Mr. Arthur Farr, a missionary at the Jamaica Islands is the guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Penniman.

The Atlantics are to play the St. Mary's Y. M. C. Association, of Boston, on the Atlantic grounds tomorrow afternoon.

It was expected that the assesors would announce the tax rate today, but they were unable to do so but promise it next week.

Mrs. G. O. Langley, Miss May Langley and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Beckford left yesterday for a three weeks' rest at Haverhill and Durham, N. H.

The first of the Burkhardt cup races of the Squantum Yacht club will be sailed on Saturday, off the club house at Norfolk Downs, at 2.45 P. M.

Mr. Thomas Griffin, the barber at the Old Colony railroad station in Boston, who resides in Atlantic, is reported as quite sick with quick consumption.

There will be a game of base ball at the Merrymount Park, Saturday afternoon, between the Medfords and T. R. & S. Company. P. Duffy will be in the box for the T. R. & S. Co. team.

Much complaint has been made recently in Atlantic against boys going in bathing without the bathing suits required by law, in several places where they can be plainly seen from houses and streets.

Three of our Quincy boats came home last night winners of silver cups from the Corinthian races. Our mayor, ex-Commodore Faxon and Mr. Cavanagh are the lucky men, and Quincy yachting interests are still more enhanced by these victories.

There was a good attendance at all the services at the Methodist church, Atlantic, on Sunday. Twenty-seven boquets furnished by the floral decorators made the church appear lovely, the next morning half of these were taken to the Emergency, and half to the Diocesan Home.

Next Sunday evening at half past six there will be an open air meeting, weather permitting in front of the Methodist church, Atlantic. Mr. James Miller will have charge of the praise service and Mr. Cleary, the cornetist of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, will assist with his cornet.

Dr. E. R. Johnson, a graduate of Boston University School of medicine, who has been in practice in Melrose, has moved to Wollaston Heights. Dr. Johnson was at one time physical director of the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. at Quincy and has many friends who will be glad to know that he has located in this vicinity.

Rev. Ira E. Price of Atlantic has organized a teachers meeting and a normal class in connection with the same, which meets every Wednesday evening, in different homes. As Mr. Price is a thorough bible student of the anti-higher criticism school these meetings are very profitable to those wishing to obtain a better knowledge of the word of God.

The milk wagon of James Morehead was run into by an electric car on Hancock street, Thursday night. The wagon, driven by a boy came down Bridge street and not seeing or hearing a car, he drove onto the track directly in front of the car which struck the rear end demolishing both wheels and otherwise damaging the wagon. No one injured.

QUINCY BOATS WIN AGAIN.

The Beatrice, Rooster and Cleopatra Secure Silver Cups at Marblehead.

Quincy boats covered themselves with glory again Thursday, at the second race of the Corinthian club at Marblehead. There was but little wind and the larger classes did little more than drift.

The Beatrice, Rooster and Cleopatra again won in their respective classes and as a result will bring home three handsome silver cups.

In the sixteen footers Harold B. Faxon in the Sunbeam did his best to repeat his victory of the day before, but was obliged to content himself with second place, but as there is another race today, he may be fortunate enough to again win, in which case another silver cup would come to Quincy.

The Red Lion.

Mr. Jesse P. Woodbury with his family from Francistown, N. H., has just left after an extended visit with his brother-in-law Mr. George W. Morton, at the Red Lion, at Houghs Neck.

During his stay the two aged lady aunts of the family, Mrs. Safford and Mrs. Thompson, from Milton, joined them and remained over night. These ladies are way beyond the eightieth milestone and enjoyed the improved Red Lion which they had never expected to visit.

Mr. Morton has remodeled his summer home, building the upper story out over the entire piazza, and opening, by an arch, the lower floor with new fire place and mantel, new kitchen and offices with all the appointments for household service have quite transformed the place.

The traditional Red Lion is built in over the two fire places below, and a large picture of a lion ornaments the walls of the living room. Mr. Morton secured some deep panels which are added to the dining room walls.

The walls of both rooms are tinted rose pink, and with the addition of rugs, chairs, etc., the place is very inviting.

He has built the upper story with windows jutting out, so that a fine view of the bay can be gained, both north and south.

The outside is painted in soft colors lending still more to the picturesqueness of the whole. Altogether the new Red Lion is a beautiful and unique home and one whose hospitality is traditional.

Outside, the pretty barn, flowers, garden, trees and shrubs make a place where one can be secluded from the public. Against the outer substantial sea walls the tide comes beating, and at night sleep comes there with the rythmic music of the waves.

TODAY'S COURT.

Antonio Restollo of Quincy was arraigned for the larceny of a coil of feed wire valued at $40, the propety of the Quincy & Boston street railway, and was held in $300 until Saturday morning.

Martin Ryan was arraigned for assault on Thomas Clare at Quincy; and Thomas Clare was arraigned for assault on Martin Ryan.

Ryan drives an ice wagon for Eaton Bros. and Clare drives an ice wagon for himself. Thursday noon the two teams met at Atlantic when Ryan approached and according to his own testimony said, "You will get a slap in the face if you do not stop talking about me."

Clare retaliated with a swinging blow which knocked Ryan down.

The two men then clinched and were about to have a struggle when Officer Golding appeared and locked them up.

Clare pleaded nolo-contendre and was fined $5; and Ryan's case was continued two weeks.

Jessie McPartland was arraigned for the larceny of a shirt waist, valued at $5, from Dollina McRae. Case continued one week.

—The Randolph, Hingham and Everett associations were admitted to membership in the New England Firemen's League on Tuesday, and applications for membership were received from the Peabody union, Dorchester and Swampscott associations, which will be admitted at the November meeting.

FAILED TO REACH IT.

But Nansen Went Nearer the Pole Than Any Other Explorer.

Reached 86 Degrees, 14 Minutes, North Latitude.

A Few Facts Concerning the Scientist and His Latest Undertaking.

Malmo, Sweden, Aug. 14.—The newspaper Dagensnyheter has received communications from Dr. Nansen and Lieutenant Schotthansen, from the Island of Vardoe. These communications state that they abandoned the Fram in the autumn of 1895, and resorted to the ice.

The steamer Windward, carrying supplies to the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition picked them up near Franz Josef Land. They expected that the Fram would eventually drift to the east coast of Greenland. Dr. Nansen failed to reach the North Pole, but he touched a point four degrees nearer than any other explorer has done.

Dr. Nansen left the Fram on March 14, 1895, in 84 degrees north latitude. He traversed the Polar sea to a point in 86 degrees, 14 minutes, north latitude, situated north of the New Siberia Islands. No land was sighted north of 82 degrees latitude, or thence to Franz Josef land, where he passed the winter, subsisting on bears' flesh and whale blubber. Dr. Nansen and his companion are in the best of health. The Fram is expected at Vardoe or Bergen shortly. She stood the ice well. There were no sick persons aboard when Nansen left there.

The steamer Windward took letters for Nansen when it started to the relief of the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, as Mr. Jackson expected to find Nansen, and was convinced that his idea of drifting across the pole in the ice was impracticable. He was also convinced that Nansen would return in the direction of Franz Josef land.

DR. NANSEN.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian scientist, now about 36 years old, sailed from Christiania, June 24, 1893, on a voyage of discovery to the Arctic regions, and with the intention of reaching the North Pole, if possible. He embarked on board a three-masted schooner named the Fram, which was provided with a 160 horse power steam engine. She was of 800 tons, and her sides were so constructed as to force all ice meeting the vessel pass under it, thus preventing all "pinching" and "screwing." The Fram was launched at Laurwik, near Christiania, on Oct. 26, 1892, and the Norwegian parliament gave Dr. Nansen about $52,000 in aid of his expedition. Additional funds were forthcoming by private subscription, including one of over $5000 from King Oscar.

The Fram was in every way admirably equipped, and had a crew of 12 men, all of whom occupied the cabin, which measured only 13 feet square, and which was heated by means of an English petroleum stove, which consumed three litres of petroleum a day. The Fram (Forward) had enough fuel on board to last eight or nine years, and she also had a library, consisting of about 1000 books.

Dr. Nansen's plan was to make for the New Siberian islands, and then sail directly north until the Fram should be imbedded in the ice. He then proposed to drift along with the ice, following the west coast of any land that might be met.

A dispatch was received from the doctor at Vardoe on Aug. 23, 1893, written in the Yugorski straits, on the second of that month, announcing that the expedition was about to sail into the Kara gea, and that the Fram, so far, had behaved splendid.

Dr. Nansen entered the university at Christiania in 1880, and in 1882 went as a passenger on the sealing steamer Viking to Denmark straits and the east coast of Greenland. It is believed that this voyage laid the foundation for the ambition of his life, namely, that of discovering the North Pole. On his return from Greenland he was appointed curator of the museum at Bergen, and held that position until 1888, when he led a small expedition to Greenland, and crossed the southern portion of that country from the east coast, to Godhead, on the west coast, where the party wintered, and returned to Norway in June, 1889.

In September, 1889, Dr. Nansen married Miss Eva Sars, youngest daughter of the late professor of zoology at the University of Christiania. Mrs. Nansen has long had supreme faith in the eventual return of her husband. She has a powerful, musical voice, was a professional singer before her marriage, and has since appeared before the public on various occasions. Dr. and Mrs. Nansen have one child, a daughter.

Since Dr. Nansen's departure for the Arctic regions, there have been a number of reports circulated regarding his safety, but they have all, up to the present, turned out to be without foundation.

The Windward, of the Jackson-Farnsworth expedition, which has brought Dr. Nansen to that island, left Vardoe for Franz Josef Land, in order to bring back the British expedition on June 28 last.

PROFESSOR ANDREWS' VIEWS

Given In Answer to Questions Propounded by a Western Friend.

Denver, Aug. 14.—Rev. Henry W. Pinkham, pastor of the First Baptist church here, and a friend of Preside t Andrews of Brown university, recently wrote to Mr. Andrews, asking these questions:

1.—Do you favor the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 by the United States, without waiting for aid from other nations?

2.—Could the United States, having adopted such free coinage, maintain the practical parity of the gold and the silver dollar?

3.—Would not free coinage by the United States alone lead to a complete displacement of our gold? Why not.

4.—Would not the effect of the recent increased production of gold, as compared to silver, be counter-balanced in the event of free coinage, by the stimulus thus given to silver mining, and by the influx of foreign silver?

5.—Would not the advantages of free coinage be more than negatived by the injury to our credit, thus causing a withdrawal of foreign capital?

In reply, President Andrews has written:

My Dear Pinkham—I was delighted to received your letter of the 6th, and will endeavor to answer your questions in their order, as well as I can.

1.—I do.

2.—I believe so.

3.—I do not think so. People would not hoard or export gold in face of a movement certain to cheapen gold. It seems to me rather likely that the rehabilitation of silver by us would be the occasion of setting free vast amounts of gold now hoarded for military and other purposes.

4.—This is partly answered under the last. Further, there would be no influx of foreign silver. Undoubtedly free coinage by us would increase the total amount of silver produced, but the new silver could not be mined at so low a marginal cost as at present prevails. The marginal cost would be on the contrary increased with the output, so that all tendency from this source to lower the gold price of silver would be negatived. The very prolific silver mines now are very few.

5.—Quite the reverse. After a possible first shock our credit would improve after free coinage. It is our present course which must speedily lower our credit. How long could a man or a firm continue to have credit who borrowed each year to pay a large portion of his running expenses? Yet on a gold basis this course is inevitable, and that is at this moment the reason why foreign lenders are shy of our securities. There must be a change if we would avoid bankruptcy. With free coinage every industry would look up, and even if we lost our gold our prosperity would invite in English capital, just as Japan's prosperity now causes it to rush there. Never since slavery days has the press in the part of the country familiar to me displayed such disregard for truth, and such stubborn obtruseness to the most obvious considerations, as it does at present on the silver question. This means that the money power seated in London, but with representatives in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, is determined to continue the appreciation of gold, and determined therefore that the facts shall not be known. The bankers and the press are almost entirely under its influence. I think the money question at the present time the greatest question of civilization.

Yours, with kindest regards,
Eben J. Andrews.

TIRED SALESWOMEN.

Employers Should Be More Considerate of Their Health.

Interesting Statement by a Young Lady in Brooklyn.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen.

Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organism is less strong than men's they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract these distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhœa, general debility and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following is a sample:

"My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—After writing you, and before your answer came, I was too miserable to go to the store, and so lost my position. That was five weeks ago. I am now back again in my old place, and never felt so well in all my life. The bearing-down pains and whites have left me, and I am not a bit nervous or blue. Life looks brighter to me. I don't get tired, my temper is real sweet, and I could scream right out sometimes for joy. Your Vegetable Compound is my standby. You don't know how thankful I am to you for saving me from suffering.

Every woman in my position should know of your wonderful remedy. I never saw you, but I love you for being so good to me."—EDITH——W. 6th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

CATARRH

HIS WORST ENEMY

DEFEATED

For Three Years He Suffered—Could Hardly Breathe at Night—One Nostril Closed for Ten Years.

Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of De Leon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the night's coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him.

DE LEON, TEXAS.

Messrs. Lippman Bros., Savannah, Ga.,

GENTS: I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily.

I have not slept on either side for two years; in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night.

I am 50 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, } ss.:
County of Comanche, }

Before the undersigned authority, on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine, is true.

A. M. RAMSEY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this, August 4th, 1896.

J. M. LAMBERT, N. P.,
Comanche County, Texas.

CAR PLATFORM TALKS

Will Be One of the Features When Bryan's Campaign Begins.

Professor Andrews on Free Coinage Question.

Sees Nothing to Fear In Changing From the Gold Standard.

New York, Aug. 14.—The New York newspapers sent their men to report the Bryan and Sewall notification meeting, and as it appeared to them, was printed in the several introductions introducing the meeting. They all agree that the audience was disappointed in their expectations, a brilliant oratorical effort, in keeping with that speech at Chicago which secured him the nomination, having been expected.

Mr. Bryan held a conference last evening with those members of the national committee who are in the city. One of the things which was decided upon at the meeting was that Mr. Bryan will travel the country over, addressing the crowds from the rear of a railroad car.

An announcement was prepared by chairman of the national committee, Senator Jones, and was given out by Treasurer St. John. It was: "It has been decided that Mr. Bryan will enter actively into the campaign about Sept. 1, and continue on the stump until the election. In order to obtain a much needed rest, and to prepare the lettter of acceptance before the speechmaking begins, he will spend the next two weeks at some quiet place, not yet decided upon. The visit to Bath, Me., will therefore be postponed until the latter part of September, when Mr. Bryan will make a number of speeches in New England."

Of the criticisms of his speech, Mr. Bryan said, after looking over all the newspapers: "I did not expect to overcome all the prejudice at one blow. Neither did I expect to set the North river on fire with oratory. It was not a time for oratorical flights, but for serious and argumentative discussion. I am pleased with my reception."

Mr. Bryan explained yesterday his reasons for reading his speech in reply to the notification of his nomination at Madison Square Garden. He said: "Knowing that it would be printed in full, I thought it more important that it should reach in correct form the millions who will read it than that the delivery should please the few thousands who were present. It is always unfortunate when a speaker is compelled to read a political speech, but in this instance I thought it best not to risk the errors which always creep into the report of an extemporaneous speech."

Messrs. Bryan and Sewall remained at the Windsor hotel all day yesterday. During the afternoon Messrs. Bryan and Sewall received about 300 callers in the private parlors of the hotel. Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Bland and Mrs. Stone, the latter the wife of Governor Stone of Missouri, and Mrs. Stewart, wife of Senator Stewart, received a number of ladies in the ladies' parlor between 4 and 5 o'clock. The callers were not numerous.

LYNN'S LABOR PARADE

Participated In by More Than Three Thousand Working People.

Public Meeting Attended by Sixteen Thousand.

Methods of Plant Company Denounced by Various Speakers.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 14.—Probably not since the days of the old Knights of St. Crispin, which flourished here in the early 70's, has such a demonstration of organized labor been made in this city as last evening, when upwards of 3000 individuals, principally shoe workers, turned out in a procession, which paraded the principal streets of the city to the common, where a meeting was held to protest against the action of the Thomas G. Plant company in discharging its 92 lasters and six McKay stitchers. The meeting was attended by 16,000 people.

The procession formed on Andrew street at 7:30 o'clock, with Edward Smith as marshal, headed by a fife, drum and bugle corps, and a platoon of police. The route led by the Plant factory on Washington street, where the drum corps, in passing, played the "Dead March in Saul," and the processionists uncovered their heads, which action was greeted with cheers by nearly 3000 spectators, who lined the sidewalks near the factory.

The streets through which the procession passed were crowded with spectators, and it was estimated that over 30,000 people were on the streets alone. The procession halted on the common, where the open air meeting was held, which was presided over by Walter L. Ramsdell. Mr. Ramsdell delivered an address, in which he condemned the alleged action of the company in breaking its contract with the Lasters' union of Lynn. He referred caustically to the recent utterance of Mr. Plant, who said that public sentiment in Lynn had nothing to do with this fight, which was only another form of saying what a New York capitalist once said, "The public be d—d."

Mr. Ramsdell introduced as the first speaker the national president of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, John F. Tobin, who called for cheers for the men and women who came out of the Plant factory on strike, to assist those who were discharged by this unscrupulous firm, and they were enthusiastically given.

He then proceeded to arraign the Plant company, and said that Mr. Plant had insulted the city of Lynn, where he had his home and where he became prosperous, and now he wanted to desert the city and take his factory along with him, to Jamaica Plain. Mr. Plant had made a reputation in Lynn, and no doubt he imagined that wherever he went this reputation would follow him. "Well," said Mr. Tobin, "his reputation will follow him, and we shall see that it will."

Rev. Herbert N. Casson, pastor of the Lynn Labor church, said it was about 150 years since John Adam Dagyr made Lynn famous for its shoe trade. Many manufacturers had gone up and down since then, and in the past 12 years, six or seven large manufacturers had tried to carry the trade in fine shoes out of Lynn, and they had all failed to do so. "Plants may come and Plants may go," he said, "but the Lynn shoe trade goes on forever."

Frank Thompson of the Cigarmakers' union of Boston was the last speaker, and advised the people to organize for their own protection, for in union there was strength.

Chairman Ramsdell called for three cheers for victory, which were given heartily, and the meeting dissolved.

Penobscot County's Plight.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 14.—Since the agitation over the finances of the city began it has leaked out that this (Penobscot) county is in bad financial condition, and the new system of liquor license, viz., the fining of the liquor sellers once or twice a year, although the prohibitory law is supposed to make imprisonment obligatory, has put the county on easy street, but county commissioners have allowed the cash to run too low. The treasury is low, and loans have been at a high rate of interest, to make up for the deficiency. The deficit is explained from the fact that no tax was collected in the year 1895, the commissioners finding plenty of money on hand, and apparently not looking ahead. Now the commissioners are censured for omitting the assessment of the tax of 1895. It is said the legislature will be petitioned that the county may issue bonds to pay its indebtedness.

Bad Man Run Down.

Keene, N. H., Aug. 14.—Cyrus Barber of Westport was caught at the muzzle of a gun last night, by two young men, who were waiting for him in the woods at Swansea pond. Barber is charged with being a bicycle thief, besides having broken into the cottages of Denman Thompson and Messrs. Richardson and Huse, at Swansea, carrying away everything that was valuable, and stealing silverware from several churches. In fact, it is alleged that Barber has been quite a dangerous fellow. His captors laid in wait for him as he was going into his retreat. Much property was recovered. He was placed in Cheshire county jail last night.

A Female Thief.

Boston, Aug. 14.—Police officials are congratulating themselves over the arrest, yesterday, of Mabel Fraser, 38 years old, a domestic, formerly employed by J. S. Gordon of Beacon street. Some time ago Mr. Gordon missed two valuable diamond rings and two silver tea spoons, and suspicion fell upon the domestic. On searching her trunk several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry, silverware and clothing was found. Several articles have been identified by former employers of the girl. Miss Fraser came from Augusta, Me. She was formerly a telegraph operator, but losing her position she secured employment as a domestic.

Christian Spirit Prevailed.

Boston, Aug. 14.—An amicable adjustment of all past and present difficulties at Park Street church will probably be effected, as a result of the action taken at a special meeting of the church last evening. It was voted to rescind all previous action regarding the calling of an ecclesiastical council of the society and the church to consider the trouble with the pastor. It was also voted to rescind all the harsh measures toward Dr. Lansing, that had been adopted since Feb. 7, when the pastor's letter was received, which is a practical acknowledgment that the church had not acted in exactly a fair spirit toward Dr. Lansing.

Woman Beat the Man.

Norwalk, Conn., Aug. 14.—Two neighbors, who reside in Georgetown—James Beers and Mrs. Medlecott—got into a dispute over the ownership of some chickens, and, rolling up their sleeves, went at each other. After several minutes of hard fighting, Mrs. Medlecott got a sickle from the woodshed and inflicted upon her adversary several severe cuts on the arms, neck and face. Beers fell to the ground gasping, and Mrs. Medlecott fled. Friends carried him home, and physicians sewed up his wounds. He is confined to the house.

Row Not Unlikely.

Stoneham, Mass., Aug. 14.—The contractor on the sewer work here discharged 150 Italian laborers last night, with the intention of filling their places with Italians from New York. The discharged men got $1.50 to $1.60 per day, and the new men, it is understood, are to get $1.35. As the discharged men are still in town, it is feared that trouble is impending.

Marks Confesses.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 14.—Irving Marks, the notorious diamond robber, confessed last night to Sheriff Clark at Kingston, that all the diamonds found in his effects at the Revere House were stolen property, and he also gave the sheriff the names of the owners of much of it. Marks also confessed to a large robbery of jewelry at the Craymore, in Atlantic City, on July 13. Two watches, stolen by Marks and pawned in Newport, were recovered yesterday.

Driver Had a Close Call.

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 14.—Fire truck No 1, driven by a fireman named Turner, attempted to cross the tracks of the Medford street crossing yesterday, as a train was coming along. The gateman had lifted the gates to allow the truck to pass, but there was not time, and the engine struck the horses, killing one instantly and so badly injuring another that it had to be shot. The driver was not hurt.

Child Killed by Carelessness.

Providence, Aug. 14. — Coroner Lincoln's report in the case of Mary Burgess, 18 months old, who was run over and killed by a team driven by Edward Lupton several days ago, finds that the child's death was caused by Lupton's carelessness. Lupton has been held in $5000 bail to await action of the grand jury.

Oil Stove Exploded.

Providence, Aug. 14.—At the residence of Walter Scott, Mrs. Scott and Mary Lawton were at work in the kitchen yesterday afternoon, when an oil stove exploded. Mrs. Scott's injuries were of a slight character, but those of Miss Lawton were so severe that it is doubtful if she can recover.

Heroic Measure.

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 14.—The Woman's Veterans Relief union disbanded last night by the Veteran union taking its charter away. Six ineligible members, who refused to resign, caused the trouble, and the charter was taken away to straighten out matters.

From Coast to Coast.

Providence, Aug. 14.—Two Providence young men are to leave this city tomorrow, and will take the overland trip to California, making an attempt to break the present record from this section of New England to San Francisco. They are Bert Place and Walter Whipple.

Clerk and Money Missing.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14. — Harold Smithers, a young clerk, employed by H. H. Skinner, a local banker, has left town, having, it is alleged, embezzled $385 of his employer's money.

WEEPING AND WAILING.

All Languages Heard In an Uproar In Gotham's Notorious East Side.

Police Made Sudden Descent on Push Cart Venders.

Destroyed Their Stale Stocks and Then Flooded the Streets.

New York, Aug. 15. — There was a panic, almost a riot, on the East side yesterday, when a squad of sanitary policemen swept through the neighborhoods of which Baxter and Hester streets are types, destroying the stock of hundreds of push cart venders, whose wares had become so tainted as to make them a menace to the public health.

It was the biggest raid of the kind ever made in that part of the city, and for two hours the streets were filled with shouting women and children, and the flat carts were pushed here and there, like big beetles rushing blindly for hiding places.

The raid was ordered by the board of health, who decided that the heat had so affected the stocks of stale vegetables and fruits sold by street merchants as to put them in the proper condition to breed disease. It is estimated that there were 2000 push cart pedlers in the lower East side.

The raid was carefully planned, and the policemen were armed with stout clubs, not to batter heads, but to enable them to mash the pulpy vegetables on the carts. When the start was made one division of bluecoats swept through Hester street, and almost before the bewildered merchants were aware of what was taking place the clubs had wrought havoc with their stock, carts were overturned, and the contents thrown in the gutters. Then there was lamentation in every language known. There was a tearing of beards and an uproar that caused the street to be crowded before the policemen had gone a block. But they swept on, never stopping, and leaving behind them a trail of bad smelling provender.

The women shouted to the men to fight, but their hearts failed them, and there was a general refusal. When the last of the condemned stuff that could be after the city wagons had carried away the debris, the fire hydrants were turned on, and the streets flooded. The water had much to do with causing things to lapse back into a normal state, for it effectually dispersed the crowds. They could stand clubs and decayed fruit, but the water was too much for them.

Another Row at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—A dastardly attempt at murder took place last night, it being an outcome of the Brown hoisting works strike. Ten strikers went to the corner of Wade park and East Madison street and lay in wait for a party of nine workmen, who came by on their way home from the Brown hoisting works. Without a moment's warning the strikers rushed from behind a saloon, where they were in hiding, and with a cry of "scab," began shooting into the little crowd of workmen. A few of the workmen were armed and returned the fire. The battle lasted about three minutes, and about 30 shots were fired. The strikers then fled. Four men were shot—two fatally. Two of the strikers were shot. One of them was shot through the lungs, and will die. The other striker was not fatally injured.

New Bills In Circulation.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The United States treasurer has secured a supply of the new $2 and $5 silver certificates, and begun putting them in circulation today in place of the old and worn out certificates. The face of the $2 certificate is made up of women figures, representing "Science presenting electricity and steam to commerce and manufacture." The face of the $5 certificate has "America," a woman's figure standing in a globe, a figure on "Jupiter" upon the back of horses, also figures of "Fame" and "Peace." The face of the new $10 certificate is an agricultural group.

Killed Three Men.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 15.—A letter received from the American consul in Juarez, Mexico, states that James F. Howardo f this city is lying mortally wounded in the hospital in Juarez. Aug. 8 the young man, while on a train, had trouble with a Mexican, and the latter drawing a knife, he pulled a revolver. Other Mexicans also came up, and the result was that five minutes later three of the Mexicans were dead on the car floor, and Howard was lying beside the track, he having jumped through the window after receiving two bullets.

Against Prohibition.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 15.—The Rockingham county Democratic club held its annual outing at Star island, Isles of Shoals, yesterday. Henry O. Kent of Lancaster, a possible gubernatorial candidate, made the principal speech. He sounded the keynote of the coming campaign, by declaring that the prohibition law was a farce and a failure, and favoring a local option license law. The members applauded his eloquent address, and cheered the names of Bryan and Sewall.

DEBT LIMIT EXCEEDED.

How Will Bangor Manage to Pay For Water Works Contracts?

Bangor, Me., Aug. 15.—Hon. Herbert M. Heath of Augusta, counsel for Bearce & Clifford of Lewiston, contractors, was in Bangor yesterday and consulted with John D. Clifford of Bearce & Clifford in regard to the position of the city of Bangor toward the contracts for the extension of the water works. Leading taxpayers here claim that the contracts are illegal, as the city has no authority to raise the $200,000 needed to pay for these improvements, having reached the constitutional debt limit. The city treasurer has given notice that he shall not pay any money or issue any notes for such purposes, having been advised that such action would be illegal, and that he could be held for the sums paid.

It is reported that Counsel Heath has said that the Bearce & Clifford contract, as things now stand, could hold the city to the payment of the bills contracted thus far in the construction of the water works.

Bearce & Clifford are going ahead with their work just as if no storm were brewing. One of their stone schooners is aground down off Stern's mills, but they are loading the cargo into another vessel and will receive it soon. At the water works work is going on fast, although nobody knows whether or not it will be paid for.

Mourned For Her Little One.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 15.—Keeper William Colbry of the Lakeview cemetery, yesterday found Mrs. William Burkhardt lying on the grave of her child, recently interred there. A bottle containing a small quantity of laudanum was beside her. The keeper hastened to inform the police. When he returned the woman had disappeared, and the officers could find no trace of her. It is believed she ended her life in one of the creeks in the vicinity of the cemetery.

Hasn't Skipped.

Providence, Aug. 15.—It was reported yesterday afternoon that Edward Lupton, who is under $5000 bonds on the charge of having caused the death of Mary Burgess, had disappeared, leaving his bondsmen in the lurch. It was discovered later, however, that Lupton was in town, and that his failure to appear was simply due to a misunderstanding, as he has engaged counsel, and believes that he can show that he is not guilty of the charge.

Woman of Many Aliases.

Hartford, Aug. 15. — Jane Cohn, the woman recently convicted here of shoplifting, is a notorious criminal, well known in Boston, Worcester, Mass., and New York. Chief Inspector Watts of the Boston police writes to Chief Bill that she has been convicted in Boston under the aliases of Margaret Worthen, Frances Atwood, Ellen Livingston, Margaret McCauley, Sarah Hobbs, Sarah Morgan and Jane Martin.

Killed by Angry Bull.

Noble B. Turner, who resides in West Village, Housatonic, was attacked in his barnyard yesterday by a bull and knocked down. Jacob Mansfield came to his rescue, when the bull turned and gored Mansfield's stomach, penetrated his lung and broke his right leg and three ribs. The man will die. Turner received bad external bruises, but will recover.

No New Schoolhouse Yet.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 15.—At a meeting of the school board, yesterday, it was decided to remodel the lower floor of the high school, in order to secure more space for pupils and relieve the overcrowded condition of the building. This defeats the prospect for a new school this year, and probably for next. The class to enter next month is expected to furnish enough pupils to fill the school.

Accidentally Killed Himself.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 15.—Meagre details have reached here of the shooting, in Unity, of Benjamin A. Bartlett of Kansas City, formerly of this city. Mr. Bartlett came east only a few days ago for a visit to his sister, Mrs. J. H. Webster, in Orono. Later he went to Unity, and it was there that he caused his own death yesterday by accidental shooting.

Double Fatality at Railway Crossing.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Aug. 15.—May Ellsworth, aged 20, and Alice Varney of Sutton, aged 26, were struck by a train at the railroad crossing in Paddock village. Miss Varney's body was terribly mangled, and she died instantly. Miss Ellsworth lost both legs and suffered internal injuries, dying shortly afterward.

Train Struck Handcar.

Lime Rock, Conn., Aug. 15.—Thomas Mullen, aged 55 years, section boss on the Berkshire division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was killed yesterday by the handcar in which he and four other laborers were riding, by being struck by an "extra." The other men jumped in time to escape serious injury.

Missing Girl Found.

Boston, Aug. 15.—Florence M. Collings, a young girl who has been missing from her home at 33 Cottage street, East Boston, since Aug. 1, was found yesterday in South Boston and returned to her parents. She has been employed by the Boston book bindery for several days.

Chilian Minister Shot.

New York, Aug. 15.—The employes of the Adams Express company in Jersey City went out on strike shortly after midnight. They say that their hours of labor are too long and their wages too low. The New York men have also struck. There are 600 employes in the two cities. The men say that they did not strike until compelled to, the company having refused them any redress. They also have asked for the reinstatement of discharged men.

Express Employes Strike.

Valparaiso, Aug. 15.—The Chilian minister to Bolivia, Juan Gonzale Matta, was shot thrice yesterday, one wound proving serious. The doctors hope to save him. It is said that the act was due to personal vengeance, and not to a political quarrel.

Didn't Pay.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 15.—The Lewiston baseball nine has disbanded, and all the players are to be paid their salaries in full. It was decided yesterday that as it would be a loss to continue, it was best to disband.

New England Briefs.

Nearly 160,000 quarts of milk were spoiled in Boston by the hot weather.

Clement Lorange, aged 22, while bathing in Harris pond, Blackstone, Mass., was drowned.

Andrew Burke, aged 24, was killed by a train on the Consolidated road at Bridgeport, Conn.

John Stevenson of Providence, who was prostrated by the heat Thursday, and who drank beer in the evening, died yesterday.

At a meeting of the gold standard Democrats at Boston, it was decided to call a state convention to nominate delegates to the Indianapolis convention, on Aug. 25.

Alexander McGuiness, working on the new public library building at Fall River, Mass., was struck by a stone weighing 1200 pounds, which slipped from a derrick. His skull was crushed. Chances of his recovery are slight.

Crushed In Elevator.

Providence, Aug. 15.—William Possells, colored, employed in the clothing store of Browning, King & Co., was terribly crushed between the elevator car and the wall of the shaft while hoisting cases of goods yesterday afternoon. He is in a critical condition.

The new house of William Martinson on Arthur street is completed and Mr. Martinson is moving in today.

Jules Johnson is building two new houses on Penn's hill, one for John Foley and the other for Charles Turner.

The match at the Wollaston Golf links this afternoon will be contest of long drives; each contestant being given five trials.

James Thompson and T. H. Newcomb will probably be renominated for representatives to the General Court from this district.

Today is the feast of the Assumption, a holy day of obligation in the Catholic church. Masses were celebrated in all the churches of the Quincy parish this morning at 5 and 8 o'clock.

It was an off day for the Quincy yachts at Marblehead yesterday, except for the Cleopatra, who won the race in the cat class. However they could afford not to be selfish and not take all of the prizes.

Mr. Eben Bumsted will speak at the open air service tomorrow at 4.30 P. M., junction of Hancock and Washington streets. His subject will be "The broad and narrow way." The talk will be illustrated by large chart pictures. If it is stormy the meeting will be held in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms.

Senator Flint.

But little, if any, opposition is being raised throughout the district to the nomination of Judge James H. Flint of Weymouth for senator, and the chances for his nomination and election are improving every day. No better or stronger candidate could be nominated than Judge Flint, for he is exceedingly popular and if nominated his election is almost assured.

All Tired Out.

Well, it's small wonder that these sultry August days exercise so debilitating an effect—the close, humid weather we've been having makes a great drain upon the vital forces.

Thousands, when out of condition physically, rely upon

which are now supplied to meet almost every form of ailment, from mere lassitude to the more serious diseases.

We call attention to the

CUT PRICES

which we are naming on all this class of goods.

It's only by purchasing in immense quantities, and by making heavy sales, that the balance is kept on the right side.

We can supply all the leading "patent" remedies at prices that are really absurdly low.

Quincy Yacht Club Cruise.

Today is the day for the Quincy Yacht Club to start on its first annual cruise, and unless all signs fail it will be one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

According to the orders issued by Commodore C. F. Pettengill and Fleet Captain George G. Saville, the yachts of the fleet will rendezvous off the club house and the captains will report on board the flag ship Hattie, at 1 30 P M.

When signal is given from flagship the yachts will pass in review on the starboard tack, Vice-Commodore leading, and proceed to Marblehead, passing through Hull gut and Black rock channel. The time of each yacht will be taken as she passes the flag-hip, and the first yacht arriving at Marblehead will anchor and take time of all the yachts as they arrive.

For these club runs the yachts will be divided into two classes, those over 23 feet water line in one, and those 23 feet water line or under in the other, and a prize pennant will be given in each class to the boat making the best actual time. Any sail may be carried. Each yacht must tow its tender.

On coming to anchor captains will report on board flagship without delay.

On Sunday, the 16th, the fleet on signal will proceed to Newburyport and remain there over the 17 h by invitation of the American Yacht club. The 17th is Newburyport day, when the American Yacht club will open its new club house and hold its open regatta.

On the run to Newburyport the starting time will be taken on flagship off Half Way rock and time at finish will be taken by the first yacht to arrive off the Fairway buoy at the entrance of Newburyport harbor. A prize pennant will be given in each class.

Further movements of the fleet will be determined at a meeting of Captains on board flagship.

For the Daily Ledger.

St. Mary's Lawn Party of '96.

If you came to our party the other day
I'm sure you will sanction what I say.
Our tables were of a most delicate hue;
Our colors were rainbow and national, too.

Amusements for children both day and night;
They had all kinds of fruit, delicious and ripe,
Ice cream in abundance and candy so sweet,
Yes, everything that they could wish for to eat.

All things were conducted in the finest way;
Even the donkeys behaved that day.
They gave every child on the grounds a ride,
And to carry the grown folks they also tried.

The rain was so kind as to make us a call;
All around our tent she began to fall,
And you'd be surprised what a we'come she got,
For without her our tent would have been very hot.

Rebecca gave drinks from that old fashioned well,
And the choicest of needle work we had to sell.

The boys served the tonics all the day long,
And as for the people, there was a great throng.

St. Mar,'s Lawn Party of '96
Shall ne'er be forgotten; the date is well fixed
In our minds to remain there for many a day,
For it was a success in every way.

Circus.

Leon W. Washburn's Great Allied Shows. Big Three Ring Circus, Museum, Menagerie and Hippodrome comes to South Quincy, Wednesday, Aug. 19.

Manager Washburn while being among the younger school of circus owners is also one of the wealthiest, and in organizing his shows for this season he has spared no money to secure the best for every department. His horses many of them imported, are models of horse-flesh while his trained animals do everything but talk. They will appear at every performance with their original trainer. A royal troupe of Japanese, imported expressly for this vast enterprise, and the only double troupe ever brought to this country, is another feature. The hippodrome department is certainly the largest ever seen with a traveling organization, and the many races, trials of strength and olympic games are soul stirring and worth going miles to see. The menagerie is large and the rarest denizens of the field, forest and jungle, are to be found in this large collection.

The grounds where the tents are located are near the Quincy Adams station and street cars.

WRONG AND MISLEADING.

Is What John R. Graham Says of the Published Statements About Trouble at His Factory.

Mr. John R. Graham denies the statements made in the issue of a local paper Friday in relation to the trouble at his shoe manufactory. The paper in question among other things stated that "Mr. Graham had a conference with his men on Thursday and discussed the question for two hours, but no agreement was reached," that "an Italian arrived at the shop Monday morning all prepared to go to work," that "when the men were first notified to get out a keeper was placed in the shop," and that "the men were told by a younger member of the firm that they must have their benches out of the shop by Thursday or they would be thrown out."

In regard to the above statements Mr. Graham says that he had no conference with the men on Thursday; that there was no Italian that came to his shop as far as he knew, and furthermore he would not have one there; that "no keeper was placed in the factory," as far as he knew, and that he does not believe that his son ever made the statement that "he would throw the benches out of the shop."

Continuing, Mr. Graham said that he had been running his sale shoe department at a loss and that he told the men if they would not accept a reduction in this department that he should have to close that part of his business; and as the men would not accept the reduction he should not manufacture any more sale shoes, but should confine himself to custom work alone.

He also said there was no trouble with the custom men and that no attempt was made to reduce them, and none was intended, and that they went out of their accord.

In conclusion Mr. Graham said that he should open up his custom department Monday morning and if the men in that department desired they could return to work, but that he was done as far as sale work was concerned.

McKINLEY CLUB.

A Mass Meeting of the Republicans is to be Held Sept 2, to Perfect Organizations.

The Republican City Committee held an enthusiastic meeting at Republicon headquarters on Granite street last evening; Chairman Charles L. Hammond presiding.

Reports from several of the ward committees were made in relation to the proposed McKinley club and thus far over 300 signatures have been received to the petitions for the formation of the club.

It was then voted to hold a mass meeting of the Republicans at Hancock hall, Wednesday evening, Sept. 2, to which all Republicans are invited and an invitation is extended to them all to become members of the club.

At this meeting there will be addresses by Henry Cabot Lodge and others; music and fireworks; and the campaign will be opened with a boom,

At the meeting Friday evening it was also decided to hold the caucuses to elect delegates to the several conventions on Wednesday evening, Sept. 16.

For County Commissioner.

The Republicans of Milton with entire unanimity are presenting their fellow citizen, Captain Edwin D. Wadsworth, as a candidate for County Commissioner, believing that his qualities of character are such as to meet the present exigency in County affairs. The movement was not at his instance, but came spontaneously from his towns people acting, as they believe, for the public interest.

Captain Wadsworth is of old Norfolk stock, being lineally descended from Captain Samuel Wadsworth of Milton, who was killed in Sudbury in King Phillip's war; and the family has remained continuously in Milton. Captain Wadsworth was for a considerable period a successful ship master, taking vessels from New York to New Orleans and from the Pacific coast to China. He has held various municipal offices in Milton—Selectman, Overseer of the Poor, Surveyor of Highways, member of the School Committee, Trustee of the Public Library for twenty-five years, and is now serving his third year as Assessor, being chairman of the Board. He has been appointed on important committees, requiring skill and laborious attention, as those on water supply and drainage. He has been several years treasurer of the Boston Marine Society.

His reputation for sturdy independence, ability and probity, and his industrious devotion to whatever public work he undertakes are certified to by all who know him. Altogether Captain Wadsworth's associations, character and training seem to fit him well for the responsible post of County Commissioner, a post which has been made by recent circumstances of more importance than ever.—Milton News.

SUFFERING IN BURMAH.

Cholera the Plague of the Rainy Season.

There is no season of the year when Burmah is without an epidemic of some sort. The rainy season lasts several months and the moist heat, together with the luxuriant fruit of which the natives eat unsparingly, make Asiatic cholera fearfully prevalent.

The experience of Mrs. E. H. Cushing, a missionary from the Baptist Board, who went with her husband to Burmah 36 years ago, shows how much practical good can be done for the natives if the right remedy is put in themissionary's hands. Mrs. Cushing now has headquarters in Philadelphia, being engaged in Baptist educational work, and her husband is at the head of the Baptist college at Rangoon, Burmah.

In one of her letters from her recent field of work she says: "I find Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam almost an infallible remedy for bowel complaints—it cures the most obstinate.

"The recent rainy season was very sickly in Toungoo, cholera prevailing to an alarming extent. The natives hearing that I had a medicine sure to cure that disease came in large numbers for it. Some hundreds were cured; indeed not a case failed of relief unless the patient had already entered the last stages of that disease before receiving the remedy. I consider it an invaluable medicine for the complaints so peculiar to tropical countries."

In conversation with an acquaintance recently, Mrs. Cushing, who is spending the summer in Plymouth, said that there is still great need for Arnold's Balsam in Burmah This is substatiated by a letter from Donabyu, from which the following extract is taken:

"Through an accidental meeting of one of the A. B. missionaries, located in Burmah, I obtained at a critical moment, when in the last stages of dysentry, a phial of Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam, the first dose of which I really believe saved my life. Your most obedient servant,

A. C. Hoare.

IN FRANZ JOSEF LAND

Jackson and Nansen Lived Together, Yet Neither Knew It.

English Explorer Describes Their Meeting.

Claims to Have Discovered New Regions and Drawn Accurate Maps.

Vandoe, Norway, Aug. 15.—Nansen, the noted Norwegian scientist and explorer, has been compelled to turn back, and though in his efforts to reach the pole he has beaten the records of previous explorers, yet he fell short of the pole by something like 270 miles.

A distance of 270 miles looks very small within the borders of civilization, but in the frozen north such a distance means a great deal. It means obstacles of incredible difficulty, hardships without number, and as yet it means the difference between success and failure.

The captain of the Windward, the British steamer which has just returned from Franz Josef Land, after taking supplies to the British North Pole expedition, commanded by Jackson, and known as the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, filed a telegraphic message here yesterday, describing the accidental meeting between Jackson and Dr. Nansen, and forming one of the most remarkable incidents in the history of Arctic expeditions, for it appears that the Norwegian explorer had been living in a hut quite close to one of the English explorer's stations for a long time previous to the meeting of the two men, yet neither of them was aware of the other's presence in that vicinity.

In this message Jackson describes his accidental meeting with Dr. Nansen, while the latter was traveling the ice pack, and it appears that it was a lucky meeting for the Norwegian explorer, as the latter was misled, owing to inaccuracies in the map drawn by Payer, the discoverer of Franz Josef Land, and also by Dr. Nansen's two chronometers, his watch having stopped. He was quite unable to establish his position, and was consequently trying to march westward to Spitzbergen, over the ice pack, which was not only highly dangerous, but probably impossible.

Jackson, after meeting Nansen, conducted the latter to Elmwood, the headquarters of the British expedition, where the doctor awaited the arrival of the Windward, which left the Thames on June 20, and Vardoe on June 28, to take supplies to the Jackson expedition, and not to bring them back, as currently reported.

Jackson, in the dispatch filed by the captain of the Windward, said: "On June 17 I met Dr. Nansen three miles out on a floe, S. S. E. of Cape Flora, and under most extraordinary circumstances. He had wintered in a rough hut, within a mile or two of our northern limit in 1895, and this spring we unwittingly came within a few miles of his winter quarters. Dr. Nansen left the Fram with one companion (Lieutenant Zigard Scott Hansen, a lieutenant in the Norwegian navy, and director of the astronomical meteorological and magnetic observations), reached lat. 86.14 northeast from where he left the Fram, which was in 84 north, 102 east. Dr. Nansen expressed the greatest surprise and the liveliest satisfaction at meeting with us. You understand how greatly the meeting affected me, and my pleasure at the extraordinary chance which had thrown it in my way to render him service and restore him to his friends."

Jackson then describes his own experiences in exploring the western parts of Franz Josef Land, telling how he has drawn extensive, accurate maps, and has discovered new regions, adding:

"When the Windward left, in 1895, we left on a month's expedition to the northwest in a little boat, the Mary Harmsworth, and discovered a large tract of land to the westward, of hitherto unknown limits, and a magnificent headland, composed of ice from its summit to its foot, and having at its base a huge, unnegotiable rampart of ice. We named it Harmsworth Cape, and only approached the base of the headland with the greatest difficulty, owing to surging masses of heavy ice and furious gales, during which our boat was upon several occasions nearly smashed to atoms. We landed on the coast as often as possible and ascended the highest peaks, and made numerous geological and botanical collections.

"Far up Cambridge bay we discovered another lofty ice headland, and named it Cape Frithj of Nansen. There our boat was nearly lost, owing to her sea anchor having been carried away, and a huge block of ice, which was swerving round, stove in several of her planks. But we managed to bale her out, and then rigging another anchor with oars, we had altogether a very exciting voyage.

"This spring had been phenomenally mild. Although we marched north a great distance, using 16 dogs and a pony, we met, after a fortnight, open water, reaching from the face of a huge glacier east, to the precipitious end of another huge glacier west. Advance by sledges was thus cut off. We then struck southeast, down Markham Sound, and added greatly to our discoveries of 1895. But we were again stopped by open water, reaching entirely across the sound, so we turned westward, succeeding in exploring the entire western shore.

"During April terrific snowstorms, coupled with rises in the temperature, entirely broke up the ice and prevented marching; but we took a number of valuable photographs."

It is believed here that the Fram may turn up here, or at Bergen, shortly, as she stood the ice very well, has plenty of provisions on board, and there was no sickness among her crew when Dr. Nansen left her, on March 14, 1895. Professor Mohn says that the scientific results of Dr. Nansen's observations are magnificent, and that several islands have been discovered.

Dr. Nansen has no misgivings as to the fate of the Fram. He has the fullest confidence that Lieutenant Svordruy, her commander, who proved himself most capable, is en route to Franz Josef Land. Dr. Nansen had a narrow escape with his life when a walrus attacked and smashed his kayakuk.

Dr. Nansen, in describing their life during the winter of 1895-6, said: "When the bears' flesh had been exhausted, we were obliged to kill the weakest dogs to feed the others, and continued thus until the whole pack had been slaughtered. Myself and my companions started in the direction of Spitzbergen on May 19. After that we occupied six weeks on snowshoes, dragging sledges and kayaks (the Arctic canoes) loaded on sledges after us. We went partly overland and partly over sea ice.

"We reached Jackson's winter quarters, where we found all in good health. We remained there about six weeks, till the steamer Windward arrived.

"I left the Fram in good condition and drifting, locked in the ice. The Windward will take to England four Englishmen of the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, whose names are Child, Burgess, Fisher and Blomquist. Mr. Jackson proposes to remain in the Arctic regions until next summer, with the intention of pushing further north. Jackson and his companions are in excellent health and spirits, and full of hope as to the results of their expedition."

Won't Affect American Wheels.

New York, Aug. 15.—Interest in the manufacture of Japanese bicycles for American trade was revived among the dealers yesterday by the dispatch from Tokio that 100 wheels had been ordered from the Yokohama bicycle works for this market. The name of the firms which had ordered the wheels could not be learned. Several agents of prominent American wheels declared that they did not fear competition from them. The Japanese consul, Kyujiro Miyagawa, admitted that American made wheels were superior in strength and durability to the Japanese. The consul stated that the Japanese had to import a quantity of the materials to manufacture, such as tubings, pneumatic tires, etc., and a duty of 34 cents was levied on the wheel for admission to this country. In view of these facts, he did not see how bicycles of Japanese make could successfully compete with wheels made in this country.

About Hoke Smith.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The Times says: The nature of Secretary Smith's resignation, if actually tendered to the president, is again a leading topic of discussion in political circles. While heretofore it has been surmised that the secretary had placed his tender of retirement from the cabinet in the hands of Mr. Cleveland, the fact has not been satisfactorily verified until now. The presumption prevails that the matter will be considered at Gray Gables during the conference between the president and Secretaries Olney and Carlisle. The opinion is expressed that under the terms in which Secretary Smith's resignation is made there can be but little doubt of its acceptance.

On Redskins' Trail.

Washington, Aug. 15.—General Wheaton, commanding the United States troops in the department of Colorado, has telegraphed from Denver that troops from Fort Huachuca are now out in pursuit of the Yaqui Indians who made the attack upon the Mexican portion of the town of Nogales. Another detachment of troops from Fort Grant are also in the field, looking after some Indians who have been crossing the Arizona line from Mexico and rading American ranches, and then dodging back across the border. Under the provision of the special treaty recently negotiated it will now be easier to run these marauders down by following them across into Mexico.

A Preacher's Serious Offense.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 15.—United States Marshal Buck went to Chatauqua yesterday and arrested Henry B. Waterman, a Baptist minister of Chicago. The charge against the divine is for unlawfully opening a mail box in the postoffice at Chatauqua and removing mail matter therefrom. Waterman, seeing some letters in his box at the postoffice, Tuesday night, determined to have them before the delivery the next morning. He took a knife from his pocket and removed the fastenings from the box. Securing his mail he replaced the fastenings and left the office lobby.

Cooper's Great Work.

Louisville, Aug. 15.—Two more national championships, the quarter and the third mile, dangle at the belt of Tom Cooper. These make three successive championship victories for the Detroit lad. He tried hard for the mile championship, but got in a bad position, and was beaten out by Tom Butler, who rode the race of his life. But Arthur Gardiner is the hero of the day. He rode a magnificent race in the one-mile open, beating Sanger out by a wheel's length, in 2:01¼; world's record time, single paced.

Capitalist Murdered.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 14.—Hon. W. F. Eyeter of Chambersburg, Pa., was murdered last night at Lincoln. Fred Vance and five women of the town are detained at the station as knowing something of the case. He was here with a party of prominent Pennsylvania capitalists, en route to Cripple Creek to invest in mines. His body was found in an unfrequented part of the town with the skull crushed. Robbery is supposed to be the cause.

Deeply In Debt.

Providence, Aug. 15. — The Armington & Sims Engine company of this city, last night, voted to ask for an extension of three years on their paper. Their debts are about $275,000, and while their property is worth a good deal more than this sum at fair valuation, they are unable to take up their paper, and the banks are pushing them for it. Their request will probably be granted.

Trouble Ahead.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 15.—Trouble has again occurred on the French treaty coast, owing to the French government protesting against the new railway crossing, an arm of the sea where French fishermen pursue their avocation. The Newfoundland ministry has been discussing the matter for the past two days. Serious friction is anticipated.

Superstitious Seamen.

Halifax, Aug. 15.—Captain McLaughlin, of the barkentine Herbert Fuller, is experiencing much more difficulty in securing a crew than he anticipated. Plenty of seamen are to be had, but they cannot be persuaded to ship on the Fuller. The captain says he will probably have to bring a crew from Boston.

RETURNING THE FIRE.

Senator Thurston Resents Alleged Imputations of Senator Stewart.

Was Bryan Employed to Stump For Silver Kings?

Chicago Chronicle's Editorial Productive of Heated Correspondence.

Omaha, Aug. 17. — Senator John M. Thurston, yesterday, gave out for publication the following copy of a letter, which he mailed yesterday to Senator Stewart of Nevada. It is addressed to Hon. William Stewart, editor of the Silver Knight, Washington. It says:

"On returning from my recent campaign tour I find your open letter of Aug. 1, which you so kindly gave to the press of the country before awaiting its receipt by me. In your letter you refer to the address delivered by me at the Chatauqua assembly at Madison, Wis., on July 31. You must have known when you penned your letter that I did not make any charge against Hon. William J. Bryan of any kind whatever; that I did nothing except to read portions of an editorial published in the Chicago Chronicle on July 11. The editorial read by me is as follows:

JOHN M. THURSTON.

There was a time when the owners of the big bonanzas of the far west were glad to occupy, by purchase, seats in the United States senate. Sharon, Stanford, Fair, Jones, Stewart and others gratified their fancy in this manner until the novelty wore off, and then they deputized attorneys and other employes to take their places and vote for protective tariffs and free silver. Of late years, owing to the encouragement that they have received from the Republican party, "which always does something for silver," when it passes a tariff bill, the proprietors of the big bonanzas have found it profitable to keep a large number of orators, lecturers, and other spokesmen on the road, preaching to the people, already limping as a result of bites by the free silver cur, the sovereign remedy of applying the hair of the dog to the wound. Among the many who have thus been employed and carried on the payrolls of the big bonanzas for a number of years is William J. Bryan of Nebraska. The paid agent and spokesman for the free silver combine has not since retirement from congress had any other visible means of support.

"I do not directly or indirectly express an opinion as to the truth or falsity of the charge thus clearly, explicitly, unequivocally, and editorially set forth by a great Democratic newspaper, reputable and responsible. I did say, and I still say, that the man posing as the advocate of downtrodden masses of his countrymen, holding a crown of thorns in one hand and the bugaboo, a cross of gold, in the other, owes it as a duty to every man, woman and child in this country to say whether that charge, thus publicly and deliberately made, is false or true.

WILLIAM M. STEWART.

"Now, my dear sir, you must have known, and you did know, when you indicted your open letter to me, that the charge was not mine. No, not even by adoption; that I had not even expressed an opinion with respect to it, and that I no more than fulfilled my duty as a citizen in insisting that Mr. Bryan should tell the American people whether or not the charge made by the Chicago Chronicle was true. One word from Mr. Bryan on July 12 would have set the public right; one word from him on any day since that time would have accomplished the same purpose. The charge thus editorially made by the Chicago Chronicle, while the Chicago convention was still in session, was reproduced in many of the leading journals of the country; it came to the attention of Mr. Bryan's own paper, the Omaha World-Herald, of which he was at the time managing editor, and the only reference ever made to it in that paper was on July 15, when in its editorial column appeared the following:

IN WHOSE PAY?

The Chicago Chronicle wants Mr. Bryan to explain in whose pay he has been since he dropped out of congress. —(Sioux City Journal.

Mr. Bryan did not drop out of congress—he stepped out, but he has been in the employ of The World-Herald, and it is generally conceded that he has fully earned his salary.

Mr. Thurston, after making the above quotations, that Mr. Bryan was asked Aug. 1 to make an answer to the Chicago Chronicle's charge, adds: "But Mr. Bryan had nothing to say except that he would answer in due time and manner."

Mr. Thurston makes the statement that the Chicago Post, of recent date, had said "that Mr. Bryan's stated salary from the silver mine owners, or the silver leaders, was $6000 per annum."

Continuing, the writer quotes from the Philadelphia Ledger, of recent issue, as follows: "Those familiar with Mr. Bryan's political career are aware that contributions from the silver mine owners to the expense of his lectures began before his general stumping tour of the country two years ago." The Ledger goes on to say that in his campaign of 1892, for re-election to congress, "he (Bryan) was materially assisted in the expenses of his campaign by donations from Denver."

Referring to Mr. Bryan's campaign in 1894, when he ran for senator, The Ledger is again quoted: "During his so-called lecturing tour there is no reason to doubt that salary and expenses were met by those most strongly and personally interested in free coinage. There has never been any denial out west that Mr. Bryan was employed at a fixed salary to preach the gospel of free coinage, and the funds from which his compensation came were in every degree given by the mine owners."

Mr. Thurston, continuing, says he would be the last man in the world to assail the character of Mr. Bryan, and adds: "It is not just to the American people that charges of this kind should go unanswered. He is the man, and the only man, who can make definite and conclusive reply. He suggests that Senator Stewart 'turn his batteries upon those reputable educators and newspapers making the charges,' and states his surprise at Senator Stewart and his 'fellow silver mine owner' remaining silent and not publicly answering The Chronicle's charges."

Senator Thurston mentions Senator Stewart's statement that contributions for the circulation of silver literature have been paid by the American Bimetallic league and the American Bimetallic union, and that "these organizations can account for all moneys received and the use made of it." The Nebraskan asks that a detailed account of these amounts be made public, which, he says, would prove of much interest.

"I now hope, my dear sir," Senator Thurston continues, "that you will frankly acknowledge the undue haste and stupidity with which you have misrepresented me in this matter, and I sincerely trust that you will immediately transfer to the Chicago Chronicle the honor of an opportunity to substantiate its editorial."

A Sunday Chat.

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—Major McKinley and Chairman Hanna met at the latter's home in this city yesterday, and talked over the campaign. Mr. Hanna said he was very much pleased with the progress of affairs. More than 15,000,000 documents had been mailed from the Chicago headquarters within the past two weeks. "The situation in the west is improving daily," he remarked. "The work of education is having a good effect." Mr. Hanna said the speaking campaign would probably be well under way within the next 10 days. When asked if Major McKinley would take the stump, Mr. Hanna replied: "Major McKinley has made no change in his plans. He will not take the stump in this campaign. It has been hinted that he might go to Milwaukee to address the convention of the Republican league. He will not do so."

Prince's Comment.

New York, Aug. 17.—Frederic O. Prince of Boston, who will be one of the vice presidents of the gold standard meeting, at which Cockran will speak, has written as follows to the president of the league: "As I am utterly opposed to the 'anarchistic principles of the Chicago platform,' and in full sympathy with the objects and purposes of the Honest Money league, I shall be pleased to serve as one of the vice presidents of the meeting to be held at Madison Square Garden on Aug. 18. I am glad to know that the cause will be advocated by Mr. Cockran, as his eloquence will make the occasion memorable, and convince all who are open to conviction that he represents truth, honesty and patriotism."

Wheeler Defeated.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 17.—Returns from the Democratic congressional primaries in the Eighth Alabama district are conclusive of the nomination of William R. Richardson of Huntsville over General Joseph Wheeler, who has served the district for eight terms. Both are free silver men.

Seos Hope For Bryan.

London, Aug. 17.—The Post in its editorial columns asserts that the reported failure of Mr. Bryan as a political logician, as a result of his recent speech at the notification meeting at Madison Square garden, is no assurance that his policy will fail at the polls.

THE ARMY OF LABOR.

Reformer Hough Says Each Wing Struggles Against Same Force.

Relationship of Toilers Not Thoroughly Understood.

Farmers and Mechanics Alike Declared to Be the Slaves of Banks.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 17.—A large audience assembled yesterday in the Labor church, attracted mainly by the interest which is being taken in the strike at T. G. Plant's factory. Many of the strikers and several of the officers of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union were present, besides sympathizers from Boston and surrounding towns. Herbert N. Casson was chairman, and made a few opening remarks in relation to the injunction which has been served upon the strikers by the Plant company. He said: "If Mr. Plant has a right to issue an injunction against the labor unions for ruining his business, then each one of the 9½ workmen whom he locked out has an equal right to obtain an injunction against Mr. Plant for interfering with their means of support. The Plant company has injured the business of many small manufacturers in Lynn, and they have therefore a right to issue an injunction against the Plant company. It is such injunctions as these that are bringing our American law courts into popular disrepute."

He then introduced Eugene Hough, a social reformer, from California, who spoke on the condition of farmers and farm laborers in California. Mr. Hough spoke at length, showing that the farmer, as he is known in New England, is unknown in California, where, under the name of a rancher, he is a much different individual, and, like his men, who are his veritable slaves, he pays tribute to the banks. He told of the hopeless lives led by many of the ranchers, and most of the ranchmen, citing instances where after years of hard work they had nothing for their labor, concluding:

"Such is the condition of the farmers and farm laborers on the Pacific coast. It differs but little from that of the farm laborer; both are dependent, overworked, stunted and dwarfed mentally, morally and physically. And still both are closely allied to the mechanics, the factory hands and city laborers. Strangely enough this alliance is not recognized. Not one in a thousand knows aught of such alliance, or what its application would mean to them. Each of these wings of the army of labor struggles against the same force. One wing cannot be freed alone; all must move together, up or down the scale of social well being. Before they can be free each must attain a knowledge and recognition of their common foe and of their alliance, for allies they are, however antagonistic they may seem to be.

At present they know naught of their common foe nor of their close relationship. The farmer sees only the banker, the middleman and the laborer. These stand in his mind as a mighty barrier between him and his everlasting great good fortune. The farm laborer sees only the farmer, who grinds down his wages, drives him to undue work, or denies him all chance of work.

The city laborer sees only his master, the contractor or the factory owner, who demands an ever-increasing amount of labor for an ever-decreasing portion of the product. Standing each at a different angle of the industrial structure, each recognizes in the other an enemy. So long as they are kept in such position, so long will their common enemy be safe, and their alliance will seem a debatable question. Once show them that they are not enemies; that they are really and trully allies; that their enemy is one and common to them all, and an alliance will be found that will be irresistible."

NANSEN'S MISSION.

Explorer Greely Gives Entertaining Opinions Concerning the Matter.

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 17. — Brigadier General A. W. Greely, in an interview in regard to the Nansen expedition, said that the reports thus far published were as yet too meagre to form an opinion. General Greely said: "Nansen apparently wintered on Franz Josef Land, and he says he saw no land north of 82 degrees. The journey was one of extreme danger, and it is most remarkable that he returned alive. According to the reports, land reached by my expedition is the most northerly land yet attained, as Nansen's most northern point is at sea. He went just 2 degrees and 52 minutes further north than did Lockwood and Brainard of my expedition, in 1882. When Nansen's observations are worked out they will prove his explorations, and will also make interesting reading. Every explorer should be given credit for having made a truthful report." General Greely said that notwithstanding Nansen's reports of an ocean to the pole, recent deductions show that there is land near that point, but that it is north of North America, rather than Siberia.

"Apparently Nansen traveled only 120 miles from where he abandoned his ship. This is less than half the distance that Lockwood and Brainard traveled from the headquarters of my expedition at Lady Franklin bay, but I want to say right here that Nansen's perseverance is worthy of the old Scandinavian race. I think that the expedition will disappoint many, who believe that Franz Josef Land extended into the pole. My predictions of six months ago, that Nansen's safe return lay in the possibility that he would make and winter in Franz Josef Land seems to have been verified.

As to the possibility of the Fram drifting to Spitzbergen, General Greely said that the sea drift was in that direction, but that the Jeanette and the Tegethopp were both lost in this sea by the action of the ice. General Greely placed little dependence upon the reported discovery of great depth and much warmer water. In conclusion, General Greely said, that he was convinced that if Nansen had not met Jackson he would never had returned.

BUY

·TEA·

Of Boston Branch Grocery.

WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

To Marblehead.

Saturday afternoon's light easterly breeze lazily wafted the Quincy Yacht Club's fleet across Boston Bay and into Marblehead Harbor at a little after twilight. It was shortly after eight o'clock when the first boats of the fleet began to arrive and drop anchor. The passage down was an uneventful one. There was considerable rivalry as to which of the boats would be the fortunate ones to capture the two gold pennants offered by Commodore Pettengill and Fleet Captain Saville for the quickest runs in the two classes. In the first class Dr. Henry A. Jones' sloop Evelyn, captured the prize and in the second class Henry Moebs' cat boat, which was sailed by Joseph J. Moebs, was the prize winner.

After the captains had reported on the flagship Hattie, the club enjoyed the hospitalities of the Corinthian Yacht Club, who entertained their visitors in a most liberal manner.

On Sunday forenoon, at four bells, anchors were weighed and the fleet stood off the coast, around Cape Ann, for Newburyport.

On Sunday forenoon at about the same time that the fleet started for Newburyport the Cleopatra, Gypsy, Dorothy, Sunbeam and Gleaner left Marblehead for Quincy, where they arrived early in the afternoon.

Saturday Night Accidents.

A young man whose name was not learned, but who said he belonged in Ashmont, was riding his wheel at Quincy Point, Saturday evening, when he ran into a carriage. The collision smashed the wheel and injured the rider quite severely. He was brought to Quincy centre where Dr. Gilbert dressed his wounds. A telephone message was sent to his friends at Ashmont to come over after him which they did.

They came by way of Adams street and drove at a reckless speed for a dark night; the result was what might have been expected, for when they came down the hill and attempted to turn the corner near the residence of Hon. W. B. Rice the team was capsized, and the two men were thrown into the gutter.

The wagon was not smashed so bad that it could not be repaired and after tying it up they continued their journey to Quincy and took the injured man home.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB CRUISE.

The Yachts to Participate with Those on Board.

It was a light easterly breeze that greeted the Quincy Yacht Club on Saturday afternoon, upon the start of the fleet upon its first annual cruise. The yachts began to rendezvous off the club house at 1.30 o'clock, the captains reporting on board the flagship Hattie as they arrived.

Shortly after two o'clock the yachts got under way and with all colors flying headed for Marblehead; passing in review of the flagship, each yacht dipping their ensign as they passed.

The departure was watched by a large party from the shore and club house piazza and there were many who felt sorry that they were not on board one of the yachts. The fleet and those on board as far as could be learned was as follows:

Flagship Hattie—Commodore C. F. Pettengill, Fleet Captain George G. Saville, Captain E. H. Doane, George W. Jones, W. Austin Winslow, John Daggett, George N. Nash.

Yacht Gismonda—Vice Commodore John W. Sanborn, Charles F. Colby, George Harrington, Fred E. Jones.

Yacht Dorothy—Captain Frank F. Crane, John McKnight.

Yacht Nakomis—Fred E. Goss, T. B Crane, George W. Field, Samuel E. Oxford.

Yacht Arbutus—J. W. Hall, Amos L. Merritt, Charles W. Hall, Charles N. Ditson, F. G. Pennock.

Yacht Adolph—J. J. Moebs, J. H. Costello, Jr., Otis Deusch, Mr. McDonald, Miss Adelaide Crowley, Miss E. G. Costello, Miss Sarah Costello.

Yacht Moondyne—Captain W. H. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Shaw, Miss E. S. Arnold, Joseph Bailey, W. F. Ellis.

Other yachts which met the fleet at Marblehead were the Myth, Mudjekeewis, Evelyn, Alice, Cleopatra, Beatrice, Rooster, and Sunbeam.

Arrested in Quincy.

Albert Beattie, who was wanted by Boston officers for embezzlement was arrested late Saturday night at the home of his parents, on Beale street, and was turned over to Inspector Wolf of Boston Sunday morning.

Some few weeks ago Beattie sued his cousin for a bill of $158 which he claimed was due him, and the latter's stock of groceries were attached by a constable who gave them into Beattie's charge as keeper.

Beattie sold the goods and it is alleged has made no account of the money received and since that time has managed to keep out of the way of the officers who last week learned that he was in Quincy, and the police of this city were requested to locate him. For reasons best known to themselves the local officers had reason to believe that the man wanted would arrive in Quincy late Saturday night and along toward midnight Inspector McKay, Officers Ferguson and George McKay visited the house on Adams street.

Officer Ferguson watched Beattie's chamber window and Officer George McKay the back of the house while Inspector McKay entered and arousing Beattie from his peaceful sleep, placed him under arrest and locked him up.

Beattie claims the goods were of a perishable nature and that the constable told him to sell them.

Next Sunday.

On and after Sunday, Aug. 23, New England passenger trains will run into the Old Colony station on Kneeland street, Boston. The first plan was to run the New England trains into the Old Colony station itself, but it was soon found that this might lead to a good deal of confusion, and to obviate this it was decided to tear down the Old Colony freight house on the east side of the station and in its place erect a platform with train awnings for four tracks, giving the New England a great deal more room and facilitating the handling of passengers and baggage. The work has progressed so rapidly that the freight house is now practically out of the way, and within a few days the tracks will be extended through what is now a mass of debris, up to Kneeland street.

The awnings are practically complete and only a small section of rail remains to be laid. The offices of the New England Railroad, now in the old station, will then be transferred to the Old Colony head house, and the offices of the United States Express Company, in the building on Federal street below the station, will be removed to the left wing of the Old Colony freight house, which was left standing to be used for this purpose and for an inward baggage room.

When the transfer is once made the work of clearing off the buildings and tracks of the New England will be started at once to make room for the new Southern Union Station.

The Atlantic band has discontinued its concerts for this season.

Miss Emma F. Sparrow, of Wollaston, is visiting friends in Nova Scotia.

Blue fish are running in the bay. Several small catches have been reported.

Mrs. A. J. Preston is passing a few weeks at Dennisport on the Cape.

Miss Isabell Albee and Miss A. M. Cook are at Martha's Vineyard for an outing.

Mr. Henry Martens, of Branscheid & Martens, has returned from his vacation.

Rev. Mr. Butler, pastor of the Unitarian Society, was quite sick Sunday, but is some better today.

A new watering trough is being placed on Hancock street, near the corner of Squantum street.

Fred E. Bennett, of Rockland, who has been spending the last week in Atlantic, has returned home.

The Atlantics defeated the St. Mary's Y. M. C. A. of Boston in a well-played game last Saturday afternoon.

A large number of Atlantic people spent Sunday at Nantasket beach, taking the trip on the new line of electric cars.

The bricklayers commenced work again on the savings bank block this morning and work will now be rushed forward.

Miss Amy Alden of Clive street, who has been travelling through the west, for about a year has returned to her home.

Miss Gertrude W. Hall of Atlantic is spending her vacation at North Scituate beach, with a party of friends from Cohasset.

Captain Mark E. Hanson and Patrolman Nicol are taking their vacations this week, and Patrolman Canavan is doing duty as night officer at the police station.

Rev. Mr. Rigler, of East Providence, preached at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday morning and evening. Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith presided at the organ.

The sweet peas in the flower garden at Constable Furnald's residence, on Washington street, continue to grow and have now reached a height of nine feet, and are as full of blossoms as ever.

Charles Somers of Newcomb place, while in bathing off Johnson's lumber wharf, Saturday afternoon, stepped on a broken bottle and cut a deep gash in his foot which required the services of a surgeon to dress.

Dr. Alden's charming daughter of Atlantic has returned after almost a year's absence. Miss Alden's trip has not only included the central and southern states, where she visited her numerous friends, but also a winter spent at all the beautiful, California resorts, a trip to Alaska, Yosemite Valley and Yellowstone Park, and through Montana, Utah and all Colorado's grandest scenery. It is needless to say that Miss Alden's friends will find her more charming than ever.

Fatal Accident.

William Good, a brother of T. Walter Good of Quincy, was drowned off Commercial wharf, Boston, Sunday night. He was walking from an excursion steamer to the wharf, when he fell off the gang plank into the water, and before assistance could reach him he was drowned. His body was recovered.

Can't Eat

This is the complaint of thousands at this season. They have no appetite; food does not relish. They need the toning up of the stomach and digestive organs, which a course of Hood's Sarsaparilla will give them. It also purifies and enriches the blood, cures that distress after eating and internal misery only a dyspeptic can know, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling and builds up and sustains the whole physical system. It so promptly and efficiently relieves dyspeptic symptoms and cures nervous headaches, that it seems to have almost "a magic touch."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, aid digestion. 25c.

It's Just Like a Fairy Tale.

Coming true—the way women can skip the work, work, work, in a house when they use a Glenwood Range. We've sold hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of Glenwood Ranges. Now be honest, reader, did you ever hear one word of complaint about a Glenwood?

We haven't, and that's why we continue to sell, and why wise buyers will use no other. They cost but $20.00 to $33.00 when you buy them here.

A range on trial if you wish.

All Tired Out.

Well, it's small wonder that these sultry August days exercise so debilitating an effect—the close, humid weather we've been having makes a great drain upon the vital forces.

Thousands, when out of condition physically, rely upon

PATENT MEDICINES,

which are now supplied to meet almost every form of ailment, from mere lassitude to the more serious diseases.

We call attention to the

CUT PRICES

which we are naming on all this class of goods.

It's only by purchasing in immense quantities, and by making heavy sales, that the balance is kept on the right side.

We can supply all the leading "patent" remedies at prices that are really absurdly low.

SQUANTUM YACHT CLUB.

A Light Breeze But an Interesting Race. The Clara Lou and Velma Secure Legs.

The first of the second series of special races of the Squantum Yacht club for the silver cups offered by Commodore Burkhardt was sailed off the club house at Norfolk Downs, Saturday, in a light easterly breeze.

By the conditions under which the cups were given, the yachts are divded into two classes the first class including all yachts twenty feet sailing length and over, and the second class all yachts under twenty feet sailing length; and in order to own the cup it must be won two consecutive years.

In last year's races the Payomet won the leg in the first class and the Locia a leg in the second class but the latter forfeitted her claim having changed ownership.

Saturday's race was an interesting one and the skippers were out for blood and every possible chance was taken; and had there been a little more wind it would have been a much more exciting and close race.

The course for each class was across the line between the judge's yacht, leaving it on the starboard, and the flagboat, thence to Red Buoy No. 4, leaving it on the port; thence to barrel No. 1 in Bass Point cove, leaving it on the port; thence to between the judge's yacht and flagboat leaving it on the port.

This gave the boats a beat to Red Buoy, a reach to barrel No. 1 and a run home; the distance being seven miles.

The preparatory gun was fired at 2.45 and ten minutes later the first class were underway. The Magnolia got the gun first and led the Naid Queen four seconds in crossing. Then came the Clara Lou and Payomet, the latter having a handicap of nearly three minutes.

On the beat to the first turning point the boats held the same relative positions as at the start, but after rounding the buoy the Clara Lou drew away from the fleet and finished with a lead of nearly eighteen minutes, actual time.

In the second class the boats got away in the following order: Velma, West Wind, Locia, Yolande, Tina, Arcturus, Burgess, Unome and Emily. In this class the Locia soon took the lead and crossed with a good lead at the finish but lost to the Velma on time allowance.

The judges who were pleasantly quartered on the Enigma, were C. W. Page, W. E. Burrell, B. Frank Page, Henry E. Nelson and George S. Pillsbury.

Mortgagee's Sale.

WILL be sold at public auction on the premises on TUESDAY, the Eighth day of September, A. D., 1896, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain deed of mortgage made and executed by Patrick Moore of Burrillville in the county of Providence and state of Rhode Island, bearing date of June 11 A. D., 1894, and recorded in Woonsocket registry of deeds, in book 46, pages 138 and 139, and also recorded in the city and county of Worcester and commonwealth of Massachusetts with the Worcester district deeds, book 1,445, page 461; the condition of said deed of mortgage having been broken. A certain lot or parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon, situated in Woonsocket, in said county of Providence and bounded and described as follows, viz:

Beginning at the southwesterly corner thereof, at a point on the northerly line of Estey street, formerly Norbert street, so-called, and a corner of land of Lewis F. Cook and Edward Gauvin, thence south seventy-two (72) degrees nineteen (19) minutes east, along the line of said street forty and three hundredths (40.03) feet to a point; thence north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and bounded easterly by land of said Edward Gauvin forty-nine and five-tenths (49 5) feet to a point; thence south seventy-four (74) degrees one (1) minute west, and bounded northerly by the lot next hereinafter described sixty and eighty-five hundredths (60 85) feet to a point; thence south sixteen (16) degrees nine (9) minutes east, and bounded westerly by land of Lewis F. Cook nineteen and four hundredths (19.04) feet to the point of beginning, and containing one thousand five hundred sixty-nine (1,569) square feet of land, being the same premises conveyed to said Patrick Moore by deed of Edward Cunningham, dated June 11, A. D., 1894.

Also one other certain tract or parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon, situated partly in said Woonsocket, partly in the town of Blackstone, county of Worcester and commonwealth of Massachusetts, and partly in the town of Bellingham, county of Norfolk in said commonwealth of Massachusetts, and on the southeasterly side of the Bellingham road or Social street, so called, and bounded and described as follows, viz: Bounded westerly by said Bellingham road or Social street one hundred feet, northerly by land of T. B. & G. L. Staples one hundred feet; easterly by land of said Edward Gauvin and the lot next hereinbefore described, one hundred feet, and southerly by land of said Lewis F. Cook, one hundred feet, being the same tract of land conveyed to said Patrick Moore by deed of Edward Cunningham, dated the 11th day of June, A. D., 1894. This last described lot will be sold subject to a mortgage covering the same for the principal sum of one thousand dollars, made by said Edward Cunningham to Michael Rowen, dated the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and record d in the Woonsocket registry of deeds in book No. 31, pages 146 and 147.

Per order of the assignee of the mortgagee who hereby gives notice of his intention to bid at said sale or at any adjournment thereof.

JOHN F. CUNNINGHAM,
Assignee of EDWARD CUNNINGHAM, Mortgagee.

HOUGHS NECK.

Harlow's band of Brockton, gave two concerts at Houghs Neck, Sunday, which served to attract quite a large number, but would have attracted a much larger number had it been generally known that a band concert was to have been given.

The season at the beach is fast drawing to a close, and two weeks more will see many of the cottagers headed for their winter homes.

There are but few cottages now unoccupied at the beach.

The committee in charge of the annual illumination are working hard to make the affair a success and to eclipse any previous illumination.

The life boat should be taken out occasionally to be sure that she is all right should occasion demand her use.

The only shady place along the beach is in front of Mears' hotel and it is therefore a much sought for place.

First Church.

Bishop Brooks in one of his sermons said in substance, that it was not natural that the young should wish or like to go to church. He further said a time would come in life when, needing what the church supplies, he would seek it. This seems to be supported by the Sunday life of today, when so large numbers of the young take to the wheel these pleasant Sundays. Whether that is best, is not to be adjudged here, but the fact remains that when life begins to leave its impression upon the soul, church becomes a welcome place.

Yesterday, in our old historic church, a faithful few found the best. No flowers except white lilies give finer effect than the pungent, aromatic tansy. Yesterday a tall cluster had a circle of sunflowers at its base, then below was a loose fragrant mass of this beautiful flower. Had it not been for the fact that the beloved pastor had been seriously ill, nothing would have jarred the people there.

Dr. Everett's touching tribute to Mr. Butler's energy and usefulness fell upon welcome ears. The Doctor departed some what from his conservative habit in his sermon but his prayer was full of old time theological spirit. It has seemed as if the wrath of God had visited a people who need chastisement in the torrid heat of late days. The ancients, who had not penetrated things as deeply as we of today, have looked upon such visitations differently.

Dr. Everett gave a far reaching sermon on the poetry of the Bible, comparing the large amount of poetry in the Old Testament with the small amount in the new which is nearly all narrative or epistle, but which is not wanting in high poetic diction. It seems as if poetry did not enter into secular history or into more modern times. He went back to the earliest Greek dramatists, Neander and others for sources of Jewish poetry. The poet is the prophet, and time is yet to come when strength will be sought more in the "later scripture," as Rev. Mr. Wells once called modern poetry.

Dr. Everett touched upon political life of today, which is not rooted in soil to bear good fruit unless the best spirit incorporate it. He dwelt at length upon the impetus and inspiration that can be found in books and altogether he threw another halo around the Bible of today, which he said should no longer be read literally as one would read an almanac.

He closed with the poetical vision from Revelation of "him that sat upon a white horse who was called Faithful and True, and upon whose head were many crowns."

At the close of the sermon the grand tenor solo of Mendelssohn's, from St. Paul, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life," was sung.

Last evening Rev. Mr. Butler's medical attendant assured us that his patient's condition was not discouraging, and he apprehended no serious results. This is good news.

Newburyport Races.

There was a fleet of 100 yachts in Newburyport harbor last night and still more were expected. There is great interest in the races of the American club to take place today, and the event promises to eclipse anything previously held on the Merrimac.

Among the visiting officers are Commodore Davenport of the Dorchester yacht club, Commodore Pettengill and ex-Commodore Cavanagh, Vice-Commodore Sanborn of Quincy, Commodore Davis, ex-Commodore Foster, Rear Commodore Scott of the Savin Hill yacht club, and Commodore Powers of the Columbia yacht club.

Hood's Pills

For Point and Nantasket.

Travel on the line of the Quincy & Boston street railway, that runs from North Weymouth to Fort Point and also connects with the line of the Hingham Company was suspended for several hours Sunday morning, owing to the trolly line being down.

It seems that when the trolly line was put up some of the guy wires were made fast to a tree in the yard of Tyler Shaw on Bridge street. Mr. Shaw objected and Saturday he says he notified the railway people that if the wires were not removed before night that he should cut them down.

Sunday morning the wires not having been removed Mr. Shaw went out with an axe and cut the wires down which caused the trolly wire to fall into the street and a pretty but extremely dangerous display of electrical fireworks immediately took place.

The railroad officials were notified and as they had to send to Randolph for a pole before the line could be put in working order, it was some hours before traffic was resumed.

It was found impossible however to run cars through to the beach Sunday without change, for the reason that the Hingham company did not have cars enough and it was impossible to run the cars of the Quincy & Boston through as the paving along the side of the Hingham tracks was so high that it would throw the Quincy cars off the track.

This morning however, the Hingham cars commenced again to run through from Quincy without change,

A Campaign Document.

A pamphlet will be issued within a few days by the Norfolk county commissioners reviewing the evidence submitted to the joint special committee of the recent legislature. Copies of the pamphlet will be distributed to the legal voters of the county. It will review the whole evidence submitted at all the hearings. The cost of the Dedham court house is given in the report as $393,716. The county commissioners of Norfolk county are Watts H. Bowker of Brookline, Melville P. Morrell of Hyde Park and Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton. Their term is three years. Mr. Blanchard's term expires in 1897, and his friends are pushing him for a renomination. The salary is $4,200.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Lesson From Cincinnati.

Cincinnati cyclists have succeeded in downing the sprinkling nuisance and have had an ordinance passed which not only prescribes how much water shall be used, but also allows a portion of the street to remain unsprinkled. This great concession on the part of the Cincinnati authorities is the result of the wheelmen displaying their combined strength. If the riders in other cities were to organize in a single body for the purpose of regulating such matters, their power would be apparent. We believe that every privilege should be granted wheelmen which does not interfere with the rights of pedestrians or with the other vehicular traffic.

TODAY'S COURT.

Walter A. Glover was fined $5 for drunkenness at Braintree.

Louis B. Getto was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Richard Kelley, William Burke and Minot Richards were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

John F. Curran was fined $10 for overdriving a pair of horses at Quincy.

The case of Dennis F. Doonan of Holbrook, for trespass, was further continued for two weeks.

The continued case of Owen F. Smith of Weymouth, for drunkenness, was called and he was defaulted.

The Heated Term.

The effect of the heat in New York and other large cities can be judged somewhat from the following facts. In the Calvary cemetery, there were 1,500 persons buried during the last ten days. Over 100 extra men were employed in digging graves and they worked day and night. The usual number buried at this cemetery is fifty a day; or 500 in ten days.

CIRCUS. Amusements are as necessary to humanity as food is to the stomach and the coming of Leon W. Washburn's Great Allied Shows Three Ring Circus, Museum, Menagerie and Hippodrome ought to be quite an event in amusement circles.

Year by year Mr. Washburn has steadily increased the size of his circus as well as the quality of it and this season he has outdone all former efforts, in furnishing a most complete exhibit of arenic sensations, a most excellent collection of rare beasts, birds and reptiles. The hippodrome will furnish an interesting portion of the programme showing as it does the pastimes of the ancients. The Grand Free Street Parade takes place every day at eleven o'clock. At Quincy, Wednesday, Aug. 19.

—Secretary Carlisle in one of his financial speeches says: "Not a silver standard country exists in the world today in which the laboring man receives fair pay for his day's work." Wage earners of every class are especially interested in this statement.

Twenty-six Wheelmen Scooped In.

New Haven, Aug. 17.—Twenty-six cyclists were arrested by the West Haven authorities yesterday for riding along a narrow path, close to the trolley track at the Kimberly avenue bridge. Several wheelmen have been killed at this point by the electrics, and the authorities decided to stop riding along the strip. There will be several contests growing out of the arrests, but more than half paid fines

Couldn't Stop the Car.

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 17.—A collision occurred Saturday night between two loaded electric cars coming from Lawndale gardens. The forward car stopped to let off a passenger and the one in the rear crashed into it, wrecking the car and badly shaking the occupants. Motorman Calumb had both legs broken, the left in two places. The accident was caused by inability to stop the car.

Signs of Dull Times.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 17.—The curtailment of the print cloth production will be continued this week by such of the mills as have not already completed the four weeks originally agreed upon. The market has been entirely devoid of life, and sales are not reported in any quantity, even at the ridiculously low figures which has held for the past two weeks.

Confesses His Sin.

Willimantic, Conn., Aug. 17.—Herbert D. Lyman, aged 20 years, is under arrest charged with robbery of the mail pouches at the Eagleville postoffice, where he was a clerk. When arrested a test letter was found in Lyman's pocket. After being locked up here he made a full confession. The thefts have been going on for about a year.

Working For Low Pay.

Stoneham, Mass., Aug. 17. — The trouble expected upon the arrival of the Italian sewer laborers, from New York, to fill the places of those discharged, has not materialized, as most of the discharged workmen have left town. The new comers are anxious for work at any price, and will save the contractors about $50 a day in wages.

Salvationists In Camp.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 17.—The Salvation Army camp-meeting opened Saturday evening at the old camp ground, and will continue in session for eight days. A large delegation from all parts of the country arrived and went into camp. After a big parade the opening meeting was held in the Amphitheater.

Took All In Sight.

New Haven, Aug 17.—Councilman J. J. Goggin's saloon was raided yesterday by the police and Secretary Thrasher of the State Law and Order league, and two truck loads of liquors were confiscated. This is the first time that a licensed saloon raided in New Haven has been stripped of its stock.

Suncook Mills Closed.

Suncook, N. H., Aug. 17.—The China, Webster and Pembroke mills closed Saturday for three weeks. During the shutdown extensive repairs to the mill dams will be made. The mills employ 1550 hands, and the payroll is about $35,000 weekly.

New England Briefs.

A case of cholera nostras is reported in Waltham, Mass,

John Ryan, 15, was drowned while bathing at Lowell, Mass.

Three prisoners escaped from the county jail at Lowell, Mass.

Fall River (Mass.) mills will probably curtail production until October.

St. Mary's Catholic church, Beverly, Mass., was burned; three firemen were injured.

James McGrath was rowing at Boston, when the boat capsized, and he was drowned.

New England Republicans are expected, it is said, to contribute $500,000 to campaign fund.

Fred A. Klobedanz of the Fall River (Mass.) baseball team has been released to Boston. Klobedanz is about 26 years old.

Dolin Racskawski, aged 35, was drowned while bathing at Lawrence, Mass. He got beyond his depth. The body was recovered.

William Good, an excursionist, aged 40, fell from a pleasure steamer's gangplank, as it was landing passengers at Boston, and was drowned.

Dennis J. Doherty, who was arrested at Everett, Mass., for drunkenness, and locked up in the local police station, hanged himself with a piece of window cord. He leaves a wife and three small children.

Abraham S. Quint, a Hebrew tobacco dealer, whose rooms at Northampton, Mass., were completely destroyed by fire, was arrested on the charge of concealing goods with intent to defraud insurance companies.

Are peculiarly benefited by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful Tonic and Blood Cleanser in the world.

P. P. P. restores shattered nerves, gives strength and tone to the entire system, revives the worn out, nervous and debilitated. You cannot but be nervous if your blood is impure.

P. P. P. gives the proper nourishment to the blood, and cures nervous prostration, debility and nervous headache.

P. P. P. cures that tired, languid, "all gone" feeling, cures dyspepsia, indigestion, and that awful distress of the stomach.

P. P. P. cures that weak, nervous condition, that dreadful jumping of the heart, followed by dizziness and sinking spells. Make your blood pure by taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and you will be well and happy. Women are benefited, their organization regulated, and their weakness and lassitude cured by P. P. P should take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, without delay. While not actually sick, you feel weak and tired, ready to get sick, and what you need is strength to drive out of your system that which is the cause of Spring Fever. P. P. P. is needed at once.

WEAK, TIRED PEOPLE

Mr Hattie Mylius, of 70 East 86th street, New York, says that she was in poor health, and that her case developed into nervous prostration. She suffered from nervous headaches, and at times was unable to do any work at all. She could not sleep, and was so nervous that she would have to get up at all hours of the night and walk the floor, and the opening of a door would startle her. But her weakness and nervousness is all gone. P. P. P. was what saved her. Her appetite improved, her nervousness is a thing of the past, and she thanks P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for her complete restoration to health.

Fate of Schooner Falcon.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 17.—Captain Swim of the schooner Mariner reports that on July 10, in lat. 45.5, lon. 67.30, he picked up a bottle, which, from being coated with seaweed, must have been in the water a long time. It contained a plainly written note, signed "Schooner Falcon." The note stated that the cable and rudder were gone, that two men had been washed overboard, and that the vessel was sinking, and ended with the words: "God have mercy upon us; let us be known; good-by." The note had no date, and was signed by none of the crew. The scooners Falcon and John W. Bray sailed from this port last November, and have never been heard from. This confirms the opinion that they and their crews were lost in the heavy gale on Georges during that month.

Robbed London Postoffice.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Henry Berfield of London was arrested yesterday as he landed from the steamer Pavonia, on a complaint of British Vice Consul Keating, charging him with the embezzlement of £415 from the London postoffice. Berfield was a postal employe in London. His wife, who is a bride of only a month, is detained by the immigration officers as an undesirable person, while Berfield is in jail awaiting extradition. Berfield made a confession of the crime to the vice consul, at the same time turning over $1600 of the stolen money.

Sad Drowning Accident.

Portland, Me., Aug. 17.—John B. O'Brien, aged 20, was rowing in a punt, near the shore off Peak's island, yesterda, with a boy named Eddie Duddy, aged 15. The boy made a grab for a floating lobster, and tipped the punt over. O'Brien held the boy, and started to swim with him toward the shore, but was seized with a cramp and threw the boy from him toward the shore, and sank from sight. Young Duddy was saved, but O'Brien was drowned.

HOW WEYLER DOES IT.

Ordered Young Lieutenant to Commit Suicide and He Was Obeyed.

Laureda Again Brougnt to Public Notice.

Spain Casting a Longing Eye Toward the United States Treasury.

Key West, Aug. 17.—General Weyler and General Ochando were the principals in a sensational affair, which occurred shortly before the latter sailed for Spain. The death of General Ochando's nephew, who was a lieutenant in the Spanish army, was the cause of the trouble.

There were ugly rumors in circulation reflecting on the young lieutenant, who was accused of conducting a treasonable correspondence with Maximo Gomez, the insurgent chief. When Weyler heard of the rumors, he summoned the young man to the place and questioned him. Weyler was apparently satisfied of the young man's guilt, and told him that if he did not commit suicide in 24 hours he would be court-martialed and shot.

The lieutenant left the palace, went to his room, and in six hours was a corpse, having shot himself through the heart. The affair was hushed up, and Spanish officials' report said the young man died of yellow fever.

Shortly afterward, General Ochando arrived in Habana and learned the true story of his nephew's death. He was greatly enraged. He immediately went to the palace to call Weyler to account. The meetings of the generals was most sensational. Ochando denounced Weyler in the bitterest terms, alleging that the lieutenant was guiltless, and had been driven to his death. Ochando termed Weyler a murderer and butcherer, and challenged him to a duel. The men drew swords and would have fought in the palace but for the interference of other officials.

Two days later, General Ochando sailed for Spain. He is greatly enraged, and says he will make the affair public when he reaches Spain, and demand Weyler's recall.

SPAIN'S COMPLAINT.

Wants United States to Settle For Alleged Filibustering Expeditions.

Washington, Aug. 17. — The Spanish government is preparing a big bill of damages to be presented to the United States on account of the numerous expeditions alleged to have gone from our shores to the relief of the Cuban insurgents, and in support of its claim for reparation intends to invoke the precedent established by the United States against Great Britain in the celebrated Alabama case awards, made by the Geneva arbitration tribunal. There have been reports heretofore that Spain at the proper time would present a series of claims, on account of the use the insurgents had made of the United States as a base of supplies for hostile operations in Cuba, but these were nothing more than rumors until yesterday, when government officers received copies of a report to the Spanish legation by its legal adviser.

The report is handsomley printed in pamphlet form, and, with its five appendices, makes a book of over 300 pages. It is titled, "A report to the Spanish legation, with reference to the legal aspect of hostilities committed by vessels specially adapted, in whole or in part, within the United States, to warlike uses, and by military expeditions and enterprises carried on from the territory of the United States against the Spanish dominion in Cuba during the political insurrection." The report evidently has been prepared with great care, and under special instructions from the Spanish government. Detailed accounts of the more notorious alleged filibustering expeditions are given. The five sets of appendices include neutrality proclamations, issued by various presidents, from Washington to Cleveland; citations of all the laws ever in force in the United States bearing on the observance of neutrality in our dealings with foreign nations; charges to grand juries on the subject of neutrality, etc.

The Laureda Again.

Madrid, Aug. 17.—The Spanish minister of foreign affairs has received a Washington dispatch giving satisfactory assurances regarding the alleged filibustering expedition of the Laureda

Washington, Aug. 17.—The steamer Laureda, referred to in the Madrid dispatch, has figured frequently in the claims made by Spanish authorities that American merchant steamers were engaged in filibustering operations. In July last, the captain of the vessel was indicted in the federal courts of South Carolina, but was acquitted after a jury trial. Frequent reference has been made to the experience of the Laureda at Mayport, Fla., in May last. The captain on that occasion failed to take out health papers, required by law, and this led to the surveillance of the Laureda by a Spanish war vessel. It was claimed that 10 Cubans were located on board, and that quantities of war material and dynamite were thrown in the water after the Spanish war vessel put in an appearance. It was also represented at the time of the appearance of the Spanish cruiser that 30 men were drowned, owing to the precipitous haste in getting ashore to avoid apprehension. The Spanish authorities claimed that the United States had taken no proceedings toward condemning the vessel, or arms, in accordance with the neutrality laws. All the state department officials were absent from the city last night, so no statement can be obtained from that quarter.

Newspaper Man Hacked to Pieces.

Key West, Aug. 17.—Private advices received by the steamer from Habana last night confirm the report of the tragic death of Charles Govin, a newspaper correspondent, who left here on the last trip of the steamer Three Friends. The report states that while operating with General Aguirre's forces in the vicinity of Jaruco he was captured, with five others, and bound with cords. After having credentials and valuables taken from him, Govin protested against the outrage, stating that he was a newspaper correspondent and an American citizen. This statement appears to have angered his captors, and they hacked him to pieces with machetes. The valuables taken are now said by eye witnesses to be in the possession of General Ochoa.

Watching For Filibusters.

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 17.—Either a Spanish gunboat or an American man-of-war is patroling the coast of the Brunswick customs district. The vessel is generally supposed to be the Spanish cruiser Alfono XIII. The vessel has steadily patrolled just outside the sea buoy at the entrance to Brunswick harbor, up to the north of St. Simons island and back to Dobuoy sound. As the filibustering steamer is supposed to be in hiding near these waters, and as it is not positively known whether or not the Brunswick tug the Dauntless has escaped to sea with the expedition, which left the Satilla river bridge Thursday morning last, the appearance of this warship has caused much excitement here.

Death's Ravages.

New York, Aug. 17.—It is the cemeteries that most accurately tell the story of the deaths during the heated period just closed. In most of the cemeteries there were what seemed endless funeral processions, some entering and others coming out. Naturally, many of the burials were of those whose deaths were due to other causes than heat, but the greatly increased average was no doubt from this cause. Calvary cemetery has the greatest record of burial of any time in its history. It was learned at the office of the cemetery yesterday that 1500 was a fair statement of the number of bodies that had been buried during the last 10 days. So many were the persons over whom the last sad rites were performed in the cemetery chapel that the priests called upon found it necessary to hold services over a dozen or more bodies at a time so that they might be buried before darkness set in.

"Too Independent."

London, Aug. 17.—A dispatch to The Times from Berlin attributes the dismissal, Saturday, of General Bronsart von Schellendorf, minister of war, largely to the influence over Emperor William, of General von Hahnke, the aide de camp general. The Berlin correspondent of The Times adds that it is believed that a crisis in the internal policy of the empire has been reached, and that the gradual removal of the more independent advisers of the crown is the beginning of the inauguration of a policy of reaction which augurs ill for the peaceful development of German political life.

An Aeronaut's Awful Death.

Quincy, Ills., Aug. 17.—B. Frank Jacobs, an aeronaut, traveling with a circus, met with a horrible death here yesterday, in the presence of his wife and young child and an assembled throng. He was having a balloon race at Baldwin park with Professor Dudley, when his balloon burst, 200 feet from the ground. His parachute failed to open, and he was dashed to the ground, breaking almost every bone in his body. The same balloon burst Friday night, and he then had a narrow escape from death.

Power of a Meteor.

Tucson, Ari., Aug. 17.—Dr. P. M. Smith of Hagarstown and a party of mining men, who have just returned from the Ripsey mines, report the fall of a meteor, which struck the desert two miles north of Hall's ranch, Aug. 9. The concussion was terrible, and the air for miles around was filled with sulphurous gas. The meteor covers about two acres of ground, appearing to be imbedded hundreds of feet in the earth, and now forms a great mountain in the desert.

Still Whipping Turks.

London, Aug. 17.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Canea says that a fresh Turkish battalion arrived at the Island of Crete last week. There was sharp fighting throughout Friday in the province of Malerizi, just outside of Heraklion. The insurgents, 800 in number, were victorious. They drove the Turkish troops to the military zone of Heraklion, capturing four cannon and a considerable quantity of arms and war supplies.

Car Struck Fire Truck.

Buffalo, Aug. 17.—As fire truck 6 was on the way to a fire, yesterday, a trolley car struck it, rolling the truck and horses over. Fireman Clarke was pinned under the overturned truck and crushed to death. Frederick Jackey, another fireman, received a contusion of the spine. He will probably die. Lieutenant Hedden was badly bruised.

Assassin Surrenders.

Valparaiso, Tex., Aug. 17. — Senor Matta Chilian, minister to Bolivia, died as the result of a wound in the spine. Before he expired he declared that the assault upon him was due to personal vengeance. Jose Cuellar, who shot him, delivered himself up to the police. He said he killed Matta in self-defense.

Tailor Strike Nearly Ended.

New York, Aug. 17.—Meyer Schoenfeld stated yesterday that the strike would probably be ended by tomorrow. There were no meetings held yesterday, and apparently nothing more remains to be done, except to await the action of the contractors, who have not signed the agreement.

BRAVE SPIRITS BROKEN.

How often women wake up in the morning cheerful and happy, determined to do so much before the day ends, and yet:—

Before the morning is very old, the dreadful BACKACHE appears, the brave spirit sinks back in affright: no matter how hard she struggles, the "clutch" is upon her, she falls upon the couch, crying:—"Why should I suffer so? What can I do?"

Lydia E. Pinkham's "Vegetable Compound" will stop the torture and restore courage. All such pains come from a deranged uterus. Trouble in the womb blots out the light of the sun at midday to a vast number of women.

ABIGAIL DODGE DEAD.

Recurrence of Attack of Paralysis Seals Her Book of Life.

Had Not Been In Sound Health For Some Time.

Achieved Fame in the Literary World Under the Name of Gail Hamilton.

Wenham, Mass., Aug. 18. — "Gail Hamilton," Mary Abigail Dodge, died at Hamilton at 8:55 last evening, without regaining consciousness since she was stricken Sunday morning. While sitting at breakfast Sunday morning, Miss Dodge was stricken with paralysis. She fell from her chair and was picked up in an unconscious condition.

She had been in good health all summer, and until Sunday morning she was seen out driving nearly every day, accompanied by her sister, Augusta. Owing to her wonderful constitution she lived many hours longer than her physician thought possible. She passed away without a struggle or a movement, painless and unconscious.

So quietly, so gently came the end that the tearful watchers who sat around the bed hardly knew when the breath ceased. From the hour on Sunday morning while sitting at the breakfast table, when her right arm fell motionless by her side and her head dropped on her bosom, to the moment of her death, Miss Dodge never was conscious.

All day long she grew weaker and weaker. When death came there were present the nurse, Mrs. Richards, Augusta, Miss Dodge's sister, Mr. Bowen and Louis W. Dodge, her nephew.

Miss Mary Abigail Dodge, writer, biographer, controversialist, widely known under the pen name of Gail Hamilton, was a native of the town in which she died, having been born here in 1830. At the age of 10 years she went to Dr. Clark's private school in Cambridge. She was graduated from Ipswich academy at the age of 20. In 1851 she went to Hartford as assistant in the Hartford high school. She refused to take the customary examination, but was given the position without doing so. She was also instructor in physical science in this school for several years, and was subsequently a governess in the family of Dr. Gamaliel Bailey of Washington, the editor of The National Era, to which paper she became a contributor. In 1865-7 she was one of the editors of Our Young Folks, a magazine for children, published in Boston.

From 1870 until a little over a year ago she had lived most of the time with her cousin, Mrs. James G. Blaine, in Washington. In course of this daily contact with the Blaine family, Miss Hamilton was led into a very close friendship with Mr. Blaine, and at the death of the latter she became his literary executor, being in possession of all his papers and documents, of value to her as his authorized biographer. She was engaged as frequently as her health would permit on Mr. Blaine's biography ever since his death, until her sickness of last year, and it is thought that her untiring devotion to the work was instrumental in bringing about that prostration. Since that sickness, which came on so suddenly in the Blaine mansion in Washington that it was thought at first she was dead, many papers in the country even published obituary notices of her then, Miss Dodge has lived very quietly at her old home in Hamilton.

Her strength had never rallied after that sickness, so that she felt able to resume active work, and she was for weeks unable to see even intimate friends, but during much of the time she has been able to be driven about the town and to entertain the friends who have called upon her. Her literary work during this time has been fragmentary, done by the help of an amanuensis, as a diversion, or when some current event has specially attracted her interest.

Gail Hamilton was a frequent contributor to prominent magazines, and her published works, written in a witty and aggressive style, consist largely of selections from her contributions. Her books include: "Country Living and Country Thinking," "Gala Days," "New Atmosphere and Stumbling Blocks," "Skirmishes and Sketches," "Red Letter Days in Applethorpe," and "Summer Rest," "Wool Gathering," "Woman's Wrongs," "A Counter Irritant," "Battle of the Books," "Woman's Worth and Worthiness," "Little Folk Life," "Child World," "Twelve Miles From a Lemon," "Nursery Noonings," "Sermons for the Clergy," and "First Love is Best," "What Think Ye of Christ?" "Our Common School System," "Divine Guidance," "Memorial to Allen W. Dodge," and "Insuppressible Book." In 1887 she wrote a series of letters on civil service reform for a New York paper. Letters on a wide range of public questions, written for the Boston Journal, were widely copied throughout the United States.

Miss Dodge's one novel, "First Love is Best," had not the success which attended some of her other works. During recent years she engaged in political writing, and many famous review articles and political "interviews" have been accredited to her which have roused much warm discussion, and have exerted more or less influence upon national politics.

How They Do It In Maine.

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 18.—As a result of the investigation instituted by the Lewiston city government to ascertain if Deputies O'Brien and Maxwell have turned into the treasuries of the towns and cities of the county all the money which belonged to them from the proceeds of the sales of empty liquor vessels, the deputies have paid $200 to the town of Wales and $25 to the town of Greene. No money has been received by Wales from this source for 12 years, although it is claimed that a large amount of liquors, sometimes a carload at a time, has been seized at the station in that town.

Probably Crazed by Heat.

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 18.—The "wild man," who for the past two weeks has been roaming through the woods here, entirely nude, was captured yesterday by Officer Hammond of Lynn. The "wild man" proved to be Z. T. Hodges, who recently came here, and it is presumed the heat crazed him. He has committed no crimes other than exposing himself. Yesterday he was parading on the beach, and also on one of the fashionable residence estates, entirely nude, and was in this condition when arrested and brought to the station. He is unmarried, about 30 years old, and weighs about 250 pounds.

Another Big Hotel Robbery.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 18.—E. A. Penniman of New York arrived at the Atwood House about 10 days ago. He had his trunk taken to his room on the first floor above the office. Yesterday, when he removed the upper tray from his trunk, he missed two cigar boxes, which he had carefully placed under some garments. Further search disclosed that the trunk had been looted. One of the boxes was full of silver coins, many of rare dates. From the other box a pearl pin, solitaire diamond pin, diamond horseshoe pin and several finger rings, all set with precious stones, were taken. Mr. Penniman will not place any value upon his property, for the reason that he does not desire any publicity.

Fine Residence Burned.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 18.—The residence of Frederick Faulkner, a woolen manufacturer, on the summit of Belvidere hill, was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. The loss probably exceeds $100,000. The fire is thought to have been incendiary, as the family were out of the city. The location handicapped the efforts of the firemen, although the entire department was called out. The flames lighted up the entire city, and made a spectacle which was grand in its fierceness.

The Crampsey Case.

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 18.—Undertaker Samuel H. Safford has been summoned to appear before the Ipswich district court, on complaint of the board of health of that town, for alleged illegally removing the body of Mrs. Eliza W. Crampsey from Grape island, in Ipswich, to Newburyport. Mrs. Crampsey was the woman whose death is surrounded with mystery. It is probable that the case will be taken to the superior court.

Keene Bank Enjoined.

Keene, N. H., Aug. 18.—An injunction from the New Hampshire savings bank commissioners went into effect yesterday, restraining the Cheshire Provident Institution of Keene from paying out or receiving deposits. This action has been taken for the protection of the depositors, by petition of the trustees, and came about through the inability to realize well on securities and the tightness of the money market.

News From Whalers.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 18.—Letters from the whaling fleet on the Hatteras grounds, dated Aug. 6, state that the schooner William A. Grozier took 75 barrels of sperm oil that week; schooner Rising Sun, 40 barrels; Joseph Manta, 30 barrels; Carrie D. Knowles, 75 barrels, and the Baltic, 60 barrels. Whales have not been plenty, and the heavy southwest breezes have made rough weather for lowering boats.

One Arrest.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 18.—About 600 persons watched the non-union men come out of the T. G. Plant factory last night, and as usual the crowd followed them to their boarding places. Lester Hogan, one of the sympathizers, became offensive, and was arrested for disorderly conduct. Fifteen new non-union men have arrived at the factory.

Bad Man With a Pistol.

Boston, Aug. 18. — Reuben Johnson, colored, 41 years old, while riding on an electric car last night, became provoked because the car did not stop at a certain street, and pulled a revolver on the conductor. The car happened to be near a police station, and Johnson was arrested. The conductor acted very coolly during the dangerous controversy.

Thief's Easy Prey.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 18.—The Old Orchard bath house was entered by a thief and the cash, diamonds and jewelry, valued at $1000, the property of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Foley of Montreal, were taken. The couple were in bathing at the time, and had the valuables tied up in a handkerchief in the bathroom.

Mysterious Proceedings.

Hudson, Mass., Aug. 18.—On Saturday last, Jennie Clark, 17 years old, left home, wearing her factory clothes. She did not return that night, but was seen Saturday evening in company with Frank Coleman. When an officer called to see Coleman yesterday he ran out the back door of his house and did not return.

Attleboro Man Missing.

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 18.—Burleigh C. Sprague, a piano dealer, has been missing from his home here since Tuesday. The return of the shirt he wore, by express, from Providence, would indicate that he was mentally unbalanced.

Five Hundred Men Out.

Mainstee, Mich., Aug. 18. — The two mills, salt block and lumber yard of the Peters' Salt and Lumber company are shut down on account of a strike, throwing 500 men out of employment. The firm notified the men payday, the 15th inst., of a 10 per cent reduction in wages. Enough men did not come to work yesterday to operate the mills in full, so they did not attempt to run.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

New England Farmers Were Benefited by the Hot Wave.

Corn, Fruit and Berries Show Great Gains.

All Crops Are Flourishing With the Exception of Potatoes.

Boston, Aug. 18.—The New England section of the United States agricultural bureau issues the following bulletin:

The week ending Aug. 17, 1896, has given an unevenly distributed amount of moisture, but plenty of sunshine, and during the first part of the week excessive heat. Northern New Hampshire, central Massachusetts, and Connecticut and Rhode Island, received over one inch of rainfall, while other sections report from a trace to one inch. The high temperature and sunshine have advanced crops very fast, and everything seems to be doing well, except that in southern sections potatoes are rusting to considerable extent.

Corn has made a remarkable growth in Maine during the past week, and it is now pronounced up to the average at this season, with a good yield indicated. Pastures are in good condition, and the grass in fields is starting up fast. Wild blackberries are ripening, and are a heavy crop. Apples are very promising. Oats are being harvested, and indicate a heavy crop. Barley also promises well. The potato rust is appearing in southern counties.

The extreme heat checked farm work for a day or two in New Hampshire, but crops have grown very fast. Corn especially has advanced wonderfully, and both field and sweet corn is very promising. Reports of potato rust, or blight, to a greater or less extent, come this week from Hillsboro, Cheshire, Sullivan, Rockingham and Merrimack counties; the outlook is not very good for the crop. Berries are still plenty, and reports from nearly all the state say that winter apples are holding on well, and that the trees are breaking down with their loads of fruit. Apples are coloring up well. Pastures are excellent. Beans are good. Grain is very good. Plowing and seeding for grass is now going on.

Pastures are getting short in parts of Vermont, but it is green, and the grass in fields is growing fast. Grain is being harvested in good condition. It stands up well for the reaper, and where threshed is yielding unusually well. Corn seems to have made up for lost time, and is pushing fast toward maturity, particularly the sweet corn for the canning factories. Reports of potato rust have been received from Chittenden, Addison, Windsor and Orleans counties; the damage is apparently not extensive yet, but it is spreading. Apples are reported to be a large crop, of good quality.

Over most of Massachusetts there has been sufficient rainfall for crop needs during the week, and everything is advancing well. There is, however, a marked deficiency of moisture in the subsoil in some sections, and a few days without rain lets the surface dry out rapidly. Corn and late forage crops have made a rapid growth. Pastures hold out well. Tobacco looks well, and is being cut. Tomatoes are ripening well generally, and a good crop is at hand. Cranberries have been badly sunburned or scalded. It has been rather too hot for the best growth of cabbages. Apples are making a fine showing.

All late crops have been helped along, and early ones have ripened well in Rhode Island. The top of the ground was getting dry, but the heavy rain on the 14th put it in good shape again. Corn has eared thickly, and is very promising. Onion seed is a fine crop. Farmers have begun threshing their oats. Apples are rather unevenly distributed.

No damage is reported in the farming region of Connecticut by the hot weather of the week, while all farm crops are growing and ripening fast. Pastures are good. Corn and forage crops have made a rapid growth and good crops are assured. Buckwheat is fine. Potatoes are generally blighting, and there are occasional reports of decay. Onions are blighting some in southern Fairfield county. In New Haven county the onion seed is very promising. Apples are ripening well; they are dropping badly in northern Litchfield county. Tomatoes are ripening slowly. Late cabbage and turnips have been greatly helped by the copious rains.

New England Briefs.

Harry Brothers of Swampscott, Mass., was accidentally shot near Phillips Beach, at that place.

Connecticut's National Guard entered upon a six days' tour of duty on the state grounds, at Niantic.

Captain John Grant, for 30 years lightkeeper at Libby island and Mattinicus rock, died at Rockland Me., aged 91 years.

The Boston tax rate is $12.90 on $1000, instead of $12.80, as for the last three years. The increase is due to larger state and city appropriations.

The annual encampment of the National Guard of Vermont began at Camp Colonel Webb, near Burlington. Eight hundred militia men and 186 United States regulars are present.

Mrs. Phebe S. Ricketson of South Dartmouth, Mass., is dead, aged 95 years. She was the oldest member of any Women's Relief Corps in America, belonging to William Logan Rodman Relief corps No 53 of New Bedford, Mass.

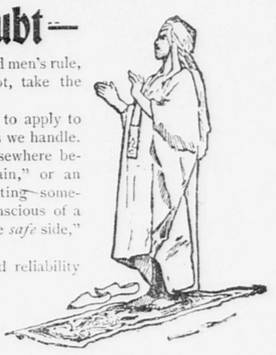

The wrestling match between John Flannagan and Fred Henry, at Taunton, Mass., for a purse of $100 and the gate receipts, was won by Henry. Flannagan's left shoulder was broken in the first bout, and after that he was helpless.

BUY ·TEA· Of Boston Branch Grocery.

WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

William Everett for Governor.

A writer to the Boston Evening Record suggests to the sound money Democrats that if they really want to make a successful fight against George Fred Williams in the State convention, there is no one about whom they can rally so successfully, or who would run as well, as William Everett, the Quincy school master.

Rumors of Strike Unfounded.

There have been numerous rumors this week of trouble at the yards of the Craig & Richards Granite Co., because the men were not paid off on the fifteenth and that in consequence thereof the works were shut down.

The men when seen say that Saturday, the fifteenth, the men were not paid off, as the firm claimed they could not open the safe, and that they would not work until paid.

Mr. Craig of the firm when seen by a representative of the LEDGER this morning said that it was true, that all of the men were not paid Saturday, as they had lost the combination to the safe and were unable to open it but that the men were paid Monday.

Mr. Craig further said that business was very quiet and that it had been deemed advisable owing to the depression in business to shut down for a few days and give the men a vacation and that they would probably start up again next week.

Concert.

The concert by Baldwin's Boston Cadet band at the Quincy Yacht Club house on Friday evening is going to be a great treat from a musical point of view. J. Thomas Baldwin will send out his best men. Among them will be Harry C. Daggett, leader and pianist; Vincent Akeroyd and George H. Rowell, violinists; Otto Lorenz, bass; August Damm, flute and piccolo; Lorenzo White, clarinet; Frank E. Partridge and Thomas Mullaly, trumpets; and Charles E. Cooper, drums.

Girls Wanted a Ride.

William Garbarino left his father's team alone on Union street for a few minutes Monday morning, and while left thus two young girls came out of Whicher's factory, and getting into the team drove off, leaving William to make his way home on foot. The girls drove to East Milton and from there went to Weymouth, where they were overhauled by William in the afternoon, who took the team away from them, and gave them a chance to get home as best they could.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles Stickney was fined $50 for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell at Randolph.

William Healey was fined $50 for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors at Weymouth. Appealed.

Frank Rafferty and Peter Bansy were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Good Blood

Is essential to health. Every nook and corner of the system is reached by the blood, and on its quality the condition of every organ depends. Good blood means strong nerves, good digestion, robust health. Impure blood means scrofula, dyspepsia, rheumatism, catarrh or other diseases. The surest way to have good blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, and sends the elements of health and strength to every nerve, organ and tissue. It creates a good appetite, gives refreshing sleep and cures that tired feeling. Remember,

The Granite Business.

James McAdam of Quincy writes to the Granite Cutters' Journal for August, the following:

"The granite business in Quincy continues quiet, and as far as I can learn the indications give little hope of early improvement.

"The professional politician, however, is very busy in the meantime, and it is too much to expect that the wheels of industry and commerce should keep in rapid motion while this ubiquitous gentleman is wound up to his highest pitch and thundering forth specious schemes for the betterment of the country in general and of the beloved laboring man in particular. If it is true that 'there is a time for everything,' I suppose it is only right that the professional politician should have his time as well, but let us rejoice that his time is limited. After the early days of November have passed and his torrents of eloquence have done their work—one way or the other—he will retire to recuperate his health, and before the advent of a new year we may see signs in the industrial firmament which will herald the dawn of a brighter day, when prosperity will hold undisputed sway throughout the length and breadth of this favored country."

The Price of Silver.

Bar silver was quoted lower yesterday than for a long time, both here and in London. At the same time the market for general securities showed an advance. These are significant facts showing the drift of things. The price of silver says the Boston Herald, ought to furnish a gauge by which to measure the confidence of the silverites, if anything can, and by this test their hopes have not been so low as now since the campaign began.

WILL be sold at public auction on the premises on TUESDAY, the Eighth day of September, A. D., 1896, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain deed of mortgage made and executed by Patrick Moore of Hurlilville in the county of Providence and state of Rhode Island, bearing date of June 11 A. D., 1894, and recorded in Woonsocket registry of deeds, in book 46, pages 138 and 139, and also recorded in the city and county of Worcester and commonwealth of Massachusetts with the Worcester district deeds, book 1,445, page 461; the condition of said deed of mortgage having been broken. A certain lot or parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Woonsocket, in said county of Providence and bounded and described as follows, viz:

Beginning at the southwesterly corner thereof, at a point on the northerly line of Estey street, formerly Norbert street, so-called, and a corner of land of Lewis F. Cook and Edward Gauvin, thence south seventy-two (72) degrees nineteen (19) minutes east, along the line of said street forty and three hundredths (40.03) feet to a point; thence north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and bounded easterly by land of said Edward Gauvin forty-nine and five-tenths (49.5) feet to a point; thence south seventy-four (74) degrees one (1) minute west, and bounded northerly by the lot next hereinafter described sixty and eighty-five hundredths (60.85) feet to a point; thence south sixteen (16) degrees nine (9) minutes east, and bounded westerly by land of Lewis F. Cook nineteen and four hundredths (19.04) feet to the point of beginning, and containing one thousand five hundred sixty-nine (1,569) square feet of land, being the same premises conveyed to said Patrick Moore by deed of Edward Cunningham, dated June 11, A. D., 1894.

Also one other certain tract or parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon, situated partly in said Woonsocket, partly in the town of Blackstone, county of Worcester and commonwealth of Massachusetts, and partly in the town of Bellingham, county of Norfolk in said commonwealth of Massachusetts, and on the southeasterly side of the Bellingham road or Social street, so called, and bounded and described as follows, viz: Bounded westerly by said Bellingham road or Social street one hundred feet, northerly by land of T. B. & G. L. Staples one hundred feet; easterly by land of said Edward Gauvin and the lot next hereinbefore described, one hundred feet, and southerly by land of said Lewis F. Cook, one hundred feet, being the same tract of land conveyed to said Patrick Moore by deed of Edward Cunningham, dated the 11th day of June, A. D., 1894. This last described lot will be sold subject to a mortgage covering the same for the principal sum of one thousand dollars, made by said Edward Cunningham to Michael Rowen, dated the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and recorded in the Woonsocket registry of deeds in book No. 32, pages 146 and 147.

The Moondyne also participated in the race but was too far down in the list to secure a prize.

Washburn's Great Shows.

Leon W. Washburn's Great Allied Shows. Big Three Ring Circus, Museum, Menagerie and Hippodrome will exhibit at Quincy tomorrow.

Reports from all quarters pronounce the above shows the leader in tented attractions and cannot fail to interest the masses. That it possesses many rare animals never before seen in this country the only real aquatic show of sea animals a great hippodrome a triple circus and many phenomenal living wonders is without question. Its career has been a triumphant success. It is enthusiastically received and immensely patronized everywhere it spreads its tents and it is said to give a better entertainment and more of it than any other organization in America. The newspapers are unanimous in its praise. A grand outpouring of the populace here on show day may be looked for.

☞ When the old range ceases to work to your satisfaction, or if for any reason you feel that you have not the best, it is time for you to look about and lose no time in securing one that meets all requirements. The Foster Brothers have for a long time carried a line of the best stoves, ranges, and furnaces to be found outside of Boston, and they invite the people of Quincy and vicinity to visit their store, which by the way is always kept neat and attractive. Their goods are not shop worn and everything they sell is guaranteed to satisfy. They make a specialty of furnace work. They recognize the fact that times are hard and propose to give customers the lowest possible prices in every instance. Life is short and the man who cares to make home happy will see that every convenience is placed in his kitchen. The way to do this is to visit Foster Brothers, 16 and 18 Hancock street.

St. John's Lawn Party.

All visitors to the lawn party in aid of St. John's parish will have entertainment by an aggregation of artists well and favorably known in this city, but who on account of their superior work, never fail to satisfy the cynical and please the majority. Professor Smith, the slack wire performer, Mr. Eichland, the negro dialectician, John Phelan, the comical man, little Mabel McCloskey, the child dancer and many first-class soloists, among them William Short, Daniel Padula and Josepy Judge, will furnish the first-class entertainment. A list of sports, better in purse and more calculated to bring out all athletes, than any held this year in this vicinity, will be run off, beginning about 4 o'clock.

The donkeys that have pleased the children elsewhere have been engaged, and the youngsters will have the pleasure of riding to their heart's content. Supper will be furnished in the large tent at 6, and dancing will be in order from 9 30 till 12 o'clock. The management of the affair have worked hard, and with such an auspicious day, their efforts should result in bringing out all the parishioners.

—A bicycle carrying beside the rider a small child in a basket in front struck an obstruction in Philadelphia the other day, and the child was thrown forward on its head and killed. The way the Philadelphia authorities look at the practice of carrying children on bicycles, may be inferred from the fact that it is seriously proposed to hold the father in this case for manslaughter. This may be a rather severe way of treating it, but it is an offence that comes very close to criminal carelessness.

Further Quotations and Comment For Thurston to Consider.

Latter's Utterances Declared to Be Slanderous

Even Though They Originated With "Hireling Newspaper Scribblers."

Washington, Aug. 18.—Senator W. M. Stewart sent the following letter in reply to that of Senator Thurston, published yesterday:

My Dear Sir,—I observe in the papers this morning a letter purporting to have been written by you to me, in which I am pleased to note the following passage:

I would be the last man in the world to assail the character of Mr. Bryan. I have not done so in any instance, or by any word of mine. Mr. Bryan is the candidate of a great party. It is not just to the American people that charges of this kind should go unanswered. He is the man, and the only man, who can make definite and conclusive answer.

Mr. Thurston, how can you reconcile the foregoing statement with your charge against Mr. Bryan and against the silver producers, which is contained in the following language, used by you, and to which I had the honor to call your attention in my former letter:

The proprietors of the big bonanzas have found it profitable to keep a large number of lecturers and other spokesmen on the road preaching to the people. Among the many who have thus been employed and carried on the payrolls of the big bonanzas for a number of years is William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska, a paid agent and spokesman of the free silver combine.

In the city of Omaha, where William J. Bryan does editorial work, the Omaha Bee has made the specific charge editorially time and again. It has never been met. I say as an American citizen, having at heart the welfare of the people, that the man posing as the advocate of the downtrodden masses of his countrymen, holding a crown of thorns in one hand and the bugaboo, "cross of gold," in the other, owes it as a duty to every man, woman and child in this country to say whether that charge is false or whether it is true.

I do say, my countrymen, and I know whereof I speak, that for 3½ years, without regard to Bryan, there has been a selected corps of orators and writers, paid employes of the silver producers, spreading their literature over the country from one end to the other, telling the farmer that he will have more for his wheat; telling the laboring man that he will have more for his work.

Your disclaimer, in connection with the foregoing statement, requires explanation, provided you consider our reputation for truth and veracity valuable. But your disclaimer that you would "be the last man to assail the character of Mr. Bryan," reflects either upon your veracity or your knowledge of the law of libel. If you are a lawyer, and the fact that you have been retained by the Union Pacific railroad for so many years to that institution, you ought to know that repeating a slander or libel is equally as slanderous, or libelous, as the original matter. You assume that you are not assailing Mr. Bryan when you are quoting what irresponsible newspapers say of him, and giving to such statements all the credit your high official position can confer. You belittle your understanding, when you say that it is the duty of Mr. Bryan to enter into personal controversy with every hireling newspaper scribbler who is employed to slander or defame him. The people understand the animus of partisan newspapers and make proper allowance for their assertions, but when you clothe their slanders, with your official robe, it is a lame and cowardly defense on your part to protect yourself by skulking behind miserable newspaper scribblers. I call your attention to the injustice of your charge, not the charge of newspapers, which I have again quoted for the purpose of calling your attention to the charge you made, supposing that you were an honorable man, would retract the charge at once, if you were unable to prove them. Instead of doing so, you repeated other stale slanders against Bryan, myself, Senator Sharon, Governor Stanford and others, which, if true, do not prove your charge against Mr. Bryan.

I shall not reiterate in kind, and quote what venal newspapers, or even better men than yourself, say of you, because it is not pertinent to the issue. The issue is whether you have unjustly, and without proof, assailed the character of Mr. Bryan. You cannot avoid that issue by pretending that you only repeated a falsehood, which somebody else originated. Do you not fear the repeating of a falsehood, and attributing it to irresponsible parties, will impair your influence in favor of the cause you are advocating? You must remember, my dear senator, that there is a sense of public justice, which is outraged by slander and libel, which you cannot justify by claiming you have a right to remark it, because you had not the courage to originate it. If you have no case against Mr. Bryan, which you have already virtually admitted, by citing irrelevant, incompetent hearsay, to prove your charge, your slanders will be harmless, so far as he is concerned, but can you afford to be published to the world as a pedlar of slanders which you cannot prove? If you had any friends, who supposed that you were both honest and brave, they will be sorely disappointed if you fail to frankly avow your error and retract your slanders, or prove the truth of your charge, which I have quoted above.

Yours very respectfully,
William M. Stewart.

Gold Standard Democrats' Call.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—All indications for the Democratic gold standard convention are most favorable, and the committee reports that over 40 states will be represented. Arrangements have been made for a one-fare rate to Indianapolis for the convention. There was a meeting yesterday of the national executive committee of the sound money Democracy. Those in attendance were Messrs. W. D. Bynum of Indiana, Sam Holding of Ohio, W. B. Haldeman of Kentucky, E. B. Usher of Wisconsin, F. W. Cutcheon of Minnesota, F. H. Lehman of Missouri, John P. Hopkins of Illinois, J. M. Faulkner of Alabama, and J. R. Wilson of Indianapolis, the secretary. The principal message which called the committee together was the preparation and adoption of an address to the Democratic voters of the country. A sub-committee was chosen to draft the address. The whole committee went into session on the address as drafted, and four hours later gave it out.

It reviews the history of the party, defines Democracy, and states that the true Democracy was misrepresented at Chicago, and urgently calls for a large attendance of delegates at the convention to be held at Indianapolis on Sept. 2, at which a platform will be adopted on which standard bearers faithful to the principles of the party can stand.

Won't Answer Cockran.

Upper Red Hook, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The village storekeeper is the proudest man in the village. He is E. C. Perrine, and has been a Republican voter for 30 years. He is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, and expects to keep them here for at least a week. Mrs. Perrine is a schoolmate of Mrs. Bryan, and neither Mr. nor Mrs. Bryan had in any way disguised their motives when they announced that they have come here to rest. That is absolutely all there is to do here. There was a demonstration here last night, but it was as Mr. Perrine remarked, "Merely a social event," and joined in by people, irrespective of party. There was little or no demonstration in the village when the Bryans arrived, after a six-mile drive from the station, and until yesterday afternoon there was little or no desire evinced by the villagers to see the candidate. But toward dusk the people of three villages gathered about the house, in front of which there is a large lawn, and Mr. Bryan made a brief speech.

Mr. Bryan's itinerancy, after he has rested, has been partially arranged. He will not go back to New York to answer the speech of Cockran.

Mr. Bryan said last night: "Mr. Cockran and I both discussed the silver question and the income tax while in congress. If he advances any new arguments they can go to the country along with my speech of last week. I shall not return to New York until the latter part of September, when I expect to speak briefly in Brooklyn on my way to New England, and New York on my return from New England."

Mr. Bryan said also, in regard to the alleged statement by Senator Thurston, in his letter to Senator Stewart, that Mr. Bryan had been charged with being in the pay of silver mine owners: "The statement has been denied before, and at the proper time a more specific denial will be made."

Maryland Gold Men Hustling.

Baltimore, Aug. 18.—The "Honest Money" league of Maryland, composed of Democrats opposed to Bryan, opened headquarters here yesterday, and will begin an active campaign throughout the state. One of the novel features of the fight will be the introduction of women canvassers in this city, who will be organized in groups, to go from house to house, distributing gold standard literature, and urging the women to use their influence in bringing about the defeat of free silver. It is understood that the work is to be confined to the homes of mechanics, clerks, and the laboring classes.

Big Election Bets.

O'Brien, who is a Bryan supporter, has two bets on the election yesterday a Washington banker. One was $1000 to $7000 that McKinley would not carry Ohio. The other was $1000 even that McKinley would be elected. The broker gave 7 to 1 on Ohio, only on condition that the other bet should be even money. The broker is so convinced that McKinley will win that he has bet $500 that Bryan will be beat worse than Judge Folger when he ran for governor, and 192,000 votes were given against him.

Probably Talked Politics.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 18.—It is now believed that President Cleveland had a conference with Attorney General Harmon and Secretaries Olney, Lamont and Carlisle at Gray Gables Sunday, and that the question of a gold Democratic convention was discussed. Mr. Harmon left Gray Gables Sunday night.

Cockran's Tour.

New York, Aug. 18.—Bourke Cockran has engaged to speak in the Democratic gold standard party's interest in Maine, Michigan, Ohio, Virginia and Illinois, and may possibly extend his tour into other of the western states than those named above.

Stepped Out.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 18.—William B. Given, chairman of the Democratic county committee since 1893, resigned yesterday. He had bolted the Chicago platform and nominations, and was requested by the county committee to step out. In his letter of resignation he says the platform adopted at Chicago is neither Democratic nor patriotic, and that its success would lead to dishonor and business ruin.

Crisis at Hand.

London, Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Berlin refers to the interview between Emperor William and Chancellor Hohenlohe, and says the situation is as strained as ever, nobody being willing to venture a prophecy as to who will be in office three weeks hence.

Troops Ready For Action.

Belfast, Aug. 18. — Heavy rains last night put a stop to rioting, which occurred all day yesterday, and no further troubles of this nature have been reported. The troops, however, are still confined at the barracks, awaiting further orders.

No Bill of Damages.

Madrid, Aug. 18.—Epoca semi-officially denies that Spain is preparing a bill of damages against the United States.

The City Hospital.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The regular income from the endowment fund of the hospital is not sufficient to defray the running expenses. The increasing yearly deficit is cut down by various charitable enterprises, principal among them being the Hospital Fete. These affairs are a heavy tax upon the time and energy of the managers and participants, and upon the generosity of the benevolent portion of the community.

If this method of supporting the institution could be regarded as a temporary expedient—merely, it would not be open to objection—but regarded, as it must be, as a permanent policy during the many years required for the accumulation of a sufficient endowed fund, it seems awkward and inadequate.

In a well regulated modern city of the size of Quincy a hospital does not seem to the writer to come under the head of a luxury, or a charity, but a necessity, pure and simple, which should be controlled and maintained by the municipal corporation like roads, jails and poor-houses. In this case the burden of its erection was voluntarily assumed by a generous donor. It is a question whether the logical course would not be to turn the hospital over to the municipal corporation, to be maintained by it, thus changing its character from that of a private institution maintained by charity into a public institution maintained by taxation.

However, whatever scheme may be eventually adopted, let every resident do his or her share to make this year's fete a greater success, even, than last year's.

Very respectfully,
"POOR RICHARD."

DYSPEPSIA DID IT

Weakened One Man's Constitution Until It Brought Him to Death's Door.

Mr. James S. Harrison, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Cleveland, O., was for years a sufferer from dyspepsia and general debility, and in his weakened condition, resulting from the above causes, he had the additional ill-luck to fall a victim to malaria from this complication of disorders. Mr. Harrison's condition was becoming very serious, when he commenced to take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. Its effects were marked and immediate. Read his letter to us. Its earnestness is apparent:

GENTLEMEN: For the benefit of all suffering from dyspepsia and general debility I beg to submit my testimonial as to the efficacy of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, as a positive cure for all the distressing complaints from which I suffered.

My system was also full of Malaria and my condition was growing very serious; I had no appetite, was losing strength and was completely broken down in health, but now my health is completely restored, and I can eat like a field laborer, without the slightest fear of any serious results.

I take great pleasure in telling the world that P. P. P. did the grand work of restoring me to my accustomed health.

Yours truly,
JAMES S. HARRISON,
Cleveland, O.

If you get up feeling tired and stupid, P. P. P. should be taken—it will make you feel well.

P. P. P. cures eczema, that torturing, itching disease of the skin and blood. If your blood is kept pure, you will not be disfigured with pimples, boils and blotches.

P. P. P. is the deadly foe and vanquisher of rheumatism. Its effects are immediate and lasting, and it not only relieves, but permanently cures.

Scrofula, which is hereditary and deep-seated in the blood can be cured by P. P. P. It is the one and only positive cure for this dread disease.

Sufferers from kidney troubles find immediate relief when they take P. P. P. as it cures all irregularities and restores to nature her proper functions.

Sold by all druggists.

Kentucky's Welcome to the L. A. W.

[From the official souvenir programme of the coming meet in Louisville.]

From north and from south they are spinning,
They speed from the east and the west;
So give them a true southern welcome
And bid them partake of our best,
Extend them the keys of the city
And give them both sides of the street.
Hurrah for the jolly good wheelmen
Who'll be at the national meet!

A welcome to racer and scorcher;
Good roads to them and a wide berth.
Though records they break they are modest,
For they do not want all of the earth.
A welcome to all who ride single,
Or tandem with bloomer girls sweet.
Hurrah for the jolly good wheelmen
Who'll be at the national meet!

Here's health and good luck to you all, boys!
May you reach every goal you desire,
May your lofty hopes never be punctured,
And the wings of your speed never tire.
And here's to the triumph of progress,
The bicycle, faithful and fleet.
Hurrah for the jolly good wheelmen
Who'll be at the national meet!

The Armenian Outrages.

London, Aug. 18.—The London Daily News says that it is stated that further diplomatic correspondence will be issued shortly, showing that the Armenian outrages had their origin in the residence of the sultan, and that they were approved by his majesty, for the purpose of warning the pect unless its members desisted from the propaganda. The News also says that the correspondence will show that 100,000 Armenians were massacred.

Log on the Track.

Washington, Aug. 18.—An attempt was made to wreck a local train on the Southern railroad near Manassas yesterday. A large log was placed across the track. The first truck of the engine passed over the obstruction before the train could be stopped. No one was injured, and the delay was brief. This is the second attempt to wreck a train in the same vicinity in a week. It is believed that the attempt to wreck it was made by mischievous boys.

Single Taxers Must Stay In Jail.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 18.—Judge Wales yesterday gave decision in the cases of the single tax speakers in Dover jail. He decided that the Dover justice of the peace had authority to try and to remand James Haggerty, the appellant, to jail for violating a town ordinance by speaking on the street. The decision applies to all the other single-tax prisoners in jail.

SOUND MONEY DEMOCRATS OF MASSACHUSETTS

ISSUE AN ADDRESS TO THE PUBLIC.

Leading and Influential Citizens Urge Adherence to Time-Honored Principles of the Party.

At the recent convention in Chicago a platform was adopted by a majority of the delegates declaring for the free coinage of silver at a ratio which would inevitably result in the substitution of the single silver standard of value for that now existing, for a partial repudiation by payment in depreciated silver of the obligations of the United States government, for an indefinite issue by the federal government of legal tender paper money, for the abolition of the individual right of private contract in financial matters, for the reconstruction of the federal judiciary in the interest of party politics, and for other doctrines totally at variance with the well recognized principles of the Democratic party as formally set forth in all previous party platforms.

After the adoption of this platform, about one-third of the entire number of delegates declined to vote for any presidential candidate.

The majority of the convention then proceeded to nominate for the presidency a man who had publicly foresworn all allegiance to the Democratic party unless it declared for the free coinage of silver, and who has since the Chicago convention been an active candidate for a nomination by the Populist party.

Under these circumstances, it becomes the duty of the Democracy of Massachusetts to decide whether it will support the platform and candidates of the Chicago convention, representing as they do political doctrines totally opposed to the historic and fundamental principles of the party, or will continue to stand for sound money, the independence of the judiciary and the liberty of the citizen, and in financial matters reaffirm the platform adopted at the Massachusetts state convention of April 21, 1896.

The State Platform.

The state platform referred to contained the following concerning the question of national finance:

"Believing that the true interests of the people require that the earnings of trade and the wages of labor be paid in money that is intrinsically worth in all the markets of the world what it purports to be worth, we demand the maintenance of the existing gold standard of value, and that the government shall deemable and payable in gold; and we oppose the free coinage of silver and any further purchase of silver bullion or the coinage thereof on government account.

"We reaffirm the demands of our recent State platforms that the government shall take the initial steps for the withdrawal from circulation of the legal tender notes issued in time of war under the pledge of prompt retirement.

"We demand that the necessity for an adequate medium of exchange in all sections of our country shall be met by provision for an elastic banking currency, subject to such government control as shall insure uniformity and redemption in standard coin on demand."

After earnest and careful consideration we believe it to be our duty, as loyal members of the Democratic party and as firm believers in Democratic principles of government, to oppose the Chicago platform, and to urge our fellow Democrats in Massachusetts to do what they can to secure the nomination by the approaching state convention of candidates for the electoral college who, if chosen thereto, will vote only for such candidates for president and vice president as believe in and will uphold the principles of honest money; private liberty, and orderly government for which Democracy has hitherto stood.

While we deplore as un-Democratic and dangerous the revolutionary doctrines of the Chicago platform respecting the right of private contract, the interference with the federal judiciary, and the repudiation of out national debt, we recognize that the most dangerous of them all, because the easiest to realize, is the demand for the free coinage of silver as a full legal tender at a ratio under which the parity of that metal with gold cannot be maintained.

What Free Coinage Means.

Free coinage at 16 to 1 means the substitution of silver now worth about 50 cents on the dollar for the money now in circulation.

This would tend to an advance of about 100 per cent in the prices of all commodities.

Such an advance would mean a loss of about one-half of the purchasing value of the annual income of all persons living on salaries, pensions and fixed incomes, and of the cash value of insurance policies, savings bank deposits, and all similar investments.

It would mean a loss of about 50 per cent in the purchasing power of wages if these continue to be paid on the basis of existing rates.

The only way for those dependant on day wages or annual salaries to equalize these conditions would be to secure by strikes and agitation an increase of 100 per cent.

If such an increase were to be secured, the wage-earner and the salaried employe would gain nothing over present conditions. Their money would buy no more than it does today.

Every one knows, however, that wages and salaries could not be doubled or increased in the same ratio as the prices of commodities; and, therefore, the wage-earner and salaried employe, two classes comprising nearly one-half of the people of this country, are sure to be irreparably injured by the free coinage of silver.

Nobody can make anything by a depreciated currency except the employer of labor, the employer of persons on a salary, the dishonest debtor, the financial speculator who can turn any condition to his profit, and the owners of silver mines.

Everybody else, and, above all others, the wage-earner, must lose.

Moreover, such a change in our standard of value would certainly be accompanied by financial panic, business disaster, and industrial depression, throwing hundreds of thousands out of employment. The experience of the coutry in 1893 was but an indication of what would happen.

Believing that a depreciated currency is one of the worst evils that political folly can bring about, believing also that the special mission of the Democratic party should be today, as in the past, to stand for honest money, for a strict construction and limitation of the powers of the federal government, and for the liberty of the individual, we are unalterably opposed to the un-Democratic doctrines of the Chicago platform.

Adhere to Principles.

We, therefore, urge the Democratic voters of Massachusetts to co-operate with us in a patriotic and determined effort to prevent any departure in our party action from these time-honored principles of popular government which have been the special property of the Democratic party from the days of Thomas Jefferson to the days of Grover Cleveland.

We urge them to send honest money delegates to the state convention, to the end that that body may make a stand for true Democratic doctrines; may support the state platform of April, 1896, rather than the Chicago platform of July; may nominate candidates for the electoral college who, if chosen thereto, will vote only for such men for president and vice president as believe in honest money and the principles laid down in the aforesaid state platform; and may select as candidates for state offices Democrats of like belief.

We appeal to our fellow-Democrats throughout the state to spare no personal effort to protect the party and the nation from the greatest danger that has confronted either for more than a generation.

We appeal to them to unite in a determined effort to save the Democracy from absorption in Populism, to protect the people from the incalculable evils of a depreciated currency, and to save the country fom repudiation and dishonor.

The address is signed by several hundred well-known and prominent Democrats throughout the State, including the following gentlemen from this city: Charles F. Adams, 2d, William Everett, William G. A. Pattee, William B. Rice.

Robbed many Jewelry.

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 18.—A girl not more than 19 years old, and remarkably good looking, was arrested here yesterday, charged with the looting of local jewelry stores. She was searched at the jail by the matron, and several thousand dollars' worth of unset diamonds, rings and other articles of jewelry were found on her. She gave her name as Daisy Miller, and said she lived in Scranton, Pa. It has been learned that she is the daughter of persons in high standing there. The police here refuse to divulge her correct name. Her parents are unaware of her arrest.

A Terrible Explosion.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 18.—The borough of New Holland was shaken yesterday as though by an earthquake. Men in the employ of the Pennsylvania Telephone company were starting out to work, and had placed 150 pounds of dynamite in a wagon which was standing in the yard of the Eagle hotel. The dynamite exploded, and three men were killed, three fatally injured, and nearly a score of others seriously hurt.

Dynamiter Set Free.

London, Aug. 18.—Thomas Devaney, one of the Irish dynamiters, who, in Edinburgh, 13 years ago, was sentenced to penal servitude for life, was released from Portland prison yesterday. Great precautions were taken to prevent his being recognized, as it was thought the Irish and Irish sympathizers might attempt to make a demonstration. Immediately after his release Devaney took a train for Glasgow.

Landed Safely In Cuba.

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—The Cuban revolutionary party reports that an expedition consisting of 75 men, together with a large quantity of war munitions, was landed in Cuba last Thursday. The expedition originally set from this country and went to a South American port, from whence the landing was made. Several Americans, including many Philadelphians are said to have been in the party.

Killed With a Club.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 18.—Elmer Ferguson, a super at the production of "The Fall of Pompeii," was struck last night by a club in the hands of Charles Saunders, a scene shifter, and died in a short time after. Ferguson was fighting with Oscar Cook, and Saunders went to Cook's assistance. Cook was arrested, but Saunders escaped.

Painters' Strike a Failure.

New York, Aug. 18.—The threatened big strike of painters yesterday was a failure. Less than 200 men went out at the command of the delegates, who, after visiting a few shops, ceased their efforts, and decided to await a fuller discussion of the strike question by the union.

Four Boys Killed.

Winchester, Ky., Aug. 18.—At Allensville, 10 miles south of here, a boiler in the harvest field of Dr. Sid Allen exploded yesterday, killing four boys. The boys were working near the engine, and all were instantly killed. Parts of the boiler horribly mangled their bodies.

Charged With Stealing $42,000.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Salo W. Roth, formerly a member of the city council, was arrested last night on a charge of embezzlement to the amount of $42,000. The charge is preferred by the officers of the National Building and Loan association, of which Roth was at one time secretary.

Every day engagements are entered into, and marriages are made between people who have no business to be married. Women enter into the most serious obligation of life without the proper physical equipment for it. When a woman marries, she tacitly makes the declaration that she means to become the mother of children. This declaration ought also to mean that she is physically able to perform what she undertakes. The bearing of a child is all too frequently an injustice to both mother and child. The woman who expects to bear intellectual and physically healthy children, should be herself in strong and vigorous health. The organs that make her a woman should be free from any taint of disease or weakness. If they are not, the child will have a bare chance for health, and the mother may easily make herself a weak, nervous, semi-invalid for the rest of her life. Female weakness of any kind—whether hereditary or acquired—may be cured by the right sort of treatment. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is designed for the treatment and cure of just this one class of diseases and no other. It works in a perfectly rational way directly on the organs affected. It cleanses them of all impurities; allays any inflammation that may be present—and that generally is present in sickness; restores the organs to their natural, healthy, regular action—prepares them for the accomplishment of woman's greatest work, and if taken during gestation, the time of parturition will be comparatively safe and painless.

The "Favorite Prescription" is not a cure-all, and if the general system is run-down, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery should be taken in connection with the "Favorite Prescription." These two medicines together have the most wonderful influence on a woman's health. They will round out the hollows in her cheeks, bring redness to bloodless lips, and brightness to lack-lustre eyes. At all drug stores.

FORGED NOTES AFLOAT.

Charles E. Copp Evidently "Worked" Every One That He Could.

Exeter Bank Loses Some Hundreds In Consequence.

Ill Efforts to Trace Copp Have Thus Far Proved Unavailing.

Amesbury, Mass., Aug. 19.—More evidence has been found that will convict Charles E. Copp, the Epping (N. H.) forger, who suddenly skipped from that place, taking with him several hundred dollars of other people's money. Shortly after Copp's sudden departure, William R. Bunker was notified by an Exeter bank that a note for $600 was coming due at that institution, and the bank wanted him to take care of it. Mr. Bunker was mystified, as he had made no notes which came due on that date. He called at the bank, and when the note was shown him found it was endorsed with his name, but the writing he pronounced a forgery. The writing was recognized as that of Copp, and the bank, of course, was the loser.

Mr. Bunker soon received another notice, this time that a $200 note was due, and upon seeing this one he pronounced it also a forgery. About the same time a prominent Manchester business man was notified that a note at the bank for several hundred dollars was there, endorsed by him, and he was requested to pay it. This was also found to be a forgery, and that the forger was Copp.

Last Thursday Mr. Bunker was again notified by a New Hampshire bank that a note for $300, endorsed by him, was due, and the bank wanted to know what he would do about it. As in the previous cases, he pronounced the note a forgery, and declared he had endorsed none of Copp's paper.

Many of the townspeople who knew and trusted Copp are out many dollars, for before he left he called on nearly every business man in the place, and borrowed all the way from $5 to $10, and if he could not get this, he would take whatever they were pleased to yield up.

Copp's wife has been running his business for him, with the assistance of a hired man. Last Saturday the Exeter bank, which had attached his property some weeks ago, put his business up at auction, and sold everthing he possessed in Epping. This was done by the bank people to redeem themselves for their loss in discounting the forged notes. Copp's wife has left town.

Every effort is being made to trace Copp, but thus far without success.

Timbers Were Weak.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Ten workmen were injured, and one of them fatally, yesterday, in the collapse of a large frame freight building in process of construction in the freightyard of the New York and New England railroad at South Boston. A large number of workmen were in, and about the building, when, at 4:30, a heavy wind storm swept over the city. The building fell with a deafening crash. Those who escaped rushed to extricate their unfortunate companions. It was an hour's work before the men were taken out of the ruins. A number received only bruises, but the 10 most seriously injured were sent to the hospital, where Rudolph McKennon afterward died from the effects of internal injuries. The work was being done by a contractor, and it is said that the lower timbers were insufficient to uphold the heavy ones above.

Death Message Was Genuine.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 19.—The handwriting on the note found in the bottle on the Georges Bank, by the schooner Mariner, purporting to have been thrown from the schooner Falcon, was yesterday comparde with that of Captain Nelson and the members of the crew. The writing on the note was so nearly like that of Captain Nelson as to leave no doubt of his genuineness, and the fate of the Falcon, as told by the note and the bottle, is now accepted as a fact by those interested.

Big Whaleback at Boston.

Boston, Aug. 19.—The turtle-back steamer Selma, Captain Donovan, came into port yesterday from Samarang, Java, with 5000 tons of sugar, consigned to a local sugar firm. The Selma has just completed her maiden voyage around the world. She carries a crew of 27 men, and in freight carries double her net tonnage. She registers 2233 tons net, and has a speed of nine knots an hour. She is the largest of her type afloat.

A Scientific Wonder.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 19.—Percival Lowell announces from Flagstaff, Ari., that with his new 24-inch telescope he has been able to see that the Martian canal (Ganges) is double. The Lowell observatory will be established near the City of Mexico for the opposition of Mars this winter, but in the meantime, for a number of reasons, it has been temporarily located at Flagstaff, where it was during the opposition last year.

A Swell Affair.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—The famous ball of J. J. Van Alen, given at "Wakenhurst," in honor of the coming out of his daughter, Miss Mary Van Alen, occurred last night, and the entire social world of Newport was present, as well as a large number of guests from New York, Boston and Providence. The interior of the ballroom was especially imported from Paris by Mr. Van Alen. The expense of the ball exceeded $10,000.

Ida Leroux Seriously Injured.

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—Ida Leroux was injured in the balloon ascension yesterday afternoon. She was in the balloon with her husband and a friend, with a double parachute, and on the back stretch cut away from her husband, and fell against the fence. Her back was sprained, and she was internally injured.

Song Will Long Survive.

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—Professor C. Nicholas Crouch, the author of "Kathleen Mavourneen," died in this city after a long illness, last evening. His age was 88 years 18 days.

Heavy Hail In Vermont.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 19.—A severe hailstorm, accompanied by sharp lightning and torrents of rain, swept over the city yesterday. The hailstones were as large as grapes, and the vineyards and crops were badly damaged. During the storm the temperature fell 25 degrees.

New England Briefs.

Two men were buried in a cave-in in Roxbury district, Boston, and dug out just in time to save their lives.

Dave Sullivan knocked out Allie Alberts in a finish contest, near Boston. The fight lasted 11 rounds.

A relief station in the business section of the city is recommended by the trustees of the Boston city hospital.

Several towns in Massachusetts are to have steam-rollers, furnished by the Massachusetts highway commission.

Lawyer Pattee says that the value of the estate of John Stetson, Jr., is likely to be higher than has been expected.

Irishmen Won't Agree.

Dublin, Aug. 19.—Preliminary meetings, being held in this city prior to the general convention of Irishmen, indicate no cessation in the bitterness existing between the various factions. At a meeting of the followers of T. M. Healy, Mr. Murphy, a former member of parliament declared that the alleged convention, called by Dillon, is a fraud. T. M. Healy also made a bitter attack upon John Dillon, saying: "The Irish party will never succeed with John Dillon at its head. The convention will utterly fail to effect a union of the Irish race." The scenes on the streets are exciting, many of the leaders narrowly escaping personal injury. At the opposing meetings the speakers are constantly interrupted by groanings, hissings and hootings.

Britannia Did Not Make Way.

London, Aug. 19.—Captain Gomes, skipper of the Meteor, ascribes the collision of the Meteor with the Isolde during the Royal Albert Yacht club regatta at Southsea yesterday, to the fact that the Britannia did not make way for the Meteor to pass the Isolde. Baron von Zedlitz, owner of the Isolde, who was struck on the head by a block, or piece of broken spar, died soon after being conveyed to a clubhouse. He was well liked in all of the English sporting centers. His wife, the Baroness von Zedlitz, was a daughter of the late Charles Roosevelt of New York.

Wild West Legislation.

Salina, Kan., Aug. 19.—After wrangling till 2 o'clock yesterday morning over an ordinance to license "joints," which Mayor Hayward had vetoed and prevented from being brought up again for reconsideration, the six aldermen formed a "rump" council by allowing Councilman Miller to assume the powers of mayor. Miller then took things in his own hands against the protests of Mayor Hayward, and the measure was passed by a vote of 6 to 2.

Definition of Race Meet.

Omaha, Aug. 19.—Chairman Caldwell of the Western Passenger association has ruled that the term "race meet" applies to bicycles as well as to horse races. The ruling was brought about by the Burlington, which made the regular "race meet" fare a fare and one-third for the round trip to the state bicycle meeting in this city. Chairman Caldwell overruled the rate at first, but after studying the question reversed his decision.

Drugged to Death.

Omaha, Aug. 19.—A special to The Bee says that the murder of Hon. W. F. Eister of Pennsylvania, which occurred at Lincoln last week, has been solved. A joint confession was made to the county attorney by Laura and Della Clark, who kept the resort near which the dead man was killed. In substance it recites that the drugging of Eister was done by Cliff Hagey in the Clark house. The object was robbery.

STICKING TO WATSON.

Populists' Declaration Regarding the Vice Presidential Nominee.

Bryan Never Received Money From Mine Owners.

Challenges Republican National Committee to Make Official Charges.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The Populist national committee was in session all yesterday afternoon. Chairman Jones of the national Democratic committee and Chairman Faulkner of the congressional committee conferred about the general work of the campaign. The straightening out of the complications resulting from the nomination of Watson and the rejection of Sewall (a power which was conferred by resolution on the national committee) formed the subject of much of the discussion at the afternoon session.

"What action did the committee take with regard to the withdrawal of Bryan or Watson from the Populist ticket," was asked of Senator Butler, the chairman of the committee, at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

"The People's party ticket as named at St. Louis," replied Senator Butler, "is Bryan and Watson, and that will be the People's party ticket until the polls close in November. Mr. Bryan is as much our candidate as Mr. Watson, and as far as this committee has power it will strive just as hard to elect one as the other, and will leave nothing in its power undone to help either or both, but it will not help one candidate at the expense of the other."

Chairman Jones had another interview with Senator Butler, but both declined to state its import. At Democratic headquarters, however, the announcement was received as the natural expression of the chairman of the Populist party. They point out that fusion has already taken place in the western states, but this will not prevent them from directing all their efforts toward fusion in the south. It is explained, in view of Senator Butler's statement, that if both vice presidential candidates remain in the field, when it comes to the electoral college, if Bryan has a majority, he will be elected, and then if neither vice presidential candidate has a majority the election will go to the senate, which must choose between the two having the highest number of votes.

The committee held another long meeting last night, at which it was decided to locate the Populist headquarters in this city. Senator Butler and Secretary Edgerton will be in charge. Chairman Jones was present with the committee for another consultation. Chairman Butler declined to make public the purport of the conference, but said it was "Very satisfactory." The committee shortly before midnight adjourned. Perhaps the most important statement Chairman Butler made was in connection with the question of notifying the candidates. He is chairman of the notification committee. He said he had not called a meeting of the committee.

"It has not been the practice of the People's party," he said, "to notify the candidates. Neither Weaver nor Field were notified in 1892." This is taken to mean that it has not been decided to formally notify Bryan or Watson.

AN EXPLICIT DENIAL.

Bryan Is Not, or Has Not Been, In Employ of Silver Producers.

Upper Red Hook, N. Y., Aug. 19.—On his return from a fishing trip last night, Mr. Bryan gave out a prepared answer to the allegations made by Senator Thurston that Mr. Bryan was in the pay of mine owners. Mr. Bryan's statement follows:

"I have already denied this charge on several occasions, but the reiteration of it by Senator Thurston justifies me in answering it again. I have never at any time, or under any circumstances, been in the employ of any mine owners, individually or collectively, directly or indirectly, nor have I ever been in the employ or paid by any metallic league association. Aside from editorial salary, of about $150 per month, paid by the Omaha World-Herald, and a small amount derived from the legal profession, my income since my retirement from congress has been derived entirely from lectures before Chautauqua lyceums and lecture bureaus, which have usually paid me a fixed sum, and from contributions made by the people of the localities where I have spoken. In some instances I have received nothing at all. In most cases I have received more than enough to pay traveling expenses. In only two instances, I think, has my compensation exceeded $100, and in these instances it was about $200 at one place and about $300 at the other.

"The first platform on which I ran for congress, in 1890, before I was known politically outside of my state, contained a free coinage plank, and my Republican opponent that year was an advocate of free coinage. In the campaign of 1892 I again ran on a free coinage platform. In 1894 I again ran on a free coinage platform, and my opponent for the senate, Mr. Thurston, while opposing unlimited coinage at 16 to 1, insisted that he favored bimetallism. I wrote the free coinage plank on which I ran in 1890, and the free coinage planks in the Nebraska state platforms in 1891, 1892 and 1896, and tried to secure the adoption of free coinage planks in the state platform in 1892 and 1893. I only mention this to show that my advocacy of free silver is not of recent date. Having made this answer to Mr. Thurston's letter, I shall hereafter take no notice of individual or newspaper comment on this subject. If the Republican national committee will say officially that I have ever been employed to deliver speeches by any mine owner, a group of mine owners, or by any association supported by mine owners, I am ready to make a statement showing in detail all money received by me for speechmaking."

BUY ·TEA· Of Boston Branch Grocery.

WHY?

For several reasons, all good, practical ones.

1st. Our experience for twenty-five years in selecting and handling TEAS of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, enables us to select goods with merit and reject the spurious so common in the market, and which the inexperienced dealer cannot distinguish.

2d. Our TEAS are bought direct from the importer, and the profits that usually go to the Broker, the Wholesaler, and the Jobber, three or four in all, WE give to our trade direct.

3d. The large quantity of TEA which we sell enables us to be often in the market as buyer, and any advantage to be had by any cash buyers we get.

4th. Because we can refer you to hundreds of families in Quincy and vicinity who have used TEA purchased from our establishment with satisfaction.

5th. Because we never sold more than at present time and never with better results.

6th. We never give prizes, preferring to give the value in the goods.

There are more reasons but above will show that we mean business.

We will gladly give a generous sample for trial to any lady calling at our store or by sending a note by messenger with name and street number of lady sending same, otherwise no samples will be given to children.

Collision in Hull Gut.

The steamer Mayflower and the catboat Guttysark of Dorchester collided in Hull Gut yesterday afternoon.

The occupants of the catboat, who gave their names as Thomas L. Archibald and M. M. Torrence of Dorchester, the latter claiming to be rear commodore of the Old Colony yacht fleet, narrowly escaped being drawn under the steamer's wheel. Doubtless they would have been but for the presence of mind of Capt. George Brown of the Mayflower, who quickly brought his boat to a standstill, the strong flood tide which was tearing through the gut swinging her round and almost beaching her on Windmill point.

Meanwhile the Guttysark struck the steamer on her starboard side just forward of the paddle box, her occupants quickly climbing up the mast to a place of safety on the steamer's deck. The damage to the yacht was slight.

McKinley Club.

From the present indications the mass meeting of the Republicans of Quincy at Hancock hall, Sept. 2, to form a McKinley club, will be a rouser; and enthusiasm will not be lacking. Some of the best campaign speakers in the state will be present to address the meeting; among whom is Curtis Guild, Jr.

—Col. Walker of the Ancient and Honorables as a toast-giver was happily inspired when he alluded to Her Majesty the Queen of England as one "whose queenliness as a woman and whose womanliness as a queen had for threescore years clothed the crown with dignity and honor and won the admiration of the whole world."—Boston Home Journal.

OPPOSITION TO ATWOOD.

Meeting Held in Boston Tuesday Endorses Samuel J. Barrows.

A meeting was held at Young's hotel, Boston, on Tuesday, to protest against the nomination of Congressman Harrison A. Atwood of the tenth district. Among those present from Quincy were Theophilus King, Geo. H. Field, Charles H. Porter, Henry O. Fairbanks and Henry H. Faxon.

The meeting was called in response to the following circular signed by Republicans throughout the district. The Quincy names signed being Theophilus King and Henry H. Faxon.

"Dear Sir—As a Republican voter of the 10th congressional district (now represented by Hon. Harrison H. Atwood) you are invited, and urgently requested to attend a meeting of representative Republicans of the district, to be held in room 12 of Young's Hotel on Tuesday, the 18th inst., at 2.30 o'clock, to decide upon the proper person to support for the nomination to Congress.

The recent changes in the boundaries of the 10th district made it possible for the Republicans, if a good nomination is made, to carry the district for the party and for gold.

We ask you to join with us in an effort to insure the nomination of a man who can carry the district and will represent it creditably."

The name of Rev. Samuel J. Barrows was presented to the meeting and after some discussion the following motion was adopted.

"That it is the sense of this meeting that delegates be elected at the caucuses to be held in September favorable to the nomination of Samuel J. Barrows, as first choice for congressman from the 10th district."

A committee was appointed to select from each ward in the towns in the district one or two persons to act with them as a campaign, finance and rallying committee, such committee when selected to be called together and organize. The Quincy member appointed on this committee was Hon. Charles H. Porter.

St. John's Lawn Party.

The lawn party held under the auspices of St. John's church yesterday was very successful, despite the effect which the unpropitious weather of the afternoon had A large number of children were in attendance and amused themselves by the various means offered.

In the evening the adult portion of the parish turned out en masse and at one time during the evening it was impossible to move about. Numerous electric lights lighted the grounds, and with the Chinese lanterns over the gayly-dressed booths made a pretty appearance.

The concert in the large tent was much enjoyed, as was also Prof. Doyle's Punch and Judy show.

Refreshments, ice cream and tonics were on sale in the booths, which were presided over by the following ladies:

Tonic,—Julia Duffy, Mary O'Brien, Johanna Shea.

Cigars,—Katie Roche, Annie B. Kelly.

Refreshments,—Lucy Donovan, Margaret Desmond, Bridget Shea, Jennie Griffin, Katie Donovan, Nellie Galvin, Julia Ford, Maggie Foy, Lucy Fihely.

Fancy,—Ellen M. Greaney, Mary Garrity, Agnes Dean, Maggie Dean, Frances Sullivan, Ellenore Roche, Catherine Garrity, Mary Dunn.

Ice cream,—Margaret Meaney, Maggie O'Hara, Nora Ford.

Candy, — Catherine O'Brien, Nellie O'Brien, Emma Healey.

The sports in the afternoon resulted as follows:

Eighty yard dash, won by S. Talbot; Mullane and Logan tied for second place.

Broad jump, won by Walsh, 19 feet, 6 inches; Hartrey second.

Running hop, step and jump, won by Walsh 39 feet, 4 inches; Donovan second.

Three standing jumps, won by Hartrey, 34 feet, 5 inches; Walsh second.

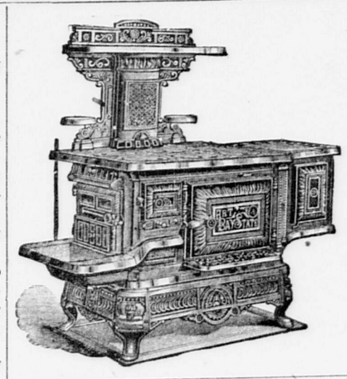

High jump, won by Hartrey, 5 feet, 3 inches; Walsh second.

Putting the shot, won by McGrath, 32 feet; Hartrey second.

What His Partner Says.

The highest tribute that has yet been paid to Mr. Bryan is from the pen of his law partner, A. R. Talbot, a stalwart Republican state senator from Nebraska. After telling of his intimacy with the "boy orator," and their early struggles on commencing the practice of law, he says:

"Bryan is an upright, conscientious, Christian man. I have never known a finer character. I am positive that he went into politics with no selfish motives. He is thoroughly convinced that the country is beset with conditions that call for the highest patriotism, the noblest endeavor; and he regards it his duty to help right what he says are the wrongs of the people. I could give you many instances of his disinterestedness.

"Two years ago a gentleman from New York sat in Bryan's private office there trying to get him to make a contract to deliver fifty lectures at $100 a lecture. Bryan was poor then, as he is poor now, and I urged him to accept the offer. But he would hardly listen to the man. He said he would not speak for money. He said he was not in politics for himself, but for the people, and he did not expect to make anything for himself. He said he would not take anything but his expenses.

"'Why,' he remarked, 'it is necessary that those who can should give their lives to the work of emancipating the people. Somebody has got to do this, and I have made up my mind to enter into it heart and soul, but not for my own benefit.' He didn't sign the contract."—Fort Payne Journal.

Once upon a time a man just back from a day's sport with rod and line was regaling a few cronies with an account of his success.

WOMEN'S CONVENTION.

At Onset Bay on Friday and Saturday August 21 and 22.

The platform to be wholly under the management of the ladies. The following well known talent will deliver lectures on the leading reforms of the day, Mrs. Abby Morton Daiz, of Belmont, on "Life or what it is to live," Rev. May T. Whitney, of Boston, on "Family Culture," Mrs. Ellen A. Richardson, of Winthrop, on "The relation of her duties to civic responsibilities." The subjects of the following ladies have yet to be decided upon, Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Adeline M. Gladding, of Doylestown, Pa., Mrs. C. Fannie Allyn, of Stone, Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, of E. Braintree, and others yet to be heard from.

The public are cordially invited to attend and will find these lectures to be useful, instructive and entertaining, no matter what the hearer's religious views may be.

On Friday, a morning, afternoon and evening session will be held. On Saturday, a morning, and afternoon session with a dance in the Temple in the evening, to be managed by the ladies, and the ladies to select their partners. All these lectures to be free to all comers. AN ANSWER TO BRYAN

Delivered by Cockran In Behalf of Gold Standard Democrats.

Relation of Labor to the Money Question.

Argues That Wage Earners Cannot Afford to Vote For Free Coinage.

New York, Aug. 19.—When Hon. Bourke Cockran walked down to the front of the speaker's stand at the mass meeting held under the auspices of the Honest Money Democratic league in Madison Square Garden last evening, prepared to deliver an address in answer to William J. Bryan's essay of the week before, he beheld a most remarkable political demonstration.

It was an audience that filled the whole garden from the foot of the speaker's stand to the upper galleries, an audience that numbered no fewer than 15,000 souls, rose as one man, all holding American flags, which they waved above their heads as they shouted their greetings.

For minutes the cheering lasted, and then the band began to play, and from cheering that mighty throng turned to sing "The Star Spangled Banner." Nothing that was ever done to arouse a patriotic feeling in a public gathering could create a deeper or more lasting impression than that shimmering rainbow spray of flags above the faces of that vast throng.

Nor did ever a private American citizen—a man who was not a candidate for a great office—draw so many people to hear him speak as gathered to listen to Bourke Cockran's arraignment of the policy as presented by Mr. Bryan. Compared with the audience that heard Mr. Bryan, the throng last night was significant.

The garden was full, and instead of hastening away while the speaker was but beginning his speech, they steadily increased in numbers for at least a half an hour after Mr. Cockran had uttered his first words. Moreover, the closest attention was paid to everthing the speaker said from beginning to end. Mr. Cockran's address follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow Democrats All: With the inspiring strains of the national song ringing in our ears, who can doubt the issue of this campaign. Stripped of all verbal disguise, it is an issue of common honesty, an issue between the honest discharge and the dishonest repudiation of public and private obligations. It is a question as to whether the powers of this government shall be used to protect honest industry, or to tempt the citizen to dishonesty. On this question honest men cannot differ. It is one of morals and of justice. It involves the existence of social order. It is the contest for civilization itself. A Democratic convention may renounce the Democratic faith, but the Democracy remains faithful to Democratic principles. Democratic leaders may betray a convention to the Populists, but they cannot seduce the footsteps of Democratic voters from the pathway of honor and of justice. A court bearing the mandate of a Democratic convention may in this hall open a canvass leveled against the foundations of social order, and he beholds the Democratic masses confronting him, organized for the defense. Fellow Democrats, let us not disguise from ourselves the fact that we bear in this contest a serious and grave and solemn burden of duty. We must raise our hands against the nominee of our party, and we must do it to preserve the future of that party itself. We must oppose the nominee of the Chicago convention, and we know full well that the success of our opposition will mean our own exclusion from public life, but we will be consoled and gratified by the reflection that it will prove that the American people cannot be divided into parties on a question of simple morals or of common honesty.

The True Issue.

We would look in vain through the speech, delivered here one week ago, to find a true statement of the issue involved in this canvass. Indeed, I believe it is doubtful if the candidate himself quite understands the nature of the faith which he professes. I say this not in criticism of his ability, but in justice to his morality. I believe that if he himself understood the inevitable consequences of the doctrines which he preaches, that his own hands would be the very first to tear down the platform on which he stands. We all must remember that lurid rhetoric, which glowed as fiercely in the western skies as that sunlight which through the past week foretold the torrid heat of the ensuing day, and here upon this plaform we find that same rhetoric as mild, as insipid as the waters of a stagnant pool. He is a candidate who was swept into the nomination by a wave of popular enthusiasm, awakened by appeals to prejudice and greed. He is a candidate, who, declaring that this was a revolutionary movement, no sooner found himself face to face with the American feeling than he realized that this soil is not propitious to revolution, that the people of this country will not change the institutions which have stood the tests and experience of a century for the institutions based upon the fastastic dreams of Populist agitators—that the American nation will never consent to substitute for the republic of Washington, of Jefferson and of Jackson, the republic of an Altgeld, Tillman or a Bryan.

Whatever change may have come over his manner as a candidate, however much the vehemence of his eloquence may have been reduced, two things for which he stands remain unaltered. On this platform he defended the most revolutionary planks of the Chicago convention, in language more vehement, but not less earnest, than that in which he supported their adoption. On this platform he defended the Populistic program for overthrowing the integrity of the supreme court. If there be any fruit which has grown for the benefit of all mankind out of the establishment of our republic, it has been the demonstration that it is possible by the organization of an independent tribunal to safeguard the rights of every citizen, and protect those natural privileges against any invasion, from whatever source, or however powerful might be the antagonizing elements.

The very existence of that power presupposes the existence of an independent tribunal, yet we have this Populist convention, because a Populist measure was condemned as unconstitutional, proposing, not to amend the constitution in the ordinary way prescribed by that instrument itself, but proposing to pack the court so that it will pronounce those laws to be constitutional which the constitution itself condemns; a proposal to make the courts of law instruments of lawlessness; to violate that sacred compact between the states, on which the security of this nation rests; to profane the temple erected for its protection by the hands of false priests, who, though sworn to defend it, will be appointed to destroy it.

AMERICAN SILVER.

Canadians Will Not Have Any of It.

All the banks have, since the Bank of Montreal took the initiative, joined what is now evidently a combination, and not a dollar's worth of United States silver could be passed through a Canadian bank today were it worth its weight in gold.

The action of the banks and large corporations has caused a mild panic among those who have the silver, for since the the edict has gone out, not a tradesman of any description will look at the coin, and even the saloon keepers, who two weeks ago were glad to get them, now refuse them.

At one or two of the better class hotels, where Americans stay, the order is not so binding, but, with this exception, the city has shut out the coin most effectively.

To sum the matter up, in Montreal the bankers have as much Canadian silver as they can handle, to say nothing of the American, and it was to their interest to keep the latter from the country. They have succeeded to a degree that was never thought to have been possible.

A stomachful of undigested food is about as unhealthy a mass as one can well imagine.

What can be done with it?

There it stays. It won't digest. It churns up, ferments and decays; becomes poisonous (as all putrid matter does) and causes great pain and deep-seated disorders.

In order to change all this, take Shaker Digestive Cordial.

It stops fermentation and decay at once, so that no more poisons are created.

It clears the stomach of poisons already there. It helps it to turn the food that remains, into healthful nourishment. It strengthens the stomach for the next meal.

Here is the whole philosophy and cure of indigestion in a few words. And what's more it's all true. Try it.

Shaker Digestive Cordial is for sale by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 a bottle.

The Mexican Dollar Trick.

Every day or two the news columns of the papers contain an item to the effect that some smart Alecs or some business firms desiring, probably, to get a free advertisement for themselves have been giving their employes an "object lesson" in the currency question by paying them off in Mexican dollars. The intrinsic value of that coin is at present about 55 cents, and inasmuch as it isn't a legal tender in this country, it passes here only for its bullion value. Does it occur, we wonder, to these people, that they are also giving their workmen an object lesson to upset the arguments of the gold standard advocates every time they pay their help in standard silver dollars and paper treasury notes?

The former is intrinsically worth a few cents less than the Mexican coin and the treasury note has of course a merely nominal value as a bit of paper. Yet both are received for 100 cents. The mint stamp on the one and the simple promise to pay of the government on the other, and the law which decrees that they shall be recognized as legal tender in the payment of debts gives them the same value as gold. We hear a great deal nowadays about the folly of flooding the country with flat money and of the terrible evils which would follow from its introduction into our financial system. And yet, hundreds of millions of the currency now in use is flat money, pure and simple.—Fall River Daily Globe.

PRUDENCE ADVISED.

Canovas Denies Statements Concerning Proposed Notes to Powers.

Madrid, Aug. 18.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday, Senor Canovas, president of the council, denied the statement that the Duke of Tetuan had read to United States Minister Taylor a proposed circular to the powers anent the condition of affairs in Cuba, and the relations of Spain with the American republics in general, and the United States in particular. Senor Canovas announced that no document of the nature outlined had been dispatched to any government. He added that the cabinet had made detailed note relative to the Cuba situation, and that at an opportune moment a memorandum would be submitted to the powers, in order to enable them to judge of the true condition of affairs in Cuba.

Continuing, Senor Canovas said that the Spanish people had no cause to complain of the policy of President Cleveland, but Senators Sherman and Morgan were to be blamed for their speeches in the United States senate. He concluded by advising a policy of prudence at the present time, since an explosion of feeling would be disastrous.

Senor Melle, one of the Carlist deputies, made a brief speech censuring the Spanish government for its failure to prevent filibustering expeditions from America landing in Cuba. To this Senor Canovas replied, adding that Spain should not rely upon any alliance, but rather upon her own resources, to retain Cuba.

Queer Article Held For Debt.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 18.—The corpse of a woman, who had been dead for so long a time that the body had become petrified, was seized for debt on an attachment here yesterday. The body was part of the assets of C. A. Bell, a showman, who had been exhibiting on the board walk at Atlantic City. It was seized in satisfaction of a debt of $25 to the Atlantic City Electric Light company. The mummy was followed to Camden and found by the constable in a freight car. He fixed the official paper on the casket and then placed a guard in charge to see that no one disturbed the body. If no one calls to claim the body it will be put up at public sale and sold to any person wanting a petrified woman.

JOYS OF MATERNITY.

Vigorous Mothers and Sturdy Children Are Always Admired.

Why so Many Women Are Childless—A Problem That Has Puzzled Physicians for Centuries.

Reproduction is a law of nature, and no picture of joy and happiness can equal that of the vigorous mother and her sturdy child.

Nature makes but few mistakes, and every thoughtful person must admit that a cause exists, why so many women are childless.

The subject baffles the theories of physicians. Such cases are curable nine times out of ten, as evidenced by thousands of letters on file at Mrs. Pinkham's office. Many a darling baby owes its existence to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and the Vegetable Compound. This is not to be wondered at when such testimony as the following explains itself:

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this.

"I have spent $200.00 for doctor's bills without obtaining any relief. For my cure I only spent $5.00.

"I had been a victim of female troubles in their worst form; suffered untold agories every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain.

"My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, backache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhœa. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?"—Mrs. GEO. C. KIRCHNER, 512 Belmont Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Honorable J. F. Greer, one of the best known and most highly respected county Judges of the State of Florida, writes of his horrible sufferings from Inflammatory Rheumatism:

OFFICE OF J. F. GREER, COUNTY JUDGE, Green Cove Springs, Clay Co., Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Twenty-three years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I was attended by the most eminent physician in the land. I visited the great Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the noted Hot Springs of Arkansas, and many other watering places, always consulting with the local physicians for directions, and finally came to Florida, ten years ago. About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism, was confined to my room for twelve weeks, and during that time was induced to try P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, knowing that each ingredient was good for impurities of the blood. After using two small bottles I was relieved. At four different times since I have had slight attacks and each time I have taken two small bottles of P. P. P., and have been relieved, and I consider P. P. P. the best medicine of its kind.

Respectfully, J. F. GREER.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio, says he bought a bottle of P. P. P. at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and it did him more good than three months' treatment at Hot Springs.

Rheumatism, as well as sciatica and gout, is cured by a course of P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is a friend indeed to weak women. It is a positive and speedy cure for general weakness and nervousness.

All skin diseases are cured by it; anything from pimples to the worst cases of eczemas succumbing to the wonderful healing powers of P. P. P.

Dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst form are cured by it. As a tonic to restore the appetite and to regain lost vigor, it is simply marvelous.

P. P. P. is the best spring medicine in the world. It removes that heavy, out-of-sorts feeling and restores you to a condition of perfect physical health.

For Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Failure, Fever, Chills, Debility and Kidney Diseases, take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful medicine in the world

AN ANSWER TO BRYAN.

In the time to which I must confine myself tonight, I can do nothing but examine that one question, which Mr. Bryan himself declares to be the overshadowing issue of this campaign. I am a little puzzled when I read this speech to decide just what Mr. Bryan himself imagines will be the fruit of a change in the standard of value throughout this country. If Mr. Bryan could show me that by means known to heaven or earth wages could be increased, I will be ready to support him, because I know of no test of prosperity absolutely infallible except the rate of wages paid to laborers. When we come to find how Mr. Bryan expects to increase the wages of labor, we find ourselves lost in a maze of contradiction. No man can tell how or where or when the wages of the workingmen are to be increased; but anyone who examines the scheme can see that the inevitable tendency, the inevitable consequence of a debasement in the standard of value must be a reduction in the rate of wages—and that is the conspiracy in which the Populists is engaged.

Now Mr. Bryan tells us that he wants to cheapen the dollar; that he wants to increase the volume of money. I do not believe that any man who ever lived could quite understand a Populist's notion of what money is, further than that he believes it is a desirable thing to get, and that he is not very particular about the means in which he can get his hands on it.

Money and Property Not Identical.

Nothing is more common than the mistake that money and property are identical. They are not. There may be a very large volume of circulating medium, and very great poverty. The issue of paper money simply is no more an increase of wealth than the issue by an individual of his promissory note would show an increase of his property. As a matter of fact, an increase in the coinage is no proof of an increase in property, but may be a strong proof of a decrease in wealth. It is not the volume of money, but the activity of money that counts.

The basis of sound trade is sound money; money which is intrinsically valuable—money, which like the gold coinage of this country the government cannot affect, if it tried to. I can take a $10 gold piece, and I can defy all the power of all the governments of this earth to take 5 cents of value from it. Having earned it by the sweat of my brow, having earned it by the exercise of my brain, having earned it by the exchange of my commodities, I can go to the uttermost ends of the earth, and wherever I present it its value will be unquestioned and unchallenged. That gold dollar, this meeting, the Democratic party, the honest masses of this country, without distinction of party divisions, demand shall be paid to the laborer when he earns it, and that no power on earth shall cheat him of the sweat of his brow.

It is perfectly clear that the purpose of the Populist is to put up the prices of coin commodities. Mr. Bryan's language is that he is going to improve the conditions of the people of this country.

Now if he got possession of the government tomorrow, he could not create one single thing of value by exercise of any governmental power in the world. It requires the labor of man, and the labor man alone, to create wealth. If Mr. Eryan is going to enrich somebody, the thing which he means to bestow on him he must take from somebody else. Who is to be despoiled, and who is to be enriched by the exercise of this new scheme of government?

A government never can be generous, because if it be generous to one it must be oppressive to another. But this financial scheme contemplates an increase in the price of certain commodities. We are coming now pretty close to the woodpile behind which the African is concealed. Now if everything in this world, or in this country, including labor, be increased in value tomorrow in like proportion, not one of us would be affected at all. If everything be increased 10 per cent in value, we would pay 10 per cent in addition for what we would buy, and get 10 per cent more for what we would sell, and we would be in exactly the same place we occupied before. Therefore, it is fair to assume that is not the lame and impotent conclusion which this Populist revolution contemplates. What, then, is it? It is an increase in the price of commodities, and allowing labor to shift for itself. If the price of commodities be increased, and the price of labor be left stationary, why that means the cutting down of the rate of wages. If, instead of a dollar, which consists of a given quantity of gold equal to 100 cents anywhere in the world, with the purchasing power of 100 cents, the laborer is to be paid in dollars worth 50 cents each, why he can only buy half as much with a day's wages as he buys now.

About Creditors.

Mr. Bryan leads the van in saying that it is the creditors he is after. Now the Populist loves to say that the creditor is a person who oppresses the western farmer; the creditors of this country are not the bankers; they are not the so-called capitalists; they are the laborers, and it is at the expense of labor that this charge is made. The laborer is always a creditor for at least one day's work. When any man can show me a laborer who has been paid in advance for a day's work, I will show him a laborer who is a debtor. The laborer, by the very law of his being a creditor for at least one day's work, is generally a creditor for a week's work, or two weeks' work. Every great industrial enterprise has for its chief creditors its own laborers. The heartiest account in every department of industry, whatever it may be, is always the wages account.

The pretense that the farmer of Nebraska is suffering under the weight of a mortgage, contracted under a metal which has steadily increased in value is but a Populistic metaphor. I do not believe there is 5 per cent of them who owe a mortgage over three years' old, during which time there has been no change in the value of the metal. This proposal of the Populists is an intent to enlist the farmer in a conspiracy to reduce the wages paid this labor, that he may have a larger proportion of his own products, and they are willing to cut down the wages of every man who works in cities, who toils at the bench, who digs in the mines, who manages the train, in the hope that they can ride into power on a wave of cupidity and greed awakened in the breast of the voter, but, my friends, it is a triumphant vindication of American citizenship that this attempt to enlist the farming and agricultural members of this community in this conspiracy has failed, miserably, utterly, absolutely. Every western state which in 1890 and in 1892 fell into the hands of the Populists went into the farmers' alliance before their real purposes were executed; were purified, and the Populistic forces scattered out of existence. When the farmers of this country understand precisely what the Populists meant for his welfare was really for his ruin, the farmer, who, when this country was in danger, shouldered his musket to set it aside when the last shot had been fired on the southern battlefield, whose moderation prevented the political warriors at Washington from pursuing a policy of discrimination and punishment in the southern states—that farmer who made the policy of the north a policy of conciliation, of forgiveness, of reunion, whose hand it was that made ruins of her cities and ashes of her homes, received her once more and said, "Live in peace and sin no more."

The farmer today is the mainstay of order and of property, as he was the mainstay of the Union. My friends, there has been a great change in the Democratic organization of the southern states. The men, who from a mistaken sense of loyalty, followed their states out of the Union, whose gallantry in war, whose fortitude in defeat, won the admiration of the civilized world, the men whose virtues commanded the support of northen public opinion in the attempt to overthrow carpet-bag governments in the southern states, the men who led their people through all the troubled period of reconstruction back into a full union with the sister states, these men, like Hampton of South Carolina, and Caffrey in Louisiana, have been swept from power, a new set has got into the saddle; a set of leaders of which Tillman is the exponent, who boldly unfurled the sectional flag at Chicago, and declared that this Populist movement is a direct movement against the prosperity of the east.

Men of New York, toilers of America, guardians of your own homes, will you allow your rate of wages to be affected by any man who never has paid wages at all if he could get out of it. Will you submit to this conspiracy between the professional farmers, who labor with their jaws, Populist agitators of the west, and the unreconciled slaveholders of the south? This is a conspiracy between professional farmers, who want to pay low wages, and the unreconciled slaveholder who would like to pay no wages.

Here is the real root of this conspiracy. The Populistic movement is the attempt of these professional farmers, of these men who are unwilling to share with the laborer, to appeal to their greed. The Populist is an enemy of public order, he is an obstacle to progress. He is a conspirator against the peace and prosperity of the industrial masses of the country.

I have said that the laborer is the object of this conspiracy, and he is. But let no man imagine that if they are successful the injury will all be borne by that man who works with his hands. He would be the first to suffer and the last to recover from its effects. But the shock to civilization which would ensue from such a breach of public and private faith would be irreparable. Its effect no man could measure from an experience of the human race. We cannot tell to what degree it would paralyze industry. If I were asked to define civilization, I should say it was "industrial co-operation." Everything that a man does for his own benefit acts directly upon the interests of his neighbors. No man stands alone in a civilized community.

A Word About Confidence.

Underlying the whole scheme of civilization is the confidence men have in each other. Confidence in their honesty, confidence in their integrity, confidence in the industry, confidence in the future. If we want silver coinage tomorrow, if we even debase our standard of value, men say that still you would have the same property you have today, you would still have the same soil, you would still have the same continent, and it is true. But so did the Indian have the same rivers that roll past our cities, and turn the wheels of commerce as they pass. So the mountains were piled full of mineral treasures 400 years ago. The same atmosphere enwrapped this continent; the same soil covered the fields; the same sun shone in heaven, and yet there was none but the savage pursuing the pathway of war through the trackless forests; and the river bore no single living thing except the Indian in his canoe, pursuing a pathway of destruction. There was no industrial co-operation, because the Indian was a savage, and did not understand the principles by which men aid each other in taking from the bosom of the earth the wealth which makes life bearable and develops the intelligence which makes civilization.

Anything that attacks that basis of human confidence is a crime against civilization and a blow against the foundations of social order. Wherever you find Populists assembled, you will find discussions proceeding on the theory that men are hostile to each other in their interests; that the condition of life is one of contest.

We believe that the very essence of civilization is mutual interest, mutual forbearance, mutual co-operation. We believe the world has got past time when men's hands are at each others' throats. We believe today that men stand shoulder to shoulder, working together for a common purpose, beneficial to all, and we believe that this attempt to assail wages, which means an attempt to attack the prosperity of all, will be resisted, not by a class, but by the whole nation. What labor has gained that shall it keep. The wages that are paid to it today is at the lowest rate we will ever willingly accept.

While wages remain at their present rate, I hope that there will be a further and further, and continuous, decrease in the cost of living. There is no way in which I can be admitted to a share of God's bounty, except through a fall in the prices of the necessities of life. While we have in existence a system of mutual co-operation, which is but another name for civilized society, all men are admitted to share in every bounty which providence showers upon the earth. The dweller in the tenement house, stooping over his bench, who never sees a field of waving corn, who has never inhaled the perfume of grasses and of flowers, is yet made the participator in all the bounties of providence, in the purifying influence of the atmosphere, in the ripening rays of the sun, when the product of the soil is made cheaper to him every day by the abundance of the harvest. It is from his share in this bounty that the Populist wants to exclude the American workman; to him he says, in the name of humanity, in the name of progress, you shall neither press a crown of thorns upon the brow of labor, nor press a scourge upon his back. You shall not rob him of any one advantage, which he has gained by long years of study, of progress in the skill of his craft, and by the careful organization of the members who work with him at the bench. You shall not obscure the golden prospects of a further improvement in his condition by a further cheapening of the cost of living, as well as by a further depreciation of the dollar which is paid to him. The man who raises his hand against the progress of the workingman raises his hand against prosperity. He seeks to restrict the volume of production. He seeks to degrade the condition of the man who is steadily improving himself, and in his own improvement is accomplishing the improvement of all mankind, but this attempt will fail.

I do not regret this campaign. The time has come when the people of this country will show their capacity for self-government. They will prove that men who have left the world in the pathway of progress will be the jealous guardians of liberty and of order. They are not to be seduced by appeals to their cupidity or moved by threats of injury. They will forever guard, and jealously guard, and trim the lamp of enlightenment, of progress. They will ever relentlessly press and crush under their heels the flaming torch of Populism, discontent, Populist agitation and Populist destruction. When this tide of agitation shall have passed—this tide of Populist agitation—this assault upon the common honesty and upon industry shall have been abated forever, the foundations of this republic will remain undisturbed. This government will still shelter a people indissolubly wedded to liberty and order, jealously forbidding any distinction of burden or of privilege, conserving property, maintaining morality, resting forever upon the broad basis of American patriotism and American intelligence.

The Herbert Fuller's Cargo.

Halifax, Aug. 19. — Startling stories have been circulated here relative to the nature of the cargo carried by the barkentine Herbert Fuller, which sailed hence, ostensibly for Rosario. The same stories were afloat shortly after the Fuller arrived here with the three murdered victims on board. They are to the effect that the vessel is only partly loaded with lumber, of which there is no more than enough to conceal a cargo of provisions and war supplies intended for Cuban rebels, and that she is bound for the Cuban coast.

Warning to Mariners.

Washington, Aug. 19. — The hydrographic office of the navy department has received a report of a dangerous derelict in the Atlantic ocean. Captain Fitzgerald of the British steamer Saint Cuthbert reports that on Aug. 12, in lat. 41 north, long. 68.04 west, he passed a waterlogged vessel, about 200 feet long, with bow and stern out of water. This derelict is about 265 miles eastward from Sandy Hook lightship, directly in the track of westbound transatlantic steamers.

News and Notes.

Boston proposes to have the largest hotel structure in the world, at a cost of something over $3,000,000.

A "walking mountain" in Gard, France, is said to be moving toward the river of that name at the rate of 15 feet a day, its lower strata—grit and green marl—having given way. It advances with prodigious noise and cracking of the earth.

Hitherto gutta percha has usually been obtained by cutting down a tree. But it is now found that a less ruinous method may be employed. Gum extracted from the leaves is said to be purer and more abundant than that taken from the tree trunk.

It is reported that 2,000 patents have been taken out in this country on the manufacture of paper alone.

He Cannot Stop Now.

Joseph Schoenelberg, a coal miner living along the Panhandle railroad, near Mansfield, dieted himself on poke berries to reduce his weight because he tipped the beam at 312 pounds and had to quit work on account of being too stout. The berries were great flesh reducers, but they gave Schoenelberg's body a blue tinge.

The change of color was first noticed in his nose; then it appeared on his face and body. This alarmed Schoenelberg, who consulted a physician. The latter advised him to quit eating the berries, but giving the prescription was easier than taking. Schoenelberg says he can't quit, and he is becoming bluer every day.

McDowell Will Return to Henley.

Dr. W. E. McDowell, the Chicago oarsman who went to Henley, England, to get the diamond sculls and came home without them, takes his defeat philosophically and makes no complaint. He asserts that he was beaten fairly and in a manly fashion. But he has not lost any of his pluck. He says he will "go after the sculls" again next year and believes that, with the aid of the experience gained this year, he will be able to accomplish his purpose and secure the coveted prize.

It is said that Tom Burke, the world's champion quarter mile runner, and A. L. Wright, who holds the fastest mile record made by a New Englander, will go to Brown university to take a special course.

TIME NOT YET RIPE

For an International Tribunal of Arbitration Between Nations.

Mediation Considered the Much Better Plan.

International Law Discussed by the Lord Chief Justice of England.

Saratoga, Aug. 20.—The American Bar association listened to an exhaustive address today by Right Hon. Charles Russell, lord chief justice of England, on "International Law." The address follows:

SIR CHARLES RUSSELL.

My first words must be in acknowledgment of the honor done me, by inviting me to address you on this interesting occasion. You are a congress of lawyers of the United States, met together to take counsel, in no narrow spirit, on questions affecting the interests of your profession; to consider necessary amendments in the law which experience and time develop; and to examine the current of judicial decision and of legislation, state and federal, and whither that current tends. I, on the other hand, come from the judicial bench of a distant land, and yet I do not feel that I am a stranger among you, nor do you, I think, regard me as a stranger. Though we represent political communities which differ widely in many respects, we yet have many things in common.

We speak the same language; we administer laws based on the same juridical conceptions; we are co-heirs in the rich traditions of political freedom long established, and, we enjoy in common a literature, the noblest and the purest the world has known—an accumulated store of centuries to which you, on your part, have made generous contribution. Beyond this, the unseen "crimson thread" of kinship, stretching from the mother islands to your great continent, unites us, and reminds us always that we belong to the same, though a mixed, racial family, combining at once territorial dominion, political influence and intellectual force greater than history records in the case of any other people. This consideration is prominent amongst those which suggest the theme on which I desire to address you—namely, international law.

The English speaking peoples, masters not alone of extended territory, but also of a mighty commerce, the energy and enterprise of whose sons have made them the great travelers and colonizers of the world—have interests to safeguard in every quarter of it, and therefore, in an especial manner, it is important to them that the rules which govern the relations of states inter se should be well understood, and should rest on the solid bases of convenience, of justice and of reason.

I call the rules which civilized nations have agreed shall bind them in their conduct inter se, by the Benthamite title, "International law." And here, Mr. President, on the threshold of my subject I find an obstacle in my way. My right so to describe them is challenged. It is said by some that there is no international law, and that there is only a bundle, more or less confused, of rules to which nations more or less conform, but that international law there is none.

Mr. Russell reviewed at great length the relations of law to the history of the two nations, quoting numerous decisions which have formed some of the most important precedents. Coming to the consideration of what characterizes the later tendencies of international law, he said it was, in a word, their greater humanity.

The cry for peace is an old world cry. It has echoed through all the ages, and arbitration has long been regarded as the handmaiden of peace. Arbitration has, indeed, a venerable history of its own. According to Thucydides, the historian of the Peloponnesian war, Archidamus, King of Sparta, declared that "it was unlawful to attack an enemy who offered to answer for his acts before a tribunal of arbiters."

It is obvious, therefore, that the sentiment of peace and in favor of arbitration, as the alternative for war, is growing apace. How has that sentiment told on the direct action of nations? How far have they shaped their policy according to its methods? The answers to these questions are also hopeful and encouraging. Experience has shown that over a large area international differences may honorably, practically and usefully be dealt with by peaceful arbitrament. There have been since 1815 some 60 instances of effective international arbitration. To 32 of these the United States have been a party, and Great Britain to some 20 of them.

Mr. Russell recited the efforts made from time to time to establish tribunals of peace, stating that in the introduction of arbitration clauses into treaties, the United States appeared in the van. Continuing, he said:

But are we thence to conclude that the millennium of peace has arrived—that the dove has returned to the ark, sure sign that the waters of international strife have permanently subsided? I am not sanguine enough to lay this flattering unction to my soul. Unbridled ambition—thirst for wide dominion—prize or power still holds sway, although I believe with lessened force, and in some sort under the restraint of the healthier opinion of the world.

The analogy between arbitration as to matters in difference between individuals, and to matters in difference between nation, carries us but a short way. But there are differences to which, even as between individuals, arbitration is inapplicable—subjects which find their counterpart in the affairs of nations. Men do not arbitrate where character is at stake, nor will any self-respecting nation readily arbitrate on questions touching its national independence, or affecting its honor. Again, a nation may agree to arbitrate, and then repudiate its agreement. Who is to coerce it? Or, having gone to arbitration, and been worsted, it may decline to be bound by the award. Who is to compel it.

These considerations seem to me to justify two conclusions: The first is that arbitration will not cover the whole field of international controversy, and the second that unless and until the great powers of the world, in league, bind themselves to coerce a recalcitrant member of the family of nations—we have still to face the more than possible disregard by powerful states of the obligations of good faith and of justice.

Are we then to conclude that force is still the only power that rules the world? Must we then say that the sphere of arbitration is a narrow and contracted one? By no means. The sanctions which restrain the wrongdoer—the breaker of public faith—the disturber of the peace of the world, are not weak, and, year by year, they wax stronger. They are the dread of war and the reprobation of mankind. Public opinion is a force which makes itself felt in every corner and cranny of the world, and is most powerful in the communities most civilized. Again trade and travel are great pacificators. The more nations know of one another, the more trade relations are established between them, the more good will and mutual interest grow up; and, these are powerful agents working for peace.

The question arises, what ought to be the constitution of the tribunal of arbitration? Is it to be a tribunal ad hoc, or is it to be a permanent international tribunal? It may be enough to say, that at this stage, the question of the contution of a permanent tribunal is not ripe for practical discussion, nor will it be until the majority of the great powers have given in their adhesion to the principle. The interests involved are commonly so enormous, and the forces of national sympathy, pride and prejudice are so searching, so great and so subtle, that I doubt whether a tribunal, the membership of which had a character of permanence, even if solely composed of men accustomed to exercise the judicial faculty, would long retain general confidence, and, I fear, it might gradually assume intolerable pretensions.

There is one influence which by the law of nations may be legitimately exercised by the powers in the interests of peace—I mean mediation. In the final act of the American conference at Berlin the following proviso (article 12) appears:

"In case of a serious disagreement arising between the signatory powers on any subjects within the limits of the territory mentioned in article 1 and placed under the regime of commercial freedom, the powers mutually agree, before appealing to arms, to have recourse to the mediation of one or more of the neutral powers."

It is to be noted that this provision contemplates not arbitration, but mediation, which is a different thing. The mediator is not, at least, in the first instance, invested, and does not seek to be invested, with authority to adjudicate upon the matter in difference. He is the friend of both parties. He seeks to bring them together. He avoids a tone of dictation to either. He is careful to avoid, as to each of them, anything which may wound their political dignity or their susceptibilities. If he cannot compose the quarrel, he may at least narrow its area and probably reduce it to more limited dimensions, the result of mutual concessions; and, having narrowed the issues, he may pave the way for a final settlement by a reference to arbitration or by some other method. This is a power often used, perhaps not so often as it ought to be—and with good results.

There is, perhaps, no class of question in which meditation may not, time and occasion being wisely chosen, be usefully employed, even in delicate questions affecting national honor and sentiment.

We boast of our advance, and often look back with pitying contempt on the ways and manners of generations gone by. Are we ourselves without reproach? Has our civilization borne the true marks? Must it not be said, as has been said of religion itself, that countless crimes have been committed in its name? Probably it was inevitable that the weaker nations should, in the end, succumb, but have we always treated them with consideration, and with justice? Has not civilization been too often presented to them at the point of the bayonet, and the Bible by the hand of the filibuster? And apart from nations we deem barbarous, is not the passion for dominion, and wealth, and power, accountable for the worst chapters of cruelty and oppression written in the world's history? Few peoples—perhaps none—are free from this reproach.

What indeed is true civilization? By its fruit you shall know it. Its true signs are thought for the poor and suffering, chivalrous regard and respect for woman, the frank recognition of human brotherhood, irrespective of race or color or nation or religion, the love of ordered freedom, abhorrence of what is mean and cruel and vile, ceaseless devotion to the claims of justice. Civilization in that, its true, its highest sense, must make for peace. The abiding sentiment of the masses is for peace—for peace to live industrious lives and to be at rest with all mankind.

Mr. President, I began by speaking of the two great divisions—American and British—of that English speaking world which you and I represent today, and with one more reference to them I end.

Who can doubt the influence they possess for ensuring the healthy progress and the peace of mankind? But if this influence is to be fully felt, they must work together in cordial friendship, each people in its own sphere of action. If they have great power, they have also great responsibility. No cause they espouse can fail; no cause they oppose can triumph. The future is, in large part, theirs. They have the making of history in the times that are to come. The greatest calamity that could befall would be strife, which should divide them.

Let us pray that this shall never be. Let us pray that they, always self-respecting, each in honor upholding its own flag, safeguarding its own heritage of right, and respecting the rights of others, each in its own way fulfilling its high national destiny, shall yet work in harmony for the progress and the peace of the world.

FORGED CASHIER'S CHECK.

Serious Charge Against Ex-Employe of a Brockton Firm.

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 20.—John W. Burnham was taken into custody last night by City Marshal Packard. He is alleged to have forged the firm name of Packard & Field, shoe manufacturers, on a cashier's check to the amount of $232. He was employed by the firm as assistant bookkeeper until July 1, coming here from Boston with good recommendations about the first of the year.

Henry C. Gurney, chief bookkeeper of the firm, states that, about June 1, Burnham was discharged on account of incompetency. There was then no suspicion of wrongdoing. At the time of his discharge he is alleged to have had a check in his pocket and to have taken it to Boston, where he had it cashed at a bank. He is alleged to have doctored the ledger so as to make the account of the customer from whom the check came appear all right. It was a cashier's check on a New York banking house, bought by a firm from whom Packard & Field got it.

About a week ago, Cashier Gurney sent a statement of its indebtednes to a southern firm. They replied that they had paid by check, and that the check had been cashed, and returned to them. Investigation followed through the Home National bank, this city, and it was discovered yesterday, so it is alleged, that Burnham had endorsed the check with a copy of the handwriting of Fred F. Field of the firm. It was also endorsed with Burnham's name, under that of the firm name supposed by the bank to have been written by Mr. Field. Mr. Gurney notified the police, and the arrest followed.

Lucky Princess.

Paris, Aug. 20.—It is stated that the will of ex-Empress Eugenie, drawn recently, favors her namsake, Eugenie, daughter of the late Prince Henry of Battenberg and Princess Beatrice. Ex-Empress Eugenie of France, and Princess Beatrice of England, widow of Prince Henry of Battenberg, have been friends for many years, and the drawing of the will, since the death of her son in the service of the English, will create little surprise either in England or France. The daughter of Princess Beatrice, Eugenie, will thus be placed in the unique position of being the beneficiary of the wills of two queens, Queen Victoria having recently bequeathed, it is said, the bulk of her private savings, amounting to £1,500,000 to Princess Beatrice, her favorite daughter, together with Osborne and Balmoral, both residences being the private property of the royal mother.

Big Guns Will Attend.

Rome, Aug. 20.—The czar has wired a promise, agreeing to witness the marriage of Vottorio Emanuele, Prince of Naples, eldest son and heir apparent of the King of Italy, and Princess Helene of Montenegro, third daughter of the reigning prince of Montenegro. The czar, on the occasion of this visit to Italy for the purpose of attending this princely wedding, will be accompanied by the czarina. Owing to this decision of the Russian monarch to visit Rome, it is believed in that city that Emperor William will visit King Humbert upon the same occasion, and that he, too, will attend the wedding.

TWO SOCIETY ladies, recent comers, who have taken their vacation here, declare Quincy to be a most delightful summer resort. With increased facilities of getting about in the electric cars, our proximity to beaches, our hills and quarries, from which on a clear day, one can see the lofty rounded dome of Massachusetts. Home is not a bad place even in the heated term.

The Circus.

The heavy blow, rain and hail, between one and two o'clock yesterday afternoon kept many away from L. W. Washburn's circus in the afternoon; but in the evening there was an immense gathering; every seat was taken and several hundred were obliged to stand.

Mr. Washburn has some very fine animals connected with his show, and the performances as a whole were very good. Numerous feats of riding, leaping, vaulting and juggling were performed with credit; but the races, near the close, created the the most merriment.

St. John's Lawn Party.

The lawn party under the auspices of St. John's church, Wednesday evening, was quite largely attended, but not so much so as on the first night, as the circus doubtless took many who would have otherwise attended.

The entertainment consisted of numbers by Mr. Daniel Padula, Miss Friguglietti and Mr. John Phelan, and concluded with a farce entitled "The District Court," the several characters being impersonated by John Phelan, William Walsh, George A. Cahill, Michael Duffy, Major English and Primo Cappifero.

Worth Remembering.

In 1860 the United States was, and had been for many years, on a gold basis.

Wages were then paid in gold or its equivalent.

The war of the Rebellion opened in 1861.

During the war the Government issued paper money in the same manner that the silver people want it now to issue silver money.

Under paper money prices advanced rapidly and wages advanced slowly so that in 1865 while wages had advanced 43 per cent., prices of the necessaries of life had advanced 117 per cent.

The depreciated paper wages of the laborer during the war were as follows:

1863—76 cents instead of a gold dollar.
1864—80 cents instead of a gold dollar.
1865—66 cents instead of a gold dollar.

These figures are obtained from an expert investigation made in 1892 by order of the United States Senate.

Its report is standard authority.

QUINCY Y. C. CRUISE.

Fleet Returns From Its First Annual Cruise Wednesday.

The Trip Was a Constant Round of Pleasure.

Speeches, Songs, Stories and Receptions Without Number.

With all colors flying the fleet of the Quincy Yacht Club, that participated in the first annual cruise of the club, entered Quincy Bay shortly after 4 bells Wednesday afternoon and came to anchor off the club house. As the crews of the several yachts made their appearance at the club houses with their well-browned faces wreathed in smiles, it needed no tongue to tell those in waiting to receive the pilgrims that they had enjoyed a grand good time, and that the cruise had passed off without an accident of any nature to mar the pleasure of the trip.

From the time that the moorings were cast off last Saturday, until anchors were dropped Wednesday afternoon, those who participated were constantly in a round of pleasure, for it seemed as though everybody was trying to make it as pleasant and enjoyable for everbody else as it was possible to do, and when a party is bound together with one common purpose, as this was, it could not have been otherwise than a success.

When the fleet left Quincy at 5 bells last Saturday the wind was light and the run to Marblehead, which should have consumed a little over three hours, did not end until long after it being 4 bells that night before the flagship Hattie came to anchor. The crews of the several yachts were tired and hungry, and after supper while a few went ashore the majority were tired enough to turn in which they did.

On the run down the Evelyn received the gold penant for making the best time in her class, and the Adolph a similar penant for the best time in the second class.

Sunday morning dawned bright and clear and shortly after 2 bells the signal to get under way was given and the fleet again was under way headed for Newburyport.

The run to Newburyport was uneventful, the fleet arriving there about 6 bells Sunday afternoon. The prizes for the quickest run from Marblehead being secured by the Beatrice and Gismonda.

Upon coming to anchor Commodore Pettengill and the crews went ashore and paid their respects to Commodore Shackford of the American club whose welcome was most cordial.

Commodore Shackford showed his visitors over the new club house and extended every courtesy possible.

Monday morning the boys did the town of Newburyport, taking in everything and seeing all the sights, and Monday afternoon they participated in the race in which the Beatrice and Adolph captured third prizes.

During the race the officers of the American club were entertained on board the flagship, Hattie, by Commodore Pettengill. This reception was an entirely informal affair, but was nevertheless, very enjoyable and served to cement more firmly, if such a thing were possible, the good feeling existing between the two clubs.

Monday evening the boys brushed up their hair and arrayed in their ducks and natty yachting caps, went forth to Salisbury beach to attend a hop given there, and no one doubts but what the boys were right at home there, and that they enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Tuesday morning at 8 bells sails were again set and the bows pointed toward home. When off Gloucester a squall came up and the fleet put into Gloucester harbor, where they remained over night. That evening the crews of the fleet were entertained by Commodore Pettengill on board the flagship Hattie.

COMMODORE PETTENGILL.

This reception was also of an informal nature, and the few hours of the evening were passed in a pleasant manner, with speeches, songs andstories, while the cigar smoke rolled out of the cabin like the smoke from a Cunarder; and it is said that the impression at one time, on other vessels in the harbor, was that the Hattie was afire and there was some talk of calling out the fire crews.

This, however, was unnecessary and after a few hours enjoyment each crew sought its own yacht and turned in for the night.

At 6 o'clock Wednesday morning the start for home was again made. Everything went smoothly until off Bug Light Wednesday afternoon, when a squall struck the fleet, but the boats all weathered the squall, and soon the familiar shores of Houghs Neck once more come in view and in a few moments anchors were dropped and the cruise was at an end.

Much credit for the success of the cruise is due to the uniform courtesy of Commodore Pettengill, Vice Commodore Sanborn, and Fleet Captain Saville, and the cruise will be a favorite topic of conversation about the club house for some time to come.

City Hospital.

The fact of the city taking control of the Hospital is one to be considered later, in the future when Quincy has really grown to be a city. It will take more time for us to bridge over the gap between a town and a rapidly growing city. We have had hard problems to deal with, and shall not drop them for some time to come, and meantime the hospital is taking good care of itself; or if it is not, it is the fault of the corporators who own it, and not the fault of its managers.

Each year, a meeting is called when any who make the body or corporation, can and should go, to attend to its affairs. These meetings are very small, sometimes hardly a quorum gets together. During the year too much fault is found by those who neglect the duty of attending these meetings. Any citizen not now a member, can become so by payment of one dollar and signing the book. The managers need the help such membership gives; they need the dollars coming in, but the cause, a hospital in our midst where the ailing, the suffering poor; those maimed by sudden accident; men who, having no homes of their own, can go and receive the blessings of a home, where our self sacrificing physicians give daily, and gratuitously their care; this is what needs support; the support of willing hands, generous hearts and open purses. It needs help from all who are self supporting; especially of the young who are not burdened with families.

Concert.

The programme for the Quincy Yacht club's concert by Baldwin's Boston Cadet band on Friday evening is as follows:

1. March—"El Captain," new, Sousa
2. Overture—"Light Cavalry," Sousa
3. Concert waltz—"Our Motto," Strauss
4. Concert solo—"Young America," Levy
   Mr. Thomas Mullaly.
5. Grand selection—"Carmen," Bizet
6. Picolo solo—"Scherzo," De Carlo
   Mr. August Damm.
7. Selections—North and South, Bendixe
8. Potpourri—"Wizard of the Nile," Herbert
9. Popular medley—"A Jolly Night," Beyer
10. Finale—"Up the Street," Morse

MILTON.

Six more new houses are to be built immediately at Hillside. Owing to the cost of having the town water extended through this property a well is being driven to supply the houses. The pipe has been driven something over one hundred feet thus far, and but little water has been found, and it is thought that it will have to be driven another 100 feet.

Officer Wigley is enjoying a week's vacation.

The Hall estate is being surveyed into house lots and streets are being laid out.

Eugene Gallagher, clerk at John Curtis' store, is having a week's vacation.

James McKay is at Martha's Vineyard.

Selectman J. Albert Simpson has returned from Brant Rock.

The Republican caucus will probably be held the 16th of September.

Bunco Games.

Stories of bunco games in the towns around us have been drifting in occasionally to the newspaper offices, and others are being told in quiet. It is probably merely a coincidence that these deeds are happening in a bunch just at this time, but the situation is instructive just the same.

It is a very good plan to distrust strangers with games and schemes that one knows nothing about. It is marvelous how easily some old, quiet conservative business men are led into games and deals that would excite the suspicion of a grammar school boy. It is even more marvelous that young men who consider that they are "sports," as the term goes, and who are supposed to be acquainted with the evil ways of this wicked world, should be so easily led into shell games, poker games, horse swaps and schemes of that kind with men whose behavior and eagerness to inveigle prey ought in itself to be a warning to keep off the grass.—Brockton Enterprise.

TODAY'S COURT.

Jeremiah Mahoney was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

The liquors seized from John Dunn at Randolph were forfeited.

—Mrs. Sarah Hunting, probably the oldest resident in Stoughton, died at her home yesterday. She was 98 years; death being caused by a fall down stairs Tuesday afternoon. Her injuries were a broken arm, a cut face and a general bruising, from which she passed away. The funeral will be held Friday at 2 o'clock from her late residence, where she has lived for about six years, being formerly of Brookline, Mass.

TALK OF THE DAY.

The Local Briefs of the "City of Presidents."

Gleanings from Wollaston, Atlantic, South and West Quincy and Point.

The Observations in Daily Walk of the Ledger Reporters.

The West Quincy Methodist church and parsonage are being painted.

E. Frank Mitchell and family move this week from Quincy street to Penn's hill.

The street railway is rebuilding its track on Copeland street near its junction with Crescent street.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Churchill, of Walker street, have returned from their vacation in Maine.

A number of Quincy's Scotch citizens are attending the picnic of the Caledonian club at West Roxbury today.

The hail at Wollaston on Wednesday afternoon was so severe that it was well toward evening before it was wholly melted.

Mr. M. R. Sparrow has bought out the fruit store of G. T. Lang in Wollaston and now runs it in connection with his ice cream parlors.

Dr. Gordon is expecting to take his vacation now. He has remained at home by reason of the illness of Mr. Butler and other patients.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hall of Walker street are to leave for Jackson, N. H., on Saturday next, where they will spend an undoubtedly pleasant vacation.

Mr. Frank Coe and Miss Alice G. Coe, of Billings street, have gone to Portland, Maine, and will spend several days at one of the watering places in Casco Bay.

Rev. Mr. Butler is now on the road to good health again, after his late serious attack of prostration by the extreme heat, and over mental and physical exertion.

Should Friday evening be pleasant there will be a big turnout of carriages over the new road to Houghs Neck, for the Yacht club's annual concert by Baldwin's famous band.

Mr. James B. Pollock, of New York, formerly of Quincy, arrived in Boston from a brief trip to Europe this morning. Today he is passing friends in Quincy and will leave for home tonight.

Mr. George Bennett of Atlantic met with a painful accident while bicycle riding Monday morning. He was thrown from his wheel, breaking both bones of his arm and dislocating his wrist.

All roads will lead to Quincy Point tonight, where Captain Cook will give his famous aquatic show, consisting of walking on the water, sub-marine fireworks, etc., all of which is free and will therefore be witnessed by a large crowd.

A woman on Billings street is very much grieved about eight-year-old children riding a velocipede on the sidewalk in front of her house, and has caused considerable comment among her neighbors, by guarding the sidewalk with a broom. She thinks that the velocipede makes "great rats" in her sidewalks when "great big" children under ten years ride there. She proposes to seek protection from the police if her laws are not obeyed.

Few People Really Realize
the importance of artistic carpets. If the floor is covered with something which cost a great deal, they are satisfied. This is wrong—a pretty room can't be obtained, whatever the furniture, unless the carpet is right. Our carpets are right in quality and price. That's something worth knowing. Then for style, we have all the latest notions.

A NEW STREET.

Proposition to Extend Newcomb Street.

The Sewer Commissioners are not idle and they evidently mean business. They are now making a preliminary survey for the brick main sewer which will extend from Coddington street near Newcomb street to the pumping station near Merrymount park.

While the direct route of this main is not as yet determined, it will probably run from Coddington street through land of Henry H. Faxon, Mrs. A. W. Russell and the late E. B. Pratt to the private way known as Spring avenue to Greenleaf street.

Should this route be decided upon, an excellent opportunity will be offered the city at a nominal expense, to Newcomb street to Greenleaf street, for while the sewer is being constructed the street could be build.

The advantages of such a street are readily seen. Besides opening up a lot of property, and enhancing its value thereby, it will also furnish an outlet for Faxon place, Saville avenue and Spring avenue; as well as to furnish a pretty drive from Washington street to Greenleaf street.

From Greenleaf street to the pumping station near Merrymount Park the route of the sewer main has not as yet been mapped out; but should the same plan be followed from Greenleaf street to the Park as from Coddington street, the new street could be extended still further, to the Park, where it would intersect with the proposed new boulevard along the shore to Squantum.

The matter of this street is of course as yet visionary, but as it is possible that much of the land that would have to be taken would be given to the city, or sold at least at a nominal sum for damages, it is not perhaps too early to agitate the matter of this new street.

—Col. Dunkwater, of Braintree, is an aspirant for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Twelfth district. We take it from this that Dunkwater has finally got back to where he started on the political merry go-round a dozen or more years ago when he was a straight out Democrat. Since then he has taken a mount in about every party and faction without being satisfied for long in any company, although it would seem that he has finally, after his wanderings and meanderings in the political woods, come to the conclusion that there's no place like home.—Fall River Globe.

—Another swell wedding at Newport, R. I. Arrangements have been completed for the wedding of Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt to Harry Payne Whitney, which will occur at noon on Aug. 25 at Cornelius Vanderbilt's villa, The Breakers. Bishop Potter of New York, now on his return from Europe, will officiate, and the best man will be Payne Whitney, the brother of the groom.

The bridesmaids will be Miss Emily Vanderbilt Sloane, Miss Leila Sloane, Miss Angelica Gerry, Miss Sheppard and Miss Taylor. The ushers will be C. C. Baldwin, S. L. Tolk, R. L. Cottonet, A. G. Vanderbilt, brother of the bride, and P. H. McMillan.

—The Braintree Veteran firemen participated with their hand tub at the New England League of Veteran Firemen's muster at New Bedford, Wednesday. At the trial they played 178 feet, 8 inches; but did not capture a prize. The parade was the grandest ever witnessed in that city. It is estimated that there were 5000 men in line.

—Holbrook's valuation is real estate, $1,055,030, a gain of $74,795; personal estate, $149,265, a gain of $24,330; polls 693, a gain of 82. The tax rate is $20, a decrease of $4.50 over last year.

$100 Reward $100.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

INCIDENT AT AN END.

Thurston Accepts Bryan's Statement as Being Nothing but the Truth.

Bryan Ends a Day's Outing With a Speech.

McKinley Is Hard at Work on His Speech Accepting the Presidential Nomination.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—"Mr. Bryan's word goes with me, and I shall be glad to so state to the people of this country." So said Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska, after reading the flat-footed denial on the part of W. J. Bryan, that he was, or had been, in the employ of the silver mine owners. "Mr. Bryan has denied the charge, which was made by a Democratic newspaper, and I have no hesitation in declaring that I believe him," added Mr. Thurston. Being asked if his exculpation of his fellow Nebraskan included in its scope Senator Stewart of Nevada, who had taken up the cudgels in behalf of the Democratic nominee, Mr. Thurston said: "Senator Stewart has arrived at that stage of political second childhood which entitles him to great consideration, and I don't think anything further need be said on that score." With which rejoinder, and a repetition that he would give the same publicity to his acceptance of Mr. Bryan's denial as he had given to the newspaper charge, Mr. Thurston declined to discuss the matter further.

Bryan's Movements.

Upper Red Hook, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Bryan started out yesterday afternoon with their host and the usual train of newspaper men for "a quiet drive." It ended as usual in a brass band, hurrah time at Rhinebeck, a place of 1200 inhabitants, about 12 miles from here, where the candidate had happened to stop for supper. The party drove by the beautiful river residences of the Astors, Chandlers, and other wealthy people until they reached the home of Levi P. Morton at "Ellerslie." The party was conducted through the immense stock barn, and Mr. Bryan showed great interest in the mechanical arrangements for feeding and watering. At Rhinebeck half a hundred people were in waiting when the party alighted. The Hotel Rhinebeck, presided over by a Republican, was decorated with bunting, and as the party dined the crowd grew larger. In a very short time it was decided to give a welcome to the candidate, and George L. Esselstyne, a Republican, was selected to welcome Mr. Bryan in a purely social way to the village. At 7 o'clock a brass band located in front of the hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, having finished supper, received a number of people on the hotel piazza. A little later Mr. Bryan appeared on the hotel balcony, and was heartily applauded. Mr. Esselstyne made a few remarks to the assembled hundreds of people, introducing Mr. Bryan as a social guest, and bidding him welcome to the village. There were cheers when the silver candidate came to the front of the balcony to speak. He was frequently interrupted with applause, his speech being practically an appeal for thoughtful consideration and a free use of the ballot, according to conscience. At the conclusion of the affair the party went back to Mr. Perrine's.

Pat Gleason Converted.

New York, Aug. 20.—Mayor Gleason was unable to withstand the eloquence of Bourke Cockran Tuesday night. At noon yesterday he called his friends about him at the city hall and announced: "I'm a new man—I'm converted. I'm for gold and that's settled. Gold and plenty of it—that's my platform. No cartwheel dollars for me. Paper money for first place, but only when the yellow coin is back of it. And $2 a day for the laboring man. I always said that, and I always will. It's the workingman's vote we're all after. I'll get it."

Working on His Letter.

Canton, O., Aug. 20.—Major McKinley denied himself to all callers yesterday morning and devoted two hours to the work of reading the proof of that part of his letter of acceptance which has been put in type. Almost one-half of the letter was revised yesterday. Major McKinley made many changes and corrections on the proof sheets, sometimes cutting a whole sentence, and in other places adding a paragraph. He does not expect to publish his letter before the end of the month.

McKinley Praises Cockran's Speech.

Canton, O., Aug. 20.—Nowhere in the country was Bourke Cockran's Madison Square garden speech read with greater interest than at the home of William McKinley. "I don't think I ought to be called upon to speak of Mr. Cockran's speech," Major McKinley said. "It must, however, have been a great speech."

A Perilous Voyage.

London, Aug. 20.—The steamer Fort Salisbury, which left port July 24, bound for Table Bay, Cape Colony, has returned, landing her passengers safely. The boat has been afire for the past 10 days. The crew, by heroic efforts, succeeded in keeping the fire under control.

Curfew Law Enacted.

Topeka, Aug. 20.—The city council has enacted a curfew law. It provides that all children under 16 years of age found on the streets after 9 p. m. in summer and 8 p. m. in winter, shall be arrested. The fire bell will ring every evening 15 minutes before the hour.

Boiler Blew Up.

Rochester, Aug. 20.—By the explosion of a boiler used in constructing a sewer yesterday, one man was killed and three badly injured. An upright engine was being used for operating the steam drills, when without warning the boiler exploded.

Meanwhile We Tremble.

Madrid, Aug. 20.—La Correspondencia de Espana announces that the Spanish government will demand satisfaction of the government of the United States if the report of an outrage at Key West is officially confirmed.

Important, If True.

London, Aug. 20.—A dispatch from Berlin says that the powers have all agreed upon the adoption of a policy which will compel Turkey to grant autonomy to Crete.

A LAWYER HIRED BY THE DAY.

And the Reason He Quit This Job Precisely on Time.

With the name of Rufus Lockwood is recalled to mind one of the most extraordinary geniuses that the state of California ever produced. It is many years now since Lockwood held sway in the courts of San Francisco. He was, in his day, perhaps the best lawyer in the state, and it was only because of his utter indifference to pecuniary matters that he did not leave a large fortune behind him.

Lockwood went at one time to Horace Hawes, a very distinguished lawyer, and the author of the consolidation act which is now in force. Hawes had a reputation for close figuring, and Lockwood knew it. He said, "Mr. Hawes, I'll hire myself to you for one year from date at a salary of $25 a day, payable every night."

"All right," said Hawes, delighted to engage the services of the brightest mind in the state at so low a figure—for the salary was not a great one in those days—and the bargain was sealed. It was 11 o'clock in the morning. But from that time on, it is said, Hawes never missed an opportunity of reminding Lockwood of his bondage. He would say, in the presence of others, "Lockwood, go fetch that book," "Lockwood, do this or that," etc. Lockwood never said a word, but did as he was bidden, and Hawes enjoyed his triumph.

Finally it came to the day when the year's engagement terminated. There was a most important lawsuit on hand, of which Lockwood had made a careful study. No one in the state could possibly have handled it as he did. Well, on the day in question Lockwood stood in court, an array of lawbooks in front of him, and expounded his views in masterly fashion. Suddenly he looked up at the clock and saw that it was the hour of 11. Closing the book from which he was quoting, he turned to Hawes, who was sitting beside him, and said: "Mr. Hawes, a year ago today at this hour I contracted to work for you one year. My time's up, the contract is canceled and I am going."

Thus did he repay his master for the humiliation heaped upon him. Hawes was in the greatest consternation. He could not possibly take up the thread of the case where Lockwood had left it, and he begged and implored him to proceed. But Lockwood remembered, and he turned a deaf ear to all persuasions. He kept his word; the contract had expired.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A Square Drink.

But of all the attractive features of this charming spot, Rothenburg, the annual festspiel, celebrating the capture of the town by Tilly during the Thirty Years' war, ranks first. At that time, and indeed until 1803, Rothenburg was a free city, taking an active part in the peasants' war of 1525 and in the Thirty Years' war of the following century. It was in the course of the latter, in 1631, that the celebrated Tilly appeared before Rothenburg and demanded its capitulation. This the citizens refused, with the result that the gallant little town was besieged and taken. Tilly and his generals proceeded to the rathhaus and demanded the municipal keys of the burgomaster. At the same time Tilly imposed a fine of 80,000 thalers and garrisoned the town with his soldiers.

The burgomaster pleaded in vain for some mitigation of the penalty, until the victorious general, after remaining for some time unmoved by his entreaties, conceived the extraordinary notion of offering to restore the freedom of the town on condition that one of the inhabitants should come forward and empty at one draft an immense beaker of wine, containing about 3¼ liters (over three quarts.) This was an unheard of feat, even in those hard drinking days, and for some time his offer remained unaccepted. The opportunity of freeing the town from a foreign yoke seemed, however, too important to be lost, and accordingly a patriotic citizen named Nusch resolved to attempt the difficult task imposed by the conqueror. As a matter of fact, he drained the beaker at one draft, and, although tradition relates that a severe illness followed the feat, still he saved the town, for Tilly kept his word and restored the independence of Rothenburg.—Chambers' Journal.

A Feature of Phenix.

"I am struck," said a well known traveler the other day, "with a few features in Phenix that mark no other town on the coast. One of them is the custom of posting up black bordered notices of invitations to funerals. I've seen that done in some of the little towns in the gulf states, but nowhere else. I know it's a sort of habit only from a conversation I had with an old timer. He said that about 20 years ago, when the town was new, there were no newspapers, and even later the only vehicle of news was a weekly paper. There was no ice to be had, and burials had to be done quickly, especially in the summer time. The only way to bring the news of the death and funeral to the attention of the public was by means of notices stuck on the posts, and the custom has continued to this date, when no necessity exists."—Arizona Republican.

A Noted Talker.

Dismal stories are told of Lady Hester Stanhope's portentous power of talk. "I," says her hapless doctor, "have sat listening for 8, 10, nay, 12 or 13 hours at a time!" Mr. Way remained from 3 o'clock one afternoon till dawn next morning tete-a-tete with her, and Lady Hester once kept Mr. N. so long in discourse that he fainted away. No wonder Mr. N. soon expressed a wish to return to Europe.—Temple Bar.

Very Dear.

"Aren't the old songs dear?" she asked.

"Yes," he said feelingly, "dear at any price."—Detroit Free Press.

Turn of the Tide.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Acting Secretary Curtis yesterday received a telegram from the assistant treasurer at New York, stating that arrangements had been made there to import $2,000,000 in gold coin from Europe. Officials are hopeful that the tide has turned, and that from now on the reserve will be rapidly increased. The treasury yesterday lost $153,600 in gold coin and $13,600 in bars, which leaves the true amount of the reserve $104,361,051.

Atkinson Not Dead.

Washington, Aug. 20.—A cable message was received at the state department yesterday, from Consul General Lee at Habana, denying the report that Pearce Atkinson of Chicago had been killed in Cuba. He says that Atkinson was seen at Pinar del Rio several weeks after his death was reported in the United States, and that he was alive and well at last accounts.

Killed by Poison.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20.—The coroner's jury investigating the Elster murder case found that the deceased came to his death as a result of poison, administered by Cliff Hagey, for the purpose of robbery, and that the Clark women, Laura and Maude, were accessories to the crime.

Two Diseases That Cause Their Victims to Be Shunned by Their Fellow-Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: I commenced taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, last Fall, for Erysipelas. My face was completely covered with the disease; I took a short course of P. P. P., and it soon disappeared. This Spring I became much debilitated and again took another course, and I am now in good condition. I consider P. P. P. one of the best blood preparations on the market, and for those who need a general tonic to build up the system and improve the appetite I consider that it has no equal. Will say, anyone who cares to try P. P. P. will not be disappointed in its results, and I, therefore, cheerfully recommend it.

ARTHUR WOOD,
Springfield, Mo.

Erysipelas and Scrofula cured by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, surely and without fail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: Last June I had a scrofulous sore which broke out on my ankle. It grew rapidly, and soon extended from my ankle to my knee. I got one bottle of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and was agreeably surprised at the result. The entire sore healed at once. I think I have taken almost every medicine recommended for scrofula and catarrh, and your P. P. P. is the best I have ever tried. It cannot be recommended too highly for blood poison, etc.

Yours very truly,
W. P. HUNTER.

P. P. P. cures all blood and skin disease, both in men and women.

Rheumatism, which makes man's life a hell upon earth, can be relieved at once by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. It makes a PERMANENT cure.

P. P. P. is the great and only remedy for advanced cases of catarrh. Stoppage of the nostrils and difficulty in breathing when lying down, P. P. P. relieves at once.

P. P. P. cures blood poisoning in all its various stages, old ulcers, sores and kidney complaints.

The Old Grindstone.

I'm glad the old thing's broken
And its bench is torn apart.
When I was but a sapling
Of a boy, it broke my heart.
There it lies, dismantled, ruined,
And 'tis joy to see it prone,
That instrument of torture,
The old grindstone.

A Terrible Tragedy.

Hinton, W. Va., Aug. 20.—Lobis Crotty and James Polley had been enemies for some time, and yesterday they went to a wheat threshing, near Cashmere, and trouble was renewed. Crotty knocked Polley down, and then, pulling a revolver, shot him twice. Polley grabbed the revolver, and was about to succeed in taking it away from Crotty, when Crotty's son ran behind Polley, and struck him across the neck with a pitchfork, breaking his neck, and killing him instantly. Young Crotty was arrested and lodged in jail.

Honors to Li Hung Chang.

Washington, Aug. 20.—President Cleveland has indicated officially that Earl Li Hung Chang will be the guest of the nation during his forthcoming visit to this country, and General Ruggles, stationed at Governor's island, has been designated to take charge of the details of the reception. The Chinese authorities, recognizing that Earl Li is a guest, are loth to make any suggestions as to his reception, preferring to leave all details with the American officials.

Spain Will Get It.

Madrid, Aug. 20.—The Italian courts having decided against Argentina's claims of the right to purchase the war vessels recently reported to have been sold by Italy to the Argentine republic, Spain will therefore purchase the cruiser Garibaldi. The Garibaldi was built at Genoa, and is said to be the most perfect cruiser afloat so far as armament and detailed construction is concerned. It is estimated that the Cuban war is costing Spain £60,000 daily.

ITS SECRETS EXPOSED.

Waltham Orange Lodge Goes to Extremes In Initiation Ceremony.

Candidates For Admission Whipped and Branded.

Court Finds Six Members of the Order Guilty of Assault and Battery.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 20.—Some of the secrets of a secret society were ventilated in the district court yesterday, when Judge Luce found J. G. Graham, C. O. Vickerson, Edward O'Niel, Daniel Tracy, Leander Weatherbee and Wilford Mable guilty of assault and battery on the person of F. A. Preble during the initiation ceremonies on July 20 of a newly organized lodge of Orangemen in Waltham, of which the defendants are officers and members. They were each fined $35 and costs, and, on appealing, were held for trial in the superior court in the sum of $200 each.

This case has attracted much attention in secret societies and in other circles on account of the novelty of the complaint, and there were many spectators at the hearing. The alleged offense was the burning of Preble with a red-hot brand on the left breast, causing a sore as large as a silver dollar, and whipping him on the legs with a rattan. Edward Arch was similarly treated at the same time, the brand being applied twice in his case, making two distinct marks; but he made no complaint, although he appeared as a witness for Preble. The warrant for the arrest of the accused was granted on Aug. 11, after a private hearing, at which both sides were represented.

The two victims were the only witnesses examined, the defense offering no testimony in rebuttal. They agreed in their stories so far as they were allowed to testify to the same facts, but as Arch was not a complainant, he was not allowed to describe his injuries and how they were inflicted. They are said to be far the more severe of the two. He merely corroborated Preble as to the treatment he received. The testimony in effect was that on the night of the initiation the two men appeared for the second time to undergo what they had been told would inflict no injury. They were blindfolded and partly divested of their clothing, Arch being the first to submit.

Preble was led into the lodge room by Tracy and Mabie, and told to raise his left arm and feel the serpent's bite. He did as directed, but they said: "The serpent missed you." He was directed to raise his arm again. They then said: "Feel the serpent bite," and he was struck by the hot iron, which burned him severely. The wound, he said was inflicted by Graham. O'Neil heated the iron over a gasjet. While he was heating it, Vickerson took the iron from O'Neil's hands, wiped it with a piece of paper, tested it, and said it was too hot. O'Neil took the iron away, and again put it over the gasjet, making it still hotter, and said, with an oath: "Give him a good one this time." The iron was then applied, with the result that the men are, it is claimed, marked for life. All the men complained of, witness said, heard O'Neil's statement, but no one said a word in protest. Arch said he could not tell how many times the iron was applied, but after Preble came out of the room there were two marks on him. Previous to the branding, Weatherbee used a whip on Preble. The whip was six to eight feet long, and made of rattan. The next night Preble had a talk with Vickerson, and the latter said the initiation was harsh, but excused it by saying that he was a man who always took his medicine, and witness should do the same. Vickerson also admitted that the use of a brand was not authorized by the ritual, and it should not have been done.

Brief arguments were made by counsel, and Judge Luce, after reviewing the testimony at some length, said: "The defendants are officers in this lodge, and it seems that all these parties took some part in the transaction. Whether other members of the lodge looked on is a matter that is not before the court, and nothing can therefore be done in thier case. I am entirely satisfied that these defendants are guilty of assault and battery. There are different degrees of guilt, but in matters of this kind all who participate are equally criminals. They all aided and abetted what was being done. Graham applied the hot iron, and O'Neil heated it. Tracy and Mable led the man around the room, and in some degree participated. Weatherbee used the whip upon his legs, and to such a degree as to mark and crossmark them. Vickerson also had a part in the business. The mark of the brand is now on the man's breast, although it is 30 days since it was applied. I think all these defendants are therefore guilty."

Sentence was then imposed, and an appeal immediately taken.

Youthful Footpads Gathered In.

Boston, Aug. 20.—On Aug. 8, Mrs Hannah Cary, while on Charlestown street, awaiting a car, was jostled by four boys, one of whom relieved her of her pocketbook, containing over $200. Three of the alleged culprits were arrested this morning. They were booked as Samuel Heerman, aged 12, William Ritchie, aged 14, and John Farren, aged 16. They were all found in bed at their homes. The officers are now looking for the fourth culprit, who, not satisfied with his own share of the booty, is said to have stood up one of the smaller boys, and forcibly relieved him of his share, $65.

Twenty-Five Thousand Visitors.

Portland, Me., Aug. 20.—The New England fair was visited yesterday by 25,000 people, the largest crowd that has ever passed through the gates of Rigby park. The scenes on the Midway, as called, was one never seen before in Maine. Hundreds of fakirs, side shows, dancing girls and other attractions were on exhibition. A balloon ascension, oxen pulling-matches, horse races, kite flying and other special features kept the crowd interested. Addresses on farming, good roads, birds and other topics were made during the day and evening.

Fish Large and Plentiful.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 20. — The first arrival from the Grand banks came in yesterday, schooner William Matheson McInnis, with a full fare of cod. She reports at Virgin Rocks, schooners Ada K. Damon, Lottie Byrnes and Hattie Weston, with nearly full fares. They would leave after two days' fishing. Schooners M. B. Stetson, Annie G. Quirner and N. Y. Symonds had nearly full fares, and would leave for home in three days. Fish at the Rocks this season were larger than usual.

Peter McNally's Great Swim.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 20.—Peter McNally, the Boston reporter and long-distance swimmer, successfully swam from Newport to Narragansett Pier yesterday, a distance of about 12 miles in the open sea. McNally left Long wharf, Newport, at 6:35 a. m., and reached here at 11:12. He swam the entire distance without stimulants, or assistance. He was accompanied by Oscar Huson, in a small rowboat, and by half a dozen Newport catboats.

Shot His Assailant.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 20.—George Pearson and Charles O. Barlow were arrested last night on a charge of provoking an assault on William J. Whitton, a non-union laster, employed in the T. G. Plant factory. During the assault, Whitton pulled a 32-calibre revolver, and shot Barlow in the leg. Whitton was not arrested, as it was clear that he acted in self-defense. The arrested men are lasters.

Pastor Johnson Located.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 20.—A dispatch from Rockland, Me., to Mayor Robinson of Gloucester, received yesterday, reads: "Rev. J. S. Johnson, missing from Rockport, is on board the steamer Penobscot, in a demented condition. Notify his son at Rockport. He will arrive in Boston tomorrow morning, in charge of the purser." The telegram was signed by the purser, J. R. Hatch.

Wanted In Massachusetts.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—A Massachusetts railroad detective has identified Paul Noe, confined in the county jail here, as the leader of a gang of railroad car thieves, which has been operating extensively in Massachusetts. When Noe finishes his six months here, he will be wanted by the Boston officers on a warrant. Noe was sentenced for breaking into a car.

Creditors Left to Mourn.

Stratford, Conn., Aug. 20.—W. E. Hine, whose disappearance became known yesterday, leaves unpaid debts to the amount of about $10,000. Mrs. Hine says she knows nothing of her husband's whereabouts, and cannot account for his sudden disappearance, though something seemed to have been worrying him for the past month.

Self-Confessed Firebug.

Boston, Aug. 20.—William J. Livingston of Worcester has confessed to State Fire Marshal Whitcomb that he set fire to his restaurant at 222 Front street, Worcester, on Aug. 5. He stated that his motive was a desire to get the insurance on account of the falling off of trade and difficulties in money matters.

Victim of Trolley Car.

Hartford, Aug. 20.—Frank Harrington, aged 55, was fatally injured last night by a trolley car. He had alighted from one car and started to cross the tracks to go to the house where he was stopping, when he stepped directly in front of another moving car. He was injured internally.

Dangerous Cycle Track.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 20.—Eugene Euvrard, aged 32, professor of French at Miss Cutcheon's school, Detroit, was struck by a train between Blackinton and Williamstown, and beheaded. He was riding between the tracks on a bicycle.

All Is Forgiven.

A famous painting shows the infant Napoleon in the chamber of his birth, and shows his mother watching over him. The mother of Napoleon was a strong, healthy, active woman. She brought into the world a family of smart, handsome, healthy children. Without health and strength Napoleon would never have risen above the position in which he was born. His mother could not give him wealth or high station in life, but she gave something better. She gave him the ability to secure these things for himself. She equipped him with a strong body and a clear intellect. Every mother may do as much for her son. The first step in this direction is perfect health for herself. Perfect health in a womanly way. She must take thought for the most important and delicate organs of the body. She must keep them strongly healthy for the performance of the greatest and most wonderful work in the world. Women do not sufficiently appreciate the importance of health and carefulness. This is shown by the dreadful prevalence of so-called "Female Complaint." Every woman may be strong and healthy by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a cure-all. It is intended to cure just one kind of disease, and it cures it. It works directly on the female organs, cleanses, strengthens and makes them healthy. It makes weak women strong, and if it is taken during the period of gestation, it insures health for the child; and, at the time of parturition, comparative freedom from the pains and dangers erroneously believed to be unavoidable.

The physiology of women, in health and disease, is contained in Dr. Pierce's great work, the "Common Sense Medical Adviser." Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to supply the losses from excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily; it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of digestion to healthy action. Cures Rheumatic, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

COOLNESS OF OFFICERS

Prevented What Might Have Been a Bloody Riot at Lynn.

Non-Union Men Surrounded by Angry Mob.

Latest Disturbance In Connection With the Big Plant Strike.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 21.—What came near being a bloody riot, in connection with the strike at the shoe factory of the Thomas G. Plant company last evening, was averted by the coolness and bravery of some 35 members of the Lynn police force, who rushed in between an excited mob of from 3000 to 4000 persons, and succeeded in saving six or eight non-union employes of the Plant corporation from the fury of the mob, and afterward escorted them in safety to their boarding house, on Ireson street.

At 6 o'clock, an angry crowd of 4000 persons assembled near the Plant factory, on Broad and Washington streets, and as fast as the non-union men made their appearance they were followed by pickets. Some eight or 10 non-union men (mostly lasters), came out of the factory, and started up Washington street, toward Broad, which was the signal for a movement of the crowd to get in line and follow them. When they reached Spring street, a crowd of at least 1500 was at their heels, hooting and yelling, but the men walked along, seemingly unconcerned, until some one in the crowd cried out, "Shoot them," and then a rush was made for the men as they were coming up Exchange street to the railway station.

Just then a portion of the crowd came around by way of Washington and Union streets to head them off, when the Plant employes, seeing themselves practically surrounded, hesitated a moment, but the crowd surged in on them and one of the men fell to the ground, after which some four or five more non-union men fell on top of him. The crowd rushed in and kicked the men quite severely before the police had time to interfere.

The patrolmen, however, soon cleared a passage and rushed to the men's assistance and soon had nearly all the men out of harm's way. The crowd gave vent to their rage in derisive yells and hoots, but could do no more, for the police force was too strong and the men were not molested further.

One of the non-union men, who became separated from the others, was seen on Union street by a portion of the mob, and was immediately set upon and given a terrible pummeling. He drew his revolver, but was prevented from using it by a McKay machine operator, who grappled with him just as a squad of police came to his rescue and succeeded in liberating him from his perilous position.

Another non-union laster, whose name is George Roberts, was chased up Silsbee street, but was not roughly used, Roberts came out on strike from the Plant factory two weeks ago, but returned to work, and in this way incurred the enmity of the union men. The police came to the man's assistance, and the crowd dispersed.

Two non-union men, employes of the Plant company, were surrounded by a large crowd on Ellis street, but they promised not to go back to work in the factory any more, after which they were allowed to depart.

While the assault on the non-union men was taking place at the railway station, so dense was the crowd that trains were delayed. Witnesses of the melee are loud in praise of the action of the police, for the manner in which they discharged their onerous duties.

The crowd last evening was angered by the shooting of the union laster, Charles O. Barlow, Wednesday, by William J. Whitten, the non-union man. Whitten is still at large, and has not yet been arrested, although he continues to work in the Plant factory.

Barlow, the wounded man, applied to the authorities for a warrant for the man's arrest, but was refused, and told that a warrant for the man's arrest would be issued when the case came up for trial in the local police court, provided the evidence against him was such as to call for his arrest.

Certainly not since the great strike of 1878 have such scenes been witnessed here as those of last evening.

William J. Whitten, as far as known, did not come out of the Plant factory until after the trouble was all over, at least he was not seen in the crowd at any time. Had he made his appearance it might have gone hard with him.

Only one arrest was made in connection with the assaults last evening, that of a young man named Brenton J. Hynes, who was locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The Plant company appears to be making no headway in filling its factory with non-union men, and the union pickets report that the number of hands at work in the shop yesterday was even less than Wednesday.

The strikers continue to receive money donations from labor unions in different parts of the country, and the free dining room in the Lasters' hall building is receiving large donations of groceries and provisions from the merchants of Lynn.

Dr. Rounds Resigns.

Plymouth, N. H., Aug. 21.—At the regular meeting of the trustees of the New Hampshire state normal school, yesterday, Charles C. Rounds, Ph. D., the principal of that institution, tendered his resignation, which was accepted, and Professor John E. Russell of Boston was elected acting principal until the board can make a further appointment. Mr. Russell is at present in Europe. Mr. Rounds is a native of Maine, and is well known in educational circles. In 1891 he was elected president of the national council of education.

In Army Worm's Wake.

Sandwich, Mass., Aug. 21. — Another worm has followed in the track of the army worm. It is white in color and about an inch long. The worms destroy everything they reach. The farmers in South Sandwich say they have not seen such a pest in 40 years. Some think the worm is hatched from the eggs of the "June bugs."

No Fight Will Follow.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 21.—A cutdown in the price paid the machine operators on the lasting machines in J. H. Winchell's factory was announced yesterday. Myron Whitcomb, a member of the firm, says the cut is from 60 to 55 cents a case for the operators on the women's work only. The labor unions will probably take no action on the matter at present, as the reduction comes after a voluntary raise by the firm, during the winter months, of 10 cents a case, irrespective of the price demanded by the union.

Result of Family Row.

Boston, Aug. 21.—Joseph Connolly, 28, is dying at the city hospital from injuries received in a family quarrel. His brother-in-law, John J. King, also 28, is locked up on the charge of assault with a hammer. King is married to Connolly's sister, and the two families reside at 158 Bowen street. King came home from work, and, it is said, found Connolly beating Mrs. King. King had a hammer in his hand and attacked Connolly, inflicting four severe scalp wounds and fracturing his skull. Dr. Young found Connolly had been probably fatally injured and ordered his removal to the city hospital.

Many Idle Hands.

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 21.—The O'Hara dial factory, employing over 100 hands, closed last night for an indefinite period. As the Boston Manufacturing company's plant, employing 1000 hands, also closed last night for five weeks, and the American Watch company has decided to continue the shutdown of its big factories, the outlook is not encouraging to business men here.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Malden, Mass., Aug. 21.—A telegram received here from Saratoga states that Rev. Michael F. Flatley, rector of the Immaculate Conception church here, had been stricken with paralysis in that city, and that there was little hope of his recovery. Father Flatley is one of the best known clergymen in this state, and has been here for the past 15 years.

New England Briefs.

An unknown woman was killed by a train at Revere, Mass. She was so badly mangled as to be unrecognizable.

The Springvale (Me.) cotton mills will close Saturday night for an indefinite period. The cause assigned for the shutdown is the prevailing business conditions.

A passenger train on the Boston and Maine road was derailed in the yard at Portsmouth, N. H. Thirty passengers were seriously shaken up, but no one was injured.

William Bowding, 30 years of age, while oiling the machinery in the works of the Narragansett Improvement company, at Providence, was caught between the gearing and crushed to death.

The Fram Home Again.

Christiania, Aug. 20.—Dr. Nansen's arctic exploring ship Fram, which he left embedded in the ice early in January, 1895, in about lat. 83 degrees north, in order to explore the sea north of the route he proposed to follow, eventually reaching 86.15 north, arrived at Skjervo, province of Tromsoe, on Wednesday. Captain Sverdrup, her commander, reports all well on board. The Fram, he added, called at Danes island, on Aug. 14, and saw Professor Andree, who was still waiting for a favorable wind in order to enable him to attempt his balloon trip across the Arctic regions. Captain Sverdrup, shortly after his arrival, sent the following telegram to Dr. Nansen: "Fram arrived safely. All well on board. Leave at once for Tromsoe. Welcome home." Dr. Nansen replied to this message as follows: "A thousand times welcome to you and all. Hurrah for the Fram." The Fram left Skjervo this morning on her way to Tromsoe, where Dr. Nansen will meet her.

Laureda Slipped Away.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The secretary of the treasury has ordered an investigation into the circumstances attending the departure of the filibuster Laureda for Cuba. It is claimed that the Laureda loaded her cargo of war material in sight of the custom house at Wilmington, Del., and yet no attempt was made to stop her, and the 20 artillery officers were also taken aboard from eight small boats. The deputy collector, at Lewes, Del., who allowed the vessel to pass to sea, will also be under fire. Complaint has been filed with the department of state by Spanish Minister Dupuy De Lome, that the government officials were negligent.

SHAMED INTO SUICIDE.

Walfred Anderson Yielded to Temptation and Robbed His Employers.

A Well Known and Popular Young Bostonian.

His Wife Called to Meet Him Only to Find Him a Corpse.

Boston, Aug. 21.—Ashamed to meet his employers, with the consciousness of his guilt, and the knowledge of the discovery of his crime, Walfred G. Anderson, local manager for A. E. Johnson & Co., transportation agents, 15 State street, whom he had defrauded, shot himself yesterday while a passenger on board the steamer Bay State, from Portland. The story is a very sad one, inasmuch as the deceased was highly respected and a great favorite, both among his business associates and in social circles in Roxbury, where he lived.

Last Tuesday morning the deceased left his office, saying he was going to take a run down to Portland. Wednesday night his wife received the following telegram: "Call and meet me on arrival of boat from Portland Thursday morning.—Walfred."

Accordingly, Mrs. Anderson was down at the wharf yesterday, shortly after the boat Bay State arrived at her berth. She went directly aboard and rapped at the door of her husband's stateroom, the number of which she learned from one of the stewards. Not receiving any response she applied to the steward, who, went outside on deck, and, opening the window, was horrified to see Anderson's lifeless body lying on the bunk—dressed as he had retired on the previous night, with a wound on the right temple and a revolver clutched in the right hand.

The steward was about to shut the window again, and Mrs. Anderson, divining the worst, said, "He has killed himself!" Pushing the steward aside, she took one look at the body of her dead husband and fainted away. She was consigned to the care of the stewardess, and the authorities were immediately notified of the tragedy.

Medical Examiner Harris was called and pronounced death to have been almost instantaneous, the man having literally blown his brains out. From the condition of the body the doctor draws the conclusion that Anderson had been dead about an hour, from which it is inferred that he conceived the idea of suicide upon nearing Boston.

During the afternoon, a reporter called at the office of A. E. Johnson & Co, 15 State street, where he found Max Straus, one of the partners in the company. On being asked for a statement of facts, concerning the alleged embezzlement of his late employe, Mr. Straus said: "It's too true, and I am very sorry that it has resulted in his death. We all liked Mr. Anderson, who was a popular favorite. He came here four years ago from Chicago, and has done faithful work for the firm since that time. He controlled in this city the largest Scandinavian steamship and railway business. He was admitted to the bar a few years ago, and was considered an able orator, having addressed meeting at the Republican club in this city during the last campaign.

"Had he not killed himself, the firm would have arranged and settled the matter quietly, in such a way as would supply the deficiency in his accounts by deducting a certain amount from his salary each month. He was very proud, and knowing he had done wrong, was ashamed to meet his employers."

The deficiency referred to, amounted to $1000, which he drew by check on July 27. On being taxed by his clerical colleagues as to the account on which the money was drawn, Anderson replied that it was an account of capital to be sent to the head office at New York. Upon investigation it was found that no capital had been sent to New York corresponding with the check, and the firm sent an auditor to look into the matter. When brought face to face with the fact that $1000 had been drawn for no plausible reason, Anderson admitted having taken the money to pay his personal expenses.

It was found upon further investigation, that the check had not gone through shortage of $1500 in addition to the check mentioned.

A warrant was granted Wednesday for Anderson's arrest, on application of the local attorney for the Fidelity and Surety company of Maryland, by Judge Burke. It was given to Captain Dugan, who gave it to an inspector to serve it. Anderson, meanwhile, had telegraphed to his father-in-law for assistance, and had promised to make good the deficiency. He was insured in the sum of $7000.

Mr. Straus arrived in Boston Tuesday, shortly after Anderson left, in response to a message received from a clerk in the office at 15 State street, who thought Anderson was going to quit. Anderson was a native of Sweden, and 35 years of age.

Knights—Green.

Mr. William Knights, one of Quincy's popular young men, and Miss Cora M. Green of East Weymouth, were united in marriage Thursday evening at the residence of the groom at 90 Water street. The ceremony being performed by Rev. Walter Russell Breed.

The bride was becomingly attired in a costume of light material and the ceremony was witnessed by a large gathering of the friends of the contracting parties. A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony, music being furnished by an orchestra and the Quincy Male quartette composed of William Warmington, first tenor; J. Edwin Glover, second tenor; J. Pierce, first bass, and George F. Turner, second bass.

Mr. and Mrs. Knights were the recipients of a number of handsome wedding gifts, among which was a silver tea service, the gift of the Nonpareil club, of which Mr. Knights is a member.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Knights will take up their residence on High street, East Weymouth.

Town vs. City.

The comparison of city and town rates is in favor of the town, if we take the average for the eight city years and compare with the last eight of the old town, as will be seen:

TOWN. Year.	Rate.	CITY. Year.	Rate.
1881,	$12 50	1889,	$10 80
1882,	16 60	1890,	13 60

Tax Rates in Cities.

Not one-half of the Massachusetts cities have reported their tax rates this year, so no comparison can be made at this time. A few are given below:

	1896.	1895.
Lynn,	$17 40	$17 20
Holyoke,	16 40	16 80
Gloucester,	17 70	16 40
Newburyport,	16 50	16 50
Haverhill,	16 80	16 70
Somerville,	15 40	15 40
Salem,	16 00	18 50
Chelsea,	16 80	17 00
Woburn,	18 10	17 80
Quincy	18 00	16 80
Boston	12 90	12 80
Malden,	16 00	15 70
Everett,	16 60	16 70

Town Rates.

But few towns, particularly in this neighborhood, have reported their tax rate. Some are given:

	1896.	1895.
Milton,	$ 9 00	$ 7 00
Brookline,	12 40	12 00
Canton,	16 80	18 00

HOUGHS NECK.

Once more this season has Hose 5 Volunteers of Houghs Neck covered themselves with glory, for at about 4.30 P. M. Costello's bowling alley was discovered to be on fire in the rear of the basement in a pile of shavings, probably caused by a cigar butt. Mr. Mark Lynch, an old Boston veteran who is a summer member of Hose 5, together with other members, succeeded after about ten minutes hard labor in extinguished the flames by forming a line of buckets to the sill cock. There is no doubt but what the quick action and cool head of Mr. Lynch saved the building from quite a scorching.

Speaking of Hose 5 it might be well to mention the fact that they have not as yet been provided with the necessary rubber boots and firemen's coats such as are furnished the other companies. They also need a few chairs and a table as well as a couple of lamps with a little kerosene to burn in them. Those that are now in use belong on the wood pile. The proper furniture has been promised to them for two years but has not yet arrived, and considering that no pay is received for services the wants of the company should be attended to.

The annual concert and social under the auspices of the church of St. Frances-by-the-Sea, Houghs Neck, will be held this evening in the Casino, a fine programme has been arranged and it is expected that a large audience will be present. Special cars will be run for the accommodation of all desiring to attend.

He Thought It a Ghost.

Officer David J. Barry thought he saw a ghost Wednesday morning. It was about 3.30 o'clock, when walking along Hancock street near Costello's alleys he had his attention attracted to a white object leaning against Packard's fence, near Cottage street. Officer Barry thought at first he had seen a ghost, but as it takes more than a ghost to frighten him, he walked cautiously over to the object and with a quick movement he had the ghost in his arms.

This was one of those kinds of ghosts that do not vanish, and proved to be a woman who was barefooted and bareheaded, and in fact the only covering she had on was a short robe-de-chambre. Officer Barry thought at first that the woman was insane, but as she returned his warm embrace, the smell of liquor was so strong that it nearly floored the officer.

After some questioning the officer learned that the woman was married and had a husband and family of children, and tucking her snugly away under his coat he escorted her home.

Nonpareil Club.

The Nonpareil club, which is comprised of a number of young men at Brewer's corner, has recently taken rooms over Nutting's store, which the members have furnished in a very cosy manner; especially the parlor, which has been fitted with a nice carpet, upholstered furniture, and a piano.

The club has a membership of thirty, and was organized purely for social purposes, and as such, bids fair to become one of the leading social organizations in this section. Thursday evening one of their members, Mr. William Knights, was joined in bonds of holy matrimony to Miss Cora M. Green, of East Weymouth.

The officers of the club are: President, Peter Lane; secretary, George McDonald; treasurer, John Pierce.

City editor Frank F. Prescott returned to his desk today after a delightful trip with his wife through New Hampshire, Vermont and upper New York to Niagara Falls. The "wonder of the world" exceeded their expectations. As they stopped off every night they saw many points of interest.

The Wollaston Cycle club was represented Thursday evening at the opening of the new rooms of the Riverview Cycle club of Milton Lower Mills, in Johnson's block. The new apartments, which consist of a parlor, smoking and card room, and a large billiard hall, were tastefully decorated with bunting. The exterior of the building was illuminated with Japanese lanterns. During the evening a pleasant entertainment was furnished and a collation was served.

Deserted Infant.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday night a workman passing through Norfolk Downs found a bundle on the sidewalk near the willows, which upon being opened was found to contain the body of a dead infant. The body which was done up in a piece of paper was well developed, but was evidently a still born. Officer Holloran was notified who in turn notified the medical examiner and he took charge of the body.

AQUATIC SPORTS.

The Best Exhibition of the Kind in This Vicinity.

A crowd of over 1,000 gathered at Quincy Point and Lovell's grove Thursday evening to witness the grand aquatic exhibition given by Capt. Cook. Owing to the lowness of the tide it was after 8 o'clock before the entertainment commenced but everybody was well repaid for waiting, for it was by far the best show ever given in this vicinity.

The exhibition included walking on the water, and the explosion of bombs and torpedoes under water which sent the water flying high into the air. Near the conclusion of the entertainment two full rigged ships and U. S. Monitor were sent out and they were bombarded in a realistic manner with Roman candles from the fort on shore. At the conclusion of the bombardment there was a loud explosion and in an instant the two ships were blown to atoms.

So well pleased were the audience with the show that the managers of the grove have decided to repeat the entertainment Saturday evening.

The Boulevard

There is a prospect that Quincy may get the boulevard from Squantum to the Blue Hills reservation, or at least from Squantum to Merrymount Park, although as yet nothing definite has been given out by the Metropolitan Park Commissioners as to whether Quincy will get its boulevard this year or not. One thing is certain, Quincy has not been forgotten by the Commissioners, who have recently instructed Mr. Elliot, their landscape engineer, to look over the proposed route, which would seem to indicate that there is at least a possibility of Quincy getting something.

The Green Mountain Route.

The most direct as well as the pleasantest route between the principal cities of New England and Lakes Champlain and George, the Green Mountains of Vermont, the Adirondacks and the famous resorts of lower Canada is via the Central Vermont railroad. This line, popularly known as "Green Mountains route," traverses the great territory bounded by the valleys of the Connecticut and Hudson rivers. Long Island sound and the St. Lawrence river, passing through some of the most charming and romantic scenery of the east, and reaching hundreds of delightful summering places. For particulars concerning resorts, hotels, boarding houses, rates, etc., consult "Summer Homes among the Green Hills" to be had free on personal application at the Boston office of the Central Vermont railroad, 260 Washington street or by mail for a five cent stamp by addressing the same office of S. World's Food Fair.

During the coming autumn—for five weeks, commencing Oct. 5—a third exhibition in the series will be held in Mechanics' building, Boston, the same managers having charge of the enterprise, though while the two first exhibitions were under the auspices of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, the coming one will be under that of the New England Retail Grocers' Association. This, it may be noted, indicates not only a broadening out of the scope of the fair, but shows that a general interest in it has been awakened throughout New England. Not only this, but it shows progress in the right direction, as will be seen from a brief enumeration of its newer and more striking features.

This coming exhibition, it may be said, promises to be the most stupendous undertaking in the exhibition line ever attempted in New England. In former food exhibits two halls and one basement only were used. This year all the halls, both basements, and all the galleries of Mechanics' building are to be used, and in addition (thus taking more room than even Mechanics' fairs occupied) Cotillion Hall has been engaged for the entire five weeks.

Sudden Death.

The death of Mrs. John R. Lillicrap (H. E. Clements) was a shock to her many friends in this city.

Mrs. J. R. Lillicrap with her husband went to Joliet, Ill., about one year and a half ago. There he was taken with typhoid fever and lived but three weeks. His death was a great shock to her, and she had been in poor health since. She had been failing rapidly for the past few months, but the death of her youngest boy three weeks ago today hastened her death which occurred Tuesday morning at 1 A. M Funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from her mother's home in West Quincy. Interment at Mt. Wollaston.

Sagasta Now Talks of Treason and Treachery Against His Country.

Madrid, Aug. 21.—Senor Sagasta, ex-prime minister of Spain, in an interview, said that it was proposed to send a dispatch containing a memorandum upon the Cuban war to the United States government, but this effort failed, owing to treason and treachery. He feared President Cleveland's successor would be impelled, by the force of public opinion in America, to take an attitude hostile to Spain. He expressed the hope that the government would lay all of the claims for damages, because of the filibustering expeditions reported to have landed in Cuba, before the United States government. In conclusion, Senor Sagasta insisted that it was necessary to continue the war in Cuba, in order to prove that Spain is not afraid of threats of a conflict with a greater nation.

A Girl's Queer Story.

Halifax, Aug. 21.—The secretary of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children received word from the authorities at Lunenburg, to meet one Majorie Lewis at the depot. The girl was met, and she told a strange story. She said she was destitute. For two days and two nights she was adrift on the ocean, and after being almost crazed from the want of food and water, was picked up by a steamer, and landed at Lunenburg. She told her tale of woe to the authorities at Lunenburg, who telegraphed the Society of Prevention to Cruelty to Children here, regarding the case. The girl stated to a reporter, that she and her family were at a summer resort, near London. She went out for a row in a boat, and was blown out to sea. She was picked up by a vessel. She wants to be sent home to England. The society think her story a fake.

The Adams Express Strike.

New York, Aug. 21.—All employes of the Adams Express company in eastern cities may stop work in two days. The general executive board of the Knights of Labor ordered this sympathetic strike yesterday. The strikers say they will fight to the last, and they are in good financial condition. The strikers are quiet. About 200 pickets are watching the Adams company's routes, and the pickets are in turn watched by Pinkerton men. President Weir of the Adams says that the company can easily get along without its old employes. "There is no possibility that our men in other cities will quit work because of the misguided action of a few men in New York," Mr. Weir added.

A Cracker State Episode.

Isabella, Ga., Aug. 21.—Tom Edwards of Sumner was recently tried for assaulting Miss Inez Sessions and acquitted. Two days ago a party of citizens marched into Sumner and informed young Edwards that they would give him 24 hours to leave the community, and never return. Edwards agreed to leave, provided the crowd would give him a list of their names, which 43 of them did. Edwards' father gave the names to the sheriff, and an effort will be made to have the men arrested for open threats upon the life of a fellow man.

Daly Set Free.

London, Aug. 21.—John Daly, the Irish dynamiter, who had been serving a life sentence in Portland prison, was released yesterday. Daly was sentenced to life imprisonment, at Warwick, July, 1884, on the charge of treason felony. When arrested, bombs were in his possession. He served seven years in Chatham prison, the remainder at Portland. He always was a strong figure in Irish politics. He recently was elected to represent the city of Limerick in parliament, and appointed high sheriff of Limerick, although in prison at the time.

Liberals Oppose It.

Madrid, Aug. 21. — The senate has adopted the extraordinary budget, as recommended by General Ascarraga, minister of war; Admiral Beranger, minister of marine, and Senor A. Bosch, minister of public works. The Liberal deputies declare that this is of the nature of a surprise vote, and that they will therefore work with increasing energy and activity for the defeat of the government's money raising proposition in the chamber of deputies.

"Roller" Steamer Launched.

Paris, Aug. 21.—In the presence of numerous foreign engineers, and a large crowd of onlookers, the so-called "roller" steamer, the invention of M. Barin, a well known marine engineer, was launched at the Gail dockyards, at St. Denis. The vessel will traverse the Seine, cross the English channel, and go to London.

Turkish Consul Killed.

Vienna, Aug. 21.—It is officially announced here that the Albanians have murdered the Turkish consul at Vrania, Servia, near the Macedonian frontier. Though this statement is officially confirmed, no details of the affair have been received.

THE WEATHER INDICATIONS.

HER HAPPY DAY.

A Charming Story of Medicine and Marriage.

Two Open Letters From a Chicago Girl —How Happiness Came to Her.

Among the tens of thousands of women who apply to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and are cured, are many who wish the facts in their cases made public, but do not give permission to publish their names for reasons as obvious as in the following, and no name is ever published without the writer's authority; this is a bond of faith which Mrs. Pinkham has never broken.

Chicago, Jan. 5th, '95.

My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—A friend of mine, Mrs. ——, wants me to write you, because she says: "you did her so much good." I am desperate. Am nineteen years of age, tall, and weighed 138 pounds a year ago. I am now a mere skeleton. From your little book I think my trouble is profuse menstruation. My symptoms are • • • • etc.

Our doctor (my uncle) tells father that I am in consumption, and wants to take me to Florida. Please help me! Tell me what to do, and tell me quickly. I am engaged to be married in September. Shall I live to see the day? • • • •

LUCY E. W.

Chicago, June 16th, '95.

My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—This is a happy day. I am well and gaining weight daily, but shall continue the treatment and Vegetable Compound during the summer, as you suggest. Uncle knows nothing about what you have done for me, because it would make things very unpleasant in the family. I would like to give you a testimonial to publish, but father would not allow it. • • • • I shall be married in September, and as we go to Boston, will call upon you. How can I prove my gratitude? • • • •

LUCY E. W.

Just such cases as the above leak out in women's circles, and that is why the confidence of the women of America is bestowed upon Mrs. Pinkham.

Why are not physicians more candid with women when suffering from such ailments?

Women want the truth, and if they cannot get it from their doctor, will seek it elsewhere.

One Million Dollars

for a pair of eyes with sight in them. A man recently advertised to pay one million dollars to the person who would restore his sight. He realized the preciousness of sight too late. A little rest from business—a visit to a careful optician, and he wouldn't have had to see with his ears.

How about your eyes? Don't know? Let us find out for you.

We will examine your eyes free of charge—not as peddlers do—but in a scientific manner. If we find you need glasses, we will fit them as only a practical optician can do, and if you don't say that life has new charms for you, we will GIVE you the glasses.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, Saves a Man From Becoming a Cripple.

Mr. Asa Ammons, a well-known citizen of Jacksonville, Florida, was afflicted by a terrible ulcer. Medical skill seemed unavailing in stopping the ravages of the terrible disease. The leg was swollen and intensely painful, as the ulcer had eaten its way down to the very bone. All medicines and treatments having failed to effect a cure, the doctors said the leg must come off. Just when it seemed that Mr. Ammons would become a disabled and a crippled man, he tried P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and the result was wonderful.

P. P. P. SAVES HIS LEG.

"Jacksonville, Fla., July 1, 1895.—Two years ago I had the worst ulcer on my leg I ever saw. It had eaten down to the bone, and my whole leg below my knee, and my foot was swollen and inflamed. The bone was swollen and painful, and discharged a most offensive matter. My physicians said I had necrosis of the bone, and my leg would have to come off. At this stage I commenced to take P. P. P. and to bathe my leg with hot castile soap suds. It began to improve at once and healed rapidly, and is to-day a sound and useful leg.

"I think P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is all a man could ask for as a blood purifier, as I have known it to cure so meterrible cases of blood poisoning in a remarkably short time.

"ASA AMMONS."

TERRIBLE BLOOD POISON.

The body covered with sores—two bottles of P. P. P. made a positive and permanent cure. This is only one of many thousand similar cases.

Catarrh yields at once to P. P. P. That smothered feeling at night, that heavy feeling in the day—can and should be removed; P. P. P. will do it if you only give it a chance.

Indigestion and constipation go hand in hand. Headaches and total loss of appetite are the results. Regulate yourself and tone up your stomach with P. P. P.

Two bonny birthdays, baby can talk;
Three merry birthdays, baby can run;
Four gala birthdays, childhood begun;
Five happy birthdays, learning to spell;
Six sunny birthdays, reading quite well;
Seven perfect birthdays, childhood is past;
Eight joyous birthdays, "girlhood at last!"
Nine precious birthdays, the happiest time;
Ten flowery birthdays, life all a rhyme;
Eleven bright birthdays—never to see
Twelve more sweet birthdays so careless and free;
Thirteen and fourteen fly away fleet;
Fifteen and sixteen, maidenhood greet;
Seventeen and eighteen halcyon days;
Nineteen and twenty, Cupid's sweet maze.

Bicycle Trust Story Revived.

New York, Aug. 21.—The big manufacturers of bicycle tires have formed an association to promote sociability and good understanding among the members, it is stated. The association's members represent $28,000,000, invested in rubber and bicycle plants. The members will, according to their own statements, arrive at "tacit understandings." The formation of this association grew out of the question of the right of manufacturers to make what is known as the single tube tire. Pardon W. Tillinghast of Providence invented the single tube tire in 1893. He sold it to the Pope Manufacturing company. Theodore A. Dodge, president of the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber company, bought the patent for about $1,000,000, and was paid a royalty of 25 cents a pair for all the tires of that nature manufactured.

Split on Politics.

Detroit, Aug. 21.—A dissolution of the co-parnership of Don M. Dickinson, postmaster general in President Cleveland's first cabinet, and H. T. Thurber, private secretary to President Cleveland, and Elliot G. Stevenson, is announced to take place on Sept. 1. Mr. Dickinson is said to have been much displeased, when he returned from the east, and found that Mr. Stevenson had to some extent compromised the politics of the firm, by accepting the chairmanship of the state central committee, and become responsible for the Bryan campaign in Michigan. Mr. Stevenson later resigned the chairmanship, but friction (which, however, never interrupted amicable relations in personal intercourse) continued, and the result was the decision on Mr. Stevenson's part to withdraw from the firm.

What Women Can Do.

Syracuse, Aug. 21.—The first woman's train in the world left here yesterday for the Thousand Islands, over the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad. The train is run by the Woman's Christian association of Syracuse, who formed themselves into a tourist company, for the purpose of running the train, and also operating the steamboats on the St. Lawrence river during their personally conducted tour. The engine was started by Mrs. James K. McGuire, wife of the mayor of Syracuse, and each car in the train had a woman conductor in uniform, and a woman chaperone.

Kentucky Gold Democrats Will Send Delegates to Indianapolis.

Maine Gold Democrats Have Faith In Cleveland.

Chairman Jones Professes to Be Confident of Bryan's Election.

Louisville, Aug. 21.—Kentucky Democrats who are not in sympathy with the Chicago platform raised their standard yesterday, and the Bourbon state will lead the procession to Indianapolis. The convention met at Music hall, and on the stage were many of the men who have fought Democracy's battles in the state for a quarter of a century. Temporary organization was effected, the selections of the various districts for committeemen, electors and delegates were reported, and an address was delivered by Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge that aroused a whirlwind of enthusiasm.

W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE.

Mr. Breckinridge used the most vigorous language in denouncing the doings of the Chicago convention. "You need not tell me that it is a regular Democratic nomination," said he. "I walk not into the cesspool of that miserable policy under any pretense or blinding whatever. It had no power to make a pledge of Populistic and half Republican policy in the name of the Democratic party. It had no power to take hostile principles and to pledge the Democratic people to carry those hostile policies into statutes. And it is not Democratic merely because it is clothed in the Democratic robe and wears the Democratic garment. It is the hand of Esau, it is true, but we recognize the voice of Jacob in every tone.

"Fellow Democrats, measuring my words and weighing them with all the precision of which I am capable, and willing to bear whatever may come from uttering them, speaking for myself alone, I believe that the election of Mr. Bryan is the greatest national calamity that can befall a people, and for one I shall do all in my power to prevent it. This is above all personalities, dear as they are to me, and as dear to me as to any man living—above all traditions of party affiliations, precious as these traditions are to me personally, and to the generations of my beloved family behind me—higher than other duties of this moment, the duty of today is for the Democratic party to defeat the election of Bryan and Sewall.

"I am not here to make personal charges, or to use personal names. That seems to me not to come up to the high level of the occasion. I have nothing to say of Mr. Bryan that is not kindly and pleasant. I take it for granted that he believes what he utters, for the capacity to believe wrong things in undeveloped, and emotional youth is extremely great. I have naught to say that would in any way reflect upon him. I think he believes that platform, and as he believes it, if he be an honest and courageous man—and I shall not doubt that—he will use the whole power of that office to make that platform the policy of the American government, and thus believing, out of compliment to his honesty—thus believing in justice to his good character—by the help of God he shall never have an opportunity.

"I have come to commune with you—to unite with you in a declaration of principles. Let us be moderate in that declaration. Let us lay down the Democratic doctrine. We are as much for freedom of trade, as we were before the Chicago convention betrayed the Democratic party.

"We oppose ourselves to the miserable foolishness that laws of commerce, and of money, are sectional; we know that they are universal, and international. We will have a country, whose laborers have all the markets of the world, and who for their labor obtain the best money in the world.

"We will not follow the Chicago platform, and erase the word "only" from our platform; but we will say in the old language, 'We believe in a tariff for revenue only.' We believe taxation has no justification, save for public purposes, and no revenue shall be raised save for the expenditures which belong to the government, as a government, today, standing, not a new Democratic party—not a third party—but the old Democratic party, between the paternalism of a high tariff upon the side of Republicanism, and paternalism in the shape of a debased currency, of a corrupt court, and of violence instead of peaceful remedies upon the side of the Populists, we will uphold the old American doctrine, that the man made the government, and it is an honest government, because the product of a free and honest people.

"We ask our Democratic brethren, who have not yet seen the way to go with us, to pause before they go further. We owe to them two duties. They are our brethren. We have loved each other—we do love them still, one is to stand firm in our place, and to give to them the nucleus around which, if they see better light, between now and November, they may unite in trying to preserve the separate organization of the Democratic party. And then, we owe to them a house and home, to erect for their refuge, so that when the day of defeat is over, when they find that they have been misled, by the ignis fatuus of Populistic heresy, when they understand that that is not the true Democratic party; when the flimsy fabric erected at St. Louis shall be by the winds of November laid in ruins around them, and they know not where to go, we will have a Democratic home, and with outstretched hands and pleasant smiles, we will have some place for them to come in and sit by a grate fire, and talk over the good, old times."

The platform, which was unanimously adopted, aroused frequent outbursts of enthusiasm. It was a severe arraignment of the Chicago platform, which was declared to be "revolutionary and destructive of Democratic principles." The candidates were denounced. Mr. Bryan as a Populist, and Mr. Sewall as a subsidized shipbuilder, and a high protectionist. It contains a strong presentation of the principles, to enunciate which the gathering was called, namely, the maintenance of an honest and stable currency on a gold standard; a tariff for revenue only; low taxation and economical expenditure, civil service reform, the duty of the government to protect the citizen and his property from lawlessness; an independant and unintimidated judiciary, the condemnation of special privileges, sumptuary legislation, governmental favoritism, bounties and other form of paternalism and Populism, "and a hearty endorsement of the national Democratic administration."

On motion of Colonel Breckinridge, an amendment to the platform was adopted, urging the nomination of Governor S. B. Buckner, for vice president, by the Indianapolis convention.

Colonel Breckinridge will head the delegates to the convention.

Chicago Platform Repudiated.

Portland, Me., Aug. 21.—A band of music played popular airs while the gold Democratic convention was assembled yesterday in Congress hall. Hanging over the platform of the hall was a picture of President Cleveland, and when the delegates filed into their seats their eyes caught this picture, and they cheered it again and again. C. V. Holman called the meeting to order. He read a carefully prepared address, saying in part: "We are here to rebuke the position and condemn the iniquities of the Chicago convention, and no man can take part here today who does not thoroughly denounce those declarations. We are here to denounce Bryanism, but if the election of McKinley follows, let it fall upon those who deserted the Democratic principles at Chicago." The speaker delivered a touching eulogy on the late William E. Russell, and his last public utterances, which were delivered at Chicago, were read.

The resolutions unqualifiedly endorse the action of the provisional national committee in Indianapolis, Aug. 7, and repudiates and denounces "the Populistic assemblage known as the Chicago convention, and everything emanating therefrom." It endorses the financial plank adopted in the Maine Democratic convention at Portland, on June 17, and reaffirms belief in the necessity of maintaining the existing gold standard of value in our national currency. It denounces protection for protection's sake, and commends the honesty, economy, courage and fidelity of the present federal administration, and pledges support to William H. Clifford for the governorship of Maine.

Colonel John R. Fellows of New York spoke two hours. He said among other things: "I refuse to be crucified upon a cross of gold or silver between those two thieves, sectionalism and repudiation. The flag of Democracy has been stolen by a pirate, but we, my friends, will not consent to be part of the captured crew. For myself, I will walk the plank. I cannot endorse a platform which tramples under foot the sacred traditions of the Democratic party."

Colonel Fellows made a careful exposition of the currency question from the gold standard standpoint, and said he did not think the American people would consent to national dishonor. His speech was impassioned and eloquent, and he was frequently applauded. the demonstration being especially marked when he referred to President Cleveland. He was preceded by Harvey N. Shepard of Boston, who spoke on the financial question, and said that the farmers were deprived of a proper market by an abominable tariff.

Satisfied With Outlook.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee arrived in Chicago yesterday. The immediate result of Senator Jones' visit was the closing of a deal by which the national headquarters will be established at the Sherman House. Senator Jones secured all the parlor floor rooms on the Randolph street side of the hotel building, and two other rooms.

"I expect to remain here right along now, until after the campaign is over," said Senator Jones. "The literary end of the campaign will be in Washington. The general outlook for Bryan's election is favorable. Men who were in doubt about his position before the Madison square speech are pleased now. It dissipated the idea that our campaign was one of anarchy."

The senator said the gold movement was "too insignificant to discuss." It amounted practically to nothing in the south, and made a small showing everywhere else, except in New York. The senator refuted the story that the Democratic campaign was reduced to poverty.

Pleased Bryan Men.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Secretary Hoke Smith emphasized his recent declaration for Bryan and Sewall by calling yesterday at the headquarters of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, and having a long and confidential talk over campaign prospects with Chairman Faulkner. Naturally, the call of Secretary Smith greatly delighted all the people at the Democratic headquarters, and they made much of it. It is the first time any member of the cabinet, or, indeed, any other prominent member of the administration, has called at the Democratic headquarters. There is no doubt about Mr. Smith taking the stump for Bryan and Sewall, though he will probably cease to be a member of the cabinet before he begins his speech-making. Secretary Smith declines to talk about the matter.

Palmer's Estimate.

Taylorville, Ills., Aug. 21.—The prospect now is, Senator John M. Palmer stated yesterday, that the national Democratic convention will adopt a platform, and then adjourn without naming a ticket. In that event, the senator thought, most of the sound money Democrats would vote for McKinley. He advised all to do so. The senator said: "I think protection is absurd, but I would rather have McKinley on that issue than risk Bryan and free silver."

"It's a Good Thing. Push it Along."

THE SOCIAL REALM.

Those who could brave the fresh south east wind last evening at the yacht club house, enjoyed a most beautiful view of the water, as a full moon was just high enough to cast a very broad expanse of light that rippled like silver across the whole wide river there. The light was so intense that the few boats sailing, and the shores were deep in shadow by contrast. The majority of the guests remained within, and enjoyed as did all, the delightful music. Commodore Pettengill moved quietly about as did Secretary Whiting, looking after the comfort of the people assembled. The low temperature may have affected the spirits of people as there was not as large a gathering as was expected, but the young gentlemen and lady friends, and many older ones were out in fresh toilets, and the occasion was one that will be remembered pleasantly in the annals of the club.

There were two solos with encores,—Mr. Thomas Mullaly, who by the way is a club member, playing the brilliant cornet solo, "Young America," accompanied by the band, and Mr. August Damm, playing De Carlo's "Schenzo," with an equally brilliant execution. The program was made up of Sousa's latest marches and other popular music.

HAPPILY DISAPPOINTED.

The Assessors' Revise their Figures and Reduce the Tax Rate.

It Will be Sixty Cents Less and Not a Record Breaker, as Reported.

The Levy Was Unnecessarily Large and Has Been Reduced $12,000.

The LEDGER has good news for the taxpayers today, at least better than yesterday, because the Assessors' figures have been revised and the tax rate reduced. It will not be a record breaker as at first announced, and there seems considerable difference between $18 per $1,000 and $17.40 per $1,000. The latter will stand as the tax rate of 1896; it is sixty cents more than last year and twenty cents less than in 1894, which was the record breaker.

During the seventy odd years of Quincy's history up to 1865, the rate of taxation never exceeded $10 per $1,000, but since the war with one exception it has not been less than $10. The highest rate under a town government was in 1869, when the rate was $17.50, and it reached $17 only three times, averaging $14 to $15. During the last few years of the town government it increased rapidly, reaching $16.70 in in 1888. With the city government came a tax limit and the rate decreased but a debt was inevitable. The tax rates of Quincy are given below, and bearing in mind what they were previous to 1865, the summary covers over 100 years:

In 1865,	$13 00	In 1881,	$12 50
1866,	13 00	1882,	16 00
1867,	17 00	1883,	14 00
1868,	15 00	1884,	15 00
1869,	17 50	1885,	13 60
1870,	13 60	1886,	15 40
1871,	16 00	1887,	15 80
1872,	13 00	1888,	16 70
1873,	17 00	1889,	10 80
1874,	15 00	1890,	13 60
1875,	15 00	1891,	13 60
1876,	14 00	1892,	16 00
1877,	14 00	1893,	15 80
1878,	9 00	1894,	17 60
1879,	13 20	1895,	16 80
1880,	15 00	1896,	17 40

The revision of the figures was not because of any errors by the Board of Assessors, but a former city official who is prominent in financial circles became convinced that the city levy was unnecessarily large, and had a conference with Mayor Adams. He pointed out to His Honor that the amount appropriated in 1895 for city purposes, in excess of debt and interest was $212,426.50, and that the $227,968.00 this year exceeded it less than $16,000, while the State and county tax and debt were less, yet it was proposed to assess for city purposes about $27,000 more than last year. An investigation revealed the fact that the income had been underestimated, and would be at least $12,000 larger. Premium on bonds and interest will amount to $6,000 and the excess of the water receipts over maintenance of department and interests would be about $7,000. With this knowledge it was decided to reduce the levy of $202,500.00, as voted by the City Council to $190,500.00, which is $15,500 in excess of 1895.

To make an even tax rate it was necessary to increase the overlayings a little and the revised figures follow:

Increase in Valuation.

The increase in valuation of the city is shown in the summary below, the gain for the past year being $254,660, and for the eight years of the city $7,822,555.

Year.	Valuation.	Gain.
1888,	$9,757,960	——

Town vs. City.

The comparison of city and town rates is in favor of the town, if we take the average for the eight city years and compare with the last eight of the old town, as will be seen:

TOWN. Year.	Rate.	CITY. Year.	Rate.
1881,	$12 50	1889,	$10 80

Tax Rates in Cities.

Not one-half of the Massachusetts cities have reported their tax rates this year, so no comparison can be made at this time. A few are given below:

	1896.	1895.
Lynn,	$17 40	$17 20
Holyoke,	16 40	16 80
Gloucester,	17 70	16 40

A POSTER ROMANCE.

She posed within a poster gown
Beneath a poster tree;
A poster background wiggled down
Into a poster sea.

I mustered up a poster smile
And said, "Oh, queerest lass,
If you decide it worth your while,
Our troth shall come to pass!"

She viewed me with a poster frown
And cried, "It cannot be;
You have no weird, grotesque renown;
Too plain you are for me."

I wildly dashed upon my wheel;
I scorched it here and there,
Collided, spilled, and, with a squeal,
I heard my garments tear.

All mud and blood and rags I ride
To her who did me fling;
She drooped upon my neck and sighed,
"Ah, now you're just the thing!"

HIS SPANISH GIRL.

I wondered why Barry should be sitting alone in the garden at 10 o'clock on a fine midwinter night. As I remembered him, he had been a sociable sort of fellow, fond of gayety and pretty girls, and there was a cotillon going on indoors in the ballroom. I wondered, too, where his wife was, for he had told me he was married.

It was six years since I had last seen him. We had been boys together, just out of college, and I had visited him for a summer in the southern part of the state, where his home had always been and where his family was one of the few "old" ones which could rightly lay claim to gentility of other than mushroom growth.

After that visit I had gone back to San Francisco and to a truly San Francisco system of work, with the result that my health and spirits had steadily decreased, and at the end of these half dozen years I was obliged to come south for a long rest.

I had chosen this delightful and quiet hotel in the hope that I might not have my peace disturbed by any of my numerous acquaintances, but here, the first thing, came down upon us in our retreat a crowd of wordlings from town, bent on dancing a cotillon. Barry had come with them. Why, then, I repeated, was he not in the ballroom, and where was his wife? Perhaps she did not dance. But, in that case, why was either of them with the frivolous party that was turning our secluded spot into bedlam?

For a moment longer I let my gaze follow a girl in white satin, who had fascinated me. She was very young and brilliant and erect, with the face a painter would have chosen for Olympia's, wreathed in vines and serpents.

A high, unnaturally white forehead, with very black and very straight, thin brows, eyes long and flashing and cruel, a large nose, suggestive of the Hebrew, thin, red lips, continually parted in a wild sort of smile over wonderful teeth; a brilliant color, a long face, black hair, parted and twisted low on one of the most columnar necks I had ever seen.

It was not a beautiful face. In repose it was far from beautiful, but it was rarely in repose, and her laugh was the most bewildering thing imaginable. If she had been the heroine of a romance, men would have loved and hated her to the extent of the shedding of a great deal of blood, but in life today it is hard cash, not women's faces, that accomplish that. I took one last look at the demoniacal young face and then went to hunt up Barry.

We had already met in the office, but had not had time to exchange a dozen words. I wanted to talk over old times and new times, so, when I drew near him, I scraped my feet and coughed, as being the approved method of breaking in upon tetes-a-tetes and meditation, and when he started I said: "Hello! That you, Barry?" and took a seat beside him on the bench. He offered me a cigar and gave me a light, from which I inferred I was not unwelcome.

"What are you doing, mooning under a pepper tree? It seems to me dancing's more in your line, or doesn't the madam dance?"

"Yes; she dances."

"Oh!" I said, and feeling slippery ground, proceeded to avoid it. "Came down from town tonight with the party, didn't you?" I asked.

"Yes."

"Heaps of pretty women."

"Do you think so? I admire your northern women more. They have more distinction too. Ours fade early, besides."

"Well, there's one girl there, by Jove, that makes up for a country of mediocrity—that witch of a flirt with the black hair and the very bare shoulders who is dancing with Thornton. If I didn't happen to have some one I like better in the city, I think I'd go in for her."

"But she's married, my friend."

"No? Who's the proud possessor?"

"I am."

"You don't say? Since when?"

"Since five years ago nearly."

"Well, it's a little late, but permit me to congratulate you. She is superb."

"Thanks." And then we lapsed into silence, and I reflected upon the facility with which a well meaning man may put his foot in it.

"You wonder at my not dancing, don't you?" he said abruptly. "Well, I used to like it. I like it now, but I found Mrs. Barry was already engaged, so there was nothing for me to do but to order flowers gracefully and step out here—to reflect and recall.

"Do you know," he went on, "I had a romantic meeting and parting on this spot once, right under this very tree. It was just after I left you, six years ago—the meeting. I had ridden out from town on Nocturne. You remember her, the little black mare? I was walking her along a road which ran about six feet from here, just about where that Bon Silene bush is (it was before the days of the hotel), when all of a sudden she shied at what looked like a bundle of old clothes under this tree. No, no; I wasn't thrown, and I wasn't rescued by the heroine. It was not much of a shy, just enough to make me look again at the bundle and wonder what it was—it was dusk, you know—and then to notice that the bundle moved.

"Wherefore I concluded it was a woman, probably a Mexican. It was a woman, or a very young girl, rather, and a deuced pretty one—a Mexican too. I could see that, even in the twilight, for her eyes gleamed in the dark as only a pair of Mexican eyes can gleam, and there was an added brightness, for the eyes were wet with tears. How do I know? I dismounted and found out, of course. It isn't likely I was going to see a woman prone on the ground a long way from the nearest habitation at nightfall and yet not offer her any assistance in my power.

"Well, as I said, she was crying stormily, and I set about finding out why. She told a most blood curdling tale of parental cruelty. It wasn't true. I've found that out since. She was only 16, but she could tell an extraordinarily good lie. As a matter of fact, she had found that a particular flame of hers was going to take another girl to some shindy. But the cruel treatment story did nicely, and I comforted her—she was such a mere child, I honestly thought. The lie was innocent enough. They aren't taught to think a falsehood anything serious. She was just a trifle shy and shrinking, like a little girl who puts her hands behind her and lowers her lashes at the advances of a stranger. In fact, that is exactly what she did. You should have seen those lashes. You'd have been just as big a fool as I was and have staid until the moon rose and made an appointment for another meeting, and eventually you'd have fallen as badly in love as I did.

"We always met under this tree. It was on her father's land, but quite out of sight of the house. She said that if he were to find us together he would redouble his brutality, but I assured her that if we were discovered we would run off at once and get married. The child was in one of her acquiescent moods and lowered her eyes and agreed. Of course I could only manage to get away on Saturday evenings or Sundays—this is the anniversary of our meeting, by the bye; you see I cling to old memories—but we made the most of our time. I never had been so infatuated as I was with that Spanish child, with her tawdry, bright frocks, her shy ways, her gorgeous eyes and her broken English. She really was Spanish and not Mexican, I learned."

"They all are," I ventured.

"I know, but your sarcasm is wasted. In this case it was beyond question, and there was American blood in her veins, too—a little of it.

"I insisted upon running away with her and getting married at sea, and, after no end of refusals, she finally consented. Oh, I was far too smitten, too ensnared, to have it occur to me then how a match of the sort would hamper my career; how an ignorant country girl would prove a thorn in my flesh in the critical town clique; what a social drag she would be upon me! I knew the family would raise particular Cain, but when a man wants to marry in spite of his family he is apt to look upon it as a small stone to be kicked out of his path, and it takes him some time to discover that his pebble is a good sized bowlder.

"But we quarreled." A long pause, while Barry lit another cigar from the old one and puffed it into glowing. I kept silence, and after awhile he went on: "You may think most women are fiery, but you should try a Spaniard. She got the cruel father—a harmless, shriveled up old fellow—to take her into town behind one of his trotters one day. She wanted to buy a gown, which she told him was for some kind of a baile out here, but it was really to get married in. I had brought her a sample of the stuff I wanted her to get; otherwise she'd have appeared in pink and green and white lace beyond a doubt.

"Well, she saw me on the street with a city girl. I believe it was Nora Clarke. You remember her? She was the merest acquaintance, as you know, and I treated her as one does any woman one happens to meet. We passed a confectioner's, and I, naturally enough, asked her to have some soda water. I don't suppose I'd have done it if I'd known that Ysadora was around, simply because I was aware that she wouldn't take it as an American fiancee would have done.

"But she was around, and she thought I was doing the deadly devoted, so the next Saturday, when we were to have run away, she met me with reproaches and tears and deviltry generally. She wouldn't listen to reason. She tore up the new gown and refused ever to marry me or any other man, and she used some strong but musical Spanish. I fancy she was more jealous than hurt, but I—well, I was completely done up. To say that she looked more beautiful than ever would be to put it weakly. When I saw her disappear for good over behind that clump of eucalyptus, I was on the verge of suicide. Pity I stopped at the verge.

"The fellow who has since built the hotel bought this spot, that saw our meeting and our parting, when her old father died, a year or so later.

"You came along just as I was going over old memories and wishing—I suppose I should not say it—wishing that it were six years ago, and that I was still blindly infatuated with my Spanish sweetheart of 16."

I am not fond of the modern unfinished story. I want to see the heroine laid in her grave by a host of weeping grandchildren, and the hero following her contentedly soon after, so I asked, "But what became of the girl?"

"Nothing ever 'becomes' in real life," he answered.

"Where is she now?" I persisted.

"In the ballroom, dancing the cotillon with Thornton."

"Then"—

"Yes. We made it up after her father's death and were married—on dry land—and have lived happily ever after," he added, shrugging his shoulders and throwing away his cigar.—Gwendolen Overton in San Francisco Argonaut.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 23. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The duty and joy of church membership.—Math. x, 16-33.

The word "church" is generally supposed to have been derived from a Greek word meaning "belonging to the Lord." In all probability, however, it comes from a word meaning "circle," because the congregations were gathered in circles. In the gospel we learn that Christ came to the earth to establish His kingdom, which was to take the place of the Jewish church. This was done on the day of Pentecost. The individual followers of Christ were united under certain conditions into an organization, which was called the church, to which it has since been a duty and a joy for Christ's followers to belong.

1. The duty of church membership. (1) Church membership is a duty because it is commanded. Christ, the head and founder of the church, commands it. He commands us to confess Him, and His church is the proper and established church in which to make this confession. We are looked upon as Christians or not Christians in our relation to the church. The world does not look upon us as Christians unless we are united with the church, and, therefore, our influence is against Christ rather than for Him. (2) Church membership is a duty because in it are the ordinances of Christ, which all Christians are commanded to keep. These ordinances are baptism and the Lord's supper. The church was commanded to baptize and to administer the Lord's supper. All Christians are commanded to observe these ordinances. We cannot observe them except by union with the church. (3) Church membership is a duty because it is necessary to our highest spiritual development. If the church had not been necessary for our growth in grace it would not have been instituted. God never does anything that is unnecessary. The fact of its existence and the experience of the best Christian people testify to its necessity for spiritual growth, and, therefore, the duty of belonging to it.

2. The joy of church membership. (1) It is a joy because by it we do our duty to God and to Christ our Saviour. Performance of duty always brings peace and joy as its reward. (2) It is a joy because of the Christian fellowship it brings. Fellowship and association with the saints are a joy unsurpassed in this life. (3) It is a joy because it opens up avenues of usefulness. We are happiest when busiest. The church gives us the opportunity of working for God, and thus brings joy to us.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xxvi, 8; lxxxiv, 1-12; cxxii, 1-9; Math. xvi, 13-20; Mark viii, 27-29; John ix, 22; xii, 42, 43; Acts ii, 41-47; Rom. x, 8-11; Eph. i, 22, 23; Col. i, 23, 24; I Tim. iii, 14, 15; II Tim. ii, 11, 12; I John ii, 23; iv, 1-3.

Consecration's Triumph.

Christian England laughed when Sydney Smith sneered at William Carey as a "consecrated cobbler," going out on a fool's errand to convert the heathen. Carey died, aged 73 years. He was visited on his deathbed by the bishop of India, the head of the church of England in that land, who bowed his head and invoked the blessing of the dying missionary. The British authorities had denied to Carey a landing place on his first arrival in Bengal, but when he died the government dropped all its flags to half mast in honor of a man who had done more for India than any of her generals.—Christian Instructor.

Christian Endeavorers on the Railroad.

There is a Christian Endeavorer in the west who is a railroad conductor. In his train he has placed a paper rack which he keeps supplied with religious literature. These papers have afforded him an opportunity for personal work with the passengers. Fellow workmen and a number of passengers, including several traveling salesmen, have been led into the better life. All but one of the members of the crew on this train are Christians, and among them is a male quartet. While the train is waiting for orders at stations the men have gospel song services, which many persons gather to hear.

God Exists.

God exists, and truth and duty, as well as faith and love, are found in all religions, and are not dependent upon any one. The soul itself makes revelations, hears voices, recognizes authority, finds obligations and sees with a light older than Christianity, and which will shine clear though Christianity were discredited or forgotten.—John Learned.

What We Have Most to Fear.

The thing we have most to fear from is not the liveliness of the sinners, but the deadness of the saints—that remoteness from God; that inexperience of the great realities that makes God a name and a report rather than a felt person, and the superb verities, the possession of the few rather than the realization of the many.—Dr. Parkhurst.

Those Nearest to Us.

It is they who are nearest to us and whose affection for us is the greatest, who are rendered happy by the daily courtesies. Graciousness of manners is of great worth in the world of strangers. It is of greater worth in the world of home.—Central Christian Advocate.

The Master's Voice.

Have ye looked for the sheep in the desert,
For those who have missed their way?
Have ye been in the wild waste places,
Where the lost and the wandering stray?
Have ye trodden the lonely pathway,
The foul and the darksome street?
It may be ye'd see in the gloaming
The print of My wounded feet.

Have ye folded home to your bosom
The trembling, neglected lamb,
And taught to the little lost one
The sound of the Shepherd's name?
Have ye searched for the poor and needy,
With no clothing, no home, no bread?
The Son of Man was among them—
He had nowhere to lay His head.
—Christian Intelligencer.

STILL UNSETTLED.

No Immediate Prospect of Any Great Increase In Business.

New York, Aug. 22.—Bradstreet's says: General trade throughout the United States is practically confined to staple lines. The volume of business is no larger. Where orders have increased in number, they are smaller in size. In almost all instances they are based on nearby requirements. The feature of the week is the increased difficulty in making collections, and the higher rates for mercantile discounts. Credits are being scanned more closely than heretofore, and are granted less freely. Chicago bankers are slow to make loans, except to move the crops, and Chicago bank deposits are decreasing; foreign banks there demand gold notes. Portland, Or., announces that many coast bankers are restricting loans, with the natural effect on trade. At Buffalo, Fittsburg, Charleston, Cincinnati and Galveston, mercantile collections are slower than before. Business in South Carolina is retarded by drought, and in north Louisiana, Texas, southern Arkansas and Mississippi prolonged drought has so interfered with business in some sections that it amounts to a calamity. Some northwestern lumber mills have shut down, owing to low prices, and difficulty in obtaining money, while demand for woolens, for spring delivery, is not yet sufficient to start up machinery.

Gross and net railway earnings, for the first half of 1896, show the effect of unsettled trade and financial conditions, in only moderate gains over the corresponding period last year.

Bank clearings throughout the United States amount to only $813,000,000 this week, almost exactly the same total reported for the third week of August, 1894, when the volume of trade was very small. Compared with last week, this week's total shows a decrease of 4.2 per cent, and contrasted with the week one year ago the falling off is almost 10 per cent. Reactions in prices for staples continue prominent, with wool, lard, sugar, coffee, hides and lumber lower, and flower and Indian corn unchanged. Cotton is higher on reduced estimates of the probable size of the crop. Wheat and oats and pork and petroleum are also higher.

Wheat exports continue well maintained, total shipments from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week, (flour included as wheat) amounting to 2,991,693 bushels, against 2,635,000 bushels last week, and as compared with 2,389,000 bushels in the week a year ago, and with 3,182,000 bushels two years ago.

All Men of Note.

Saratoga, Aug. 22.—Chauncey M. Depew last night presided at the banquet of the American Bar association, which was enjoyed by about 260 distinguished personages, in the Grand Union hotel ballroom. Mr. Depew, as toastmaster, made some brief opening remarks, and offered as a toast, "the Lord Chief Justice of England," which was responded to by Lord Russell. The next toast was "The American Bar association," which was replied to by retiring President Storey of Boston, under whose administration was held the most successful and celebrated meeting in the history of the association. Sir Francis Lockwood responded to "The wit of the English bar." James M. Beck of Philadelphia, James C. Carter, and Bourke Corkran of New York, were also called upon, and their utterances rounded out one of the most famous banquets ever held at Saratoga.

Murder and Mutilation.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 22.—Dallas Bruce, a white man, who lives 25 miles from here, attended the recent Confederate reunion in Richmond, and then disappeared. His absence caused comment, but for some time no search was made for him. He was separated from his wife, and had been living with a negro woman in the neighborhood. A few days ago a search was begun by his friends, which has just resulted in finding his body cut into pieces and packed in several pickle barrels at the house of his negro mistress.

Money For Veterans.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The secretary of the interior has made a request on the treasury for $9,015,000, to be used in the quarterly payment of pensions next month. The amount, by agencies, follows: Columbus, O., $3,700,000; Washington, $1,975,000; Boston, $1,840,000; Augusta, Me., $775,000; San Francisco, $725,000.

COUNSELS PRUDENCE.

London Times Sees Danger In Investing In "Promissory Notes."

China Wants Much, but Offers Nothing In Return.

Conclusions Drawn From Li Hung Chang's Visit to "the World's Workshop."

London, Aug. 22. — The Times this morning publishes a long article and an editorial dealing with Li Hung Chang's visit to England. Among other things The Times says: Li Hung Chang affects a pained surprise because of Lord Salisbury's failure to quickly agree to his proposition for a revision of the tariff now in force in the trade between China and England. It is understood that Lord Salisbury does not oppose the principle of revision, but that he wants to ascertain the views of the members of the chamber of commerce at Shanghai and elsewhere upon the subject of the details relating to the proposed changes.

In an interview, Lord Salisbury said that Li Hung Chang argued that England had not hesitated to agree to an increase in tariff in the case of Japan without asking for any equivalent, therefore the Chinese diplomat was of the opinion that it would only be an act of justice for England to do the same by China, and although Li Hung Chang favors freeing the whole of the Chinese seaports to foreign commerce, he could not offer that as a compensation for a just concession already given Japan. Li Hung Chang insinuated that Lord Salisbury's reluctance upon this point would hinder all possibilities of Chinese progress in the matter of trade and commerce.

The article concludes, however, that England, immediately after the raising of the tariff, could obtain a proclamation opening the seaports, as above indicated. But the idea that China would abandon likin (or inland) duties, in exchange for the increase of the tariff to the Japanese level, will not be entertained. Likin duties would only be abolished for some still higher tax at the treaty ports than even the 10 per cent, as is now being done in the case of opium.

The Times publishes Li Hung Chang's own words, thanking the people of Great Britain for the unexpected hospitality shown him. He says he will tell his emperor, and his country, of the remarkable success achieved by England; how the people of England have adopted a policy of working up raw material, until this island has become the world's workshop. Li Hung Chang added, that China desired to make the utmost progress in the policy of supplying that workshop with raw material, so that China, too, may become a power combining wealth and strength in the highest degree.

The article, which is published by The Times, is said to represent Li Hung Chang's attitude in the matter of trade and commerce between Great Britain and China, and asks if it is a sound policy for the country hoping the most from China's development, to first veto, and then grudgingly grant her demands.

In its editorial column, The Times regards the matter from the contrary view point. It says Li Hung Chang offers no compensation for his demands, simply because he was not empowered to offer anything, and even admitting that he is the only man powerful to carry out reforms of the nature indicated, it behooves England to be prudent before investing in such promissory notes.

Non-Union Men Out of Work.

Pittsburg, Aug. 22.—Notices were posted yesterday in the South Side factories of the United States Glass company, now operating, announcing an indefinite shutdown. Individual notices were given the non-union workmen, employed by the company since it locked out the American Flint Glass Workers' union members, three years ago, that their services would not likely be needed again, and in the absence of definite assurance of future employment, the men were advised to take work elsewhere if they can find it. This may mean the beginning of the end of one of the greatest industrial conflicts ever fought in this country, and it is probable that the factories of the company throughout the country will be open again to union workmen, and the long lockout terminated. The notice of dismissal was wholly unexpected by the non-union men, and has greatly angered them.

Coal Miners Go Out.

Columbus, O., Aug. 22.—A telegram was received at the headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America here from State President Ratchford at Shawnee, stating that the entire force of miners working under the lease system in that valley, numbering 1000, quit yesterday at the order of the state convention of miners, held here a week ago. The strike will continue there and elsewhere until the scale of wages is paid everywhere in the state.

Nansen Joins Comrades.

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 22.—Explorer Nansen was given an enthusiastic reception, when he arrived here on the yacht Otaria yesterday. O'Sullivan Introduces New Campaign Methods at a Lowell Rally.

Red Hook, N. Y., Aug. 22.—It was said here yesterday, on very good authority, that Senator Hill would take part in the demonstration in honor of Mr. Bryan, at Albany, on Tuesday night. The statement needs authentication, however. The reception of a letter from Leader Sheehan of Tammany, asking Mr. Bryan to speak in New York, added another chain to the circumstances leading up to proof of a thorough understanding between Mr. Bryan and the New York Democracy. The statement Mr. Croker had approved of Mr. Sheehan's and Tammany's course, in endosing Bryan, caused the candidate a great deal of satisfaction, and he said that he had always believed that all the great leaders would fall into line, except perhaps those who had financial interests with the gold side of the issue, intimating that the leaders in the gold Democratic movement had mercenary interesst.

Congressman Sulzer arrived here last night, and was closeted with Mr. Bryan for about three-quarters of an hour. He brought with him Professor Van Buren Densloe, formerly a professor in Chicago university, and now a writer of silver literature. When the conference was over, Mr. Sulzer said that he could not divulge the reason for his visit, except that Professor Densloe desired to visit Mr. Bryan. Despite all pressure, Mr. Sulzer insisted that he had nothing to communicate.

Mr. Bryan's speech at Tivoli is expected to be delivered to 5000 or 6000 people, and Mr. Bryan's preparation would seem to indicate that it will be the greatest effort made since the Madison Square Garden speech. It will be political in its tone, and will perhaps attempt to answer in part the speech of Mr. Cockran.

HARRITY OUT OF IT.

Northwest and South Should Name Standard Bearers For Gold Democrats.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The Pennsylvania friends of William F. Harrity of the Democratic national committee do not believe that he will consent to have his name presented in the Indianapolis convention as a candidate for the presidency. For that reason they do not look with favor upon the suggestion made in Chicago, Washington and New York that Mr. Harrity of Pennsylvania and Daniel Lawler of Minnesota should constitute the Democratic gold standard ticket. Mr. Harrity himself declares he is out of politics, and will not discuss the matter, but those of his friends who are supporting the movement for a gold ticket claim that the strongest ticket that could be made would consist of a candidate from one of the northwestern states for the presidency, and one from the southern states for the vice presidency. The names of Bragg of Wisconsin and Buckner of Kentucky are regarded by them as particularly strong.

ALL HIS OWN WAY.

O'Sullivan's Personally Conducted Rally Froves to Be Entertaining.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 22.—Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan burned his own red fire last night, and conducted his own rally. He was the reception committee, chairman, and the only speaker, and his rally was a rouser. Huntington hall was filled to the doors. A parade was held before the meeting, also personally conducted by Mr. O'Sullivan. He passed out the red fire, and the roman candles, with his own hands, and had his coattail singed by a boy, whom he had walk beside his open barouche, carrying red fire. A carload of Lawrence men came up with red fire. They did nothing but yell for Mr. O'Sullivan all evening, and the latter richly enjoyed it. His speech was not delivered from manuscript. It was rambling, at times, but of tenor straight to the point, and it caught the crowd. It was a study of politics, and brim full of local hits upon various persons and topics, and some of his ideas on the silver question were quite radical.

Concerning New England.

New York, Aug. 22.—Among the callers at Republican headquarters yesterday was Major J. H. Gould, ex-chairman of the Massachusetts Republican state committee, and now president of the Massachusetts Republican State league, and member of the executive committee of the Republican league of the United States. "The prospects in New England were never better," said he. "There has been but little disaffection in our ranks on account of free silver, and, on the other hand, a great many Democrats have enrolled under our standard. Massachusetts is all right for the Republicans, and I think the same may be said for the other New England states. The Republicans there are united, while the Democracy is split from stem to stern, the better element being for sound money."

Hisses Didn't Bother Tillman.

Mt. Gretna, Pa., Aug. 22.—The farmers' encampment at this place, yesterday, was enlivened by the presence of Senator Tillman, who spoke on the money question. He denied the charges of some of the eastern papers, that he is a Populist. He said: "I am a Democrat, a Democrat of the stamp of Jefferson and Jackson." He advised the farmers to read their histories, "and they would then know that Lincoln, if he was alive, would be on the side of silver." This statement brought forth hisses. Nothing daunted, however, Senator Tillman continued, and said he would like to meet Bourke Cockran, and refute some of the statements made by him.

Bland a Drawing Card.

Laurel, Md., Aug. 22. — The Democratic national campaign in this state was opened in this city, the home of Senator Gorman, last night, ex-Congressman Bland of Missouri being the principal attraction. Mr. Bland was received with great enthusiasm by the large crowd present, and his speech, which was mainly devoted to replying to arguments against the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, was loudly and frequently applauded.

Our Water Supply.

While other cities and towns are fearful of their water supply, Superintendent Cavanagh does not think there is any occasion for alarm in Quincy. Up to three weeks ago the water in the reservoir was below that of last year at the same time, but since then the water has been higher than last year. A year ago at this time the water was five feet, six inches below the overflow, while this year it is but five feet below, which means we have six inches more water than last year. The lowest point last year was reached Oct. 8, when the water was five feet eight inches below the overflow.

High Taxes.

A prominent citizen of Wollaston writes to the Quincy DAILY LEDGER as follows:

"The blame for the tremendous tax rate should be placed where it belongs,—on our Councils. When a body of men get together and vote away money almost recklessly in some instances, it is little wonder that the tax rate goes ahead of nearly every city in the Commonwealth. The writer has known some councilmen to actually boast that they never opposed an order appropriating money, invariably voting 'yes.' That tells the story. It seems from an outside point of view as if our councilmen did not care how or where the money was coming from to pay for their extravagance."

Bicycle Collisions.

Friday afternoon Inspector McKay and Officer Connolly mounted their wheels and started toward Milton. After mounting Rice's hill they had a trial of speed. As they were spinning along Connolly saw another man on a wheel coming toward him. He shouted to the fellow to keep out of the way as he was unable to manage his wheel. The stranger tried to oblige Connolly but he was unable to do so, and as a result they came together, and when the dust had settled the guardian of the peace and the stranger were badly tangled up in their wheels.

Quite a serious bicycle accident took place at Braintree last night, caused by two men coming together in a head on collision. The names of the two men could not be learned, but one is said to be employed by Dr. Dearing, and the other to reside at South Quincy. The Quincy man got a bad cut in the head and was completely knocked out, while the Braintree man had a shoulder dislocated and his nose broken.

The play at the Wollaston golf links this afternoon is a bogie match.

J. Percy Sears leaves today for a brief business trip to Cleveland, Onio.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Penniman are to move from Canal street to Orchard place.

Mr. A. L. Baker of Wollaston bagged a large number of peep at Squantum yesterday.

Mr. Walter Howe, butcher for Rogers Bros., leaves tonight on a week's vacation trip to Chatham.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Committee will be held on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock.

The Sharon Advocate reports rattlesnakes to be plenty in Randolph and Quincy, and asks, where is brother Faxon?

The free water show at Quincy Point tonight will attract thousands. It is a good show and well worth going to see.

The Revere club open races this afternoon will take in our Quincy boats, which this summer are about the liveliest crafts in our waters.

The Democratic caucus for the election of delegates to all but the Representive conventions will be held Sept. 11, while the Representative caucuses will be held Oct. 3.

Every Wednesday the young ladies connected with the flower mission, Atlantic, carry a large number of boquets to Boston to distribute. This week they went again to South Boston.

The pretty cottage on Coddington street near to the school house, owned by Henry H. Faxon, is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Bradford of Westerly, R. I., with their son, Mr. Clifford Bradford, who is organist of the Orthodox church. Mr. Bradford is also a teacher of the piano and of oil painting, and his father is also an artist.

There will be religious services in Gospel tent in Fletcher's field near the City Hospital, on Sunday at 3 P. M., conducted by different ministers. There will also be a meeting at 7 P. M., which will be continued every night during the week. All are cordially invited. Good singing and speaking.

The tower wagon of the Quincy and Boston street railway created quite a little excitement on Tuesday morning by getting on fire while standing near the fountain. A coal fire, a quantity of charcoal, and a kerosene can in some way became mixed in such a manner that for a few moments it seemed that the fire department might be needed. Help however was at hand without ringing the bells, and the fire was subdued without much damage.—Weymouth Gazette.

—Chestertown, Md., has found kerosene effective in getting rid of mosquitoes. Some citizens, says a resident, had experimented with coal oil as a remedy, and were surprised at the effectiveness of the liquid. The attention of the authorities was called to the matter, and after a series of tests the people were given official notice that everybody should pour a little coal oil in rain barrels, stagnant pools and wherever water had collected. No great quantity of oil is required. A teaspoonful is sufficient for a barrel of water. The diminution in the number of mosquitoes was easily noticeable, and now the pest has been almost gotten rid of.

—The excavations in Pompeii have just brought to light two bronze statuettes—one of a hare and the other of a serpent—that evidently served as ornaments on a fountain. Several bronze vessels have also been unearthed.

—A Wall street broker has borrowed $53,000 and bought silver bullion at the market price. If Bryan is elected on Nov. 3 and a free coinage law passed, the Wall street man expects to turn his silver into the mint and have it coined into $100,000 worth of silver dollars. He will then pay his loan, with interest, and will have made about $45,000 on the transaction. Who will lose this $45,000 which the silver speculator will have gained? Every man who votes for Bryan will contribute to it.—Milford Journal.

—The Ploughman says, the Boston market does not take kindly to yellow or white native fruit, even though the flavor be superior. Bright red apples, strawberries, raspberries and currants bring the highest prices and meet with readiest sale. Pears and quinces are an exception, because there is no well-known red kind.

BRAINTREE.

Conductor Paul Jackson, of Monatiquot avenue, is not only a popular conductor but he has developed a natural taste for cooking. Last Sunday morning he made one of his famous clam chowders, and his neighbors who were invited to partake of it can testify to its excellence.

About sixty attended a meeting held in East Braintree Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a Bryan and Sewall club. The meeting was addressed by Col. A. C. Drinkwater and Hon. F. A. Hobart. After which sixteen expressed a desire to organize.

Mr. Ellsworth will preach in Scituate tomorrow.

The Republican town committee will meet next week.

The many friends of Miss Brooks, one of our popular teachers, will be glad to know she is recovering.

The steam roller has finished its work on Washington street, and Mr. Ellis, who has had charge of the work, left for his home in New Bedford Friday afternoon.

The Braintree brass band are progressing finely and soon we shall have music in the air. They have secured a Mr. Harlow of Brockton for leader.

The funeral of Mr. Elisha Saville took place at his late home on West street, Tuesday afternoon. Rev. W. H. Walter officiating. Mr. Saville was one of the oldest citizens of Braintree having been born in the house where he always lived. He died at the age of seventy-seven years. He was an old time shoemaker by trade. A man of mechanical ability, a broad and liberal thinker, and a man respected in the community.

The Water Commissioners met the State Board of Health Thursday and it was arranged that a map should be prepared showing the whole water shed around Little pond. This work is to be done by Superintendent Maybury.

Rev. Fr. Johnstone is very much liked by the members of St. Francis' church. He will speak to them to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

A large delegation from St. Francis' church attended the lawn party in Quincy on Wednesday, and the young ladies had great sport with the donkeys.

Rev. D. Littlefield of North Abington will preach in the Baptist church on Sunday morning, and Rev. J. H. Childs of Northbridge in the evening.

Autumna lodge, L. K. and L., are expecting to enjoy a fish dinner, and the usual extras, at the Arlington house, Nantasket beach, on Thursday next.

The M. E. Sabbath school and friends enjoyed Wednesday in the grove near the Town Hall. Refreshments were plenty and all present had a good time.

Routes and Rates for Summer Tours.

The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. illustrated book, "Routes and Rates for Summer Tours," published for gratuitous distribution, will be mailed to any address, upon receipt of 10 cents for postage, on application to Theo. Butterfield, General Passenger Agent, Syracuse, N. Y.

This book is exceedingly handsome and has many new features this year. It contains 100 new, beautiful half-tone illustrations of the principal scenery in the county described by the book. These pictures are faithful reproductions of actual scenes.

The book has 150 illustrations, seven very valuable maps, a list of 800 hotels and boarding houses, and routes and rates for 600 combination tours. It is the handsomest book of its character published, and describes all the country from Niagara Falls east to the Atlantic Ocean, including the St. Lawrence River, Canada, White Mountains, Green Mountains, Adirondack Mountains, and the sea-coast resorts of Maine and New England. 10t

—Our thanks are due the Star tea and coffee store, No. 2 Faxon Block, for samples of their tea and coffee, which we have found to be of fine quality; equal to anything we have tried for many a day. We learn that they are giving those who call a sample of their tea to take home and try. They advertise the finest grade of goods at reasonable prices.

—The money question is settled without the need of going to the polls, if one may believe Dr. S. H. Emmens, the inventor of explosives. He asserts that he can easily transmute silver into gold and that a laboratory is about to be established near New York to supply trade with the re-born product. He calls the two metals but different forms of the same substance, neither being an elementary body. In a campaign of elementary education this fact is important. All that is necessary is to dissolve silver and let the particles aggregate again as gold. This is Emmense. Seriously though, this story has been heard many times in the world. It is therefore not surprising that the story is again heard, now.—Boston Record.

☞ Those iron beds that Guy & Shaw are selling will please you, and it is a fact that they are selling rag carpets at half price. This is the season of the year when they give their customers lots of bargains.

—There is an abundance of peaches on the market, far exceeding the demand, which is small owing to the quality of the fruit. In fact the quality is so poor that the public will not buy, hoping for something better. The men who have bought peaches in Deleware for shipment to Boston have generally lost money on them. One dealer sold a car-load the other day which averaged only sixty-five cents a basket, while the freight and frigeration alone cost him forty cents a basket.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

SHED AND QUARRY.

Most of the Granite Firms Would Like More Work.

Some Manufacturers However Not Finding Fault.

The Shipments of July in Excess of Those of June.

The granite business in Quincy cannot be said to be rushing just at present, for the fact is that there is no firm but could do and would be very glad to have more to do than they now have, and unless business takes a decided turn for the better very soon, there are several firms who must shut down for a while at least. These are the bare facts in the case. Business is always dull at this season of the year, but in years past the most of the firms were enabled to secure orders enough to carry them through the summer. The manufacturers are however, by no means discouraged and the general impression seems to be that after the present political issues are settled that business will be better.

The Merrymount Granite Co., report that among their new orders is a large half draped urn with a 5x5 base, and a sarcophagus job with a 8x4 6 base. Both are to be of Quincy granite and are for New York parties.

F. Craig & Co. report that they have caught up with what orders they had and are now waiting for something to turn up.

Fred Barnicoat has recently booked orders for a number of statues, among which are two of the "Angel of Peace" and four eight feet statues representing "Faith," "Hope," "Charity" and "Memory" for the Moriarty memorial.

Joss Brothers Co., report that they have a good supply of orders on hand but none that are out of the ordinary run.

The granite shipments for July were as follows: Quincy Adams, 8,079,995 pounds; West Quincy, 6,002,470 pounds; Quarry railroad, 10,082,400 pounds. These shipments show quite an increase from Quincy Adams and West Quincy, over the previous months.

A. M. Dean & Co. have quite a lot of orders on hand for medium-sized work and they are not finding much fault.

C. H. Hardwick & Co. report having quite a lot of medium-sized work on hand and that they are quite busy in their quarry.

John F. Desmond is cutting a handsome coping job, with corner posts, to fit a lot 29-9x20. He also has quite a batch of orders for other work.

Herbert W. Beattie has secured the order for the modeled decorations for the interior of the house now being erected by A. J. Gregory, of Fredickton, N. B. The walls and ceiling are to be modelled in the Elizabethan style, panelled off in such a way as to suggest the hand of Gibbons.

Badger Bros. report business a little quiet at present, but they are looking for an early improvement.

Prout Bros. Co., have recently shipped a large boulder job to Forest Hills. On the face was a polished panel for inscriptions. They report business as good at their quarry.

McDonnell Bros., have quite a lot of ordinary work on hand. They also have an order for a good sides cross job of Quincy granite for New York parties, and an order for a sarcophagus monument for Kentucky parties, the base of which is 5-2 x 2-10.

The Granite Railway C., are furnishing the stone for the Providence Institution of Savings to be erected at Providence, R. I.

T. F. Mannex is now employing 52 cutters. He thinks that business is nearly as good as in previous years at the same period.

The Craig & Richards Granite Co., have one of the finest display yards in the city, showing as they do over $40,000 worth of finished work, among which is a beautiful statue of "Faith," cut from Concord granite. Another monument set up prior to shipment is the Joyce memorial, which is of dark Quincy granite, nearly all polished, surmounted by a marble statue of a mother and daughter. They have also set up this month prior to shipment the Hoffman memorial.

Autumn in the Green Mountains.

Two of the most enjoyable months of the year in Vermont are September and October. In June the hills and valleys are rich in the deep, yet brilliant, tinge of their verdure and every feature of the landscape is indicative of a fullness of life that is intoxicating to the senses. In the more ardent summer months visitors are attracted by the cooling lake breezes, the refreshing shades and the opportunities for indulging in health-giving sports; but it remains for the Vermont autumn to furnish a fitting climax to the season's attractions.

With the last days of September the foliage on the "green hills" begins to put on its more pronounced and attractive tints and soon one can look in no direction without seeing the most beautiful leaf-pictures in crimson and emerald, gold and brown of varied hues. To scenes which charm and captivate the eye is added an atmosphere that is in itself a tonic and it is little wonder that many of the summer visitors to Vermont remain during the month of September and some until far into October. This year the Central Vermont railroad offers special inducements to persons desiring to see the Green Mountains in all their autumn glories in the form of reduced rate round-trip tickets, good going to Vermont until September 1, and good returning anytime up to the first of November.

M'Ettrick Will Run.

Ex-Congressman M'Ettrick announces his determination to become a candidate for Congress in the Tenth District. He will become the Free Silver Democratic candidate, but will not make a fight at the caucuses. If he does not receive the regular Democratic nomination he will run as an Independent. Ex Senator McNary's friends will make a strong fight to control the caucuses, and the Democrats will probably have two candidates.—Journal.

Sales Talk

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than accorded any other proprietary medicine. This is simply because it possesses greater merit and produces greater cures than any other. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story. All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest. We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have abiding confidence in it, and buy

DYNAMITER AND HERO.

John Daly Was Elected to Parliament While In Portland Prison.

John Daly and three other dynamiters —Devaney, Whitehead and Gallagher— have been released from the British prison to which they were sent under life sentences for participation in the dynamite war of a dozen years ago. They are set free as dying men, as it understood that they could have lived in prison but a few months longer. They will probably come to this country if they are able, as most of their compatriots and fellow conspirators have done.

Daly was arrested at Birkenhead April 11, 1884, having been found with two dynamite bombs in his possession. On the same day James F. Eagan, with whom Daly lived, was also arrested. They were arrested under the explosives act, but as this carried with it a maximum sentence of only two years a special law, which was used to convict James Mitchell in 1848, was called into service. They were convicted of treason-felony. Daly was sentenced for life and Eagan for 20 years. Eagan was released in January, 1893, and came to this country as a delegate from the Amnesty association of Great Britain, which position he still holds.

Daly has been in ill health almost from the time that he was incarcerated. For seven years he was held in Chatham prison and was then transferred to Portland prison. All through his imprisonment he has remained a hero among the Irish people. At the last general election he was elected without opposition to represent Limerick in parliament and was immediately elected sheriff by the Limerick aldermen. Of course his election to Parliament was declared void, as he could not serve, and a warrant for another election was issued.

Dr. Thomas Gallagher and Albert George Whitehead, who were set free at the same time as Daly, are both American citizens. They were arrested in London in company with two other alleged dynamiters early in 1883, soon after the dynamite explosions in the Parliament buildings. They were speedily convicted of treason-felony and sentenced to life imprisonment.

There are still 12 political prisoners, all Irishmen, accused of being implicated in dynamite plots, in British prisons, and Mr. Eagan expects that the efforts of the Amnesty society will soon result in the release of all of them.

FARMER LEEDY.

Record of the Fusion Candidate For Governor of Kansas.

J. W. Leedy, who is the nominee of the Populists and Democrats for governor of Kansas, is a genuine farmer candidate and a new figure in political affairs. Until four years ago he took but little interest in politics of either the state or the nation beyond going regularly to the polls on election day and casting his vote for the Democratic ticket regardless of the men selected. But in 1892 he was nominated by the Populists for the state senate. He accepted with some hesitation, but when once fairly in the fight he went to work with a will and discovered, much to his own amazement, that he could make a rattling political speech. He kept on making speeches with such success that he was elected by a handsome majority. He was a member of the legislature of 1893, which caused such a sensation by its division, and he there won the reputation of being one of the best debaters in the state.

Mr. Leedy was born in Richmond county, O., about 47 years ago and removed to Kansas in 1881. He was reared on a farm and when he reached man's estate became a farmer himself. When he settled in Kansas, he bought a farm in Coffee county and tried to make a living by raising wheat and corn at starvation prices. About three years ago he moved to Leroy, Kan., and began to deal in live stock. When the Missouri Pacific extended its lines into that part of the state, Mr. Leedy was employed in the construction department of the road. He says he intends to make a lively campaign and will probably deliver many speeches while he is stumping the state.

THE SEASON'S DANGER.

How One of the Greatest Can Be Removed.

A Time-Tested Remedy Editorially Recommended.

Some time ago The Congregationalist broke its usual rule and gave an editorial endorsement of Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam. It did this because the experience of many New England people had shown that Arnold's Balsam was a safe and certain remedy for cholera, cholera morbus and other summer complaints, which every year threatened the health of the community.

The records show that many lives, especially of children, are annually saved by this time-tested medicine. It has been an instrument of mercy in the hands of many missionaries to foreign lands, and in Massachusetts, Arnold's Balsam has become an honored household name.

Letters like the following show why:

Messrs. Gilman Bros.: "My boy, about 4 years old, was taken sick with diarrhoea, which became to be the worst kind of chronic diarrhoea, reducing him very much. We had taken medicine from a number of doctors, all to no avail, and had about given up all hopes of his ever being being any better, when I was advised to try Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam for the cure of bowel complaints. I got a bottle and gave him the medicine according to the directions. After taking the third dose we saw very decided improvement, and before he had taken up the contents of the second bottle he was entirely cured, being better than he ever was before." O. B. Crane.

Six O'Clock Crowd Around Plants' Factory Was Disappointed.

Non-Union Men Went Through Usual Experience.

Text of Letter Purporting to Have Been Sent Out by the Plants.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 22.—Those who anticipated that the scenes of Thursday evening's demonstration would be repeated last evening, in connection with the Plant company's lockout, were mistaken, as there were but a few disturbances, and these were but of slight moment. Fully as large a crowd, as on the night previous, gathered in the vicinity of the factory, but long before they came, nearly all of the non-union men had left the factory and had reached the company's boarding house on Ireson street with little molestation. There were two arrest, one of them being a non-union man.

The failure of the demonstration of the previous evening to materialize last evening is attributable to the strategy of the company, in dismissing its non-union employes about an hour before the usual time, before the crowd had assumed very large dimensions. Nevertheless, when the non-union men did come out, several hundred persons met and escorted them to their Ireson street home.

The crowd began to increase at 6 o'clock. There were many thousands of people stationed at the head of New Washington street waiting for the appearance of more non-union men. The crowd began to surge when two Armenians came up Washington street, and before they could realize it they were hemmed in on all sides. They were frightened and bewildered in the mob, and felt very much relieved when three officers came in sight and accompanied them along Broad street, while several hundred people followed alongside and behind. The non-union men were followed by several of their countrymen, who attempted to argue with them. One of the "scabs," so called, was not in a mood to talk, and expressed himself so emphatically in English that he was arrested for profanity. He gave his name as Frank Baicell.

While this was going on, Robert Ramsdell, treasurer of the Plant company, accompanied by a lady, came along, and the crowd followed close behind. Arriving at the corner of Munroe street and Central avenue, the crowd had swelled to considerable proportions, and in the crush two or three in the crowd were knocked down and trodden upon. One of the crowd, David Ireland, was arrested, charged with assault upon an unknown party, and locked up. The crowd followed Mr. Ramsdell and the lady to his residence on Hamilton avenue, where windows were broken.

The following is a copy of a letter which has come into the hands of officials of the Lasters' union, and was read at last evening's meeting of the joint council of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union. It was received by a person in Claremont, N. H., and in turn was sent to the Lasters' union in Lynn:

"Dear Sir—We can give you work at McKay stitching. Our prices are 50 cents for 60 pairs. We could give work also to men on the following parts: Lasting, beating out, nailing, shaving, trimming, edge setting, buffing and bottom finishing, and relasting. One man each on the foregoing parts, except lasters, where we could use more. All must be good workmen in every respect. Our prices on all parts are first class.

"In the stitching room we can use operators on lining making, closing, staying, closing on and vamping, and for any of the above help, which you can get for us—that is, good help, and remains with us—we will pay you well for the trouble that you take.

"Will pay you $5 for each and every hand that you bring us, that remains with us for a month or more. We want you to come the first of the week. Yours truly, Thomas G. Plant & Co.

"P. S.—We have got an injunction against the prominent leaders, who have interfered with our help, and we know that in the future we will be able to have people work for us without any interference from outsiders."

On a Gold Basis.

Everett, Mass., Aug. 22.—The Everett aldermen last evening decided that the affairs of the city should be transacted on a gold basis. The city has tried to place $35,000 in bonds, at 4 per cent, but at that figure it was impossible to find takers, so the board voted that all debts of the city should be redeemable in gold coin, or its equivalent, and should carry interest not to exceed 5 per cent. The gold clause was inserted, and action on the previous appropriations was reconsidered.

Woodbury Wins His Suit.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 22.—Judges Ross, Rowell and Tyler announced the decision yesterday, in the suit for libel which Governor Woodbury instituted against the Rutland Herald for declaring that he, as proprietor of the Van Ness House in this city, was a rumseller. They find that he did not at any time own any of the liquor procured by bell boys and waiters for guests, and award him $1000 damages and costs. It was agreed before the suit was begun that there should be no appeal.

A Pitiful Case.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 22.—Delia Unger, 12-year-old daughter of Henry Unger of Winchester Centre, shows symptoms of hydrophobia. On May 26 she was bitten by a mad dog, owned by Burr Beecher. She crawls on her hands and feet, barks, snarls and froths at the mouth. Unger has brought suit against Beecher for $1000 damages.

Robbers Caught.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 22.—Burglars ransacked the residence of John Humphrey, between Winsted and New Hartford, while the residents were away. Mr. Humphrey, with a team, put after the men, and succeeded in catching two of them. They are held for trial.

Plans For Coast Defense.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22.—Acting Secretary McAdoo of the navy department has detailed a board, composed of the chiefs of the bureaus of navigation and ordnance, the president of the war college, and the chief intelligence officers, to consider and revise the plans for the defense of the Atlantic coast, prepared at the naval war college. The plans, when passed upon by the board, will be submitted to the secretary of the navy for appoval.

A Spook's Midnight Visitations.

Danielson, Conn., Aug. 22.—Some thing or some person is terrifying the residents of East Killingly by appearing between 10 and 12 at night, dressed either in ghostly or funeral apparel, walking through the streets apparently over all sorts of obstructions. Efforts have been made to capture the spook, without avail, it finally taking refuge each night in an old, unused mill. Parties are made up and drive six to 10 miles to see the freak. The officers are to try and stop it.

Highwayman Captured.

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 22.—While Mrs. Robert Martin of this place was walking on Pratt street, yesterday, she was suddenly seized about the neck by a man who came up behind her. He grabbed her pocketbook and ran away with it. An alarm was given, and Chief of Police Manning gave chase and overtook the man on Arlington street. He gave as a reason for his action that he was stealnig for his wife and family.

Reducing Expenses.

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Concerning the rumor that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company was cutting down its operating and construction account, Vice President Hall says: "The report is true. It is always a safe policy in such times as the present, when the business of the country is awaiting the outcome of uncertain conditions, to take in sail. You cannot safely carry all sail when storms are threatened.

The Greatest Yet.

Portland, Me., Aug. 22.—The New England fair has been the largest attended fair ever held in Maine. Over 100,000 people have visited Rigby park during the week. The weather has been perfect, the races fine, the exhibits the best ever shown in New England. Yesterday, the closing day, saw another big crowd present. The mayors of New England were entertained by the fair officials.

Can't Serve as Elector.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 22. — The friends of ex-Lieutenant Governor Haile were greatly surprised yesterday to learn that he is disqualified as elector-at-large, because of his connection as director with the Pynchon National bank. Mr. Haile is out of the city, but his friends think that he will resign the directorship and thus remove the disqualification.

Teams Collided.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, and Mrs. Truxton Beale, were driving yesterday, when their horses became frightened and ran away. A collision occurred between the Damrosch carriage and a grocery team, and all were thrown out. All were unharmed. The driver, however, was badly cut in the collision.

Father Flatley Dead.

Malden, Mass., Aug. 22.—Rev. Michael F. Flatley, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church of this city, died at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., last evening from paralysis. He went to that city, about 10 days ago, with a party of clergymen and friends, for a rest, and suffered a shock. Father Flatley was born in Ireland, in 1843.

Heavy Fines Imposed.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 22.—John H. Leach was fined $1180 in the police court for having 236 short lobsters in his possession, and J. H. Williams was fined $60 for a similar offense. Both appealed.

New England Briefs.

Patrick A. Corbett, 3 years old, was killed by a train, at Hyde Park, Mass.

Gardner A. Churchill of the firm of Rockwell & Churchill, printers, Boston, is dead.

Carroll Huckins, 3 years old, was run over by a team, at Malden, Mass., and instantly killed.

The gold standard Democrats of Bangor, Me., formed a permanent organization in that city.

The works of the O'Hara Waltham (Mass.) Dial company are to close indefinitely on Aug. 29.

E. C. Butler of Middletown, Conn., won the championship in the national croquet tournament at Norwich.

A new ornamental fountain on Wyman Green in Central square, Woburn, Mass., was dedicated and presented to the city.

The Boston Museum of Fine Arts is to receive $30,000, as well as paintings, etc., under the will of G. W. Wales, upon the death of his widow.

At the muster of the Vermont militia, Company I, of Brattleboro, won the annual competition for target shooting, a silver trophy being the prize.

Sister Mother Theresa, superior of the Convent of Mercy, at Dover, N. H., died at Manchester, N. H. She entered the Dover convent 13 years ago.

Dr. John M. Gile, of the state almshouse, at Tewksbury, Mass., has been appointed lecturer on the science and practice of medicine, in the medical department of Dartmouth college.

Peter Tumilty, aged 74, died at Cambridge, Mass. He was born in Ireland, but for over half a century has lived in Cambridge. Nearly all that time he was a prominent contractor. Mr. Tumilty was very charitable.

Reform In Sight.

Cape Town, Aug. 22.—A dispatch from Pretoria says that the impartiality of the Jameson trial, together with Mr. Chamberlain's policy and friendly attitude, has produced a marked effect throughout the Transvaal republic. A month ago there was not a sign of any concession to the Uitlanders. Now the volksraad is passing progressive measures, while the expulsion of aliens bill has no chance of becoming a law. In conclusion, the dispatch says that there is no probability that the Boers will now assume an aggressive attitude. President Kruger is opposed to the expulsion of aliens bill.

Fourteen of Crew Missing.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 22.—A dispatch from Santa Catharine says that the American ship Willie Rosenfeld, 2353 tons, Captain Dunphy, which sailed from New York on April 23, for San Francisco, recently foundered 400 miles from the coast. Part of the crew were landed safely at Santa Catharine, but 14 are missing. The Willie Rosenfeld was owned by Arthur Sewall & Co. of Bath, Me., where she was built, and from which port she hailed.

JOE PATCHEN'S LATEST.

Famous Racing Stallion Lowers World's Record to 2:03 Flat.

Portland, Me., Aug. 22.—At Rigby park yesterday, Joe Patchen lowered the world's stallion pacing record by one-quarter of a second, going the mile in 2:03 flat, and by two of the judges' watches one-fifth of a second less than this.

JOE PATCHEN.

It was not a very favorable day for going against records of any sort. After a mile of warming up, the black stallion was started with runner known as Little Friend, driven by Charles O'Brien. When Patchen approached the wire, Jack Curry nodded his head for the word, and with the strong wind blowing in his teeth, raced toward the first quarter, followed closely by the runner. The judges caught the quarter at 30½ seconds, and with the wind at his back, the famous stallion reeled off the second quarter in 29½ seconds. The half was made in just one minute. On the third quarter the watches caught the time at 30¾ seconds, and at a two-minute clip Patchen squared away on the last quarter toward the wire. But here he met the strong wind, against which he slowed down a bit, but landed under the wire in 32¾ seconds. The announcement of a mile in 2:03 flat, one-quarter of a second better than the world's stallion pacing record, held by John R. Gentry, set the crowd crazy.

Joe Patchen is 7 years old, and is owned by John S. Taylor of Chicago. He already holds the world's record on a half-mile track of 2:05¼, made at Mystic last week.

Aimed at the L. A. W.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—Information of a reliable character has reached here, that a syndicate of bicycle manufacturers has been formed, with the intention of wresting from the League of American Wheelmen the control of racing. It is the intention of the new combination to have a circuit, embracing cities where the greatest interest is shown in the sport. Control of a track will be secured in each city, or a track built. Men who ride, of course, will come under the ban of the League of American Wheelmen. As a compensation, they will be guaranteed good prizes, plenty of sport, and no effort will be spared to induce the "crackerjacks" to cast the league aside, and make the new scheme successful by their co-operation. Alleged arbitrary action, by the league racing board, is said to have brought about the break.

More Trouble For Spain.

Madrid, Aug. 22.—An official dispatch from Manila announces the discovery in the Philippine islands of a Separatist conspiracy, the object being to secure independence from Spain. According to the official advices 21 persons have already been arrested in the islands, several being Free Masons. The news has caused great excitement in Madrid, and the police in consequence, last night, raided the Hispano Philippine club and seized a large quantity of papers. While commenting on the outbreak in the Philippine islands in the senate yesterday, Senor T. Castellano, the minister of the colonies, read several telegrams from the governor of the islands, Captain General R. Blanco.

Bank Cashier Under Fire.

Kansas City, Aug. 22.—A warrant for the arrest of Cashier G. A. Taylor of the defunct Argentine bank was sworn out yesterday by Barnard Speaker, who made a deposit in the bank Monday afternoon, the day before the failure. The charge is receiving money in an insolvent bank. Other charges of a like nature will be made against Taylor. J. E. Steele says that he will swear out a warrant for Taylor's arrest, charging forgery and receiving money when he knew the bank was insolvent, and in a failing condition. Steele alleges the cashier's figures are all false, and charges the cashier's account is overdrawn by several thousand dollars.

Another Bond Issue?

New York, Aug. 22.—The presence of Secretary Carlisle down town yesterday, and a conference he had with Mr. Bacon, of J. P. Morgan & Co., caused some talk about the possibility of another bond issue. Mr. Carlisle called at the subtreasury early in the day and saw Mr. Muhleman, who, in Mr. Jordan's absence, is acting as assistant treasurer. In the afternoon he called again at the subtreasury, and was in conversation for some time with Mr. Bacon and Mr. Muhleman. After Mr. Carlisle left the treasury Mr. Muhleman said that the secretary had merely called in there on his way to Washington, and that his visit had no special significance.

Pastor Brown's Argument.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Rev. C. O. Brown, formerly of San Francisco, and whose troubles are familiar to all newspaper readers, has made a statement in reply to the last confession of Miss Overman, in which she says that the charges which she originally made against Dr. Brown, and which she subsequently said were false, are in reality founded on facts. Dr. Brown renounces the entire story as one of blackmail, and says that the fact that Miss Overman now admits that she testified falsely should prove her unworthy of the slightest evidence.

Plait Men Are Winners.

New York, Aug. 22.—The result of the assembly district conventions, in this city last night, to elect delegates to the Saratogo convention, show that the Platt faction has carried 24 districts, for a total of 94 delegates; the anti-Platt faction has carried five districts, for a total of 19 delegates, and there are contests in six districts, for a total of 22 delegates.

Grudge Settled With Bullets.

Sullivan, Ind., Aug. 22.—At Oaktown, last evening, Daniel Wolfe shot and almost instantly killed Claude Kable. Both men are prominent, and the shooting was the result of an old grudge. Wolfe was arrested.

The man who want to rise in the world must throw over board all useless things. There is nothing in the world so useless as sickness. Sickness will hold him down more than anything else. If a man is unfortunate in business, he can recover his losses if he has health. If he is sick he had better give up business until he gets well. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. It puts strength into every fibre of the body, and replaces the lethargy of sickness with the bouyancy of health. It is an invigorating and blood making tonic. Its first work is on the digestive organs, which it restores to natural, healthy activity. It gets into the blood and drives out all impurities and germs of disease. Its effect on the lungs is truly marvelous. It will positively cure ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of consumption. It is the greatest medicine in the world for nervous prostration, brain fag, and debility arising from overwork. It is needed by every man and woman who is losing flesh. It builds up sound, healthy muscle. It brings back plumpness to the cheeks and brightness to the eye. All good druggists sell it.

FOR CONSTIPATION there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are perfectly natural in their action, cause no griping or other unpleasantness and they may be firmly relied upon to permanently and completely cure. Many so-called remedies, which give only temporary relief, are violent purgatives, and their use must be continued forever once it is started. The "Pellets" are not merely palliative. They are a cure. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. There is nothing "just as good." There is nothing "just the same." The druggist who endeavors to force something else upon you has an eye to his own profit and no consideration at all for your health.

He is now Cured, and He Thanks God and P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, For It.

Mr. George Briggs, of Moore, Okla., suffered almost indescribable torment for three long years. Neuralgia held him captive. The right side of his face was so badly affected that the slightest touch would cause the unfortunate man intense agony. For several weeks he could open his mouth just wide enough to be fed with liquid nourishment, and in this manner life was sustained. Read the following extract from his letter: "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

NEURALGIA, CATARRH AND RHEUMATISM COMPLETELY CURED.

George Briggs, of Moore, Oklahoma, writes that P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, cured him of catarrh, facial neuralgia and rheumatism, after three years of intense suffering. The pain lay in his cheek bone and temple, down the right side of his face, along his upper lip, and from the slightest touch he suffered agonies for weeks at a time. Could only open his mouth wide enough to admit a teaspoon, and any acid in his food would put him in torture. He had a consultation of the best physicians in Texas, but all to no purpose.

Catarrh and rheumatism were also causing him much trouble, until he tried P. P. P. He says he is well and will swear that there are no cases of neuralgia, catarrh and rheumatism, no matter how chronic or how old the cases ar , that P. P. P. will not make a total cure of.

Mr. Briggs winds up his testimony by saying he thanks God and our medicine, P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for the great cure.

Kidney troubles, if neglected, bring about serious and painful and very often fatal results. P. P. P. removes the irregularities, and cures the diseased parts.

Dyspepsia and indigestion, skin and blood diseases, can be speedily removed by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

Ladies, take P. P. P. and rid your face of pimples, blotches, freckles, yellow or muddy skin, wrinkles and vulgar redness.

Sold by all druggists.

Between the Lines.

WHAT ONE MAY READ ON OLD TOMBSTONES IN QUINCY BURYING GROUND.

The days when English-speaking people of two religions were locked in a life and death struggle; when men and women were burned, tortured, beheaded, hanged, their hands and feet cut off, or eyes plucked out, seems long ago when one reads Macaulay. But standing in an old burying ground, peopled with those splendid, God-fearing, dauntless but narrow-minded old Puritans, born, many of them, back in the 16th century, one realizes how brief has been the history of New England, the outcome of the struggle. Standing there one can give his left hand to the earliest actors in the fray and clasp with his right the hands of the actors of today, their descendants.

Reading, too, between the lines of the inscriptions, one notes the value of breeding; of combining the best "strains" of blood, certainly, a process as valuable in human beings as in other animals.

Given an hour in an old churchyard in a historic locality and a moderate knowledge of history, Bunker Hill and Lexington are but things of yesterday.

There stands a stone in the old burying ground at Quincy—in former years "Braintry"—which marks the resting place of one whose father was stabbed to death, whose mother was publicly beheaded, her sentence having been "commuted" from public burning, and whose husband was also killed, dying a comparatively young man, after a two or three weeks' illness, of nothing but a broken heart.

Bridget, widow of Leonard Hoar and daughter of John, Lord Lisle, the regicide, the stone tells us. She died in 1722, nearly 50 years after she had seen her husband laid away, and 40 years after her mother was butchered.

Alicia Lisle, mother of Bridget Hoar, was the first victim of the "Bloody Assize," that terrible circuit in which the brutal, drunken, blood-thirsty, infamous Jeffreys, at the instigation of king James II., no less cruel and infamous, had sentenced nearly 300 innocent people to death at the stake or gallows, besides sending many hundreds into slavery or banishment to hot countries. An equally sure, albeit a less speedy and more cruel death.

It was in Jeffrey's work and the work of James' favorite butcher, Kirk, that the king took most delight. And it was Kirk's choicest diversion to entertain his friends by murdering those who had looked with favor on Monmouth's claim to the crown.

Gathering a company, they would, while toasting the king over their wine, watch the helpless victims, hanged, beheaded or boiled in tar, or would suggest new and pleasant methods of putting them to death, as the old methods palled on sated appetites.

The women of the court were scarcely less cruel and fought for the possession of prisoners which James bestowed on his favorites to be sold into slavery. Small wonder that James proclaimed himself "very well satisfied with the proceedings," for it was his own delight while governor of Scotland to watch the most cruel tortures inflicted on his enimies, tortures so exquisite in their power to inflict pain as to sicken even the coldest and most brutal courtiers of that blood-thirsty period.

The shrieks and moans of the victims, James would observe with much the same curiosity, plus vindictive hatred, that the modern vivisectionist exhibits over the sufferings of a dog or rabbit. And the courtiers, sick and faint, the hardiest of them, and who would gladly have absented themselves, were compelled by the kingly edict to be present.

This was James, "Defender of the Faith, etc." in whom according to the translators of the Bible—turn to it, you may read it today in any un-revised version—culminated the "great and manifold blessings which Almighty God the Father of all mercies bestowed upon the people of England," when he (James) was sent to rule over them.

Alicia Lisle's crime was in giving a cup of cold water to two non-conformist ministers, fugitives from Sedgemoor, where Monmouth made his foolish and fatal attempt to gain the crown. She was a sweet-faced, sweet-natured old lady, who without knowing or caring who solicited that which Christ bade all give, obeyed the instincts of her generous heart. Old and deaf and denied counsel, even a jury packed for the occasion thrice pronounced her not guilty, until Jeffreys, inflamed beyond bounds with rage and liquor, ordered one of the jurors hanged. Then a verdict of guilty was rendered, and the condemned woman was sentenced to be burned alive that very afternoon.

The strongest influence that could be brought on Jeffreys only gained a reprieve of five days, and the most powerful intercession with James only softened the sentence from burning to beheading.

During the trial the point was urged, utterly irrelevant, even if true, that the accused woman's husband was partly responsible for the murder—or righteous execution, according as one thinks—of Charles I.

John, Lord Lisle was lord commissioner of the great seal and president of the high court of justice, before which Charles I. was tried for his life. He also drew the indictment and the sentence of death against the king.

He was created a lord by Cromwell, but after the restoration fled to Switzerland, where at Lausanne he was stabbed in the back and killed by emissaries of Charles II. just as he was entering church.

Alicia Lisle, by the way, was quite nearly akin by marriage to lord William Russell, who, connected with the Rye House plot—a plot to murder Charles II., and his brother, the duke of York, afterwards James II., of whom we have been writing—lost his head, as perhaps, under the circumstances, he deserved, and at least, as pretty much every prominent man did, either by one party or the other, until William and Mary came to the throne.

Such was a part of the stirring life of Bridget Hoar, who lies in the old "Braintry" burying ground, and the same stone which commemorates her, commemorates her husband's mother, Joanna Hoar, who lies beside her. Joanna Hoar was the widow of Charles Hoar, one time sheriff of Gloucester, England. Two years after his death, which took place in 1638, his widow and five children came to New England.

In some manner the widow managed to give her little brood the best of education for the son Leonard was graduated from Harvard. Margery married Henry Flint, the first teacher of the first church in "Braintry," and was herself a teacher of young ladies, and one of rare merit and much fame. Both she and her husband lie buried beside her mother. Joanna, another daughter, married the second Edmund Quincy, and was the ancestress of John Quincy Adams. Joanna Hoar, the mother, died in 1661.

Leonard Hoar, who married Bridget Lisle, after graduating from Harvard, went back to England, and was settled over the little parish at Wamstead. Ejected for non-conformity, he came back to Massachusetts in 1672, where for a few months he was assistant pastor of the Old South church.

From 1672 to 1675 he was president of Harvard University, where he introduced many valuable features, but his brief regime was stormy and unhappy, as he was totally devoid of the power to govern. The directors of the college were about equally divided as to his retension, until one portion prevailed upon the students to "strike," and on a certain day not a student presented himself at chapel or for instruction. Then the president resigned, betook himself to Boston and survived the bitter humiliation but a few weeks, dying at the early age of 45. He lies buried near his wife and mother, where a massive slab celebrates his virtues but does not give the cause of his death.

Joanna Quincy bore her husband seven children, one of whom, Daniel, begat John, Harvard graduate, speaker of the House for the longest term held by any one during the provincial period, member of the council for 40 years, and great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams. It was from Edmund Quincy's second marriage to the widow of Rev. John Eliot, Jr., that the long line of Josiah Quincys, Harvard graduates, Harvard president, mayors of Boston have sprung.

And, so, although we cut loose from the old religious struggle about which we began to talk, a few further words about the Quincys and some of the other inhabitants of the old burying ground may be of interest.

The first of the Quincys to come to these shores was Edmund, who came here a young man of 26 years in 1628. He made a home for his wife and children, and returning to England brought them to America in 1633, in the same ship which brought Rev. John Cotton here. He lived but two years thereafter, being but 33 years old when he died.

The year that he died several thousand acres, called the Mt. Wollaston plantation, were granted to him and William Coddington, one of the founders of Rhode Island. Later these acres were set off from Boston, and called Braintree, and from the latter a portion was still later set off and called Quincy.

This first Edmund Quincy, ancestor of all the long line of Quincys hereabouts, must have been a man of remarkable parts, as of his long line of descendants, there is scarcely one but has attained eminence, and many of them the very highest eminence. Where the first Edmund lies the scribe knows not, but his son Edmund lies in the old Quincy burying ground.

A great slab of granite, for protection, it is said, from wolves, with an uncut stone at its head and foot, marks his resting place. The coat of arms of the family in metal is let into the slab, which bears this single inscription: "Edmund Quincy—Aged 70."

Probably the slab is of later date than the slate stone that marks the resting place of his wife, as the modern spelling is followed. The ordinary business men and mechanics, including stone-cutters, were not "hefty" on spelling in those days, and the stone on the wife's grave records the last resting place of "Joanny Quinsey, who dyed May 16, 1680, aged 55."

The second Edmund Quincy was evidently a man of action in more ways than one, and fribbled away little time in useless repining, for his first wife died on May 16, 1680, and in October, 1681, Edmund, his son by the widow Eliot, was born.

The second Edmund Quincy filled many important offices, among others being one of the committee of safety in the provincial government after the overthrow of James II., and pending the arrival of the new charter, signed by William and Mary.

The third Edmund was a Harvard graduate, as all or nearly all of his descendants of the name of Quincy have since been.

From 1718 until his untimely death 20 years later, he was judge of the supreme court. Going over to London as agent for Massachusetts to settle the question of a disputed boundary line between that state and New Hampshire, he fell a victim to smallpox. His daughter was Oliver Wendell Holmes' great grandmother, the "Dorothy Q," of the poem of that name. He left a son Edmund, merchant, author and father of the wife of John Hancock, and a son Josiah, the first of a long line of that name. The latter lies in a tomb in the old burying ground.

This Josiah's third son, also Josiah, was one of the most brilliant men of his time, or of any time. Born in 1744 and graduated at 19 years of age; he studied law and rapidly rose to the foremost rank in his profession, not only as a sound lawyer, but as a brilliant orator. He took an early interest in politics, and was a powerful and voluminous writer.

He with John Adams incurred for a time the bitter enmity of many for acting as council for Captain Preston, and his soldiers who fired on the townsmen in the so called "Boston massacre." Later he was commended as one who had done his duty in defending men charged with crime, but not proven guilty.

Before he was thirty years old, it was patent to himself and others that he was hopelessly ill with pulmonary consumption. He made one or two short sea voyages but without good result.

He was in the Old South church when the men disguised as Indians rushed out to make their big brewing of tea and foresaw and foreshadowed the result. In 1774 he went to England on a political errand, as confidential agent for the patriots, and in March, 1775, sailed for home. He died at sea, off Gloucester, on April 26, a week after the battles of Concord and Lexington, and without hearing of the battle.

He had valuable verbal messages for the patriots here which died with him, his one longing being to have an hour's talk with Joseph Warren and Samuel Adams. A neat marble shaft in the Quincy burying ground enumerates his many virtues, and pays tribute to that of his wife, Abigail Phillips, "the best of mothers."

And now we are getting into our own time, for it was this Josiah Quincy, who was the father of Josiah Quincy, the second mayor of Boston, and great grandfather of our present mayor. It was during his administration that the Quincy market was built and in his honor, of course, that it was named.

He was a member of the Legislature, State Senate, and national Congress for a long term of years, and was president of Harvard from 1829 to 1845. He died in 1864, at the great age of 92 years, retaining all his faculties unimpaired and his interest in public affairs until the last.

The eldest son, Josiah, who died at Quincy but a few years ago, aged 80 years, was mayor of Boston from 1845 to 1849. He too, was an author of repute. It is his grandson, the son of Josiah Phillips Quincy who is the present mayor of Boston.

This article was not intended exactly as a Quincy biography, although the family occupies a large part of the history of early Massachusetts, but mention should be made of Miss Eliza Susan Quincy, daughter of the Harvard president, who died in 1884, at the ripe age of 86. She was her father's secretary for more than half a century, and was a woman of vigorous intellect, every faculty of which she retained until the last. Her diary of current events was invaluable and was a mine from which her brothers drew much material.

SILVER RALLY.

Hon. G. Fred Williams and Others Speak at Braintree.

At 7.45 last evening the Democratic campaign in Braintree, was opened in the Town Hall, by selections from the North Easton Brass Band, which was immediately followed by the speakers announced for the evening.

The seating capacity of the hall was exhausted and many were obliged to stand while the gallery was well filled with ladies.

Hon. F. A. Hobart, chairman of the Democratic town committee, called the meeting to order and introduced as president of the evening, Col. A. C. Drinkwater.

Those noticed upon the platform besides the presiding officer, Mr. Hobart, and the orator of the evening, were Elisha Thayer, Hugh J. Malloy of Randolph, John V. Scollard, Lewis Porter of Brockton, Carlton Neal, Brockton, John F. Powers, Frank Jackson, James J. Morrow and P. D. Holbrook.

Col. Drinkwater was warmly received and he talked for twenty-five minutes.

In his opening remarks he said it was with pleasure that he accepted the honor of presiding at this meeting, although he had taken but little part in politics for many years.

He referred to the years he was on the State committee, and how he used to fight against his friend Hobart, who was then a leader in the Republican ranks.

We are here tonight charged with rallying under the pirate flag. Referring to those Democrats whose honor will not allow them to stand by the Chicago platform, he said: I know a Democrat when I see him and I have hit it right in the past. The trouble with the Democratic party is they don't appeal to the people straight.

He then gave a history of the money system of this country, showing when times were good, and when bad; told of the mortgaged farms and the idle factories.

The only reason that we have not had free silver before, is that a president intervened to prevent the will of the people.

He was closely followed through his entire speech. In closing, he said, he would make the prediction that on the morning after election we shall send a dispatch to the Boston Herald to the effect that the good old town of Braintree is back in the Democratic ranks.

When the applause subsided he introduced the Hon. Frank A. Hobart, who was given a hearty reception. He was in his happiest mood. He used a little more than the "twenty minutes," in which he was to define his position, but the audience was evidently pleased with his remarks.

Among other things, he said, the condition of our country for many years to come depends upon the result of the coming election.

This country has suffered depression. Mills are closed, farms abandoned, workingmen dissatisfied and strikes are prevalent; and the Republicans propose no remedy, but say to us that they will continue business at the same old stand, and at the same price.

My training and business connections taught me to abide by the gold standard, but when I began to study into the matter I found there were two sides to it.

I am not here to advocate a silver basis, but both gold and silver, and I have made up my mind that if legislation can carry down the price of silver, legislation can carry it up.

The silver dollar may not be acceptable to Europe, but it will buy as many groceries and as much meat as the gold dollar. The Democratic party proposes to legislate for the American people, and we propose to fight for the election of Bryan and Sewall. [Great applause.]

Col. Drinkwater then introduced the Hon. George Fred Williams as the leading champion of the cause.

Mr. Williams appeared at his best and the audience raised a perfect storm of applause. He began his speech by saying:

Fellow Citizens and Ladies—What means this great outpouring of the people tonight in the town of Brairntee, constituting, as I am assured by the experienced gentlemen who have preceded me, the largest meeting that has been known in this town in a generation, and a larger meeting than the Republican party ever rallied in this hall. (Cheers)

You have not come here out of curiousity, to find out what an anarchist looks like, for I belong in your county and you have seen me before. (Laughter and applause.)

The speaker then criticised the press for ts garbled reports of meetings, scored C. A. Hamlin for his utterances, saying he should keep his mouth shut while drawing a salary from the government. But the most of the hour in which he spoke, he devoted himself to the house of Belmont and Morgan.

In closing, he said,—the United States is the one to strike the electric spark and the Chicago convention has struck it. (Applause.) You are to determine now whether you shall bring your industries to prosperity and lead the world in this movement that means the interest of humanity and the revival of your business, or whether you will lie down like whipped curs and wait for the consent of the Rothschilds of London and follow in the lead of European monarchies. (Tremendous applause.)

—A trust proposes to put up the price of brimstone. This will raise the Old Nick, says the Brockton Times.

YOUTHS' DEPARTMENT.

The Honeybee's Quest For Food—Eugene Field, the Children's Friend. Topsy and Her Dolls.

Spring had come at last! The sun's warm rays had melted the snow on the mountains, the green grass blades had pierced through their withered sheaths, and the buds began to burst on the trees and let the young leaves peep through. And now a little bee awoke from its long winter sleep. It rubbed its eyes and then roused its fellow companions. Together they opened the door and peeped around to see if the ice and snow and cold north wind had all disappeared. Yes, to their great joy everything was bright and beautiful in the warm sunshine.

So they slipped out of the hive and dressed their wings and tried to fly again. Oh! how delightful it was—but, dear me, how very hungry they found themselves! So off they flew to a gnarled old apple tree and piteously begged for something to eat.

"Oh," said the apple tree, "you have come too soon. My blossoms are all hidden away in the buds still. But go to the cherry tree; there you will very likely find food for hungry little bees."

So off again they flew—only, however, to be again disappointed, for the cherry tree said:

"Not today; my buds are all fast closed. But come again tomorrow; only too gladly may you feast when my blossoms are opened."

What could the bees do further, for their appetite grew keener? Ah, see yonder, across the garden, is a beautiful and lovely colored flower, and so large too! Flying to it, they sought diligently for honey in its calyx. In vain! The tulip had none, nor sweetness, nor perfume either. Oh, poor little bees, and so hungry too!

Saddened and tired out, they were just turning homeward when they saw a tiny blue floweret under the hedge. It was a violet; and it welcomed them gladly to the repast it had in store, opening wide its fragrant calyx and satisfying the hungry little mouths and generously giving them honey beyond to carry to their home.

Eugene Field.

The late Eugene Field, who wrote so many charming poems for children, to the day of his death had the heart and impulses of a boy. He loved animals and those mechanical toys which wind up and go with a clickity noise just as a child loves them. His home was a small toyshop, the toys being of all kinds and descriptions, but he loved the mechanical toys the best. A writer in St. Nicholas tells that every Saturday morning Eugene Field went home laden with toys—not alone for his own babies, Roswell and Ruth, but for a number of child friends living at Buena Park, Chicago. For the girls he bought dolls by the dozen, and his little boy Roswell, whom he nicknamed Posey, had more elephants than were ever shot by African travelers. Shortly before he died, Mr. Field bought a big elephant and a big brown bear for Posey. Every time any one called upon him (it made no difference who it was) the elephant and the big brown bear were wound up, and away they would go, their heads nodding back and forth as if they were alive. But today they stand quiet and still in the library.

Eugene Field's own childhood was unspeakably dreary. His mother died when he was very small. His grandmother, who lived at New Fane, Vt., was a very good but an exceedingly rigorous woman.

Topsy and Her Dolls.

Almost every boy thinks his pet cat or dog is prettier and smarter than any other boy's, but Willie is sure that no cat can do funnier things than his Topsy. Of course Topsy is a black cat, or she would not have that name. Do you know why? She is very black, with only a white star in her forehead.

When she was a little kitten, she was very fond of dolls and was always stealing the dolls that belonged to Willie's sister Laura. At last Laura fixed up two rag dolls for Topsy. Then she was happy and did not meddle with other dolls any more.

Topsy carries the dolls around in her mouth, one at a time. She tosses them up and catches them, just as cats play with mice. There is a box behind the stove, with a soft bed in it, where Topsy sleeps when it is cold. Every night she puts both dolls to bed in the box before she gets in herself.

The dolls get so worn that Laura has to put new dresses on them quite often. Then Topsy acts for a few days as if she was not sure she had her own dolls. If one doll is taken away, Topsy misses it very soon and will hunt all about for it.—Examiner.

Bingo, Buster and Beau.

Bingo is thirty inches high
And Buster thirty-two,
While Beau, who isn't quite so big,
Is their loving friend and true.

Beau, the children's joy and pride,
Is a black Newfoundland dog.
Bingo and Buster, ponies, are
From the land of rain and fog.

No whip or spur the little chaps
Need when the children ride.
They prance and caper on the road,
While Beau runs by their side.

Two little steeds and one big dog
Make a fine sight to see;
Two little girls in a yellow cart—
And they all belong to me.

I think nobody has more fun
Or makes a braver show
Than the little girls who ride behind
Bingo, Buster and Beau.

HAS LEFT NO TRACE.

Everett Contractor and Builder Has Left For Parts Unknown.

Creditors Anxious to Acertain His Whereabouts.

Said to Have Left Unpaid Bills to the Amount of $80,000.

Everett, Mass., Aug. 24.—The reigning sensation here is the disappearance of Frederick Bailey, a former builder and contractor, who disappeared last Wednesday, leaving behind him a host of clamoring creditors and a number of unsettled accounts, aggregating, as far as can be ascertained, $80,000. The history of Bailey's career from the time he left Bristol, Eng., until the date of his departure is one of great interest.

It was in 1884 that Bailey first made his appearance in Everett. At that time he was a humble wage earner, a plasterer by trade, and with his wife and two children occupied a few furnished rooms in a tenement house on Linden street. Being an energetic man and a thorough tradesman, he soon obtained employment, and by economy in a few years amassed a small fortune, with which he purchased a house and lot on Cleveland street, the nucleus of what is now considered one of the finest estates in the town. He continued to buy land and build houses, meanwhile amassing an independent fortune on the rents derived from houses on Bradford, Green, Mansfield, Cottage and Linden streets.

His own residence on Broadway was furnished on a scale of magnificence which placed him among the elite of the town. Latterly he had built a country seat on the borders of Spy pond, Arlington, and also several houses in Allston. He did not sell any of his houses, but rented them at such figures that, in the course of 10 years, equalled the cost of building. It is also said that he mortgaged the houses while still drawing rents, and when the mortgage became due deeded over the buildings to the holder thereof. During the past 18 months Bailey has been tardy in his payments, but as he was known to be wealthy, his creditors did not seem to have any distrust of him.

According to William Miller, his bookkeeper, Bailey kept a private account, and did most of the banking himself. To quot his own words, as expressed to a reporter yesterday, Miller was "working in the dark," all unconscious of the impending crash. By clever maneuvering, and a double system of bookkeeping, Bailey succeeded in hoodwinking his "confidential" clerk, who is also a creditor for a handsome sum. Some of the other creditors are Charles A. Gleason William C. Craig, Edward Harrington and William Cutliff. Their claims have been placed in the hands of Lawyer George A. Brown.

A reporter called on each of these gentlemen at their residences, but found their houses locked up for the summer. Mr. Craig, who is a money-lender, has attached the contents of the Bailey residence and barn for the sum of $3000, and his employes have seized the stock in the store on Broadway, where Bailey kept house furnishings.

It is thought by some of his friends that Bailey has not absconded, but will return and refute the charges made against him, as he has left much valuable property behind him. Photographer Bell, in conversation with a reporter, said he thought it was possible that Mrs. Bailey might return and claim her share of the property.

Bailey was last seen at his office in Boston on Wednesday afternoon. It is rumored that he has taken passage for England from New York.

Preparing For Speed Trial.

Boston, Aug. 24.—The Brooklyn came to anchor in Boston harbor last night, after a successful trip from Philadelphia. The big ship will be run over the government course, between Cape Ann and Cape Propoise, today, for a preliminary trial. Tuesday will be devoted to rest, and on Wednesday, if the conditions are favorable, the great speed test will be made. The trip from Philadelphia was without incident. A smooth sea and clear weather favored the ship, and after leaving the Delaware capes good speed was made. Extra ballast is carried on the ship, as only one of her guns, a five-inch rifle, is in place, the other being in course of construction.

Women Took a Hand.

Barcelona, Aug. 24.—After a stormy and troubled day, and many minor conflicts between the police and the populace, the troops designed to re-enforce the Spanish army in Cuba embarked on board the boats in the harbor. The police finally succeeded in destroying the placards, which had been posted, calling upon the people and the soldiers to revolt. A large number of women, incited to disorder by the supporters of the Cuban insurgents, made pronounced demonstrations against the departure of troops for Cuba. These demonstrations by the female portion of the populace were with difficulty suppressed.

Mill Didn't Come Off.

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 24.—An attempt was made to pull off a prize fight in a barn on the outskirts of Burnville, near the Massachusetts state line, Saturday morning. Stanton Abbott, the feather-weight champion, was matched against John Ryan of Boston, but after three hours' wrangling over the amount of the stakes and the choice of referee, the parties were unable to agree, and 500 sports from Boston, Providence and Woonsocket were obliged to return home thoroughly disgusted.

Jumped Into the Sea.

Boston, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Harris M. Stephenson, wife of a prominent Boston architect, committed suicide on Thursday last by jumping overboard from the Spaardam, while on her way home from Europe. For the past two months she had been trveling in Germany with her son, Walter, who was studying the profession of his father. Mrs. Stephenson had been sick for some years, and suffered at one time from nervous prostration, but it was not thought that her mind was seriously effected.

Shot Seven.

Kennebunk, Me., Aug. 24.—Aleck Rice, a hermit who lives on Cape Porpoise, has been tormented for weeks by a gang of hoodlums, and a few days ago he borrowed a shotgun to use on them if they called again. Saturday night the hoodlums stoned his house, and Rice discharged his shotgun at a party of summer visitors, which was passing, which he mistook for the boys. Seven persons were wounded. Rice has apologized, and nothing will be done in the case.

Violated Oleo Law.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 24.—A number of storekeepers and itinerant peddlers, it is claimed, have been selling oleomargarine and other imitation butter in this city for some time without having it colored pink, as required by law, and steps will at once be instituted to prosecute all violators of the statute. Restaurants and boarding houses have been the principal purchasers of the article.

Mistaken For a Bear.

Milo, Me., Aug. 24.—Charles Potter, a guide of this town, was shot and instantly killed at Deer island, on the east branch of the Penobscot river, seven miles north of Grindstone, by C. T. Russell of Boston, aged 15. Russell was a nephew of the late ex-Governor Russell. Potter was mistaken for a bear, and shot at. He was guiding the party of whom young Russell was a member.

Will Be No Display.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt states that the wedding of Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt to Harry P. Whitney will be a quiet affair, only the family and immediate friends being present. Saturday evening Miss Vanderbilt entertained her bridesmaids at dinner, and last evening Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Paget entertained at "The Rocks," in honor of Mr. Whitney.

Stabbing In Rockville.

Rockville, Conn., Aug. 24.—A serious stabbing affair occurred among a party of Frenchmen near Adams' mill yesterday morning. Jack Ahern was stabbed three times in the head and twice in the shoulder, and probably fatally injured. J. Snell, Albert Coville, Joseph and Napoleon Milo were arrested. Snell was also seriously stabbed.

The Plant Strike.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 24.—The Thomas G. Plant company has removed two of the departments from the Lynn factory to the one at Ipswich, and the work in these departments will be done there. This evening a mass meeting will be held on the common, as an outcome of the Plant trouble. It will be preceded by a parade.

Five Men In Tight Quarters.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 24.—Hagenbeck's show reached Bangor yesterday morning. During the night an elephant in a box car, with five men, became crazed by the sound of a whistle, and somewhat injured its trainer, Mat Johnson. A trick pony kicked the elephant into submission.

Escaped Convict Returned.

Concord, Mass., Aug. 24.—On Aug. 4, George J. Hopkins, an inmate of the Massachusetts reformatory, escaped from that institution. He was returned to his cell by Deputy Superintendent Hart, who brough him from Coney Island, N. Y., where he was arrested.

For Shoving the Queer.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 24.—Levi C. King and James Clements were arrested by Deputy Marshal Nelson, charged with passing a counterfeit $10 bill on J. W. Blood, a grocer. It is thought they have been doing considerable of the work in Lynn and vicinity.

Liquor Sellers Punished.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 24.—In the liquor cases tried before Judge Favens, and which created quite a stir, George Kelly was fined $100, and Benjamin White and his wife Mary each fined $100 and sentenced to three months' in the house of correction.

Heavy Damage by Storm.

Cincinnati, Aug. 24.—A severe storm prevailed Saturday night throughout Ohio and Indiana. Near Mt. Gilead, the barn of Charles Gordon was destroyed by lightning, and seven blooded horses were burned. A terrible wind storm passed over Wood county, unroofing houses and leveling forests. Hundreds of oil derricks were blown down. The loss in the Bowling Green oil field is over $100,000. At Logansport, Ind., houses were unroofed. A man named Stevens was killed. At Thornhope, 16 cars were blown from the Pennsylvania siding.

Effect of American Competition.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The state department has received a report from the Cologne consulate, which shows that in the matter of barbed wire and wire nails the Americans are underselling the Germans in Japan, and that Hamburg importing houses are forced to buy the American wire, because their customers have begun to purchase it directly from the United States. American competition, though felt elsewhere, has been especially noticeable in Japa, it is said.

Joe Wheeler Wins.

Chattanooga, Aug. 24.—Returns from the primaries in the Eighth Alabama—General Joe Wheeler's district—show that he has received the nomination. It was at first thought that Judge Richardson had carried Colbert county, which would have nominated him, but, instead, General Wheeler carries it by 366, which insures his nomination by a good majority.

REDEEMING A PLEDGE.

Hoke Smith's Reason For Supporting the Chicago Nominees.

His Personal Relations With Cleveland Are Friendly.

Speculation as to Who Will Be Next Secretary of the Interior.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The news that Secretary Hoke Smith had resigned, and that his resignation had been accepted by the president, created considerable stir in political circles here, although the probability of Mr. Smith's retirement had been, in a measure, anticipated ever since his paper, the Atlanta Journal, declared that it would support Bryan and Sewall. Mr. Smith declined to discuss the subject yesterday, but it is known that the personal relations between the president and Mr. Smith have in no wise been disturbed. Mr. Smith's resignation, his friends say, grew out of his differences with his chief on the question of party policy, and his delicate desire not to embarrass the president at such a time.

HOKE SMITH.

Beyond the question of his conception of party loyalty, in acquiescing in the will of the majority, Mr. Smith, during his campaign for the gold standard in Georgia against ex-Speaker Crisp, had given a personal pledge that he would, if defeated, support the nominee of the convention. As an honorable man, his friends say, he felt it his duty to redeem that pledge.

He informed the president of his position and intentions, and to avoid embarrassments placed his resignation at his disposal. It is said that Mr. Cleveland remonstrated. The correspondence on the subject, if published, would no doubt be very interesting, but it is doubtful whether it will ever be given out. It can be stated, however, with great positiveness, that the step which Secretary Smith felt himself compelled to take has not in any way affected the warm regard the president and Mr. Smith entertain for each other.

There has been a good deal of gossip about Mr. Smith's successor. It seems altogether unlikely that John M. Reynolds, the assistant secretary, will be promoted. It is regarded as much more probable that a new man will be selected, probably from the middle west—Indiana, Illinois or Missouri. The names of ex-Governor Francis of Missouri, ex-Congressman Bynum of Indiana and ex-Congressman Ben Cable of Illinois are those around which gossip most persistently clings. All are pronounced gold Democrats.

Mystery Solved at Last.

Buffalo, Aug. 24.—Frederick Gordon Rew, the missing Cornell student, who disappeared two years ago and was supposed to have met with foul play at Ithaca, has been heard from. He is on one of the East India islands. His parents in this city yesterday received a letter from their son. In this letter young Rew states that after leaving Cornell he went to New York, engaging passage on a cattle ship and working his way to Bordeaux, France. At this place he secured employment with a firm that was about to erect an electric plant in Central America. He sailed from Honduras in the early part of 1895, visiting Jamaica, Martinique and Cuba, and then returned to France, where he contracted to look after the electric machinery of a tramp trading ship bound from East Indies. The vessel is due at Southampton the latter part of this month, and Rew states that he will leave the ship there and return home at once.

Six Thousand Murders.

London, Aug. 24.—The Daily News this morning says that Dr. Nicholaides, the official representative of the Cretan reform committee, who is now in Berlin, has issued a report on the Cretan massacres. Dr. Nicholaides asserts that the statements in this report can be confirmed by the consuls at Canea, and that the diplomatic representatives there will verify the assertion that 6000 Christians have been murdered in Crete, often with revolting barbarity.

Death of John Chamberlain.

Saratoga, Aug. 24.—John Chamberlain died last night of heart disease. He had been in a semi-comatose state for 30 hours. He was born in Lansingburg 50 years ago. While quite young he went with his parents to St. Louis. Subsequently he made New York city his home, where his winning personality attracted hosts of friends. In 1874 he went to Washington, and his place was from the outset one of the capital's most noted institutions.

Strike Spreads.

New York, Aug. 24.—Over 1800 knee pants makers went out on strike in this city yesterday, as the result of the resolution adopted last Wednesday evening at a meeting of the Knee Pants Makers' union declaring for a general strike. A committee was appointed to draw up a new agreement for the union, which will be offered to the contractors tomorrow.

The Bogie Match.

Eight men participated in the bogie match of the Wollaston Golf club on Saturday, at the links at Bellevue park. The bogie score was figured on 76 strokes in 18 holes. The first class men were handicapped 14 strokes and the second class men 24 strokes.

The scores :

D. K. Swartwout won 5 up, 4 to play.
William Fenton, Jr., won 3 up, 2 to play.
R. R. Freeman won 3 up, 2 to play.
H. K. Terry won 4 up, 3 to play.
J. A. Harlow won 4 up, 3 to play.
H. W. Porter won 5 up, 4 to play.

The scores of H. M. Fairbanks and James Hall, Jr., were not handed in.

The Grade Crossings Abolished.

For a year or more the patrons of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad have watched with a great deal of interest the extensive work of abolishing the grade crossings between Chickering and Forest Hills. It has been a costly engineering job, removing these dozen or more grade crossings, says the Norfolk County Gazette, and the skill with which the work has been done, while the road was continually in operation, has won the admiration of every one familiar with the process. The roadbed of the old road has been raised from a height of from 18 to 20 feet and new iron bridges now span the streets that were formerly crossed at grade. New stations on a grade with the elevated tracks supplant the old ones and all of them are of handsome design, built of granite and buff brick.

Yesterday the double track on the old grade was abandoned and the cars began to run on the elevated. It is a great improvement, and it is creditable to the energy and enterprise of the consolidated railroad.

Can the Mayor and Assessors Change Figures?

The Flop in the Tax Rate Causes Considerable Talk.

The City Council, Treasurer and Others Criticised.

A change of sixty cents in the tax rate of the city in one day, has been the theme of discussion among the taxpayers since Saturday, and there is a feeling among them that our city officials and legislators are not as careful as they should be, and that now the tax rate may be unnecessarily large. Many are criticized for neglect of duty, the list including:

The Mayor.
The City Council.
The City Treasurer.
The Finance Committee.
The City Auditor.
The Assessors.

It is evident that many have a hand in the tax rate, and each is inclined to shirk the responsibility.

The Assessors got together the items of the levy, and without a conference with the Mayor, City Treasurer and City Auditor, as is the usual custom, announced their figures. The city tax for current expenses was fixed by a vote of the City Council approved by the Mayor at $202,500 and they evidently saw no reason why that should be changed, and it is doubtful if it can be done legally. The amount for maturing debt, $77,480.00, and also the item for interest, $20,342.65, were from the annual appropriation order for 1896 passed by the City Council and Mayor and were verified. The number of polls was ascertained by the board in their rounds in May. The county and State tax were fixed respectively by the County Commissioners and the Legislature. The last item of overlaying is allowed to make an even tax rate to avoid fractions.

Principal Assessor Federhen says the Board of Assessors does not consider it their duty to do the financiering for the city, but simply to take the figures as they find them, and when the valuation is determined, compute the tax rate. They take no blame for the situation of affairs.

John O. Hall, the City Auditor, when interviewed by the LEDGER, said he was not consulted, either by the Assessors, the Mayor, or the City Treasurer, as in some previous years, upon the levy as a whole, and was surprised that the rate had been announced. When the city levy for current expenses was made up the item of interest and water revenue had not been considered as income. It was thought the former could be determined better in August, and that a vote of the Council was necessary to appropriate the receipts from water over and above the interest and maintenance. Had since been told water income was included last year. The item of interest had been changed from the amount in the appropriation order nearly every year, sometimes larger and sometimes smaller. The reduction of $12,000 in the revised figures should have been made from interest and debt and not from the city levy as voted.

R. F. Claflin, the chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, when seen by the LEDGER said his committee had not personally ascertained whether the amount of the tax levy order which it reported "ought to pass," was the proper sum or not. He had asked the City Treasurer if the sum of $202,500 was the amount needed, and was assured that it was, and took it for granted. Thought there should be a schedule prepared, which should be a matter of record and guide in the future for making up the Assessors' figures.

H. W. Gray, the City Treasurer, was aware that interest, etc., had not been considered as an income. It had been suggested that the appropriation for interest could be decreased by the interest received when the Assessors' figures were made up. He expected there would be a conference between the Assessors, Mayor and himself when the Assessors compiled their figures.

In arriving at the amount necessary to raise for city expenses, the income was estimated as follows, the total being $25,585.00:

Almshouse,	$490 00
Board of Health,	35 00
Sidewalks,	500 00
Burial Places,	3,200 00
Garbage,	600 00
Corporation tax,	10,600 00
Bank tax,	1,000 00
State Aid,	3,400 00
State Paupers,	300 00
Miscellaneous City,	3,000 00
Parks,	75 00
Street Sprinkling,	1,600 00
Police,	875 00
	$25,585 00

The appropriation order outside of the debt and interest amounted to $227,968, and from this was deducted the income as above.

The T. R. & S. Co.'s nine of Wollaston went to Hyde Park Saturday and beat the home team by the score of 4 to 0. Neither club scored until the seventh inning when the T. R. & S. Co.'s made two runs. They also scored one run in each of the successive innings. It was pronounced the best game of the year by the Hyde Park "cranks." The good work of both nines was well applauded, especially that of the Jonah for the Hyde Parks, and Duffy's pitching for the visitors, who struck out eight men. The Hyde Parks are very anxious for a return game, and will undoubtedly be gratified. The full score:

Two Young Men Badly Fleeced.

Washburn's circus came to town Sunday morning, and connected with its stay here are a number of startling occurrences.

The circus grounds are naturally the object of much curiosity to a certain class of citizens. On Monday forenoon a South Weymouth butter dealer, well known in this town, and a friend from Quincy, who is employed in the postal service, visited the grounds. Connected with the show were various devices to catch the unwary, which the young men in question proved to be; for they were soon inveigled into a game called "nine-pin jack-pot," which was doing a flourishing business in a side tent. All went well at first, and considerable cash was won. After awhile the man who ran the game got them to bet a large amount, which of course they didn't win. As the gamster scooped in his pile which contained $130 of the young men's cash, he said, "The game is closed, gentlemen."

Trouble ensued, and the young men made a great noise, but the gamester began to clear up and got out. A local lawyer was enlisted, who went down to the circus, and a search was made for the "fleecer," but he had taken his departure for parts unknown. The circus managers were then seen and informed that if they did not make good the loss, an attachment would be placed on the receipts. This brought them to terms, and after much haggling a compromise was effected whereby $80 of the lost money was recovered. It is hoped the young men though poorer are wiser boys.

The Readville Trotting Park.

The new Readville Trotting Park, owned and controlled by the N. E. Horse Breeders' Association, will be thrown open to the public tomorrow, the opening of the grand circuit meeting, with $30,000 in stakes and purses. There will be four days of racing, some of the crack trotters and pacers have already been entered. Everything is in readiness for the meeting although the grounds are not yet completed. But the splendid mile track, built by Mr. Seth Griffin, is all ready for the races and the beautiful grand stand is ready for occupancy. It has a seating capacity of 3400 and from every point the entire track from start to finish can be seen. The big restaurant in the basement is ample for feeding the multitude, and the sanitary arrangements are simply perfect. There are now stabled on the grounds nearly 250 flyers, several of the big strings coming from the west.

The Saturday Shoot.

The interest in the Wollaston Trap Club's shoot during the hot months seems to be unabated. At Saturday afternoon's shoot Starrett swept everything before him wining with 17 birds to his credit. 340 blue rocks were thrown. The score:

Sleep

Induced by the use of coca, opiate or narcotic compounds is bad, decidedly bad. They undermine health and shatter the constitution and the patient is steadily growing into a worse condition—often resulting in the terrible slavery and misery of the cocaine and opium habit. Sleep induced by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla does not perhaps come as quickly, but it comes more surely and more permanently through nature's great restoring and rejuvenating channel—purified, vitalized and enriched blood. This feeds the nerves with life-giving energy and builds up the system and constitution from the very foundation of all health and life—the blood—pure, rich, red blood.

It is not necessary to employ strong, powerful odors—in fact it is a gross violation of "good form" to do so.

WARD VALUATIONS.

Ward One Pays Nearly One Third the Tax.

Leads Both in Real and Personal Estate.

Ward Six Doubles in Valuation in Seven Years.

Interesting comparisons of the ward valuations of the city, both in real estate, and personal estate, and as totals, are given herewith. The total valuation of the city is $17,580,515, and as Ward One is assessed for $5,752,675 it will pay about one-third the total taxes. The Centre ward not only has the largest total valuation, but also leads in real and personal.

The Atlantic ward was by far the smallest in 1889 when Quincy became a city, but in percentage its growth has been the largest and it has doubled in valuation in seven years and is now five with a good prospect of moving up to No. 3.

The Wollaston ward has very nearly doubled and is increasing faster than the Centre ward.

All wards show gains as the summary shows :

The Last Race.

The Quincy Yacht Club's next and last event of the season will be a race, which occurs on September 1. This will virtually close the most successful season the club has had since its organization. Everything, including the open regatta cruise, ladies day, hops, concert and other social functions, have been a success, and have been carried out as quietly and systematically as the running of a clock. Wherever the club flag has been carried, whether on the north, or the south shore or the cape, its members have been received with unusual courtesy. The club is the recognized leader in the racing of small yachts, and its boats have captured about all of the prizes offered in those classes on the coast.

RHODES AS PEACEMAKER.

The Matabele Rebellion Is Brought to an End Throught His Efforts.

Buluwayo, Aug. 24.—The mission of Cecil Rhodes to the Matabele is reported to be a pronounced success. The natives have yielded, and war is considered at an end. Rhodes inspired the confidence of the Matabele chiefs by going among them unarmed. The chiefs complained that ill-usage by native police provoked rebellion, and Mr. Rhodes promised them that reforms in this respect would be inaugurated at once.

According to special dispatches from Buluwayo, received by the London papers, the Matebele chiefs promised not to fight the English forces, provided Cecil Rhodes would agree to remain in the country and care for them. They also asked for the removal of a permanent government official, of whose conduct they complained bitterly. Cecil Rhodes replied, telling them that the official referred to had already left the government service. He then asked the chiefs whether they were for peace or for war. Secumbo, the leading chief, laid his gun and assegal before Mr. Rhodes, and signified that they were in favor of peace. Cecil Rhodes promised to spare their lives, but said that the surrender must be unconditional. At the conclusion of the conference, Secumbo cried: "Go in peace, my father, greatest of chiefs."

Two of the chiefs were brothers of Lobengula, the Matabele king, who was said to have been killed at the close of the Matabele war in 1894.

Rather Encouraging.

Medina, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The apple market has opened at $1 to $1.25 per barrel. Two English buyers have already contracted for 31,000 barrels. The crop in Orleans and Niagara counties promises to be an enormous one, the trees being so heavily loaded that it is difficult to prevent their collapse. Every available vacant property is being secured for apple yards and storage, and cooper shops are running night and day trying to keep up with the demand for barrels. If the price can be kept up, growers in this neighborhood will reap a fortune from their crops.

A Republican for Silver.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger :

Several days ago the undersigned, through the columns of your paper, asked Mr. F. A. Tupper six questions on bimetalism. This called-forth a reply from the gentleman, the fallacies of which I shall endeavor to show.

To my question, "If it was not true that for a long time the United States had a double standard of silver and gold, at a ratio of 16 to 1 and that the relative value did not vary two points;" Mr. Tupper frankly confesses that that was the truth.

He further says that the demonetization of silver was not the only cause of the decrease of the price of silver bullion and that the claim that the government can increase the price of silver is purely an assumption.

Was silver not used as money but only in the manufactures and arts then, the law of supply and demand would regulate the price. Just as the law of supply and demand for money regulates the value of money in the world's markets,—namely the banks and offices of money-lending institutions.

The fact that the Bland-Allison silver dollar has always been worth a dollar and that it will today buy as much in this country as a gold dollar, is evidence enough to the people that the governments stamp is worth something, although the intrinsic value of it decreased steadily from $1.21 to .53.

The silver contained in a standard dollar is worth intrinsically today the latter figure and should the government decide to adopt the measure to coin both at the ratio of 16 to 1 the intrinsic value must certainly advance to one dollar for this reason.

Bullion silver at one dollar and twenty-nine cents an ounce would make a silver dollar worth a dollar intrinsically. Now under the act which provides for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver the government offers to give to every holder of silver in bulk, whether he be a silver mine-owner or an individual who owns a small quantity, the privilege of having his bullion coined free of charge.

Thus every possessor of the amount of silver which it takes to make a silver dollar, (412½ grains) would receive a dollar for the same from the government.

Now, if the owner of silver knew that the United States government stood ready to take all his silver and pay him $1.00 for 412½ grains would he not be unwilling to sell at a less figure to some one else.

Would not every owner value his silver at that price and knowing that a customer stood ready to buy any and all (the United States Government) would not the value at once raise to that figure. There can be no doubt that the price would immediately raise from 53 cents to one dollar and that an ounce of silver would advance from 56 cents (its present price) to $1.29.

In answer to my question, as to whether his salary as principal of the Quincy High School was paid in gold or otherwise, and if in silver or silver certificates he had any difficulty in disposing of it at its face value, Mr. Tupper makes another frank answer, and admits that he received it in paper money all "secured by bonds of the United States deposited with the Treasurer at Washington."

As a bank note is the only paper money in circulation with this backing consequently his salary must have been paid exclusively in them.

He further says that silver certificates are as good as gold for the reason that the government stands ready to redeem all its currency on a gold basis.

While Mr. Tupper does not say that silver certificates are redeemable in gold, many would take his statement to mean it.

None of the paper money in circulation today is redeemable in gold, with the exception of the gold certificates, and these are so rare that the general public seldom see them.

Both gold and gold certificates are hoarded and the appearance of either to the common people is one of surprise and distrust.

Is it any wonder that the people of this great land of ours, bursting with resources yet prisoned with these golden chains, wonder at a continuance of a monetary standard which they rarely see and owned almost exclusively by the banks and the Morgan-Rothschilds syndicate?

There is a fallacy in existence which gold advocates are continually advancing as true and which our gold press still try to force upon their readers, that silver certificates and silver dollars are redeemable in gold.

Let me say that this is false and that the only money that the treasury will pay for a silver certificate is a silver dollar or another silver certificate.

Mr. Tupper also asks this question—"How is that the Mexican laborer receives only 40 cents a day in his currency, equal to 20 cents in U. S. currency?

In reply to that I can only say that this is altogether at variance with facts and figures.

Not only is the country of Mexico prosperous and busy but the demand for skilled labor is something phenomenal.

Only last week a daily paper contained an advertisement for civil engineers at $7.50 per day.

In view of the fact that Mexico has but just loosed herself from years of Catholic slavery the papers give us predictions of an era of industrial prosperity unequalled by but one other country, that of our own previous to 1873.

I invite Mr. Tupper, or any other person citing Mexico as a country ruined by a silver monetary standard, to the letter of Mr. Gurnsey, the able Mexican correspondent of the Boston Herald to that paper on last Tuesday.

Lack of space prevents my noticing several other mistakes in Mr. Tupper's letter and prevents my answering the questions propounded by him in the LEDGER of the 13th inst.

I would respectfully inform Mr. Tupper in closing that my reason for supporting the free coinage plank is not a political one. The writer is and has been a Republican, who believes and glories in the principles of that party with the exception of the plank on the currency.

The fact that the banks and bankers of the country are without exception on the side of gold-monometalism, convinces me that the common people should be on the other; the fact that a subsidized press constantly present fallacies to their readers show they dare not allow the common people to act as the jury, with the possession of the truth and the fact that the prosperity of this country has steadily diminished under a gold standard convinces me that another term of years under this same condition of affairs would bring disaster upon a land intended by Providence to be the most favored of any in the world.

"BEN BOLT."

BRILLIANT DISPLAY.

Capt. Bob Cook's Aquatic Show Surpasses Anything in This Vicinity.

Over five thousand people gathered at Lovell's Grove to witness Capt. Bob Cook's unique and novel exhibition of walking on the water and his aquatic spectacle. The exhibition was advertised to commence at 8 o'clock but was delayed thirty minutes on account of the railroad being unable to accommodate the immense crowd.

Capt. Cook started the entertainment by firing an artillery shell in the air as a signal that the excitement was about to begin. Then followed a pyrotechnical display of marine fireworks and geysers throwing tons of water high in the air. He then donned his water shoes and leisurely strolled over the surface of the water without any apparent effort whatever, and was loudly cheered by the immense crowds on shore.

After thoroughly satisfying the spectators that he could not only walk on the water but could also walk against wind and tide, he then turned his attention to the two ships and fort which were anchored nearby and began throwing water bombs and torpedoes at them in quick succession. They returning the fire with numerous batteries of Roman candles and guns, keeping up a continual fusilade for about twenty minutes, during which the surface of the water was brilliantly illuminated with water serpents, fountains, wheels and red lights, making it look exceedingly dangerous for the water walker at the time; but he finally succeeded in blowing the ships and fort to atoms, making the grandest and most realistic naval battle ever witnessed in this vicinity; after which everybody returned to their homes highly pleased with their evening's entertainment.

The Boers' National Hymn.

Four colored flag, shake out thy folds—
Our Dutch republic's glory crown!
And may the curse of heaven attend
The godless wretch who'd tear thee down!
Shake out thy folds to freedom's breeze,
Fit emblem of our loved Transvaal.
Thy day of happiness has come—
Thine enemies are vanquished all.

While many a raging tempest howled
Right bravely you defied the blast,
And now the clouds have cleared away
In peace we pledge to thee at last.
Assailed by Kaffir, Lion, Brit,
Triumphant over cruel wrong,
Thy vanquished foes shall see thee wave,
Protected by our love so strong.

Float on! No air too pure for thee,
Fit emblem of our loved Transvaal.
Thy day of happiness has come—
Thine enemies are vanquished all.
Four colored flag, shake out thy folds—
Our Dutch republic's glory crown.
And may the curse of heaven attend
The godless wretch who'd tear thee down!

Conneff and Bacon.

"Conneff," says a man who knows him, "will have a hard time getting in first when he and Bacon meet. The Englishman can be depended upon to do well at all times. Sometimes he shows that remarkable form which has made him famous, but in many instances his running has been commonplace when he was apparently in good condition. The Englishman will be a big favorite on the other side of the ocean."—Exchange.

American Wheelmen Abroad.

The American cyclists abroad have of late been proving that they can ride just a little at least, for Johnson has already cracked several world's and a number of English records. Murphy is showing an improvement, for, while he lost to Gougoltz recently, it was by inches only, and Gougoltz is as good as the best, if not the best, foreigner on the path.—Referee.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—E. E. Anderson's second attempt to cover a mile in one minute, on a bicycle paced by a locomotive, which was to have taken place yesterday, has been postponed until Sept. 6. His machine will be geared to 120 inches, and he confidently expects to clip the three seconds off his present record of 1m. 3s.

The Mystery of the Pearl.

The usual source of pearls found within the oyster appears to be the intrusion of some small foreign body which sets up an irritation of cuticle. The only means of defense open to the mollusk is to deposit a layer of nacre around the irritating particle and thus cut it off from the soft, tender skin. A grain of sand or a small crustacean may slip in between the lips, and, setting up irritation, provoke the cuticle to deposit around it a series of thin films of nacre. These are added to from time to time, the little nucleus is completely encysted and a pearl is the result.—Ladies' Home Journal.

SILENT ENDORSEMENT.

Attitude of the Administration Toward the Third Ticket Movement.

Hanna Pays a Visit to New England's Metropolis

Chairman Butler Says Watson Is Gaining Strength All Along the Line.

Indianapolis, Aug. 24.—While it is not specially claimed at the national headquarters of the gold standard Democrats that President Cleveland will openly declare himself in favor of the nomination of a third ticket, there is nevertheless the firm belief that the administration will not oppose the movement. The following statement was authorized at national headquarters:

"There is no one authorized to speak for President Cleveland, but certainly there has been no antagonism of the movement from Mr. Cleveland or his friends, and anyone observing the situation can see very clearly that Senator Vilas, Senator Caffrey, Senator Palmer and Senator Gray are, to put it mildly, not unfriendly to Cleveland. In fact, these gentlemen have been closely identified with him, and are his friends. The Chicago platform, as everyone knows, seeks to impeach his personal integrity and his political administration, and Governor Stone of Missouri, in his Madison Square garden speech, saw fit to go outside the record and declare Cleveland to be a traitor. The newspapers supporting Bryan are engaged in the same kind of work. Mr. Cleveland and his friends are not of the makeup that kisses the hand that smites them."

The leaders say that there will be from 5000 to 8000 people at the convention, and accommodations are being made upon that basis. New York engaged quarters for 125 persons today at the Bates. Seventeen states have now engaged headquarters at the different hotels.

In discussing political developments from a gold standard standpoint, ex-Congressman Bynum said: "I am of the opinion that a full state ticket will be put in the field in Indiana. There will be a congressional nominee in the Seventh district, and in most of the districts of the state. This is essential, because the securing of congressmen is as important as the presidency. I have heard no authoritative mention, as yet, of a candidate for congress in this district."

It was suggested to Mr. Bynum that the press dispatches have it that he has received a letter from President Cleveland advising against the nomination of a third ticket, and approving a platform without a ticket.

"I have not received a letter from Mr. Cleveland," said Mr. Bynum, "nor have I received an intimation from him either directly or indirectly as to what his views are. I do not believe that Mr. Cleveland will have a word to say either now or during the convention, as to his preferences."

"Is it the expectation that this will be a permanent party?"

"The organization named will be appointed to live until the next national convention. How long the party will live depends upon circumstances."

Mr. Bynum stated that he will not serve as chairman of the executive committee longer than the coming convention.

CHANCE OF SENTIMENT.

Watson Said to Be Winning Over Men Who Favored Sewall.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Speaking of Mr. Watson, the Populist nominee for vice president, Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist executive committee, said last night that he noticed a decided change in sentiment toward Mr. Watson, not only among the Populists in the west who favored Mr. Sewall, but also among the silver Democrats of the south. "I think," he said, "this is the beginning of a change that will continue until the day of election. Probably at no place in the south is this going on more rapidly than in Georgia, Mr. Watson's own state. The outlook is now that he will carry Georgia, even if the Democrats elect their state ticket. This change is also very marked in my own state of North Carolina, and the outlook is that Watson will get the electoral vote of that state."

"To what do you attribute this change in sentiment," he was asked.

"The feeling in this direction has been growing no doubt since the People's party national convention. The action of our committee on last Thursday, in giving out the positive statement that Bryan and Watson would be our candidates beyond question until the day of election, was the occasion that has called forth the expression of sentiment that no doubt existed before."

"To what do you attribute the growth of the sentiment after the convention?"

"To the action of the convention itself. Every fair-minded man honestly for silver, and who puts silver above party, but who is satisfied with the Chicago platform and ticket, realized as soon as our convention adjourned that we had improved on the Chicago ticket. The action of our convention showed conclusively that the People's party was patriotic, and put the cause of financial reform even above party advantage itself. If the People's party had nominated a straight ticket, and had then offered to the Democrats, in order to make victory certain, to take down our presidential candidate if they would take down their vice presidential candidate, so as to form a co-operative ticket, the Democrats would have jumped at the proposition, and every one would have said it was fair, unselfish and patriotic. The fact that we did not take such action for trading purposes, but at once took the high and patriotic position that Bryan was as good a silver man as we could nominate and therefore we would nominate him, but failed to nominate Mr. Sewall, for the reason only that he does not represent what Mr. Bryan represents, has commended the People's party to every fair-minded voter of America opposed to the single gold standard. This gives the party confidence and respect among men who before detested and abused it, and put it in a position where with every mistake of the parties it will gain two recruits where it would have gained one before. In short, it puts it in a position where the least failure of the Democrats to carry out their pledges, if they should go into power, would make the People's party a great opposition organization to the gold standard in 1900, and practically wipe the Democratic party out of existence."

HANNA AT THE HUB.

Says Campaign of Education Is Accomplishing Its Purpose.

Boston, Aug. 24.—Hon. Mark A. Hanna, chairman of the Republican national committee, arrived in Boston early yesterday morning. He breakfasted at Young's, and immediately thereafter started for Beverly Farms, where he was the guest of his brother-in-law, J. H. Rhodes. Today he came to Boston and visited the Republican state headquarters. To a reporter, Mr. Hanna talked upon the campaign and enquired about the work in Massachusetts, and was very much interested in the facts given to him relative to the organization of business men, regardless of political affiliations, in behalf of the gold standard. He said:

"We recognize the fact that the financial issue is the dominant one, and our campaign will be conducted with that fact in view.

"It is a campaign of education. It is remarkably significant that we are unable to supply the demand for literature, and especially upon the financial question. I can say from personal knowledge that wherever the work of educating the voters has begun, the results are already apparent, and the silver disease is beginning to disappear.

"As a matter of fact, this campaign has started itself. The real work does not begin until Sept 1. President Harrison's speech, in Madison Square garden, will be a notable one, and the speech of Hon Thomas B. Reed, with which he opened the campaign in his own district, was a magnificent effort."

Concerning the outlook in New York, Mr. Hanna said that he was well satisfied with the factonal disputes there, for he recognized the fact that in all great cities, and in all great parties, factions are a matter of course. "It is the same with the Republicans as with the Democrats," he added, "but possibly the Republicans can't get together as quickly as their opponents. They are not as well disciplined in that respect."

Mr. Hanna thinks the vote of Vermont will be a better register of public opinion at this time than that of Maine. He does not look for more than the usual Republican majority in the latter state, but from Vermont he has received information that leads him to believe that there will be a gain of at least 10,000. In the west he notes an evident intention to renew the torchlight procession as an adjunct of a lively campaign.

FINANCIAL JUGGLERY.

Altgeld Asked to Explain Inside Doings of Illinois State Treasury.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Ex-Congressman William S. Foreman has written Governor J. P. Altgeld a sensational open letter, in which he makes various charges of recklessness in the handling of state money, and declares that he, as a Democrat, cannot support the governor for re-election. Among other questions, Mr. Foreman asked the governor: "Why did you place the price of nomination of state treasurer, at the Peoria convention, at $10,000, the money to be used to help your re-election?

"Why did you borrow $50,000 to $60,000 of Rufus Ramsay, state treasurer, now deceased, without paying interest?

"What became of your bills, if there were any, between the time of the official sealing of the state treasury vaults, after Ramsay's death, and the opening of the same when a successor was named?"

Mr. Foreman cites instances in which Altgeld has borrowed hundreds of thousands of dollars to run the state institutions, paying as high as 7 per cent interest, and asks: "Out of what appropriations have you paid the thousands of dollars of interest, or to be more explicit, under what appropriation do you propose to cover it up?"

The letter declares that the governor has practically wrecked the Democratic party in Illinois.

A Platt Boom.

Saratoga, Aug. 24.—Thomas C. Platt will probably be nominee of the Republican state convention for governor of New York. Unless he can successfully combat a great and growing sentiment that has ceased to be a matter that Mr. Platt can control, his name will be presented to the convention, every other candidate will withdraw, and he will be nominated without debate. A newspaper correspondent showed this statement to Mr. Platt late last night. He thought for a few minutes, ran his thin, almost effeminate, hand through his beard, and said slowly and distinctly: "I am not a candidate, and I do not want the office."

"But, Mr. Platt, suppose the convention is stampeded for you?"

"I don't think it will be. I do not want the nomination. I prefer plain citizenship, and I shall decline to stand for the nomination. I have told this to all the persons who have spoken to me about it."

It was, however, a significant fact, that late last night Edward Lauterbach and Lemuel E. Quigg were working among the delegates, and Mr. Platt had not instructed them to desist. Ex-Senator Vancott was also advocating the nomination of Mr. Platt, and he asserted that Mr. Platt, while averse to the nomination, would take it if the delegates offered it to him in the convention.

Hill Will Not Preside.

Albany, Aug. 24.—Mr. Bryan is to be entertained by Senator Hill at Wolfert's Roost while in Albany. Mr. Chase, chairman of the Democratic city committee, said that as a matter of personal courtesy to the distinguished visitor to Albany, Senator Hill, through the committee, had invited Mr. Bryan and his wife and a few personal friends to dine with him at Wolfert's Roost on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, and that Mr. Bryan had accepted the invitation. Asked whether Senator Hill would preside at the meeting to be held at 6:30 o'clock on City Hall square, when Mr. Bryan makes a speech, Mr. Chase said: "Mr. Bryan will not speak for more than half an hour, and possibly not longer than 20 minutes. Almost immediately after he finishes it will be necessary for him to start for the railroad station. It is likely that everyone will wish to shake hands with Mr. Bryan. While the citizens of Albany are always delighted to hear their distinguished fellow townsman, Senator Hill, the committee of arrangements does not think it best to ask Senator Hill to speak or preside at this time."

GENTS.—I have used nearly four bottles of P. P. P. I was afflicted from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet. Your P. P. P. has cured my difficulty of breathing, smothering, palpitation of the heart, and has relieved me of all pain. One nostril was closed for ten years, but now I can breathe through it readily.

I have not slept on either side for two years in fact, I dreaded to see night come. Now I sleep soundly in any position all night.

I am 60 years old, but expect soon to be able to take hold of the plow handles. I feel glad that I was lucky enough to get P. P. P., and I heartily recommend it to my friends and the public generally.

Yours respectfully,
A. M. RAMSEY.

THE STATE OF TEXAS, } ss.:
County of Comanche, }

Before the undersigned authority, on this day, personally appeared A. M. Ramsey, who, after being duly sworn, says on oath that the foregoing statement made by him relative to the virtue of P. P. P. medicine, is true.

A. M. RAMSEY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this, August 4th, 1896.

FOR A GOLD STANDARD.

Convention of Massachusetts Democrats Opposed to Bryan.

Cannot Stand Upon Platform Proclaimed at Chicago.

Claim That It Repudiated the Ancient Principles of Democracy.

Boston, Aug. 25.—The convention of the gold standard Democrats of Massachusetts was called to order at 11 o'clock today in Horticultural hall by ex-Mayor F. O. Prince. James Russell Reed was selected as temporary chairman. Upon assuming the chair he made the following address:

"I thank you for the honor of being your spokesman upon this occasion. We meet here in an unusual way and under unusual circumstances to state our position in the plainest manner. The reasons for our action are many. We stand here in opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates, because we believe in the supremacy of law as law is determined by the supreme court of the United States. We know that the existence of our government depends upon the obedience of the people to the decisions of our court of last resort. The Chicago platform assails the integrity of this court.

"We stand here in opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates because we believe in order, and because we will not condemn our national government for legally maintaining order and protecting the rights, the property and lives of citizens who were refused protection by the governor of Illinois. The Chicago platform condemns the national government for so doing.

"We stand here in opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates because we believe in justice, and justice demands that the servants of the people should be protected by the civil service laws now in force.

"We stand here in opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates, because we believe in honesty and in the rules of arithmetic. We do not wish to pay our debts, nor to be paid by our debtors, in anything but the best money of the world, such as we now have. In this money these debts were created, and in this same money they must be settled. Each day's future labor creates a new debt, which must be paid in the same best money. The best is none too good for us, and that best must be as good as gold. We were brought up to believe that two times two are four, and when we are told that two times two are six, or that 53 or 51, or it may be 49, next week are equal to 100, we know that no such change can be made in our good old rules without disturbing the foundations of society, and we do not wish to trifle with the multiplication table. Nor do we believe it is in the power of the United States, great as we may have become since so many mining camps have been represented by stars upon our flag, to change the relative value of things in the face of the protest and the opposition of the rest of the civilized world.

"We stand here in opposition to the Chicago platform and candidates because we believe in the Democracy for which Grover Cleveland lives, and for which William E. Russell died. The spirit of our friend is with us still, and is our strongest inspiration to do as he did.

"We claim that we hold the real principles of Democracy, and that the men at Chicago who spoke and acted against these principles are bolters; that we are still loyal, when we prefer the substance and spirit of Democracy to the letter or the shadow, or even the name.

"We know well that suffering and distress exists in many parts of our country, but we do not believe that the illness of our body politic is to be cured by a dose of poison.

"Let me say one word to our friends, the enemy, the Republican party. We are not with you now any more than we have been with you in the past. For assurance that your candidates will stand firmly upon the money plank of your platform we are thankful. On this point you agree with us. On other points you differ. And be assured on these other points we are, and will be, the same good old opponents you have found us before."

Following Mr. Reed's address, the convention chose permanent officers, with Thomas J. Gargan as the chairman.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin made an address, and was followed by William Everett and Colonel John R. Fellows of New York. Colonel Fellows made the address of the day and voiced the sentiments of the gold standard Democracy of the country in general, while Secretary Hamlin's utterances were considered to reflect the views of the national Democratic administration.

Following is the platform adopted by the convention:

The Democratic party during its whole history has been pledged to promote the security of personal liberty and private contract, the rights of the individual against favored classes, the supremacy of the law, and economy of administration of government in the people's interests.

The Democratic party has always stood for a sound and stable currency for the use and benefit of the people, and not of a section or a class.

It has ever insisted that the financial honor of the nation, as well as the integrity of the institutions established by the constitution, should be preserved inviolate.

The delegates to the convention at Chicago were elected to proclaim a platform and to nominate candidates representing these cardinal principles of the Democratic party. In violation of the trust committed to them a majority of the delegates there assembled, against the protest of one-third of the convention, repudiated the Democratic administration of our Democratic president, Grover Cleveland, abandoned the long tried and essential principles of our old Democracy, and formulated a platform embodying views new and strange to the Democratic party, destructive to the welfare of our citizens, imperilling the life of our constitutional government, and impeaching the honesty of the United States among the nations of the world.

The Chicago convention, having failed in its duty, and having adopted a platform absolutely at variance with the past platforms of the Democratic party, in the nation and in Massachusetts, it becomes the necessary duty of the Democrats of the commonwealth of Massachusetts to assemble again in convention to reaffirm the ancient principles of the Democratic party, and to choose delegates to a new convention of the Democrats of the United States, and

Therefore, we Democrats of Massachusetts, who are loyal to the old Democracy, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirm and redeclare out belief in such and every principle laid down in the platform of the Democratic party of this state, adopted by its delegates in convention assembled, on April 21, 1896.

And further, we oppose the free, unlimited and independent coinage of silver, at the ratio of 16 to 1, as a principle dishonest and unjust to the creditor, defrauding the savings bank depositor of a large part of his savings, reducing the wages of the workingman, while increasing the cost of all he consumes, robbing the veteran of a part of his pension, lowering the value of his policy to each policy holder in a life insurance company, fraternal of benefit order, and debasing our standard of value to that of the poorer and less civilized nations of the world.

We oppose the assault upon the integrity of one of the great branches of out government implied in the doctrine that the supreme court of the United States shall be recognized whenever its decision shall have contravened the decrees of a party convention.

We oppose the attack upon the principle of civil service reform as an attempt to degrade the efficiency, honesty and economy of every department of the public service

We oppose the attack upon the action of the national administration at the time of the Chicago riots.

We oppose the attempt to restict the rights of individual contract.

We reaffirm our confidence and pride in the firmness, courage and patriotism of the administration of Grover Cleveland, who, under exceptional difficulties, brought about by past errors of Republican legislation, has heroically maintained the honor and integrity of the nation.

We repudiate the actions of the Chicago convention as revolutionary.

We repudiate the Chicago platform as undemocratic. We deny the right of the Populist nominated by that convention for the presidency to represent the real Democracy of the United States, and we call on all Democrats who still believe in the principles laid down in the present and all past platforms of the Democratic party of Massachusetts to support the action of the approaching national Democratic convention at Indianapolis.

TALKED TO FARMERS.

McKinley Ha No Fear That He Will Lose Their Votes.

Canton, O., Aug. 25.—A party of seven carloads of Knox county farmers reached Canton by a special Pennsylvania train yesterday. The had a cornet band with them, and no more enthusiastic delegation has reached Canton than they. They marched the mile from the station to the McKinley home in good form. A local farmer headed the parade with a load of new mown hay. They were a sturdy looking set of men, and cheer after cheer went up as their chairman appeared on the stoop with Major McKinley.

H. D. Critchfield made a neat presentation. Major McKinley's response was repeatedly interrupted with applause, and it was quite lengthy. He said the hardship of the American farmers came from too many competitors over the whole world. They also came from the fact that the farmers' best customers, the American workingmen, had been largely out of work for the past three years. The Republican party could not dispose of the competitors, but it could help the American market for the farmer. The home market under protection consumed 95 per cent of American agricultural products. He said that the home market is the best market; that the factory was the farmer's best friend; that prosperity had come to the farmer through the factories, and not through the mints. He said he had no fear of the farmers' vote. In 1892, they had stood firmly and loyally against free trade. They would stand against free trade and free silver this year. That to lower the standard of value would not give the farmer any actual gain. But the panic of a free trade and free silver policy would but add to the hardships of the last three years. He quoted from the presidential messages of Fillmore, Jackson and Buchanan, to show that a low tariff policy had always worked to the hardship of agriculture. He said free silver would not cure our overproduction of farm products or the underconsumption of the American people. Free silver would not close the wheat fields of Russia, India or the Argentine Republic. The farmer, as well as the workingman, wanted his pay in an honest dollar.

A British Opinion.

London, Aug. 25.—The Daily News this morning, in an article discussing the powers of the United States supreme court, and the possibility of a decision in opposition to the validity of gold contracts, says: The point is complicated by one decision, and the future course of the United States supreme court in this particular is by no means so certain as Wall street and Lombard street would like to believe, but the conservatism shown by the supreme court, and its special respect for property, as demonstrated by its verdict against the income tax, indicate that the chances are in favor of the validity of gold contracts being maintained under all circumstances.

Exchange Remains Closed.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The governing committee of the Chicago Stock Exchange, the Jamieson committee and the principal creditors of Moore Bros., held a conference yesterday and listened to the statements showing the condition of the Moore Bros. and of the Diamond Match and New York Biscuit companies. The governing committee voted not to open the Stock Exchange on Sept. 1, and left the date unsettled.

NEW CABINET OFFICER.

Ex-Governor Francis of Missouri to Be Secretary of the Interior.

Strong Supporter and Warm Friend of President.

Comparatively Young Man Who Has Previously Achieved High Honors.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Aug. 25.—President Cleveland announced last night that David R. Francis, ex-governor of Missouri, had been appointed secretary of the interior, vice Hoke Smith, resigned. He will assume the duties of his office Sept. 1.

Ex-Governor D. R. Francis was born at Richmond, Ky., Oct. 1, 1850. His education was received in Washington university, St. Louis, his family having moved to that city. In 1870 he graduated, receiving the degree of B. A. His first employment was with a grain commission house, continuing until 1877, when he began business for himself. In 1884 the D. R. Francis & Bro. commission house was established, a result of the growth of his farm. That same year he became president of the Merchants' Exchange. His first political position was that of a delegate to the national Democratic convention of 1884. In April, 1885, he was elected mayor of St. Louis, having been nominated as a dark horse on the 185th ballot. In 1888 Mr. Francis was elected governor of Missouri. At the expiration of his term, in 1892, he resumed the management of his old firm, but which had been kept up by the members of the house. His connection with politics since 1892 has been that of a simple citizen. He has always been a consistent Democrat. Mrs. Francis is a leader in St. Louis society. They have four children.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The announcement that the president had appointed ex-Governor Francis of Missouri to succeed Mr. Smith as secretary of the interior rather surprised Washington more because of the suddenness with which it was followed on the heels of the announcement of Mr. Smith's retirement than because of the selection. The reasons for Secretary Smith's voluntary withdrawal from the cabinet were understood as soon as the announcement was made on Saturday, and it was naturally expected that, as he had retired because he felt obliged to support the nominees of his party at Chicago, his successor would be in full harmony with Mr. Cleveland on the money question. There was a feeling also that the president would probably select Mr. Smith's successor from the middle west, as the south was already well reported in his official family. Speculation, therefore, went to Missouri, Indiana and Illinois, and the names of ex-Governor Francis, ex-Congressman Bynum and others naturally suggested themselves. Governor Francis took a strong stand in favor of the gold standard in the preliminary battle for delegates to the Chicago convention, but he and his associates were disastrously beaten in his state. During the convention he was also very active. Since the convention he has, it is said by his friends here, given no public utterance as to his position with regard to the Chicago ticket, and, so far as known, has not at least actively allied himself with the movement for the Indianapolis convention.

Governor Francis throughout his political career has been a strong supporter and a warm friend of Mr. Cleveland and the administration. It is recalled that when Mr. Cleveland was at Lakewood making up his cabinet, prior to entering upon his second term, ex-Governor Francis was summoned there, and there was a strong impression for a time that he would be given a portfolio. At the time he was talked of for a cabinet position, it was said he had been bitterly opposed by a faction in his state, and that a remonstrance against his selection was forwarded to Mr. Cleveland.

Governor Francis is well known in Washington. He has been here frequently, and is exceeding popular. He was here only a few days ago, and it was thought when he left that he had gone to Gray Gables. Despite the high honors he has already achieved, he is still a comparatively young and vigorous man, of sunny temperament and genial disposition. Although taller in stature, he somewhat resembles Secretary Morton in personal appearance. He has a florid complexion, sandy hair and mustache. Ex-Secretary Francis is said to be a man of considerable means. He was said to be a millionaire a few years ago.

Hoke Smith's Plans.

Atlanta, Aug. 25.—The resignation of Secretary Hoke Smith takes effect Sept. 1. Secretary Smith will leave Washington on that day and go to Lincolnton, N. C., where he will spend a few days with his family, who have been sojourning there part of the summer. After a short stay he will return to Atlanta, and at once resume his law practice. Secretary Smith does not contemplate active work in the political fight. He regards his step in leaving the cabinet as the strongest action that he could take in the interests of the regular Democratic nominees.

Corbett Wants First Go.

Baltimore, Aug. 25.—James J. Corbett last night made the following answer to the proposition from San Francisco, to the effect that if he would release Sharkey, the navy yard man could get on a "go" with Fitzsimmons, previous to the Corbett-Sharkey fight: "I positively refuse to consider any such proposition. Until I meet Sharkey no one else shall. If Fitzsimmons wants to fight, I am ready to meet him in three weeks or less. After he has met me he can get on all the bouts he wants with the San Francisco man."

REAL ESTATE GAINS.

All Wards of the City Show Progress in Valuation.

In previous issues the LEDGER has given the ward valuations of the city for various years, but today it figures out and summarizes the gain both for one year and three years.

In real estate all wards show gains for both periods.

In personal estate all the wards except the Quincy Point one, lost the past year, and with the exception of the Atlantic ward all have lost in three years.

Combining the real and personal all wards show gains in valuation the past year, but for the three years the Centre and West Quincy wards show losses.

The summary:

Real Estate.

	Gain in 1 Year.	Gain in 3 Years.
Ward One,	$62,975	$281,170
Ward Two,	28,550	57,325

It will not be put to use however until the first Sunday in September, upon Mr. Norton's return. The new tower to the church is such an improvement that every one is remarking "now why was not that done at first."

Miss Cassie Blake, who for the past ten years, has been the faithful and efficient forewoman, at the Wollaston Steam Laundry, severed her connection with that establishment last week. At an informal call on Thursday evening at her residence in East Milton the employes assisted by a generous contribution from the proprietor, presented her with an elegant and valuable diamond ring, as a token of their regard and esteem, and with the sincere wish that her future, may be as bright and sparkling, as the gem, that upwards of twenty of her friends gladly united to bestow upon her.

FACTS, NOT FANCIES.

"Joseph" Resents Attack of "Ben Bolt" Upon Catholics of Mexico.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

From a cursory reading of "Ben Bolt's" article in Monday's LEDGER one is struck by the following paragraph.

"In view of the fact that Mexico has but just loosed herself from years of Catholic slavery the papers give us predictions of an era of industrial prosperity unequalled by but one other country, that of our own previous to 1873."

"Ben Bolt" here cites to the world the long-standing cause of the stagnant national and industrial life of Mexico, as he sees it, and would desire that others should see it. Notwithstanding the voluminous literature bearing upon the silver movement in the United States, and citing Mexico as a criterion under the silver regime, has any writer put forth the novel explanation that Mexico has been retarded in her industrial development by the clerical party.

The policy of that party has never been by design along the lines that would directly affect the national prosperity, and such help as it has rendered came indirectly and in consequence of the bringing out of the better traits of the Mexican people. The work, however, of the Catholic party has always been along the sharply-defined lines of religion and education, but at the same time sympathizing with all works affecting rightly the material condition of the people.

The dissentions naturally arising from a clashing of partisan politics are as prevalent in Mexico as in our own country, but the clergy have interferred only to the extent of safe guarding the interests that most naturally fall to their lot, and which in all Catholic countries are deemed always in the province of the clergy.

"Ben Bolt" evidently has in mind the separation of Church and State which took place in Mexico some years ago, but that separation did not dispel the Catholic feeling or practice, for Mexico is today strongly Catholic. President Diaz, according to the testimony of Mr. Gurnsey in a letter to the Sunday Herald last year, is not identified with any church, but still relies upon his election and help to Catholic Mexico, and that a majority of the clergy warmly second every act of the progressive president. President Diaz is now in his second term as magistrate, and the active coalition of Church and State had terminated long before his first election.

Consequently the manifestations of industrial progress, if attributable to the cause assigned by Benjamin, are somewhat tardy. But all sensible and temperate men who approach all question destitute of the malignity of your correspondent, look to more reasonable causes for the progression so marked in Mexico.

The homeogeneous population of the republic up to within a very few years, had a reactionary effect upon all industries, and it was not until intrepid, ingenious, consummate Yankees began to appreciate its great national wealth that Mexico began to forge ahead.

The lethargic condition of the Mexican people,—and Mr. Gurnsey is my best authority—was due to innumerable causes, definable an indefinable, but the principal cause was their slavery to a peculiar natural disposition, which conflict with a more energetic people only could abolish. Can one deny that Mexicans desire the aid of Americans when an advertisement is noted for "civil engineers at $7.50 per day."

Perhaps "Ben Bolt" could cite analogous cases, where other countries just loosed from Catholic slavery are beginning to take front rank among the nations of the world. Surely the rule would work the same in all cases. Italy, for instance, was loosed from the slavery that "Ben Bolt" delights to mention in 1871, and competent authorities have stated that Italy enjoyed her greatest prosperity and greatest peace under the rule prior to the occupation of Rome. The history of Italian discord and Italian bankruptcy and the very recent humiliation of Italian arms in Abyssinia is again, perhaps, well known to your correspondent, and all this has happened while the relation of Church and State were as distant in Italy as they are today in Mexico.

"Ben Bolt" has been reared and educated in a country where religous and civil matters are bridged by a considerable chasm, and he is not, with his very superficial knowledge of conditions arising from the active coalition of the two forces, competent to detract from or add to the merits of the same.

"Ben Bolt" has neglected the history of the colonization of Mexico—and what is applicable here will answer for many other places—or he would acknowledge that the missionary priests of the Catholic church were indefatigable in a two-fold mission, to preach the gospel and to acquire the territory traversed for their native land.

The acquirement of land was a secondary matter when colonization became assured, and the clergy invariably remained on the missions which thay had founded. Their work from that time to the present has been most praiseworthy, and in substantiation I might again call upon Mr. Gurnsey, who very recently paid a handsome tribute to the Catholic mssionaries for their work as educators and leaders of the people in the moral issues of the day.

In the discussion of the silver question your correspondent should confine himself to facts, not the fancies that he would like to substitute in lieu thereof.

TODAY'S COURT.

Sunday John Lyons an employe of the Quincy & Boston street railway was discharged. Monday he approached Assistant Superintendent Waterhouse to learn the reason, and because of indecent and insulting language George marched him to the police station. He was fined $10, but appealed and furnished $200 sureties.

Harry Holmes, a hostler some time ago for S. Penniman, who embezzled $12, was apprehended in Haverhill and brought back to Quincy. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced for 30 days. He desired time in which to make restitution, and the sentence was withdrawn and the case continued for one day.

The seizure case of Henry B. Daniels of Weymouth was called but continued one day.

A single drunk was brought from Hyde Park today, there being no trial justice at home.

Mexican Wages.

The Mayor of El Paso, Tex., just across the river from Mexico, don't seem to agree with our correspondent "Ben Bolt." Mayor Campbell says under oath:

"I also find and do hereby certify that Mexican labor in Mexico in the larger cities is paid from 75 cents to $1.50 per day in Mexican silver. The highest price for the very best and most skilled labor is $2 per day in the same kind of money. In the interior of Mexico, in the country and smaller cities, the wages paid are from 20 to 30 per cent. lower than that given above."

They All Come Back

"There are fads in medicine as well as in other things," said a busy druggist, "but the most remarkable thing about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that customers who try other remedies all come back to Hood's, and this is why the enormous sales of this great medicine continue the whole year round, steady as a clock.

"Why is it?" "O, simply because Hood's Sarsaparilla has more real curative merit than any medicine I ever sold."

This is of daily occurrence in almost every drug store. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured more sickness, and made more happiness through restoration to health than any other medicine.

OUR SCHOOLS.

The Need of a Contagious Ward at Our City Hospital.

Parents will be glad that, with our crowded school rooms, some improvement has been made during the vacation, in regard to heat and fresh air. Ventilation is a difficult thing to gain in a room where there is a large number of persons.

The practice that of late years has crept into our schools of opening all the windows at certain intervals, thus completely changing the air, allowing the children to stretch their cramped limbs is a very good one, as free ventilation is thus gained, and no artificial method is better. This is good as far as it goes.

We were told a few years ago that in the laboratory at Harvard, a costly and what was supposed to be, a scientific system of ventilation was adopted to ensure a freedom of escape of the bad odors generated there. All was done, successfully, it was supposed. The whole work failed and the penetrating odors do not go the way the authorities bade them go.

This fact of fresh air, so necessary for little bodies and brains is more important than any teachers or books. Our very large number of school children lead one to wish Quincy had some free baths, where once a week at least, children whose homes have no bath privileges beyond the laundry wash tub, could have a good splashing and bathing,

This tubbing process is a very good one, and it turned out some nice old grand parents in former days, yet statistics live longer than did these worthy people. Quincy people seem to feel that "they," the City Council are to accomplish all we need for the good of body and soul. This is wrong, it is we, the people, who are to do the good work needed in every direction in our city.

Last winter we had many, too many cases of diphtheria here, and in many households, during this past year, death in this terrible form took little innocents who should have been spared, and who ought to have lived, because we have learned that diphtheria is a preventable disease.

Perfect cleanliness everywhere, will undoubtedly, in a measure, prevent this and other such diseases. This means a great deal, but it is more vital than the need of fine houses, fine furniture and fine clothes. It means life, happy life to little children, it means less grief in mothers' hearts, it means the possibility of men and women to help in the work of the world.

Public spirit, philanthropy, generosity, missionary work are needed right here, while Quincy is growing so fast, before it gets so large that the evils which spring from carelessness and ignorance are too great to be met wisely.

It is easy to build a contagious ward, but it will take money to maintain one. Every case of contagious disease among us, should be at once isolated. This can not be properly done at home. Last winter three babies in one home were swept from loving parents' arms within a few days of each other. This is only one of many similar cases. What help is there for this? A need of co-operation, a need of improvement societies in each ward where what touches the heart of our life shall be taken up, meetings where overburdened mothers, and hard working fathers shall be taught this simple primal law of God that touches so closely every household and every child within it, that "Cleanliness is next to Godlilness," nay, cleanliness is Godlines, and creates it.

—The street car company in Toronto, Canada, paid the city last year $139,000 in rentals and taxes, and had a fair margin of profit, while selling six tickets for twenty-five cents, and giving further concessions to school children and workingmen. THOUSANDS IN LINE.

Lynn Labor Organizations Show Their Sympathy For Plant Strikers.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 25.—The big parade and open-air meeting of the Plant factory strikers and their sympathizers were held last night. Over 5000 members of various labor organizations were in line, and applause and friendly words of encouragement were heard frequently along the line of march. Many bands made merry music, red fire burned brightly, cannons boomed, and, in short, the strikers had a happy time. Twelve labor unions were represented in the parade, and the line of march was through the principal streets of the city, past the boarding house of the non-union men to the Lynn common. When the parade reached the common, there were gathered about 20,000 persons. Walter L. Ramsdell was the presiding officer. He spoke at length on the Plant trouble, and urged the strikers to keep up their battle. Harry J. Skeffington spoke words of encouragement to the strikers, in what he termed their battle for their rights. He criticised severely Police Judge Barry on the latter's action regarding the sentences of the strikers arrested for assault. Milcon Krighp, an Armenian, made a fervid address to the gathering in his own language. Rev. H. N. Casson said the only hope of the workingmen was to vote for Bryan, "the only honest man since Lincoln." He also said that their only hope locally was to vote for Mr. Ramsdell for mayor. Edward B. Newhall spoke in the same strain, touching principally on politics.

A Peculiar Wreck.

Pittsburg, Aug. 25.—A wreck on the Pittsburg and Western railroad, at Valencia, 22 miles west of here, yesterday, resulted in the destruction of three passenger coaches, 15 freight cars, and the injury of 25 passengers, five of whom will probably die. The wreck involved three trains—the local freight No. 27, the through freight No. 25 and the eastbound passenger, No. 14, from Chicago. The local was unloading freight, when the through freight came to the top of the grade, just east of Valencia, and crashed into the local. Just at the time the two freights collided, the passenger came along on the eastbound track, and was struck by the freight cars which were derailed at that moment. The wreckage was piled 25 or 30 feet high in places. The railroad people say the whole trouble was caused by the failure of the air-brakes to work, while the through freight was on the hill.

The New Papal Delegate.

Rome, Aug. 25.—Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, has consecrated Father Sebastian Martinelli, archbishop of the titular see of Ephesus. Father Martinelli, prior general of the Augustinians, whose appointment to succeed Mgr. Satolli as papal delegate to the Roman Catholic church in the United States was announced last month, was born at Lucca in 1828. He entered the Augustinian order in 1863, and was consecrated a priest in 1871. He was made rector of the Irish college in Rome in 1873, and prior general of the Augustinians in 1889. It was at the personal request of the pope that Father Martinelli finally consented to accept the position of papal delegate to the United States.

Fighting In Chocktaw Nation.

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 25.—Trouble which has been brewing for three weeks in the Choctaw nation, as the result of Gordon McCurtain's election as governor, bids fair to end in warfare. McCurtain's residence is about 65 miles southwest of Fort Smith, and is now guarded by about 40 men against threatened attack by about the same number of men, members of the Buzzard party, composed largely of old time full bloods and many negroes. This party comprises many followers of McCurtain's opponents in the recent election. An unconfirmed report reaches here that McCurtain has been killed.

It was ordered that bonds in the sum of $25,000 with ample sureties be filed by next Friday to protect the interests of policy holders and those who may become policy holders; otherwise different action will be taken against the corporation.

Routes and Rates for Summer Tours.

The Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. illustrated book, "Routes and Rates for Summer Tours," published for gratuitous distribution, will be mailed to any address, upon receipt of 10 cents for postage, on application to Theo. Butterfield, General Passenger Agent, Syracuse, N. Y.

This book is exceedingly handsome and has many new features this year. It contains 100 new, beautiful half-tone illustrations of the principal scenery in the county described by the book. These pictures are faithful reproductions of actual scenes.

The book has 150 illustrations, seven very valuable maps, a list of 800 hotels and boarding houses, and routes and rates for 600 combination tours. It is the handsomest book of its character published, and describes all the country from Niagara Falls east to the Atlantic Ocean, including the St. Lawrence River, Canada, White Mountains, Green Mountains, Adirondack Mountains, and the sea-coast resorts of Maine and New England. 10t

—The Dedham Transcript urges every voter to keep in mind the biennial election fad which must be voted on in November. Men of the widest political experience and of unquestioned statesmanship denounce biennial elections as a gross political mistake. Convenient and Popular.

The Randolph Register says, "The coming of the Quincy & Boston electric cars to Central square, Randolph, and connecting with the Brockton Street Railway, has proved a boom to the travelling public, as it has opened a way to the Braintrees, Quincy, Weymouths, Hingham and the beaches, that is most convenient and popular. It gives our people a chance to take mid-day trains at South Braintree for Boston, and even return that way.

"The new road seems to have been well patronized, but whether its returns are sufficient to say that the road is succesful, is more than can be stated just now. It is hoped that the returns have been ample. The road was necessary, however, and has greatly increased the travel on the Brockton Street Railway. One thing is certain, that when the Randolph car goes through to Quincy, its success is assured."

Are peculiarly benefited by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful Tonic and Blood Cleanser in the world.

P. P. P. restores shattered nerves, gives strength and tone to the entire system, revives the worn out, nervous and debilitated You cannot but be nervous if your blood is impure.

P. P. P. gives the proper nourishment to the blood, and cures nervous prostration, debility and nervous headache.

P. P. P. cures that tired, languid, "all gone" feeling, cures dyspepsia, indigestion, and that awful distress of the stomach.

P. P. P. cures that weak, nervous condition, that dreadful jumping of the heart, followed by dizziness and sinking spells. Make your blood pure by taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and you will be well and happy. Women are benefited, their organization regulated, and their weakness and lassitude cured by P. P. P should take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, without delay. While not actually sick, you feel weak and tired, ready to get sick, and what you need is strength to drive out of your system that which is the cause of Spring Fever. P. P. P. is needed at once.

WEAK, TIRED PEOPLE

Mr Hattie Mylius, of 70 East 86th street, New York, says that she was in poor health, and that her case developed into nervous prostration. She suffered from nervous headaches, and at times was unable to do any work at all. She could not sleep, and was so nervous that she would have to get up at all hours of the night and walk the floor, and the opening of a door would startle her. But her weakness and nervousness is all gone. P. P. P. was what saved her. Her appetite improved, her nervousness is a thing of the past, and she thanks P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, for her complete restoration to health.

Oh, For an Old Fashioned Neighbor!

It's oh! for an old fashioned neighbor,
Like the one I remember of yore
Who always neat calico aprons and gowns,
Except on the Sabbath day, wore.
And who in my care laden hours,
With a sunbonnet perched on her head,
Ran in, bringing bowls of nice jelly or jam
Or loaves of her freshly baked bread,
And then, without asking me whether
I needed her help, fairly flew
To do, in the kindest and quickest way,
Whatever she saw was to do.
Nowadays, though a friend may assure me
That over my burdens she grieves,
She really can't aid me for fear of mishap
To her laces or very big sleeves.
And, as for the clubs women govern,
Why, they are but schools for the arts,
Where minds are improved in an elegant way,
But no time is devoted to hearts.
Or else they are pledged to the seeking
Of those whom most people condemn
As lost beyond hope, so it's plain to be seen
There's no chance of assistance from them.
And it's oh! for an old fashioned neighbor,
When my sky with dark clouds is o'erspread,
To run in neatly dressed in a calico gown,
With a sunbonnet perched on her head.
—Margaret Eytinge in Detroit Free Press.

Death Before Surrender.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Finding himself shut off from all means of escape, a burglar, whose identity is as yet unknown, shot and instantly killed himself near the corner of Thirteenth street and Lawndale avenue last night. He was being pursued by several policemen, and they had so far gained upon him that he would soon have been in custody.

Of course when and how Nelson died is an old story to boys and girls fond of history. They may not know, however, that the fatal bullet which struck Nelson's left shoulder and penetrated his chest is now one of Queen Victoria's treasures in the armory at Windsor castle. Nelson lived for nearly three hours after being shot, and his last words were, "Thank God, I have done my duty!"

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Grass, Corn and Potatoes Pushed Along by Favorable Weather.

Some Districts Are In Need of Heavy Rain.

Mildew, Rust and Blight Have Been Checked by the Fall In Temperature.

Boston, Aug. 25.—The United States agricultural bureau, New England section, issues the following bulletin:

Cooler weather has prevailed in New England for the week ending Aug. 24, with slight frosts in lowlands reported from northern Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and southern Rhode Island. No damage resulted. Thunder and hail storms prevailed in northern sections on the 18th and 19th, but little damage was done, except in Addison county, Vt. Over a strip, about one mile in width in that county, apples and grapes were badly bruised, and vegetables riddled. Over one inch of rain fell at Burlington, Vt., and in southwestern Connecticut, but generally the fall was about one-half inch. In most sections this was sufficient for surface needs, and all crops are growing well, but there has been a lack of continuous soaking rains, and the subsoil and the water reservoirs need filling up. The cool weather has checked mildew, rust and blight.

The very rapid growth of crops has been checked a little in Maine by the cooler weather of the past week, but there is no cause for complaint as everything is doing well. Pastures are excellent, and the second grass crop is heavier than usual. Corn is maturing, and the sweet corn will be ready for canning very soon. The early grains are generally harvested in the south and are being put in in the north; they yield very well. Late grain has been lodged some by the heavy rains. Potatoes are growing well in northern counties and a few early ones are being dug. Wild blackberries are abundant. Apples continue very promising.

The rain for the week has been sufficient to keep the surface of the ground moist in New Hampshire and to start along newly seeded grass, but the subsoil and water reservoirs need heavy and prolonged rain. Wells, springs and streams are low, especially in southern counties. The cooler weather has had a favorable effect on potatoes, and reports indicate that the rust is not spreading. Corn is earing heavily. Beans indicate a good crop. Cabbage has grown fast during the week. Grapes promise well. Blackberries are very plenty. Apples appear earlier than usual, and are improving every day.

The weather has been cool, with plenty of rain in Vermont, and the grass in pastures and fields is green and good. All field crops have made a good growth also, and, with the exception of potatoes, are very promising. Apples are excellent and a large crop. Blackberries are plenty. Corn is maturing very fast and a full crop is indicated. Late potatoes are badly affected by rust in many fields.

Light to moderate rains have fallen over most of Massachusetts, and all crops are growing well, but in Bristol county corn, potatoes and apples are feeling the want of rain, and in northern Worcester county it is too dry to plow and seed successfully. Generally the ground is in good condition for fall seeding to grass and much is being done. Tobacco cutting has been pushed, and some fields are pretty well housed. It is a little cool for tomatoes to ripen to best advantage, yet they are doing well. Potatoes are very uncertain, and the crop will vary much in different fields. The cranberry crop is rapidly maturing, and picking will begin soon. Considerable damage resulted from the scalding reported last week, and now the fruit worm is busy on many bogs. The crop has encountered many enemies this year.

Crops are maturing well in Rhode Island, and the outlook is very encouraging. Oats that have been threshed have turned out well. Wild berries are plenty yet. Pastures have been kept in good shape by showers, but streams are low.

The ground was getting dry in Connecticut, but copious rains of the last of the week have given sufficient water for the present. Pastures continue in good condition. Plowing and reseeding meadows is going on under favorable conditions. Tobacco cutting is general, with a "fine crop." Potato digging is going on fast, with no reports of increasing blight or of decay this week. One correspondent in New Haven county says early potatoes never were better. The correspondent at Milford, New Haven county, says: "Some pieces of onion seed did not hold well to the last, blasting some; the seed is nearly all cut, and crop is generally fair." The blight on onions in Fairfield county has not increased. Yellow and red onions are ripening fast, and pulling has commenced.

The Brooklyn's Performance.

Boston, Aug. 25.—The cruiser Brooklyn was given a preliminary trial under forced draught over the official course, between Cape Ann and Cape Porpoise, yesterday. The average speed for the round trip of 83 knots was 20.97 knots an hour, a very satisfactory performance, all thing considered. The contract calls for a speed of 20 knots an hour, in a run of four consecutive hours. For each quarter knot above this, a speed premium of $50,000 is allowed the builders. It is believed that on the official trial a speed of 21½ knots will be recorded, in which event the ship will earn for the Cramps the handsome bonus of $300,000.

Contest Over a Child.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Ida Porter of Fairfield wants her 4-year-old daughter, who was adopted by Mrs. Ashabel Penney of Black Rock three years ago. Mrs. Porter's husband was at that time in poor circumstances and went to the west. Now Mrs. Porter is able to care for the child and seeks to recover it. Mrs. Penney has a bill of sale of the baby, although the consideration is not mentioned. The money was paid to the child's father. Mrs. Penney will not relinquish the little one without a fight.

A Suit For $10,000.

Boston, Aug. 25.—A writ was served yesterday, in the case of Edward J. Holland, administrator of the estate of James F. Holland, in the suit for $10,000 against the Nantasket Steamboat company, for alleged maltreatment that is said to have caused J. F. Holland's death on July 2. Holland was sick on board the steamboat Governor Andrew, at Nantasket, and, it is claimed, that he was forcibly removed by three deckhands by order of the captain. Subsequently he died of apoplexy in the baggage room on the wharf.

Larned Defeated.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—William A. Larned of Summit, N. J., the acknowledged leading exponent of tennis in American, with a three-months finishing practice in England, beat himself in the finals for the national championship yesterday. R. D. Wrenn, ex-champion, was his opponent, but that old heady player had only to wait for two sets and half, until Larned played himself to a standstill.

To Accommodate Workmen.

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 25.—Mayor Greene received a letter from President S. P. Colt yesterday, saying that the factories of the Woonsocket Rubber company would be started not later than Sept. 15, in consideration of the condition among the workmen here, as represented by the mayor, although business did not warrant the resumption.

Judge Carpenter's Will.

Providence, Aug. 25.—The will of the late Judge George M. Carpenter was filed with the clerk of the municipal court yesterday. The document is very brief, and, after a few small bequests to personal friends, the remainder of the estate is left to his brother, Edmund J. Carpenter, who is also named an executor without bonds.

From Frying Pan to Fire.

Providence, Aug. 25.—Herbert Burgess, 13 years old, had stolen some money, and, when he saw Officer Kirby, ran into a sewer opening. The officer chased him 200 feet and found him in the filth, overcome by gas. He dragged the boy out, and then went back with a lighted lantern in search of the money, and found two bank bills.

Overtaxed His Strength.

Hartford, Aug. 25.—Henry L. Searles, aged 54 years, died suddenly while riding a bicycle last evening. He was out with his wife, and while climbing the West Hartford hill collapsed and fell from his wheel, and when his wife reached him he was dead. Heart disease was the cause.

Ex-Treasurer of Maine Dead.

Freeport, Me., Aug. 25.—Hon. Samuel A. Holbrook, a prominent citizen of this town, died yesterday, aged 81 years. He had filled many town offices, served in both branches of the legislature, and was state treasurer from 1880 till 1885. He was a native of Lebanon, Conn.

Dangerous Fire Coaxer.

Boston, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Nettie Newman, 23 years of age, was terribly burned at her home, 11 Cleveland place, yesterday. She died in the afternoon. Mrs. Newman tried to induce a stubborn fire to burn with the aid of kerosene, when the flames burst forth and set fire to her clothing.

Won't Vote For Bryan.

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 25.—A meet- of the gold Democrats was held last night and a permanent organization formed. The club was named The Sound Money Democrats of North Adams. Headquarters will be opened at once.

New England Briefs.

Asa R. Porter, a veteran conductor on the Old Colony railroad, is dead.

Four young thieves were caught in Salem, Mass., after robbing a drug store.

The Summer street station (Boston) of the New York and New England road is being torn down.

Mrs. Edward Ebbs, while despondent, committed suicide by hanging herself in her cellar at North Easton, Mass.

William G. Hall, for 16 years a prominent merchant of Keene, N. H., is dead. He was a native of Westminster, Vt.

The lenses made by Alvan Clark in Cambridge, Mass., for the great Yerkes telescope will probably be shipped to Chicago this fall.

Hon. Thomas Ingalls, a prominent citizen of Marblehead, Mass., died after an illness of about a year. He was 71 years of age, and had a long public record.

Peary's Travels.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 25.—Lieutenant Peary passed Turnavick island, Labrador, on July 20, in the steamer Hope, which was under steam and sail, 90 hours from Sydney. He reports everybody well, and that the prospects are hopeful. The vessel met considerable ice and numerous bergs along the coast. This news came by the Labrador mail steamer reaching here yesterday. Further news is expected by vessels returning from northern Labrador within the next fortnight.

Two Burglars Dead.

New York, Aug. 25.—John Clare, one of the Bedford Park burglars, who was wounded in the fight which resulted in the death of Postmaster Walker B. Adams, and the wounding of two other robbers, died yesterday at the Long Island hospital in Brooklyn. John Jenkins, another of the burglars, died in Mt. Kisco jail yesterday.

Fishermen's Good Work.

St. John's, N. F., Aug. 25.—By desperate exertions fishermen saved the 36 persons on board the schooner Columbine, which was driven ashore on the Labrador coast, and will be a total wreck. The fishermen, who were working near, succeeded in getting them ashore with the aid of improvised life rafts.

Holdup With a Fatality.

Guthrie, O. T., Aug. 25.—Four bandits stopped a train near Grand, and ordered the five passengers to hand over their valuables. All complied, save Mrs. Ray Reems of Philadelphia, who was shot dead. The outlaws are said to have secured $800 in money and valuables.

Andree Gives It Up.

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 25.—Professor Andree has arrived here from Danes island, Spitzbergen, on board the Virgo. He has abandoned for this year his idea of crossing the Arctic regions in a balloon, the season having become too far advanced to justify an ascention.

Gallagher to Be Released.

London, Aug. 25.—It is learned from official sources that Dr. Gallagher, the Irish American now confined in the Portland prison, will be released in the course of the next 10 days, and will sail for the United States without delay.

Your local doctor may be a good old man, but you shudder when he suggests local treatment for the weakness and diseases peculiar to women. These things are generally unnecessary, but the doctor doesn't know it. He is perfectly honest, but he is behind the times. He does the best he can, no doubt, but his best is not good enough. He is not a specialist. He is a general practitioner, worried and bothered and hurried in giving attention to a thousand and one different ailments. Many busy physicians do not take the time to find out what is really the matter with their patients. Many a woman has been continuously treated for a disease she did not have, because frequently the symptoms of diseases peculiarly feminine appear to be the same as those of other disorders.

Every invalid woman may have the services of a regularly graduated, experienced and skilled specialist in the treatment of diseases of women if she will write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Over thirty years ago Dr. Pierce invented his "Favorite Prescription," for the treatment of the diseases of women. It has had a record of thirty years of success, and to-day more of it is sold by druggists than all other medicines for women combined. Its effect is immediately perceptible. It is quick to stop the dragging, bearing-down feeling and other torturing pains. It soothes inflammation, promotes regularity, and stops debilitating drains on the system.

The physiology of women, in health and disease, related in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A copy free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay postage only. Cloth-bound 31 cents.

FEW GUESTS PRESENT.

Gertrude Vanderbilt Becomes the Wife of Harry Payne Whitney.

Father of the Bride Was Able to Be Present.

Matrimonial Ceremonies Which United Two Families of Great Opulence.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—The recent sickness of Cornelius Vanderbilt, the father of the bride, was a very excellent excuse to rid the couple of the gayety which their position in society might otherwise have demanded. Therefore, while the marriage of Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt to Harry Payne Whitney at "The Breakers" was a happening that means much to the social and financial world, it was not a social affair in the strict sense of the term.

The bride came down stairs on the arm of Chauncey M. Depew and was escorted to the "gold" room, where the knot was tied. Cornelius Vanderbilt had been previously wheeled into the room and up to the altar, where he took his daughter's hand and gave her away. She was attired in a Worth costume of white satin, trimmed with real lace, which had been in the family for years, and wore her mother's veil, caught up with orange blossoms.

HENRY P. WHITNEY—MISS GERTRUDE VANDERBILT.

Half a hundred persons comprised the party which witnessed the tying of the nuptial knot by Rev. G. T. Magill of Trinity church. The wedding breakfast which followed the greetings of the couple after the ceremony was served in the dining room, on the east side of the villa, facing the ocean, and north of the hall. It is a room of grand proportions. There was the bride's table all decorated in white, orchids being the principal flower, at which sat the newly married couple and the bridesmaids and ushers. At the 10 other tables, decorated with pink and white flowers, sat the other guests, six to a table. Table decorations were flowers and fruits. The floral decorations were begun Monday, and the spaces between the twin columns, which form an alcove in the "gold room," were filled in with great vases filled with lilies. There were also vases filled with rarest cut flowers about the room. The fireplace was entirely filled with ferns. The bride and groom knelt on a bed of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. In the gray room, where the couple received, a canopy of tropical foliage was arranged for them. The other decorations were a row of blooming white and pink rose trees, eight feet in height.

In the grand hall great screens of green, with white and pink flowers, were constructed between the pillars from the gallery nearly to the floor. A palm 30 feet tall stood at the staircase. The fireplace opposite was filled with cut flowers. The decorations in the dining room were confined to the tables. The bride's bouquet was of stephanotis. The bridesmaids carried pink roses and lilies of the valley, tied with pink ribbons, embroidered with lilies of the valley. The groom's boutonniere was of white orchids. The ushers' were of lilies of the valley.

The honeymoon of the young couple will be spent in a unique manner. The proposed game preserve, for which a few gentlemen, of which W. C. Whitney is one, have been buying up the abandoned farms in the vicinity of Lenox, Mass., and which now comprises some 12 square miles of hilly, woodland country, is to be the scene of their first few weeks of married life. Here, high up on the mountain top, some 2000 feet above the sea, they will first be "at home," in a couple of tents, with a remodeled farmhouse to flee to in case of storm. A short distance away there is still under construction a more pretentious colonial cottage, upon which workmen, with all the facilities for modern quick construction, are at work day and night. It is hoped that this new shelter will be completed within a couple of weeks, and it is expected that it will be the residence of the pair until it is time to return to the city for the winter.

Great crowds stood on the surrounding avenues, seeing no more than they could on any day, not even hearing the music within. The day was perfect, and the villa sparkled as the sun shone upon it. Scores of newspaper men stood without the gates, for they could not get in.

Wrenn Is Champion.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—Robert D. Wrenn of New York won the tennis championship of America yesterday, by allowing Frederick H. Hovey of Newton, Mass., the former champion, to beat himself. Once before this season Hovey disappointed his Longwood admirers by playing Wrenn almost to a standstill and then falling down before the indomitable sand of his opponent. If Wrenn had met Hovey last Tuesday, he would have been beaten. If he had played Hovey for the championship on Friday it would have been a close game, but with a week's training in six of the hardest matches of the tournament of 1896, Wrenn came into the court yesteday in magnificent form, and backed up by sand and brains, Hovey had a job which he found too large for him, so he succumbed.

Value of Roentgen Rays.

Providence, Aug. 26.—Fred A. Ingerson enlisted in the Twenty-seventh Massachusetts regiment in Boston, in October, 1861. On March 14, 1862, he was shot in the leg at Newburn. Although the wound healed over, it continually troubled him. Recently the trouble became so aggrevated that he sought special surgical aid, and the doctors advised him to have his leg photographed by means of the X-rays. He did so last week, and it appeared that the rifle ball had broken his leg. Poison from the fracture had so permated his system that the doctors decided that the chances of recovery, without amputation, were very slight. Yesterday Mr. Ingerson submitted to the operation. He is widely known all over New England.

An Interesting Row.

Richmond, Me., Aug. 26.—A faction of the Republican party, headed by J. T. Robinson, had arranged for a flag raising on Main street this evening, having the party flag in their possession. The other faction, claiming to be entitled to possession of the flag, importuned the Robinson crowd to surrender it, but this they absolutely refused to do. Robinson's opponents, having purchased a new flag, captured the party flag poles and flung out a flag for the party. It is stated that Robinson and his supporters will set new poles and go on with their flag raising tonight.

"Simply For Political Effect."

Bath, Me., Aug. 26.—George F. Hughes, chairman of the Democratic state committee, says to the charges made of cruelty on the ships owned by Mr. Sewall, that the stories are told for political effect. He says there has been no more trouble on the Sewall vessels than on the average ship which sails from New England ports. As a matter of fact, when trouble has occurred, Mr. Sewall has in no way been responsible for it; certainly no more so than other owners in the vessels.

Gerald Sent to Prison.

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 26.—Hiram P. Gerald, the absconding treasurer of the Brookfield Savings bank, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Lilley to not less than seven years or more than 10 years in the state prison. Gerald skipped out with over $15,000 from the bank, besides fleecing the town of Brookfield, of which he was clerk, and also his neighbors, out of several thousands more. He was caught in Baltimore, penniless.

Expert Swimmer Drowned.

Willimantic, Conn., Aug. 26.—Benoni Irwin, 56 years old, a New York artist who has been spending the summer at South Coventry, was drowned in Lake Wangumbaug yesterday afternoon. He was taking photographic views of the lake, standing in the boat, when the boat upset in eight feet of water. Although an expert swimmer, he was drowned before aid reached him.

Androscoggin's Fair Opened.

Livermore Falls, Me., Aug. 26.—The Adroscoggin County Agricultural society's 39th annual exhibition and fair opened yesterday at Evergreen park. The exhibits are large in all the departments, and the track is in fine condition. The races were hard fought and exciting.

Good Show at Bangor.

Bangor, Me., Aug. 26.—The opening day at the eastern Maine state fair was in every way successful. The weather was fine, exhibits in all departments satisfactory and attendance good. The races were of more than usual interest.

CLAMORING FOR ARMS.

Moslems In Crete Wrought Up to High Pitch of Excitement.

The Governor Powerless to Restore Order.

Christians and Turks Take Part In the Destruction of Towns.

London, Aug. 26.—A dispatch to The Telegraph from Athens says that the most serious fighting which has been recorded in Crete up to the present time occurred Friday, when the Christians in the mountains organized a strong expedition against a number of Moslem villagers in the Heraklion district. A thousand well armed Turks left Heraklion to defend their property. In the pitched battle which followed the Turks were defeated, losing 80 killed and 47 wounded. The losses of the Christians were smaller. The Cretans captured an enormous booty, hundreds of rifles and thousands of sheep and cattle falling into their possession.

GEORGI BEROVITCH, GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CRETE.

The news of the reverses, according to the Athens correspondent of The Telegraph, terribly excited the Moslem population of Heraklion. The Mohammedans gathered in front of the palace of the governor and clamored furiously for arms. The governor refused to accede to these requests, but he was powerless to restore order. He therefore telegraphed the authorities at Canea, warning them of the gravity of the situation. The foreign consuls urged Georgi Berovitch, the recently appointed Christian governor of Crete, to take steps to suppress the disorder. The French consul even went so far as to threaten to order a strong force from the French warships to disembark for the purpose of restoring order.

In conclusion, the Athens correspondent of The Telegraph says that after the battle several of the villages were burned, both the Christians and the Turks taking a hand in the destruction of the towns.

The Athens correspondent of The Daily News sends dispatches identical in many respects with the statements furnished by the Athens correspondent of The Telegraph and the account of the disorder at Archanes furnished by the Canea correspondent of The Times. In conclusion, the Athens correspondent of The Daily News says: It is a well-known fact that during the last 10 days the governor of Heraklion has been openly arming the Mussulmans with arms and ammunition obtained from the army arsenal.

The Chronicle this morning says: It is learned that Russia, France and Great Britain agreed a month ago that no Cretan reforms could be effective unless carried on under the continuous control of the foreign consuls. The present scheme, which advices from Constantinople indicate has been accepted by the sultan, grants virtual autonomy to Crete similar to that granted to Lebanon, the consuls of the great powers forming an advisory council.

It is proposed, according to this scheme, that a fixed tribute amounting to 10,000 Turkish pounds shall be paid to the sultan by the inhabitants of Crete. The insurgents will accept the proposal of the powers upon condition that the powers insist upon a reduction of the garrison to 2000 men. The Cretans will also ask that the Greek consul be admitted as a member of the advisory council.

Needs a vacation once in a life time just the same as every one of us. Furniture that's been used for years. Furniture with broken arms, legs or backs, needs just a little fixing up—a few new springs or new upholstery to make it as good as new. Practical upholsterers, work done as it should be done. No time like the present, before the busy season. Consult the Doctors of Furniture,—

TODAY'S COURT.

William J. Healy and Alphonso Saulisbury of Weymouth, and John J. Furlong of Rockland, were arraigned for the larceny of 325 leather soles from the Weymouth Supply Co. They were given a hearing and Judge Humphrey found probable cause to believe the defendants guilty, and they were held in $800 for the grand jury.

Peter Smith of Braintree was arraigned for assault and Henry King of Braintree for larceny of a cow. These cases go together and were continued until Sept. 3.

Mary Gilcoine of Quincy for assault on a neighbor's girl, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5.

The liquors seized from Henry Daniels near Lovell's grove were ordered forfeited.

GOLD DEMOCRACY.

Dr. William Everett Makes the Speech of the Day.

At the Convention of the Bolters in Boston Yesterday.

Believes Third Ticket Will be the Basis of New Great Party.

Quincy men were prominent at the Massachusetts convention of Gold Democrats in Boston on Tuesday and two of the thirty delegates chosen are from this city, viz—Dr. William Everett and Hon. William B. Rice. A former resident, Sigourney Butler, is also in the list. Dr. Everett spoke at length and was enthusiastically received. He said in part:

For a long time the state of the two great parties has been unsatisfactory. For a long time this silver heresy has been splitting both parties, so that when a man voted the straight Republican or the straight Democratic ticket he did not always know that he should not find on it some man with whom he did not agree on this great, mighty, financial question.

Now the air is going to be cleared—it may be after a thunder storm. (Great laughter and applause.)

The ticket we are going to nominate at Indianapolis and the resolutions and platform that will be passed there, are something more than a third ticket for 1896. They are to be the basis on which is to be built up the new, great party of the future. (Loud cheering.)

In fact, Mr. Chairman, I suggested at that meeting at Chicago a name for this new ticket. "Sound money Democracy" is good. "National Democracy" is good. But I want to call it the "Standard Democracy," seeing that we were in favor of the true standard in money and of the true standard under which to fight in the battle. (Cries of "good," and applause)

And, sir, why did those men in that little room, who met directly after the outrage of that convention, protest in this way? It was for the reasons that you and Mr. Hamlin have stated, because that platform deliberately attacked everything that gives stability to the country; it deliberately attacked the stability of our civil service; it deliberately attacked the preservation of the peace in our streets by the authority of the government; it deliberately attacked private credit; it deliberately proposed that private contract should be repudiated; it deliberately proposed that our national credit in the face of the world should be broken down, and the speakers at that convention declared that the United States in matters of money, credit and solvency, have nothing to do with other nations of the world, and that we were ready to snap our fingers in the face of all other nations and declare we would pay our debts as we pleased, or declare we would not pay them at all, just as we fancied. (Applause.)

And for those reasons Democrats repudiate that convention; for those reasons this old state proposes to repudiate that convention. (Applause)

We are told that a third party is of no use. We are told we cannot elect our candidate that we cannot carry a single electoral vote of a single state. I am not so sure of that (loud applause) if we nominate the sort of men we ought to—and that we shall in Indianapolis—if we work for those men all over the country in the face of all opposition, if we say we will not vote the ticket that is sound on money and a little shaky on everything else, and that neither will we vote the ticket that is shaky on money and on everything else. (Great laughter and applause.)

But if we call on every patriotic man to rally to the support of the ticket which is sound and platform which is sound on everything; aye, you will wake up the morning after the election to find more states going for that ticket than you had any anticipation of. (Great applause.)

I am old enough, Mr. Chairman, I do not know that you are. (loud laughter and applause) I can remember in 1860, when there was a Union party that told the extremists on both sides that they were wrong, and that they would drive the country to civil war, and that Union party nominated its candidates from Tennessee and from Massachusetts, and it carried three of the greatest states of the Union, although it was repudiated, and it turned out in a year that the predictions of that party were right, and we did have a civil war against which they had warned men.

I say we want this ticket nominated, not merely to beat Mr. Bryan, not merely if it may be, to help Maj. McKinley; but we want it nominated because it is the right thing to nominate. (Immense cheering.)

It is the right thing to vote for, and it is the right thing to stand by success or defeat. (Renewed cheering.)

WEYLER'S GRAVE STEP.

Will Shorten Insurgents' Money Supply but Increase Their Ranks.

Madrid, Aug. 26.—According to dispatches received here from Habana, Captain General Weyler, in an interview, has confirmed the report that he intends to issue a decree ordering the suspension of the gathering of the coffee crop. He is quoted as admitting that this is a grave step to take, but he claims it is necessary in order to deprive the insurgents of the resources upon which they count. The captain general did not deny that the suspension of field work might swell the ranks of the insurgents, but he insisted that this was better than allowing the proceeds from the crops to be used in the purchase of arms and ammunition. He explained that a large quantity of arms and ammunition was landed in Cuba last week, and he asserted that this could not have been done without money. In conclusion, the captain general is quoted as saying: "As we cannot punish the authors, as we did in the case of the Competitor, we must deprive the rebels of their subsidies from the planters."

Vencedor Loses First Leg.

Toledo, Aug. 26.—The Canadian cup defended, Canada, defeated the Chicago challenger in the first race of the international trophies. The winner made the course in 5h. 49m., or 11 minutes within the time limit. The race was for the most part a drifting match. There was occasional light breeze, in which the Canada did the best work. Twice during the race there was a 12-mile an hour breeze blowing. In this wind the Vencedor showed some gain over her rival, but there was not enough of that sort of weather for the challenger. The situation now is that the Vencedor will win today, if the wind blows more than 12 miles an hour. With a light breeze, Canada is almost certain to win today, and thus end the international race.

Hoke Smith's Plans.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Secretary Hoke Smith briefly outlines his plans as follows: "I will retire from office on Sept. 1, and it is my purpose to return to Atlanta at once. My resignation was due alone to the fact that I intend to support Bryan and Sewall. I have always voted the regular Democratic ticket, and shall make no exception this year. It is my purpose to devote my time to the practice of law and to my private business. I have, however, signified my willingness to make two or three speeches in Georgia for the state and national ticket, but the time necessary to the resumption of attention to my professional and private business will not permit me to enter actively into the campaign outside my own state."

Didn't Accomplish Much.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 26.—The Democratic state convention was called to order yesterday by Chairman Baker of the state central committee, who said that the Democrats had for the first time since the Civil War taken possession of the Democratic party. After the appointment of the usual committees the convention adjourned until 4 o'clock.

The Populist state convention was called to order by R. B. Taylor, who made a speech, and the usual committees were appointed. A committee on conference with the Democratic and other political parties, relative to the proposed division of offices, was named.

The Silver state convention was called to order by Chairman Sligh. A committee was appointed to confer with the other parties upon a union ticket, after which the convention adjourned until 3 o'clock.

The afternoon session of the three conventions effected little more than permanent organization and the adoption of the reports of the ordinary committees. The Democrats approved the platform and nominees of the Chicago convention.

State Politics Avoided.

Topeka, Aug. 26.—The gold standard Democrats of Kansas had their state convention here yesterday. Thomas Fenton was elected chairman, and in accepting the honor, delivered a spirited speech in denunciation of the Chicago convention, its platform and its candidates. His laudatory mention of President Cleveland provoked much enthusiasm. Twenty delegates were elected to the Indianapolis convention, after which the administration of President Cleveland was endorsed by an unanimous vote. The resolutions declare that the gold Democracy of Kansas are in favor of the nomination of third candidates for president and vice president by the convention at Indianapolis. The resolutions also declares for a tariff for revenue only, and against government ownership of railroads. All mention of state politics seemed to have been studiously avoided.

The Vermont Campaign.

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 26.—One of the largest political demonstrations in Burlington for years was the Republican rally in City Hall park. Over 5000 people were present. The speakers were Senators Lodge, Thurston, Edmands and Proctor and Hon. F. C. Manchester, Redfield Proctor, United States senator from Vermont, spoke of the practical application of the arguments of Senator Lodge. He touched upon the issues of the campaign, and laid particular stress upon the importance of having a large Republican majority at the coming election.

[redacted] Views Accord With Cleveland's.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Governor Francis is expected to be in Washington Monday, and it is believed he will assume his duties as secretary of the interior Tuesday, Sept. 1. The fact that he would accept the office, and the further fact that his views, as to the general financial policy of the administration, will be in entire accord with the views of President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, were fully established during the protracted interview which ex-Governor Francis held with Secretary Carlisle last week.

Cleveland Endorsed.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 26.—The gold standard Democratic state convention met here yesterday. Delegates and alternates to the Indianapolis convention were elected. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the administration of President Cleveland and favoring gold as the standard of value, also favoring freedom of Cuba.

Several of our well-known citizens left today for Cripple Creek, Colorado, where they are interested in a gold placer. In the party were Thomas J. Lamb, H. F. Doble, John Cashman and F. J. Fuller, of West Quincy, Sanford Small of Atlantic, Henry Frost of Neponset and A. K. Whitaker. They will be absent three weeks or more.

Work will be begun this week on a cottage for Mr. Joseph C. Morse at Rose Cliff, North Weymouth. The cottage will be a large one, containing on the first floor a parlor, thirty by fifteen feet, a dining room, kitchen and porch. On the second floor there will be five chambers and a bath. It will be surrounded on three sides by a wide piazza. In the rear of the house a stable will be built.

To be Established at Norfolk Downs.

School Committee Appoint Committee to Define the District.

Other Business at Meeting of the Board Last Evening.

All the members of the School Committee were present Tuesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the board.

Chairman Porter reported that the Quincy and Adams schools were to have heating and ventilating system; $9,000 had been appropriated and work begun.

The petition of Walter Littlefield for increased compensation for transportation of Houghs Neck pupils was further continued.

The committee on the City Hospital festival made a written request that the school children give a concert on one of the afternoons.

There was some debate as to whether there would be sufficient time in which to prepare songs which might be creditable to the schools, but being anxious to help the Hospital, it was voted that the request be granted, and Messrs. Breed, Hallowell and Field were appointed a special committee to see that proper arrangements were made, and were given full power to cancel the vote if deemed expedient. If the concert is given the schools will be closed on that afternoon.

The following balances were reported which are compared with the appropriations:

	Appropriation.	Balance.
Salaries,	$62,235.00	$25,038.29
Fuel,	5,500.00	4,847.75
Janitors,	5,100.00	2,023.33
Transportation,	1,030.00	466.30
Book, supplies, etc.,	8,200.00	3,660.96
Evening schools,	2,800.00	2,074.10

A. D. Smith of the Avonia Spring Water Co., made a proposition to supply the schools with spring water, which was referred to the committee on finance.

Many applications for janitor of the Massachusetts Field school were received and referred to a special committee, Messrs. Page, Record and Gurney.

A Braintree lady made application for her child to attend school in Quincy, but the petition was refused because of the crowded condition of our schools.

Two new text books were adopted,—Culler's German for the High school, and Mowry's history.

It was voted to establish a full grade school at Norfolk Downs, and Messrs. Page, Gurney and Hallowell were appointed a committee to report district lines.

At 9 o'clock the committee went into executive session, and re-elected janitors, as follows, those at the Adams and Quincy schools on condition that they pass the necessary examination to secure a license as steam engineers:

High,—Samuel B. Turner.
Adams,—George I. Linton.
Coddington,—E. S. Brown.
John Hancock,—James E. Maxim.
Lincoln,—George O. Shirley.
Quincy,—Nathaniel Churchill.
Washington,—W. C. Caldwell.

When wear begins to exceed repair in your body you are going to fall sick. The signs of it are: loss of flesh, paleness, weakness, nervousness, etc. The repair needed is food. You think you eat enough, and yet you feel that you wear out more tissue, energy, nerve-force, than your food makes for you. The difficulty is that you do not digest enough. And this is so serious it is worth sitting down seriously to think about. If you can't digest what you eat, take a few doses of Shaker Digestive Cordial. The effect of it will be to increase your flesh and make you feel stronger. You won't fall sick. Proof that it is in control of your repair apparatus. It's easy enough to test this for yourself. Take a few bottles of Shaker Digestive Cordial.

—An immense meteor fell red hot in Arizona last Saturday night. It covered about two acres of ground, and a herder, his wife and three children, together with about 1,200 sheep went down under the smoking mass. Major Thomas Hays of Louisville, Ky., who saw it, says it was the most brilliant and awe-inspiring sight he ever witnessed."

—If George Fred Williams' father had not changed his name after his arrival in this country from Germany, George Fred's surname now would be "Wenigmann." This is German for Littleman, and so it would have been quite appropriate.—Somerville Journal.

SEPTEMBER MOON VIEWING.

A Most Poetic Festival In the Little Japanese Island of Miyajima.

They were such kindly village and fisher folk that we soon grew attached to our neighbors, and one old sendo, or boatman, and his sons were our daily companions. They knew where to take us in the morning to see best the beautiful, tangled and rocky shores, sculling the flat bottomed sampan into caves and tunnels and under arched rocks that framed charming pictures, and we never tired floating about the colossal torii, the spell of which was stronger each day. The Miyajima urchins made water carnivals about us, diving and splashing tirelessly for the smallest coins, our sampan surrounded by these lively little brown frogs, with bright, happy faces. On the night of the great September moon viewing the sendo took us far down the shore at sunset, letting us see two of the ten forts of the island's defenses, their portholes and casements masked in foliage, and looking innocently down upon the narrow, tide-swept strait that commands one entrance to Ujina. Incoming junks seemed to reef their sails purposely for us, fishermen cast and drew their nets, and all of picturesque water life showed until dusk.

There was only a little time of darkening grayness and real night before a pale effulgence showed behind the heights, and Ochiku San rose, tangled herself in a pine tree's branches, soared clear for awhile as she turned the whole bay, the temple and the torii to silver, and then, like a true Japanese moon, barred herself across with narrow cloud bands. There were quiet groups and solitary souls muttering under the breath on the hill beside the taiko's hall and looking down upon the temple, which seemed to be truly floating on a full flowing silver sea. Every court was a shining space, and no sound was heard save the distant hand strokes of those praying before the shrines.

From this vision of enchantment we went by shadowy streets to our maple leaf home, where the witchery of moonlight filled the little glen with more of fairyland than ever. At our doorway a little altar table had been placed, and two plates of the rice dumplings, symbolic of abundance and prosperity, and a vase of Lespedeza and the early "autumn weeds," illumined by the flame of a tiny wick laid over the edge of a saucer of oil, were set in silent offerings to Ochiku San. A deer stood back in the shadows, gazing with shining eyes at this eloquent offering, but nothing disturbed the homely altar until dawn showed the saucer burned dry of its oil, and the greatest moon festival of the year was over.—Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore in Century.

Vanessa, Stella and the Dean.

I do not think Swift ever cared for Vanessa, and I much incline to believe that he was never married to Stella. Cadenus had his weak points. He did not disdain to be adored, and Vanessa, poor thing, was vain and flighty. The wildness which she betrays in her letters can scarcely be matched, except in that amazing French mediæval Latin correspondence of the Abbess Heloisa, not to be rendered by any translation I have seen. But, to use the Gallic phrase, she was at the expense of it herself. One is reminded of the line, "Apollo flies and Daphne holds the chase," were it not that Apollo lingered a trifle too long to write verses which he had better have left unwritten. The chase went on for how many years? And how did it end? In despair on the part of Vanessa, in heart break and unwomanly degradation. Yes, it is a sad story, but one must not charge Swift with having acted as a deceiver, unless he was married long ago to another woman. Then, indeed, it will be hard, though not absolutely impossible, to defend him.

None can tell what passed between the dean and Vanessa during their last interview. Scott has given, but upon the merest hearsay, an account of it, which, I suppose, we could all repeat, if called upon, by heart. Yes, but would either of these proud persons have torn down the screen that hid their misery in such a case? Not Swift, we may be sure. And if Vanessa was thunderstruck with the news of a marriage fatal to her, why did she not publish that as well as the poem she held in her possession? The scene is a fine piece of tragedy and will always be told. But, like many another legend, it fades, under close scrutiny, into cloudland.—Contemporary Review.

A Moorish Legend.

A certain sultan one morning commanded his prime minister to take a census of all the stupid people in his empire and let him have the correct list. The vizier set to work, and at the head of the list, which was a very long one, he placed the name of his sovereign. The latter happened to be in a good humor, and merely inquired how he came to merit that distinction.

"Sire," the minister replied, "I have entered you on the list because only two days ago you intrusted large sums of money, for the alleged purpose of buying horses abroad, to a couple of men who are entire strangers, and who will never come back again."

"Is that your opinion? But suppose they do?"

"Then I will erase your name and place theirs at the head of the list."—Monde Pittoresque.

—The Norfolk county commissioners have made a vehement circular attack on the legislative investigating committee's report. The best course for the Norfolk commissioners to pursue, is to keep quiet—a fact well illustrated by the published interviews of the legislative committee in reply to their charges. The general impression about the state house was that the investigating committee were more than fair and impartial in their report. In our judgment the more the Norfolk commissioners stir the matter, the worse it'll smell.—Senator Cook of Milford.

—The members of the Kneipp-Verein No. 1 of New York have asked the park board of that city to designate for them a convenient spot on the lawns of one of the public parks where the adherents and disciples of the Kneipp cure can be permitted to walk barefoot in the early dawn or in the evening on the grass.

☞If mothers will remember that until the first teeth are cut there are no secretions in the mouth to act upon and begin the digestion of such starchy foods as bread foods and gruels, they would often save the stomachs of very young children a great deal of trouble.

—The New York Press says prosperity will come only with increased business. Increased business will come only with increased revenue. Increased revenue will come only with Protection.

DYSPEPSIA DID IT

Weakened One Man's Constitution Until It Brought Him to Death's Door.

Mr. James S. Harrison, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Cleveland, O., was for years a sufferer from dyspepsia and general debility, and in his weakened condition, resulting from the above causes, he had the additional ill-luck to fall a victim to malaria from this complication of disorders. Mr. Harrison's condition was becoming very serious, when he commenced to take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. Its effects were marked and immediate. Read his letter to us. Its earnestness is apparent:

GENTLEMEN: For the benefit of all suffering from dyspepsia and general debility I beg to submit my testimonial as to the efficacy of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, as a positive cure for all the distressing complaints from which I suffered.

My system was also full of Malaria and my condition was growing very serious; I had no appetite, was losing strength and was completely broken down in health, but now my health is completely restored, and I can eat like a field laborer, without the slightest fear of any serious results.

I take great pleasure in telling the world that P. P. P. did the grand work of restoring me to my accustomed health. Yours truly,

JAMES S. HARRISON, Cleveland, O.

If you get up feeling tired and stupid, P. P. P. should be taken—it will make you feel well.

P. P. P. cures eczema, that torturing, itching disease of the skin and blood. If your blood is kept pure, you will not be disfigured with pimples, boils and blotches.

P. P. P. is the deadly foe and vanquisher of rheumatism. Its effects are immediate and lasting, and it not only relieves, but permanently cures.

Scrofula, which is hereditary and deep-seated in the blood can be cured by P. P. P. It is the one and only positive cure for this dread disease.

Sufferers from kidney troubles find immediate relief when they take P. P. P. as it cures all irregularities and restores to nature her proper functions.

Sold by all druggists.

Japanese Lullaby.

Sleep, little pigeon, and fold your wings—
Little blue pigeon with velvet eyes;
Sleep to the singing of mother bird swinging—
Swinging in the nest where her little one lies.

Away out yonder I see a star—
Silvery star with tinkling song.
To the soft dew falling I hear it calling—
Calling and thinking the night along.

In through a window a moonbeam comes—
Little gold moonbeam with misty wings.
All silently creeping, it asks, "Is he sleeping—
Sleeping and dreaming while mother sings?"

Up from the sea there floats the sob
Of the waves that are breaking upon the shore,
As though they were groaning in anguish and moaning,
Bemoaning the ship that shall come no more.

But sleep, little pigeon, and fold your wings—
Little blue pigeon with mournful eyes.
Am I not singing? See, I am swinging—
Swinging the nest where my darling lies.

Whole Town Destroyed.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 26.—Otonagon, Mich., was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Of a city of about 2000 popluation hardly a house is left standing. Among the property destroyed is the extensive plant of the Diamond Match company and 60,000,000 feet of lumber in their yards. Conservative estimates place the loss at $1,500,000. No lives were lost at last reports. Communication has been cut off since 5 p. m.

Bill Doolin Laid Out.

Guthrie, O. T., Aug. 26.—United States Marshal Thomas and deputies are en route to this city with the body of Bill Doolin, the noted outlaw. They killed him in a battle near Clayton Monday night. One deputy was wounded. Doolin had been with his wife in Payne county since his escape from the federal jail here, July 4, and officers had been watching a chance to surprise him for several weeks.

Pythians Out In Force.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—The Knights of Pythias parade yesterday afternoon was pronounced, by all who participated, the finest ever given at a biennial encampment. The procession moved at 4 o'clock. The line of march was about five miles long, and the streets throughout all that distance was packed with people. There were 4500 men in line.

BRYAN VISITS ALBANY.

Ten Thousand People Hear Him Make an Open Air Address.

Bay State Democrats Name Delegates to Indianapolis.

Democratic Conventions In Illinois, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Kansas.

Albany, Aug. 26.—The train bearing Mr. Bryan arrived at Albany at 4:05 p. m. yesterday. When the candidate appeared on the platform of his car he found confronting him a pushing, confused throng, and as he was recognized by those composing it a great cheer went up. Crowding and elbowing, shouting and howling, 1000 men and boys endeavored to push their way to the best points of vantage, and it was only by dint of hard work that a force of policemen was able to make a way for the nominee and his wife.

Ex-Senator Chase and Louis W. Pratt met Mr. and Mrs. Bryan at the train, in behalf of Senator Hill, and after they had taken their places beside the senator's guests the carriage whirled away to Wolfert's Roost, Senator Hill's suburban home.

Aside from the bare announcement of the names of the guests, the senator declined to have anything to say concerning the dinner.

Last evening 10,000 people gathered in front of the city hall and listened to a political speech by Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan appeared at the city hall shortly before 7 o'clock. A temporary stand, decorated with bunting, had been erected on one side of the building. A band stationed on the platform announced that the young Nebraskan was near by striking up "Hail to the Chief." A moment later Mr. Bryan came through the doorway leading to the stand, followed by ex-Senator Chase and Collector Platt. A tremendous cheer went up, which was repeated again and again. When the cheering had ceased Mr. Bryan said, in part:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens—In the presence of this immense audience it is hardly necessary to announce that the presidential campaign is open for business. I esteem it a privilege to be able to defend, in your presence, the policies which I believe will bring prosperity and happiness to the American people. In this line of free government people express themselves through party organs. It is the only way in which we can give effective force to our convictions. Without party we fight without hope of success. Parties meet in their conventions, adopt their platforms, and go forth to the people appealing for the suffrages of those who believe that through that party, and by the policies expressed in the platform, they can best serve their country and protect their rights. The Democratic party at Chicago met in convention, and there the majority of the Democrats of the United States, speaking through their legally chosen representatives, laid down a platform and nominated a ticket. It is not to be expected that a person will always find in any platform all that he desires and nothing which he does not like. But when a citizen comes to vote he acts with that party and endorses that platform which gives to him the best assurances of securing the most important things which he desires.

It is necessary that the candidate who stands upon a platform shall endorse the utterances of his platform, and I stand before you to declare in your presence that I endorse every word and every syllable of the platform adopted at Chicago. But while I do so, I expect in this campaign the support of many Democrats who are not willing to endorse all that the platform declares for. In a campaign there is always some overshadowing issue, there is in a campaign always the great paramount question which more than any other will determine the allegiance of those who support the ticket; and in this campaign we appeal, with confidence, to those people who are opposed to a longer continuation of the gold standard in the United States. Our opponents have at last taken a definite position on the money question. The Republican platform adopted at St. Louis declares that the gold standard must be maintained in this nation until other nations shall consent to its abandonment. We believe that that declaration, which commits us to a gold standard until other nations come to our relief, is equivalent to a declaration in favor of a permanent continuation of the gold standard, because we do not believe that other nations will take pity upon us before we take pity upon our own people. We have then to consider this question: Ought the American people to submit longer to a gold standard?

The Democratic party has begun a war of extermination against the gold standard. We ask no quarter; we give no quarter. We shall prosecute our warfare until there is not an American citizen who dares to advocate a gold standard policy. You ask why? We reply that the gold standard is a conspiracy against the human race, and that we would no more join it than we would join an army marching to despoil our homes and destroy our families. I ask you not to take my word for the evils of the gold standard. I ask you to read and reflect upon the language used by John G. Carlisle in 1878.

Mr. Bryan's eventful day ended with an quoted speech of Mr. Carlisle on the subject of bimetallism, delivered in the house of representatives some 18 years ago. The balance of his address was devoted to a discussion of the financial issues of the campaign.

Mr. Bryan's evetful day ended with an accident which narrowly missed being a disaster. One half of the platform, from which he was addressing a crowd of several thousand persons in the square in front of the Baggs hotel in Utica at midnight, fell to the ground, and, although the presidential candidate escaped injury, several others were badly bruised and cut, but no one seriously injured. Mr. Bryan was standing just upon the line of cleavage, and when he saw the floor sinking and men sliding toward the edge, he jumped with great celerity to the solid section. The crackling of timbers and terrified shrieks of women nearly created a panic.

Bay State Delegates to Indianapolis.

Boston, Aug. 26.—Gold standard Democrats of Massachusetts emphatically repudiated the Chicago nominees and their doctrines at the mass convention, and selected, or rather ratified, the choice of 30 delegates to attend the national Democratic Sound Money convention at Indianapolis on Sept. 2. Eloquence was expended by several noted workers, and in vigorous terms the speakers denounced the Chicago convention as a surrender of Democracy to Populism.

In its personnel the convention was composed for the most part of men well advanced in years. Most of them had grown old in the councils of the party, and to them the eloquence of the speakers was as the elixer of life. It caused their eyes to brighten, their chests to expand and their pulses to quicken. It was a dignified assemblage, and yet one keenly alive to the pointed hits made in the addresses of Dr. Everett and the other speakers. It was an enthusiastic gathering and was unstinting in its applause.

The committee on nominations reported the following delegates and alternates: Delegates—Charles S. Bird, Walpole; Sigourney Butler, Boston; Charles A. Conant, Boston; James E. Cotter, Hyde Park; Thomas B. Cotter, Winchester; Charles S. Davis, Plymouth; John J. Desmond, Waltham; William L. Douglas, Brockton; James E. Estabrook, Worcester; William Everett, Quincy; Thomas J. Gargan, Boston; William T. Jenney, Medford; George T. Keyes, Pepperell; Henry W. Lamb, Brookline; John C. Lane, Norwood; Henry B. Little, Newburyport; Leander Sprague, Fitchburg; George T. McLaughlin, Sandwich; Marcus C. Merritt, Chelsea; Godfrey Morse, Boston; William R. Plunkett, Pittsfield; Daniel L. Prendergast, Boston; Charles T. Ralston, North Adams; William B. Rice, Quincy; Charles G. Saunders, Lawrence; Charles C. Spelman, Springfield; Eben S. Stevens, Dudley; Joseph L. Sweet, Attleboro; Charles Warren, Dedham; Frank H. Zabriskie, Greenfield.

In the Keystone State.

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—The gold standard Democrats of Pennsylvania met in convention in this city yesterday, nominated presidential electors and delegates to the national convention, to be held in Indianapolis on Sept. 2, and adopted a vigorous platform, responsive to their views on the money question, and denouncing, in unmeasured terms, the nominees chosen and the principles declared at Chicago. With this convention a new state party came into being, to be known henceforth as the "Jeffersonian party." Singularly enough, its birthplace was Musical Fund hall, where, 40 years ago, was held the first national convention of the Republican party. The word "Democratic was regretfully omitted from the name, in deference to judicial decisions that the title of the older party could not be infringed upon. The standard bearers of the new party selected four electors-at-large and a presidential elector from each district in the state was named. Eight delegates-at-large and 56 national delegates were also chosen to go to the Indianapolis convention, and a state central committee was selected to conduct the campaign. Its headquarters will be in this city.

Not Yet Settled.

Saratoga, Aug. 26.—A day fraught with the most intense excitement closed last night, with the situation, so far as the selection of a gubernatorial candidate by the Republican convention is concerned, very little cleared. It is true that there is evidence at hand that those who were leaders in the two ballots taken last night have reached their final and highest strength, but who the successful dark horse will be is a mystery. The name most prominently mentioned is that of Benjamin Odell of Orange. Mr. Odell received five votes on the second ballot, and was not put in formal nomination. But it is argued that Mr. Odell is favored by the leaders, and to relieve the situation he will be selected by the leaders. J. S. Fassett is favorably mentioned, and his strength, although also not a formal nominee, developed from 21 to 29 on the two ballots, a larger proportion than any other candidate. There is no relief so far as Mr. Platt is concerned. He will express no preference, and in the convention last evening purposely divided the vote of his county, giving one vote to each of the five candidates, so that his personal preference would not be made apparent.

Illinois Gold Democrats' Convention.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The gold standard Democrats yesterday afternoon nominated the following state ticket: For governor, John C. Black; lieutenant governor, Chester A. Babcock; secretary of state, Charles S. Wiley; auditor, F. E. W. Breuck; treasurer, Edward Ridgely; attorney general, W. A. S. Foreman; trustees State university, S. H. Busey, C. A. Babcock and August Niehaus. The convention was bitterly against Governor Altgeld, although against Governor Altgeld and the Chicago platform, and it had no hesitancy in declaring its position. The platform omitted any reference to Governor Altgeld, although Monday night it was the intention to allude to him in terms more or less pointed. He was denounced by many of the speakers, however, and the president's name was cheered every time it was mentioned. The platform had but little to say regarding silver, but was uncompromising in its declaration for the gold standard. The Republican convention at St. Louis was denounced as being in the control of "intriguing "attorneys of favorite interests," and the Chicago convention was declared to have been dominated by "agitators, sectionalists and demagogues."

M'KINLEY'S LETTER

Accepting the Nomination For President of the United States.

Canton, O., Aug. 26, 1896.

Hon. John M. Thurston and Others, Members of the Notification Committee of the Republican National Convention:

Gentlemen—In pursuance of the promise made to your committee when notified of my nomination as the Republican candidate for president, I beg to submit this formal acceptance of that high honor, and to consider in detail questions at issue in the pending campaign. Perhaps this might be considered unnecessary in view of my remarks on that occasion and those I have made to delegations that have visited me since the St. Louis convention, but in view of the momentous importance of the proper settlement of the issues presented on our future prosperity and standing as a nation, and considering only the welfare and happiness of our people, I could not be content to omit again calling attention to the questions which in my opinion vitally affect our strength and position among the governments of the world, and our morality, integrity and patriotism as citizens of that republic which for a century past has been the best hope of the world and the inspiration of mankind. We must not now prove false to our own high standards in government nor unmindful of the noble example and wise precepts of the fathers or of the confidence and trust which our conduct in the past has always inspired.

For the first time since 1868, if ever before, there is presented to the American people this year a clear and direct issue as to our monetary system of vast importance in its effects, and upon the right settlement of which rests largely the financial honor and prosperity of the country. It is proposed by one wing of the Democratic party, and its allies, the People's and Silver parties, to inaugurate the free and unlimited coinage of silver by independent action on part of the United States at a ratio of 16 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold. The mere declaration of this purpose is a menace to our financial and industrial interests, and has already created universal alarm. It involves great peril to the credit and business of the country, a peril so grave that conservative men everywhere are breaking away from their old party associations and uniting with other patriotic citizens in emphatic protest against the platform of the Democratic national convention as an assault upon the faith and honor of the government and the welfare of the people. We have had few questions in the lifetime of the republic more serious than the one which is thus presented.

The character of the money which shall measure our values and exchange and settle our balances with one another, and with the nations of the world, is of such primary importance, and so far-reaching in its consequences, as to call for the most painstaking investigation, and, in the end, a sober and unprejudiced judgment at the polls. We must not be misled by phrases nor deluded by a false theory. Free silver would not mean that silver dollars were to be freely had without cost or labor. It would mean the free use of the mints of the United States for the few who are owners of silver bullion, but would make silver coin no freer to the many who are engaged in other enterprises. It would not make labor easier, the hours of labor shorter, or the pay better. It would not make farming less laborious or more profitable. It would not start a factory, or make a demand for an additional day's labor. It would create no new occupations. It would add nothing to the comfort of the masses, the capital of the people or the wealth of the nation. It seeks to introduce a new measure of value, but would add no value to the thing measured. It would not conserve values. On the contrary, it would derange all existing values. It would not restore business confidence, but its direct effect would be to destroy the little which yet remains.

What It Means.

The meaning of the coinage plank adopted at Chicago is that anyone may take a quantity of silver bullion, now worth 53 cents, to the mints of the United States, have it coined at the expense of the government, and receive for it a silver dollar, which shall be legal tender for the payment of all debts, public and private. The owner of the silver bullion would get the silver dollar. It would belong to him and to nobody else. Other people would get it only by their labor, the products of their lands, or something of value. The bullion owner, on the basis of present values, would receive the silver dollar for 53 cents' worth of silver, and other people would be required to receive it as a full dollar in the payments of debts. The government would get nothing from the transaction. It would bear the expense of coining the silver and the community would suffer loss by its use.

We have coined since 1878 more than 400,000,000 silver dollars, which are maintained by the government at parity with gold, and are a full legal tender for the payment of all debts, public and private. How are the silver dollars now in use different from those which would be in use under free coinage? They are to be of the same weight and fineness; they are to bear the stamp of the government. Why would they not be of the same value? I answer: The silver dollars now in use were coined on account of the government, and not for private account or gain, and the government has solemnly agreed to keep them as good as the best dollars we have. The government bought the silver bullion at its market value and coined it into silver dollars. Having exclusive control of the mintage, it only coins what it can hold at a parity with gold. The profit, representing the difference between the commercial value of the silver bullion and the face value of the silver dollar, goes to the government for the benefit of the people. The government bought the silver bullion contained in the silver dollar at very much less than its coinage value. It paid it out to its creditors, and put it in circulation for the people at its face value of 100 cents, or a full dollar. It required the people to accept it as a legal tender, and is thus morally bound to maintain it at a parity with gold, which was then, as now, the recognized standard with us and the most enlightened nations of the world. The government having issued and circulated the silver dollar, it must in honor protect the holder from loss. This obligation it has so far sacredly kept. Not only is there a moral obligation, but there is a legal obligation, expressed in public statute, to maintain the parity.

These dollars, in the particulars I have named, are not the same as the dollars which would be issued under free coinage. They would be the same in form, but different in value. The government would have no part in the transaction except to coin the silver bullion into dollars. It would share in no part of the profit. It would take upon itself no obligation. It would not put the dollars into circulation. It could only get them as any citizen would get them, by giving something for them. It would deliver them to those who deposited the silver, and its connection with the transaction there end. Such are the silver dollars which would be issued under free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. Who would then maintain the parity? What would keep them at par with gold? There would be no obligation resting upon the government to do it, and if there were it would be powerless to do it. The simple truth is we would be driven to a silver basis—to silver monometallism. These dollars, therefore, would stand upon their real value. If the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold would, as some of its advocates assert, make 53 cents in silver worth 100 cents, and the silver dollar equal to the gold dollar, then we would have no cheaper money than now, and it would be easier to get. But that such would be the result is against reason and is contradicted by experience in all times and in all lands. It means the debasement of our currency to the amount of the difference between the commercial and coin value of the silver dollar, which is ever changing, and the effect would be to reduce property values, entail untold financial loss, destroy confidence, impair the obligations of existing contracts, further impoverish the laborer and producers of the country, create a panic of unparalleled severity, and inflict upon trade and commerce a deadly blow. Against any such policy I am unalterably opposed.

Bimetallism.

Bimetallism cannot be secured by independent action on our part. It cannot be obtained by opening our mints to the unlimited coinage of the silver of the world at a ratio of 16 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold, when the commercial ratio is more than 30 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold. Mexico and China have tried the experiment. Mexico has free coinage of silver and gold at a ratio slightly in excess of 16½ ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold, and while her mints are freely open to both metals at that ratio, not a single dollar in gold bullion is coined and circulated as money. Gold has been driven out of circulation in these countries, and they are on a silver basis alone. Until international agreement is had, it is the plain duty of the United States to maintain the gold standard. It is the recognized and sole standard of the great commercial nations of the world with which we trade more largely than any other. Eighty-four per cent of our foreign trade for the fiscal year 1895 was with gold standard countries, and our trade with other countries was settled on a gold basis.

Chiefly by means of legislation, during and since 1878, there has been put in circulation more than $624,000,000 of silver, or its representative. This has been done in the honest effort to give to silver, if possible, the same bullion and coinage value, and encourage the concurrent use of both gold and silver as money. Prior to that time there had been less than 9,000,000 of silver dollars coined in the entire history of the United States, a period of 89 years. This legislation secures the largest use of silver consistent with financial safety and the pledge to maintain its parity with gold.

We have today more silver than gold. This has been accomplished at times with grave peril to the public credit. The so-called Sherman law sought to use all the silver product of the United States for money at its market value. From 1890 to 1893 the government purchased 4,500,000 ounces of silver a month, or 54,000,000 ounces a year. This was one-third of the product of the world, and practically all of this country's product. It was believed by those who then and now favor free coinage that such use of silver would advance its bullion value to its coinage value, but this expectation was not realized. In a few months, notwithstanding the unprecedented market for the silver produced in the United States, the price of silver went down very rapidly, reaching a lower point than ever before. Then, upon the recommendation of President Cleveland, both political parties united in the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law. We cannot with safety engage in further experiments in this direction.

The Double Standard.

On Aug. 22, 1891, in a public address, I said: "If we could have an international ratio, which all the leading nations of the world would adopt, and the true relations be fixed between the two metals, and all agree upon the quantity of silver which should constitute a dollar, then silver would be as free and unlimited in its privileges of coinage as gold is today. But that we have not been able to secure, and with the free and unlimited coinage of silver, adopted in the United States at the present ratio, we would be still further removed from any international agreement. We may never be able to secure it if we enter upon the isolated coinage of silver. The double standard implies equality at a ratio, and that equality can only be established by the concurrent law of nations. It was the concurrent law of nations that made the double standard; it will require the concurrent law of nations to reinstate and sustain it."

The Republican party has not been, and is not now, opposed to the use of silver money, as its record abundantly shows. It has done all that could be done for its increased use, with safety and honor by the United States acting apart from other governments. There are those who think that it has already gone beyond the limit of financial prudence. Surely we can go no further, and we must not permit false lights to lure us across the danger line. We have much more silver in use than any other country in the world except India or China—$500,000,000 more than Great Britain, $150,000,000 more than France, $400,000,000 more than Germany, $325,000 less than India and $125,000,000 less than China. The Republican party has declared in favor of an international agreement, and if elected it will be my duty to employ all proper means to promote it. The free coinage of silver in this country would defer, if not defeat, international bimetallism, and until an international agreement can be had every interest requires us to mantain our present standard. Independent free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold would ensure the speedy contraction of the volume of currency. It would drive at least 500,000,000 of gold dollars, which we now have, permanently from the trade of the country, and greatly decrease our per capita circulation.

It is not proposed by the Republican party to take from the circulating medium of the country any of the silver we now have. On the contrary, it is proposed to keep all of the silver money now in circulation on a parity with gold by maintaining the pledge of the government that all of it shall be equal to gold. This has been the unbroken policy of the Republican party since 1878. It has inaugurated no new policy. It will keep in circulation, and as good as gold, all of the silver and paper money which are now included in the currency of the country. It will maintain their parity. It will preserve their equality in the future as it has always done in the past. It will not consent to put this country on a silver basis, which would inevitably follow independent free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1. It will oppose the expulsion of gold from our circulation.

Farmers and Laborers Suffer Most.

If there is any one thing which should be free from speculation and fluctuation it is the money of a country. It ought never to be the subject of mere partisan contention. When we part with our labor, our products, or our property, we should receive in return money which is as staple and unchanging in value as the ingenuity of honest men can make it. Debasement of the currency means destruction of values. No one suffers from cheap money as the farmers and laborers. They are the first to feel its bad effects and the last to recover from them. This has been the uniform experience of all countries, and here, as elsewhere, the poor, and not the rich, are always the greatest sufferers from every attempt to debase money. It would fall with alarming severity upon investments already made; upon insurance companies and their policyholders; upon savings banks and their depositors; upon building and loan associations and their members; upon the savings of thrift; upon pensioners and their families and upon wage-earners and the purchasing power of their wages.

The silver question is not the only issue affecting our money in the pending contest. Not content with urging the free coinage of silver, its strongest champions demand that our paper money shall be issued directly by the government of the United States. This is the Chicago Democratic declaration. The St. Louis people's declaration is that "our national money shall be issued by the general government only, without the intervention of banks of issue, be full legal tender for the payment of all debts, public and private," and be distributed "direct to the people, and through the lawful disbursements of the government." Thus in addition to the free coinage of the world's silver, we are asked to enter upon an era of unlimited irredeemable paper currency. The question which was fought out from 1855 to 1879 is thus to be reopened, with all its uncertainties and cheap money experiments of every conceivable form foisted upon us. This indicates a most startling reactionary policy, strangely at variance with every requirement of sound finances; but the declaration shows the spirit and purpose of those who by combined action are contending for the control of the government. Not satisfied with the debasement of our coin, which would inevitably follow the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, they would still further degrade our currency and threaten the public honor by the unlimited issue of an irredeemable paper currency. A graver menace to our financial standing and credit could hardly be conceived, and every patriotic citizen should be aroused to promptly meet and effectually defeat it.

It is a cause for painful regret and solicitude that an effort is being made by those high in the counsels of the allied parties to divide the people of this country into classes and create distinctions among us, which, in fact, do not exist and are repugnant to our form of government. These appeals to passion and prejudice are beneath the spirit and intelligence of a free people, and should be met with a stern rebuke by these they are sought to influence, and I believe they will be. Every attempt to array class against class, "the classes against the masses," section against section, labor against capital, "the poor against the rich," or interest against interest, in the United States, is in the highest degree reprehensible. It is opposed to the national instinct and interest, and should be resisted by every citizen. We are not a nation of classes, but of sturdy, free, independent and honorable people, despising the demagogue and never capitulating to dishonor. This ever-recurring effort endangers popular government and is a menace to our liberties.

It is not a new campaign devoid of party appeal. It is as old as the government among men, but was never more untimely and unfortunate than now. Washington warned us against it, and Webster said, in the senate, in words which I feel are singularly appropriate at this time: "I admonish the people against the object of outcries like these. I admonish every industrious laborer of this country to be on his guard against such delusions. I tell him the attempt is to play off his passion against his interest, and to prevail on him, in the name of liberty, to destroy all the fruits of liberty."

Protection of Supreme Importance.

Another issue of supreme importance is that of protection. The peril of free silver is a menace to be feared; we are already experiencing the effect of partial free trade. The one must be averted; the other corrected. The Republican party is wedded to the doctrine of protection, and was never more earnest in its support and advocacy than now. If argument were needed to strengthen its devotion to "the American system," or increase the hold of that system upon the party and people, it is found in the lesson and experience of the past three years. Men now realize in their own daily lives what before was to many of them only report, history or tradition. They have had a trial of both systems and know what each has done for them.

Washington in his farewell address, Sept. 17, 1796, said: "As a very important source of strength and security, cherish

MOVING UP.

Less Than 200 Cities Larger Than Quincy, Mass.

The abstract of the Eleventh census recently issued is of interest, particularly table 3, which compares side by side the cities of 8,000 or more population, both for 1880 and 1890.

In 1880 Quincy with a population of but 10,570, ranked 209 in population in the country. In 1890 the population had increased to 16,723 and in rank we had moved up to No. 197. The growth of Quincy is not phenomenal but the percentage is greater than in most cities and we should rank still higher in 1900.

During the decade from 1880 to 1890 Quincy passed the cities of Alexandria, Va.; Atchison, Kan.; Austin, Tex.; Bellville, Ill.; Biddeford, Me.; Burlington, Vt.; Chicopee, Mass.; Chillicothe, Ohio; Cumberland, Md.; Dover, N. H.; Easton, Pa.; Fond du Lac, Wis.; Galesburg, Ill.; Hannibal, Mo.; Jacksonville, Ill.; Keokuk, Ia.; Lafayette, Ind.; Leadville, Col.; Lockport, N. Y.; Logansport, Ind.; New Brighton, N. Y.; New Britain, Conn.; Newburyport, Mass.; Northampton, Mass.; Norwich, Conn.; Portsmouth, O.; Portsmouth, Va.; Pottsville, Pa.; Rock Island, Ill.; Rome, N. Y.; Rutland, Vt.; Stanford, Conn.; Steubenville, Ohio; Vicksburg, Miss.; Virginia City, Nev.; Watertown, N. Y.; Weymouth, Mass.; Woburn, Mass.

In turn Quincy was passed by the cities of Amsterdam, N. Y.; Bayonne, N. J.; Birmingham, Ala.; Cedar Rapid, Iowa; Cohoes, N. Y.; Columbus, Ga.; Dallas, Texas; Decatur, Ill.; Duluth, Minn.; Eauclaire, Wis.; Elgin, Ill.; Findlay, O.; Fort Worth, Texas; Jacksonville, Fla.; Johnstown, Pa.; Kansas City, Kan.; Key West, Fla.; Knoxville, Tenn.; McKeesport, Pa.; Pueblo, Colo.; Saginaw, Mich.; Seattle, Wash.; Sioux, Iowa; Spokane, Wash.; Tacoma, Wash.; Wichita, Kan.

In the last paragraph will be noticed some cities which have been boomed in part by Quincy capital, and which have met with reverses since. The growth of Quincy has been steady and sure and we are fast becoming a large city. Our population will be nearly 30,000 in 1900, and nearly 40,000 in 1910, and 50,000 before 1920.

In 1890 there were 458 cities and towns with a population of over 8,000.

HOUGHS NECK.

Quite a delegation from Quincy attended the concert given in aid of the Union chapel at Houghs Neck, Wednesday evening, and they together with the cottagers filled the chapel to standing room only. There were a number of changes in the programme, three of the numbers being left out entirely. The concert opened with an instrumental selection by a trio consisting of Mrs. E. L. Greene and sons. This was well received and encored, and was followed by a soprano solo by Miss Christian of Trinity church choir, Boston, who gave two more selections during the evening all of which were very pleasing. The violin solos of Miss Olive Mead of Cambridge were particularly fine, as were the cornet solos of Mr. Ernest M. Coleman of Baldwin's Cadet Band. There were readings by Miss S. M. Kelley of Hyde Park and altogether the concert was a very successful affair given for a worthy cause.

A trolley party which came all the way from Holbrook by a special car was entertained at Pierce's hotel, Tuesday evening.

Blood Has Already Been Spilled and the End Is Not Yet.

Constantinople, Aug. 27.—At 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a score of Armenians, armed with revolvers and bombs, invaded the Ottoman bank, killing a number of gendarmes on guard. Closing the doors of the Ottoman bank, to prevent for the time being the onward advance of the mob, the employes of the bank fled to the quarters occupied by the Tobacco syndicate, which has control of the collection of the taxes on tobacco throughout the Turkish empire, under an arrangement recently made with the sultan in return for loans advanced by the company. The Tobacco syndicate occupies rooms adjoining the offices of the Ottoman bank. The invaders mounted the roof of the building, and from the open windows fired at the police in the street below. The police returned the fusilade in a vigorous fashion, and several persons were killed and wounded.

The riot then became general. Shops were sacked and bazaars invaded, and the wildest excitement prevailed throughout certain quarters of Constantinople. At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the bank was still in the hands of the invaders.

A late report says that there is no doubt but that the movement was revolutionary in plan and scope, that it had its origin at the secret meetings of the Hintchakist Armenians. About 40 of the rioters were still in possession of the Ottoman bank at a late hour last evening, despite all the efforts of the government forces to remove them from the building. Advices from the disorderly sections of the city late last night were to the effect that the riots still continue, and that the mobs are constantly increasing in the Galata quarter.

A bomb exploded in Constantinople, near the Galatasaral guardhouse. Many soldiers were killed and wounded.

Her majesty's steamboat Dryad at once left Therapia, where she was anchored, and proceeded to this city.

It is also expected that the French and Italian guardships will reach Constantinople today.

Guns All Ready.

Zanzibar, Aug. 27.—An ultimatum was sent Said Kalid last evening, informing him that unless he strikes his flag and makes a complete surrender today the palace will be bombarded. All of the British residents of the town have been requested to go on board the warships lying in the harbor. The force under control of Said Kalid numbers 2500 men, all well armed. The consensus of opinion is that the action of Said Kalid has furnished a favorable occasion for the hoisting of the British flag and abolition of the Arab rule and slavery. The belief is quite general here that the death of the late sultan was caused by poison.

Attacks on Italians Continue.

Beunos Ayres, Aug. 27.—A severe engagement occurred at the San Paulo railroad station between a body of Brazilians of the Jacobin faction and a group of Italians. Many were wounded. Attacks and insults against Italians continue in Rio Janeiro. The Italian government has sent word to its legation in Rio Janeiro demanding full satisfaction for outrages on Italians, threatening to order the delegation home at once unless the demand is met. It is charged that the police are showing little energy in punishing the authors of the trouble.

The Plant Company Strike.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 27.—There is no material change in the situation at the Plant company's factory in this city. Last evening the crowd about the factory was the smallest so far recorded. The non-union men, with a few exceptions, remained in the factory last evening, provision for their keeping having been already made. The company has not secured any additional workmen during the week, so far as the union pickets can discover.

Juvenile Horse Thieves.

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 27.—A Hooksett (N. H.) farmer yesterday delivered to the Lowell police Honorius Cuvillon and Roussiri Paquette, 12 and 14 years old, respectively, whom he had detained Tuesday night while driving through Hooksett with a horse and grocery wagon. They claimed to be going to Montreal. They stole the team from William Delong of this city Tuesday noon.

Bryan at Erie.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 27.—Mr. Bryan arrived at Erie at 7 o'clock last evening. A committee of five from Erie met him at Buffalo and escorted him to this city. Accompanied by Joseph Sibley and other prominent Democrats of Erie, Mr. Bryan went at 8 o'clock to Scloss er's hall. The hall seats 2500 people, and every chair was occupied, while hundreds were obliged to stand, and hundreds more vainly sought admittance. From Scloss er's hall, Mr. Bryan was whirled off to St. Patrick's auditorium, a spacious hall situated in a district largely populated by workingmen. His voice had shown signs of huskiness at Scloss er's. At St. Patrick's he spoke with an effort. At the conclusion of this speech, Mr. Bryan was whirled away to the Park Opera House, where the state convention of Pennsylvania Democratic clubs was in session. This was the most demonstrative meeting of the evening. Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Sibley were in one of the boxes. It was a meeting seemingly thoroughly in sympathy with the candidate. When the prolonged shouts of welcome had ended Mr. Bryan made his most important speech of the evening. After he was through the nominee held a handshaking reception, and then went back to the Reed House and to bed.

Gold Barons.

To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Our friends who advocate silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 have furnished us in advance with an exposition of their belief in both the theoretical and the practical side of their doctrine. For this unexpected and commendable piece of generosity the people will give them due credit next November. It is gratifying to learn that partisan politics do not always create narrow and unobliging feelings.

On the stump they hold out the 53 cent dollar as the cure for all financial ills—this illustrates their belief in the theoretical side. In business they insert the gold clauses in the payment provisions of their mortgages and leases—this illustrates their belief in the practical side. Whatever inconsistency there may, at first sight, appear to some to be therein, is purely imaginary as Mr. Williams says. He has promised to explain its way the next time he speaks, if he has time to touch on the currency question.

As to the theoretical side. A man would have to be very ignorant or greatly prejudiced who would not admit that if the United States coins all the silver in the world but pu's only 53 cents worth into each dollar, nearly double the amount can be thereby coined and put into circulation. Of course this would make everyone twice as well off, as there would be twice as much money. It is really useless to waste any more time arguing on that point. It would have been done long ago had not the money lenders crucified the plain people on a cross of gold and kept them from asserting their rights.

Mr. Bryan's followers cannot be charged with being actuated by selfish personal motives, as they are all poor people, except a few silver miners who are said by malicious persons to be worth $600,000,000, which is not such a very large sum after all. Besides tl at they are altogether too busy to meddle with political questions like this.

In order to show that there is in this Commonwealth a certain class of money lending sharks who live on the heart's blood of the down-trodden poor and press a crown of thorns on labor's brow, a few facts and figures from the report of the savings banks commissioners for 1895 on page 666 will be cited. There were in this State in 1895 one hundred and eighty-seven savings banks! The aggregate number of their open accounts was 1,302,479, there being that many depositors! The total amount of deposits was $439,269,861.15! There were made during the year 1,214,-171 different deposits in these banks! These different deposits footed up to $80,768,468! Of this total deposit there was withdrawn during the year $962,205, a mere drop in the bucket! What an inconceivably wicked state of things! Think of it! 1,302,479 bloated gold bugs, soulless creditors, modern Shylocks, with $439,269,-861.15 at interest. Would to goodness there were more Boy Orators to free the plain people from the grasp of these gold barons. Then with a cheap dollar and dear goods will the American workingman, hitherto cursed with the plague of gold, walk proudly along with the Chinese coolie and the Mexicon peon, who have been blessed by silver monometalism.

Very respectfully yours,
SAXON.

Fireman's Day.

As usual Fireman's day will be one of the prominent ones at the Hospital festival in September. The trustees of the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association held a meeting this week, and talked up the arrangements, and a committee will meet the executive commitee for the festival this evening. Quincy has some handsome pieces of apparatus which in themselves will make attractive parade. But the firemen desire a band, and also a prize which will attract a few hand tubs, that a friendly trial may take place. Local trials of hand engines have always been full of interest.

Child Killed.

At 5.30 last night about the time the steamer was leaving for Quincy a fatal accident occurred near the head of the wharf at the railroad crossing. Peter Clark, a Boston barber, his sister Miss Clark, and Lillie Lannin, a girl of six years were crossing the track near the Surfside House when they were run down by an electric train. The child was killed outright and both adults were so seriously injured that they are at the Boston Hospital.

A PROTEGE OF PLATT.

Frank S. Black Nominated For Governor of the Empire State.

Two Conventions of Rhode Island Democrats.

Hobart Expresses Gratification at Tenor of McKinley's Letter.

Saratoga, Aug. 26.—Before the Republicans began to assemble in convention hall yesterday it was anybody's race in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination. Every one was asking, "For whom will Mr. Platt declare?" but that gentleman said: "I will not interfere in any manner. This is a free-for-all fight, and I shall not declare for any candidate if the convention lasts all summer."

The followers of George W. Aldridge were very confident in the morning. In fact more so than they have been for some days. They claimed that the Palmer and Brackett votes would come to them on the next ballot taken in the convention, and that they would have gains below the Harlem. The Fish people were equally confident that they would have gains, but did not announce from what locality they would come. Senator John Raines was doing active missionary work for J. Sloat Fassett, and claimed that as a dark horse Fassett headed the list.

The convention was called to order at 11:45.

The vote on the first three ballots was without result, and on the fourth ballot Congressman Frank S. Black of Troy was nominated. Black's nomination was made unanimous.

Timothy L. Woodruff of Brooklyn was nominated for lieutenant governor on the first ballot. The secretary was directed to cast the vote of the convention for Irving C. Vann of Syracuse for associate judge of the court of appeals.

Frank S. Black really began life as a newspaper man, and then became a lawyer, with a taste for active politics, and gradually he became a leader of the Republicans and the Independents of Troy in their struggles with Senator Murphy's machine. As such he took a conspicuous part in the proceedings of the citizens' committee that shared in the prosecution of Bat Shea for the murder of Robert Ross in a municipal election a few years ago. In the trial itself, he was of the special counsel retained to assist the district attorney. He acquitted himself well, and the public interest in the trial helped to make him known throughout the state. Very recently he has gained new repute as a public speaker.

Platt, however, has for some time past regarded him with much favor as a capable and rising man, who deserved the seat in congress that he now fills and perhaps further advancement. He was as available as any of the minor candidates to put an end to the confused and impotent contest for the nomination at Saratoga, and likely to make a much better run than the chief competitors, Aldridge and Fish. Though a Platt Republican, Mr. Black will be more acceptable to the anti-machine people and to independent voters than would either of them. In Troy he represented the element in his party that would not dicker with Murphy. Mr. Black looks a man of 40, or thereabouts, tall, gaunt and be-spectacled. His followers in Troy see in him physically much resemblance to Abraham Lincoln, but it is not very evident to less enthusiastic eyes.

Mr. Black was born on a farm in Livingston, York county, Me., 43 years ago. He fitted for college at Lebanon academy and Limerick academy in the same county, and went through college by teaching school winters and working on a farm summers, and graduated at Dartmouth in 1875. He was a newspaper reporter and a law student at Troy until 1879, when he was admitted to the bar. He has been always interested in politics, and took the stump during the last three presidential campaigns, but was never a candidate until the fall of 1894, when he was nominated for congress after a hard fight, and elected after a still harder one. Mr. Black relinquished a valuable law practice to serve the Troy district in the house.

IN LITTLE RHODY.

Democrats of Gold and Silver Wings Hold Conventions.

Providence, Aug. 26.—The convention of gold Democrats held in this city was attended by about 40 persons. C. C. Mumford, the state member of the provisional committee of the National Democracy, called the convention to order.

Arnold Green was unanimously elected chairman and Charles M. Kelly secretary. The attention of the committee was called by the chairman to the fact that the names of the candidates for electors of the party could not under the Australian ballot law be put on the ballot. A committee was appointed to ask the legislature to amend the law at its September session.

Augustus S. Miller, ex-Congressman Oscar Lapham and John F. Lonsdale were appointed a committee on resolutions.

While this committee was considering its report the chairman, Arnold Green, delivered a long speech, in which he condemned both the St. Louis and Chicago platforms, and said the latter meant public repudiation, private cheating, loss of credit and national dishonor. He spoke against protection, and his speech was warmly applauded.

Chairman Miller reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

We, Democratic and independent electors of Rhode Island, assembled in convention pursuant to the call of provisional national committee of the national Democratic party, hereby declare our adhesion to the principles publicly set forth in said call.

We insist upon the maintenance of the present gold standard of money, and oppose the free and independent coinage of silver at any ratio.

We cannot contemplate without deep anxiety the prospect of general distress, the stagnation of industries, and the attendant suffering to the laboring class especially, resulting from the depreciation of the purchasing power of wages; all which, universal experience teaches, must follow a sudden and marked reduction of value of the money of a nation.

Remembering that during a period of 75 years and until 1873, under free coinage the coinage of legal tender silver dollars did not reach the sum of $9,000,000, we cannot believe that that metal is indispensably necessary to the prosperity and development of this nation. The part which silver has displayed in the business and growth of this people, having been so insignificant, we are astonished that any portion of the people should suddenly conceive it necessary to inject it into our currency at a period when its value has depreciated nearly one half.

We believe in a tariff for revenue only, and are opposed to the Republican party's theory of "protection," and to that party's purpose to restrict our people to the home market as repeatedly set forth by their candidate for president, believing as we do that the markets of the world should be open to the products of the industries of our citizens.

We affirm those principles which have always been the vital principles of the Democratic party since its foundation; adherence to the constitution, the freedom of contract and the supremacy of law, and we heartily endorse the administration of our president, Grover Cleveland, who has so fearlessly expounded and enforced these principles.

Arnold Green, C. C. Nichols, C. H. Page, W. C. Baker, J. J. Van Alen, Gardiner C. Sims, Edmund Walker and A. L. Andrews were elected delegates to the Indianapolis convention. Seven alternates were also chosen.

Providence, Aug. 26.—The Democratic convention for the election of presidential electors was held in Music hall here yesterday. The attendance was not large, and when at 11 o'clock, the hour for opening the session, Chairman Owen requested that the members of the state central committee would meet for a moment in the ante-room, it was discovered that among the 100 persons in the hall there were none of the central committee's members. Later on, however, they dropped in one by one, and the meeting was held.

It was nearly 11:30 when Chairman Owen rapped for order. A rollcall showed that only about one-half the delegates usually attending were present, while several towns were not represented at all.

Ex-State Senator George T. Brown was chosen temporary chairman, and he made a speech, in which he arraigned the Republican party for its tariff policy, and declared that McKinley is now seeking to force the tariff as the chief issue in the campaign. The opposition to the Chicago nominee and the Chicago platform was, he said, a job put up by the bankers of the country to maintain their control of the nation's financial interests.

"We don't expect to elect our electors," he said in conclusion, "but we will work together and keep our organization together."

The temporary organization was then made permanent, and committee on resolutions was appointed.

The committee on resolutions presented the following, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Democratic convention of Rhode Island support the platform adopted at the Chicago convention, and commend Bryan and Sewall to the people of the state.

The convention then unanimously nominated four presidential electors.

A Talk With Hobart.

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Garret A. Hobart was in this city a short time yesterday. He came from Canton, and was on his way to New York. Speaking of his visit to Major McKinley, Mr. Hobart said: "Our interview was largely an exchange of opinion on our two letters of acceptance. I was gratified to find that, while we have in our respective letters both treated the same vital issues, there has been no overlapping, for we have touched upon the questions from a different point of view. I was delighted with Governor McKinley's letter. It is one of the most comprehensive and able of his utterances, and I am satisfied that it will enthuse Republicans throughout the country, and please those patriotic Democrats who believe the issue between good and bad government is clearly drawn in this campaign and that it becomes their duty to vote the Republican ticket.

"I was impressed," continued Mr. Hobart, "with the strength and fairness of the document, and I feel that its publication broadcast will clear the political atmosphere of many errors and vagaries which are floating around, poisoning the minds of the people, and making some actually believe that we are non-repudiators, that American people propose to dishonor the national credit and to use that most priceless gift, a free ballot box, to consummate the crime."

Concerning his own letter of acceptance, Mr. Hobart said: "My letter will occupy about two columns and a half, and while I have treated the money question as strongly as I know how, I shall also express myself in no hesitating manner on the tariff, which has always been an important question in our country."

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to supply the losses from excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily; it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of digestion to healthy action. Cures Rheumatic, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possibly; avoiding the accumulation of debt, not only by shunning occasions of expense, but by vigorous exertions in time of peace to discharge the debts which unavoidable wars may have occasioned, not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden which we ourselves ought to bear." To facilitate the enforcement of the maxims which he announced, he declared: "It is essential that you should practically bear in mind that toward the payment of debts there must be revenue; that to provide revenue there must be taxes; that no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient or unpleasant; that the intrinsic embarrassment inseparable from the selection of the proper objects(which is always a choice of difficulties) ought to be a decisive motive for a candid construction of the conduct of the government in making it; and for a spirit of acquiescence in the measures for obtaining revenue which the public exigencies may at any time dictate."

Animated by like sentiments, the people of the country must now face the conditions which beset them. "The public exigencies" demand prompt protective legislation, which will avoid the accumulation of further debt by providing adequate revenues for the expenses of the government. This is manifestly the requirement of the duty. If elected President of the United States, it will be my aim to vigorously promote this object, and give that ample encouragement to the occupations of the American people which, above all else, is so imperatively demanded at this juncture of our national affairs.

Our Condition In December, 1892.

In December, 1892, President Harrison sent his last message to congress. It was an able and exhaustive review of the condition and resources of the country. It stated our situation so accurately that I am sure it will not be amiss to recite his official and valuable testimony. "There never has been a time in our history," he said, "when work was so abundant or when wages were so high, whether measured by the currency in which they are paid or by their power to supply the necessaries and comforts of life. The general average of prices has been such as to give to agriculture a fair participation in the general prosperity. The new industrial plants established since Oct. 6, 1890, and up to Oct. 22, 1892, number 345, and the extensions of existing plants 108. The new capital invested amounts to $40,646,060, and the number of additional employes 37,365. During the first six months of the present calendar year, 135 new factories were built, of which 40 were cotton mills, 48 knitting mills, 26 woolen mills, 15 silk mills, 4 plush mills and 2 linen mills. Of the 40 cotton mills, 21 have been built in the southern states."

This fairly describes the happy condition of the country in December, 1892. What has it been since, and what is it now?

Our Condition Eight Months Later.

The messages of President Cleveland from the beginning of his second administration to the present time abound with descriptions of the deplorable industrial and financial situation of the country. While to resort to history or official statement is required to advise us of the present condition, and that which has prevailed during the past three years, I venture to quote from President Cleveland's first message, Aug. 8, 1893, addressed to the Fifty-third congress, which he had called together in extraordinary session: "The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation," said he, "involving the welfare and the prosperity of all our people has constrained me to call together, in extra session, the people's representatives in congress, to the end that through the wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duties with which they are charged, the present evils may be mitigated and that dangers in the future may be avoided. Our unfortunate financial plight is not the result of untoward events, nor of conditions related to our natural resources. Nor is it traceable to any of the afflictions which frequently check natural growth and prosperity. With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to safe investment, and with satisfactory assurances to business enterprises, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side. Numerous monied institutions have suspended because abundant assets were not immediately available to meet the demands of frightened depositors. Surviving corporations and individuals are content to keep in hand the money they are usually anxious to loan, and those engaged in legitimate business are surprised to find that the securities they offer for loans, though heretofore satisfactory, are no longer accepted. Values supposed to be fixed are fast becoming conjectural, and loss and failures have invaded every branch of business."

The Cause of the Change.

What a startling and sudden change within the short period of eight months, from December, 1892, to August, 1893. What had occurred? A change of administration; all branches of the government had been entrusted to the Democratic party, which was committed against the protective policy that had prevailed uninterruptedly for more than 32 years, and brought unexampled prosperity to the country, and firmly pledged to its complete overthrow, and the substitution of a tariff for revenue only. The change having been decreed by the elections in November, its effects were at once anticipated and felt. We cannot close our eyes to these altered conditions, nor would it be wise to exclude from contemplation and investigation the causes which produce them. They are facts which we cannot as a people disregard, and we can only hope to improve our present condition by a study of their causes. In December, 1892, we had the same currency, and practically the same volume of currency, that we have now. It aggregated in 1892, $2,372,599,501; in 1893, $2,323,000,000; in 1894, $2,323,442,362, and in December, 1895, $2,194,000,230. The per capita of money, too, has been practically the same during this whole period. The quality of the money has been identical—all kept equal to gold. There is nothing connected with our money, therefore, to account for this sudden and aggravated industrial change. Whatever is to be deprecated in our financial system, it must everywhere be admitted that our money has been absolutely good, and has brought neither loss nor inconvenience to its holders.

Good Money Never Made Hard Times.

It is a mere pretence to attribute the hard times to the fact that all our currency is on a gold basis. Good money never made hard times. Those who assert that our present industrial and financial depression is the result of the gold standard have not read American history aright, or been careful students of events of recent years. We never had greater prosperity in th's country, in every field of employment and industry, than in the busy years from 1880 to 1892, during all of which time this country was on a gold basis and employed more gold in its fiscal and business operations than ever before. We had, too, a protective tariff, under which ample revenues were collected for the government, and an accumulating surplus which was constantly applied to the payment of the public debt. Let us hold fast to that which we know is good. It is not more money we want; what we want is to put the money we already have at work. When money is employed, men are employed. Both have always been steadily and remuneratively engaged during all the years of protective tariff legislation. When those who have money lack confidence in the stability of values and investments they will not part with their money. Business is stagnated—the life blood of trade is checked and congested We cannot restore public confidence by an act which would revolutionize all values, or an act which entails a deficiency in the public revenues. We cannot inspire confidence by advocating or practicing dishonesty. We cannot restore confidence either to the treasury or the people without a change in our present tariff legislation.

The Tariff of 1894.

The only measure of a general nature that affected the treasury and the employments of our people, passed by the Fifty-third congress, was the general tariff act, which did not receive the approval of the president. Whatever virtue may be claimed for that act, there is confessedly one which it does not possess. It lacks the essential virtue of its creation—the raising of revenue sufficient to supply the needs of the government. It has at no time provided revenue for such needs, but it has caused a constant deficiency in the treasury and a steady depletion in the earnings of labor and land. It has contributed to swell our national debt more than $262,000,000, a sum nearly as great as the debt of the government from Washington to Lincoln, including all our foreign wars, from the Revolution to the Rebellion. Since its passage work at home has been diminished; prices of agricultural products have fallen; confidence has been arrested, and general business demoralization seen on every hand.

Tariffs of 1890 and 1894 Contrasted.

The total receipts under the tariff act of 1894, for the first 22 months of its enforcement, from September, 1894, to June, 1896, were $357,615,035, and the expenditures $640,418,363, or a deficiency of $82,803,035. The decrease in our exports of American products and manufactures during the first 15 months of the present tariff, as contrasted with the exports of the first 15 months of 1890, was $220,363,320. The excess of exports over imports, during the first 15 months of the tariff of 1890, was $213,372,968, but only $56,758,623 under the first 15 months of the tariff of 1894, a loss under the latter of $157,214,345. The net loss in the trade balance of the United States has been $196,983,607 during the first 15 months' operation of the tariff of 1894, as compared with the first 15 months of the tariff of 1890. The loss has been very large, constant and steady, at the rate of $13,130,000 per month, or $560,000 for every business day of the year.

Losing In Both Directions.

We have either been sending too much money out of the country or getting too little in, or both. We have lost steadily in both directions. Our foreign trade has been diminished and our domestic trade has suffered incalculable loss. Does not this suggest the cause of our present depression and indicate its remedy? Confidence in home enterprises has almost wholly disappeared. Our shops are closed or running on half time, at reduced wages and small profit, if not actual loss. Our men at home are idle, and while they are idle, men abroad are occupied in supplying us with goods. Our unrivaled home market for the farmer has also suffered greatly, because those who constitute it—the great army of American wage-earners—are without the work and wages they formerly had. If they cannot earn wages they cannot buy products. They cannot earn if they have no employment, and when they do not earn the farmers' home market is lessened and impaired, and the loss is felt by both producer and consumer. The loss of earning power alone in this country in the past three years is sufficient to have produced our unfortunate business situation. If our labor was well employed, and employed at as remunerative wages as in 1892, in a few months every farmer in the land would feel the glad change in the increased demand for his products and in the better prices which he would receive.

Not Open Mints, but Open Mills.

It is not an increase in the volume of money which is the need of the time, but an increase in the volume of business. Not an increase of coin, but an increase of confidence. Not more coinage, but a more effective use of the money coined. Not open mints for the unlimited coinage of the silver of the world, but open mills for the full and unrestricted labor of American workingmen. The employment of our mints for the coinage of silver would not bring the necessaries and comforts of life back to our people. This will only come with the employment of the masses, and such employment is certain to follow the re-establishment of a wise protective policy which shall encourage manufacturing at home. Protection has lost none of its virtue and importance.

The first duty of the Republican party, if restored to power in the country, will be the enactment of a tariff law which will raise all the money necessary to conduct the government, economically and honestly administered, and so adjusted as to give preference to home manufactures and adequate protection to home labor and the home market. We are not committed to any special schedules, or rates of duty. They are, and should be, always subject to change, to meet new conditions, but the principle upon which rates of duty are imposed remains the same. Our duties should always be high enough to measure the difference between the wages paid labor at home and in competing countries, and to adequately protect American investments and American enterprises.

Our Farmers and the Tariff.

Our farmers have been hurt by the changes in our tariff legislation as severely as our laborers and manufacturers, badly as they have suffered. The Republican platform wisely declares in favor of such encouragement to our sugar interests "as will lead to the production, on American soil, of all the sugar which the American people use."

It promises to our wool and woolen interests "the most ample protection," a guaranty that ought to commend itself to every patriotic citizen. Never was a more grievous wrong done the farmers of our country than that so unjustly inflicted during the past three years upon the wool growers of America. Although among our most industrious and useful citizens, their interests have been practically destroyed and our woolen manufacturers involved in similar disaster. At no time within the past 36 years, and perhaps never during any previous period, have so many of our woolen factories been suspended as now. The Republican party can be relied upon to correct these great wrongs, if again entrusted with the control of congress.

Reciprocity.

Another declaration of the Republican platform that has my most cordial support is that which favors reciprocity. The splendid results of the reciprocity arrangements that were made under authority of the tariff law of 1890 are striking and suggestive. The brief period they were in force, in most cases only three years, was not long enough to thoroughly test their great value, but sufficient was shown by the trial to conclusively demonstrate the importance and the wisdom of their adoption. In 1892 the export trade of the United States attained the highest point in our history. The aggregate of our exports that year reached the immense sum of $1,030,278,148, a sum greater by $100,000,000 than the exports of any previous year. In 1893, owing to the threat of unfriendly tariff legislation, the total dropped to $847,665,194. Our exports of domestic merchandise decreased $189,000,000, but reciprocity still secured us a large trade in Central and South America, and a larger trade with the West Indies than we had ever before enjoyed. The increase of trade with the countries with which we had reciprocity agreements was $3,560,515 over our trade in 1892, and $16,440,721 over our trade in 1891.

The only countries with which the United States traded that showed increased exports in 1893 were practically those with which we had reciprocity arrangements. The reciprocity treaty between this country and Spain, touching the markets of Cuba and Puerto Rico, was announced Sept. 1, 1891. The growth of our trade with Cuba was phenomenal. In 1891 we sold that country but 114,441 barrels of flour; in 1892, 366,175; in 1893, 616,406, and in 1894, 622,248. Here was a growth of nearly 500 per cent. while our exportations of flour to Cuba for the year ending June 30, 1895—the year following the repeal of the reciprocity treaty—fell to 379,896 barrels, a loss of nearly half our trade with that country. The value of our total exports of merchandise from the United States to Cuba in 1891, the year prior to the negotiation of the reciprocity treaty, was $12,224,888; in 1892, $17,953,579; in 1893, $24,157,698; in 1894, $20,125,321, but in 1895, after the annulment of the reciprocity agreement, it fell to only $12,887,661.

Many similar examples may be given of our increased trade under reciprocity with other countries, but enough has been shown of the efficacy of the legislation of 1890 to justify the speedy restoration of its reciprocity provisions. In my judgment congress should immediately restore the reciprocity section of the old law with such amendments, if any, as time and experience sanction as wise and proper.

The underlying principle of this legislation must, however, be strictly observed. It is to afford new markets for our surplus agricultural and manufactured products without loss to the American laborer of a single day's work that he might otherwise procure.

Foreign Immigration

The declaration of the platform touching foreign immigration is one of peculiar importance at this time, while our own laboring people are in such great distress. I am in hearty sympathy with the present legislation restricting foreign immigration, and favor such extension of the laws as will secure the United States from invasion by the debased and criminal classes of the Old World. While we adhere to the public policy under which our country has received great bodies of honest, industrious citizens, who have added to the wealth, progress and power of the country, and while we welcome to our shores the well disposed and industrious immigrant who contributes by his energy and intelligence to the cause of free government, we want no immigrants who do not seek our shores to become citizens. We shall permit none to participate in the advantages of our civilization who do not sympathize with our aims and form of government. We should receive none who come to make war upon our institutions, and profit by public disquiet and turmoil. Against all such our gates must be tightly closed.

Our Soldiers and Sailors.

The soldiers and sailors of the Union should neither be neglected nor forgotten. The government which they served so well must not make their lives or condition harder by treating them as supplicants for relief in old age or distress, or regard with distain or contempt, the earnest interest one comrade naturally manifests in the welfare of another. Doubtless there has been pension abuses and frauds in the numerous claims allowed by the government, but the policy governing the administration of the pension bureau must always be fair and liberal. No deserving applicant should ever suffer because of a wrong perpetrated by or for another. Our soldiers and sailors gave the government the best they had. They freely offered health, strength, limb and life to save the country in the time of its greatest peril, and the government must honor them in their need as in their service, with the respect and gratitude due to brave, noble and self-sacrificing men, who are justly entitled to generous aid in their increasing necessities.

Our Merchant Marine and Navy.

The declaration of the Republican platform in favor of the upbuilding of our merchant marine has my hearty approval. The policy of discriminating duties in favor of our shipping, which prevailed in the early years of our history, should be again adopted by congress, and vigorously supported until our prestige and supremacy on the seas is fully attained. We should no longer contribute directly or indirectly to the maintenance of the colossal marine of foreign countries, but provide an efficient and complete marine of our own. Now that the American navy is assuming a position commensurate with our importance as a nation—a policy, I am glad to observe, the Republican platform strongly endorses—we must supplement it with a merchant marine that will give us the advantages, in both our coastwise and foreign trade, that we ought naturally and properly to enjoy. It should be at once a matter of public policy and national pride to repossess this immense and prosperous trade.

Civil Service Reform.

The pledge of the Republican national convention, that our civil service laws "shall be sustained and thoroughly and honestly enforced, and extended wherever practicable," is in keeping with the position of the party for the past 24 years, and will be faithfully observed. Our opponents decry these reforms. They appear willing to abandon all the advantages gained after so many years' agitation and effort. They encourage a return to methods of party favoritism, which both parties have often denounced, that experience has condemned and that the people have repeatedly disapproved. The Republican party earnestly opposes this reactionary and entirely unjustifiable policy. It will take no backward step upon this question. It will seek to improve, but never degrade the public service.

Demanding Especial Attention.

There are other important and timely declarations of the platform which I cannot here discuss. I must content myself with saying that they have my approval. If, as Republicans, we have lately addressed our attention, with what may seem great stress and earnestness, to the new and unexpected assault upon the financial integrity of the government, we have done it because the menace is so grave as to demand especial consideration, and because we are convinced that if the people are aroused to the true understanding and meaning of this silver inflation movement they will avert the danger. In doing this we feel that we render the best service possible to the country, and we appeal to the intelligence, conscience and patriotism of the people, irrespective of party, or section, for their earnest support.

Will Maintain Law and Order.

We avoid no issues. We meet the sudden, dangerous and revolutionary assault upon law and order, and upon those to whom is confided by the constitution and laws the authority to uphold and maintain them, which our opponents have made, with the same courage that we have faced every emergency since our organization, as a parity, more than 40 years ago. Government by law must first be assured; everything else can wait. The spirit of lawlessness must be extinguished by the fires of an unselfish and lofty patriotism. Every attack upon the public faith, and every suggestion of the repudiation of debts, public and private, must be rebuked by all men who believe that honesty is the best policy, or who love their country, and would preserve unsullied its national honor.

Sectionalism Almost Obliterated.

The country is to be congratulated upon the almost total obliteration of the sectional lines which for many years marked the division of the United States into slave and free territory, and finally threatened its partition into two separate governments by the dread ordeal of civil war. The era of reconciliation, so long and earnestly desired by General Grant and many other great leaders, north and south, has happily come, and the feeling of distrust and hostility between the sections is everywhere vanishing, let us hope never to return. Nothing is better calculated to give strength to the nation at home, increase our power and influence abroad, and add to the permanency and security of our free institutions, than the restoration of cordial relations between the people of all sections and parts of our beloved country.

If called by the suffrages of the people to assume the duties of the high office of President of the United States, I shall count it a privilege to aid, even in the slightest degree, in the promotion of the spirit of fraternal regard, which should animate and govern the citizens of every section, state or part of the republic. After the lapse of a century since its utterance let us, at length and forever hereafter, heed the admonition of Washington: "There should be no north, no south, no east, no west, but a common country."

It shall be my constant aim to improve every opportunity to advance the cause of good government by promoting that spirit of forbearance and justice which is so essential to our prosperity and happiness, by joining most heartily in all proper efforts to restore the relations of brotherly respect and affection, which, in our early history, characterized all the people of all the states. I would be glad to contribute toward binding in indivisible union the different divisions of the country, which, indeed, now "have every inducement of sympathy and interest" to weld them together more strongly than ever.

I would rejoice to see demonstrated to the world that the north and the south and the east and the west are not separated, or in danger of becoming separated because of sectional or party differences. The war is long since over, "we are not enemies, but friends," and as friends we will faithfully and cordially co-operate under the approving smile of him who has thus far so signally sustained and guided us, to preserve inviolate our country's name and honor, its peace and good order, and its continued ascendency amongst the greatest governments on earth.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

A doctor can tell you exactly what he thinks is the matter with you. If he fully realized just one great truth he would come nearer to doing this. The thing he doesn't fully appreciate is the fact that the man with pure blood and good digestion can never have anything very serious the matter with him. If you get your blood in good condition, and keep it rich, and pure and wholesome, you will thereby cure almost any disease with which mankind are afflicted. A sewer may be pretty dirty, but if you keep continually flushing it with pure water, you will eventually get it clean. The body may be full of impurities, but in the natural course of events these impurities will be excreted; and, if they are not replaced by other impurities, the body will become pure and healthy. If you continually pump pure, rich blood into a diseased organ, the disease will gradually disappear and soundness and health of the tissues will be restored.

That is the theory and that is the actual result of the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It doesn't make any difference what your doctor calls your disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it; and it will cure it by making the blood pure and rich, by stimulating the digestive organs, invigorating the liver, and by soothing and strengthening the nerves. It is the most wonderful blood-maker and flesh-builder that has ever been known. It is the most successful medicine of its kind that was ever prepared.

Sometimes in connection with the "Golden Medical Discovery" it is wise to take a few of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are the only positive and permanent cure for constipation, and as long as constipation is present health cannot be fully restored. Frequently the "Pellets" are all that are needed. One is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. They are perfectly natural in their action and cause no pain or griping.

General Harrison Talks to a Great Gathering In New York.

Defends Integrity of Our Supreme Court.

Tariff Reform, Protection and Financial Questions Receive Attention.

New York, Aug. 28.—Carnegie hall was crowded to the doors last night with an enthusiastic audience that had gathered to hear ex-President Harrison discuss the campaign question. The occasion was a big Republican rally held under the auspices of the Republican state committee. Chauncey M. Depew presided and delivered a stirring address, as did President David T. Hill of Rochester university. Mr. Harrison's speech follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen—I am on the Republican retired list, not by reason of any age limit nor by the plea of any convention, but that the younger men might have a chance, and that I might have a rest. But I am not a soured or disappointed or bedridden citizen. My interest in my country did not cease when my last salary check was cashed. I am here tonight not to make a keynote speech, but only to express my personal views, for which no one else will be in any measure responsible. For this speech has not been submitted to the judgment or anyone until now. I shall speak, my fellow citizens, as a Republican, but with perfect respect to those who hold different opinions. Indeed I have never had so much respect for Democrats as I have now, or perhaps I should say I never had so much respect for so many Democrats as I have now.

When the leaders of a party assembled in convention depart from its traditional principle and advocate doctrines that threaten the integrity of the government, the social order of our communities and the security and soundness of our finance, it ought to split, and it dignifies itself when it does split. A bolt from any party is now and then a most reassuring incident, and was never more reassuring and never had better cause than now, but these Democratic friends who are disposed more or less directly to help the cause of sound finance in this campaign ought not to expect that the Republican party will organize itself because the Democratic party has disorganized itself.

The Republican party, the Republican voter, if sound money triumphs, as I believe it will, must, in the nature of the thing, constitute the body of the successful army. We ought not, therefore, to be asked to do anything that will affect the solidity, the loyalty, the discipline, or the enthusiasm of the Republican party.

[A voice—"Nobody going out?" This reference to the Bryan meeting in Madison Square garden was greeted with prolonged applause and laughter.]

The Republican party fronts the destructionists and trumpets its defiance to the enemies of sound money. It will fight, however, without covering any of the glorious mottoes and inscriptions that are upon its banner. When the house is on fire, and many of our Democratic friends believe that to be the present domestic situation, the tenant on the top floor ought not to ask the tenant in the basement to bury any of his opinions before he joins the fire brigade, and our Democratic friends, who realize as we realize the gravity, the far-reaching consequences of this campaign, ought not to ask the Republican party to reorganize itself to put aside any of the great principles that it has advocated in order to win a vote. If their opinion is sincerely held, as they insist, it ought to determine their action for themselves without reference to what anybody else should do, and I submit to these gentlemen, for whose opinion I have the highest respect, whether, if it is true as they say, that the success of the Chicago nominee would plunge this country into commercial distress and drag the nation's honor in the dust, there can be any question for such gentlemen, but this: "How can we most surely defeat the Chicago nominees?"

Neither conventions or committees can create issues nor assign them to their places as to their importance. That is the leading issue of a campaign which most agitates and most interests the people. In my opinion, there is no issue presented by the Chicago convention more important and vital than the question they have raised of protecting the power and duty of the national courts and national executive. The defense of the constitution and of the integrity of the supreme court of the United States and of the president's power and duty to entore all of the laws of the United States without awaiting the call or consent of the governor of any state, is an important and living issue in this campaign. Tariff and coinage will be of little moment if our constitutional government is overthrown. When we have a president who believes that it is neither his right nor his duty to see that the mail trains are not obstructed and that interstate commerce has its free way, irrespective of state lines, and courts who fear to use our ancient and familiar power to restrain and punish law breakers, free trade and free silver will be appropriate accompaniments of such an administration, and cannot add appreciably to the national distress or the national dishonor. There is only one rule by which we can live usefully as a nation or peacefully as citizens. It is the rlue of the laws, constitutionally enacted and finally interpreted by the judical tribunal appointed by the constitution. When it becomes the rule that violence carries its end we have anarchy—a condition as destructive to honest labor and its rewards as death is to the tissues of the human body.

The atmosphere of the Chicago convention was surcharged with the spirit of revolution. This platform was carried and its nominations made with accompanying incidents of frenzy that startled the onlookers and amazed the country.

There was no calm deliberation. There was frenzy. There was no thoughtful searching for the man who, from experience, was most able to direct public affairs. There was an impulsive response to an impassioned speech that selected the nominee. They denounce in their platform interference by federal authorities in the local affairs as a violation of the constitution of the United States and a crime against free institutions. It was intended to be in words a direct condemnation of Mr. Cleveland, as President of the United States, for using the power of the executive to brush out of the way every obstacle to the free passage of the mail trains of the United States and the interstate commerce. And, my friends, whenever our people approve the choice of a president who believes he must ask Governor Altgeld or any other governor of any other state permission to enforce the laws of the United States, we have surrendered the victory the boys won in 1861.

When a law of the United States is invaded and broken, it is the sworn duty of the president to execute it, and this convention arraigns the president for doing what his oath compelled him to do. Comrades for the great war for the Union! Sons of those who went to battle that the flag might not lose its lustre! will we consent after these years that the doctrine that was shot to death in the great war shall be revived and made victorious in a civil campaign?

But this assault does not end there. The supreme court of the United States and the federal law courts are arraigned because they used the familiar writ of injunction to suppress violence, to restrain men from breaking the law. It was understood in the convention and committee on resolutions that the Democratic policy was that when the supreme court, exercising its constitutional power and duty, gave an interpretation to a law of the United States that was not pleasing to congress, they would increase the number of judges and pack the court to get a decision to please them.

My friends, our fathers who framed this government divided its great powers between three great departments—the legislative, the executive and the judicial. It sought to make these independent, the one of the other, so that neither might overshadow nor destroy the other. The supreme court, the most dignified judicial body in the world, was appointed to interpret the laws and the constitution, and when that court pronounces a decree as to the powers of congress, or as to any other constitutional question, there is but one right method if we disagree, and that is the method pointed out by the constitution, to amend it to conform to our views. That is the position today. Mr. Hill said in his speech of this assault upon the court, "That provision, if it means anything, means that it is the duty of congress to reconstruct the supreme court of the country. It means"—and now note his words—"and it was openly avowed that it means, the adding of additional members to it, or the turning out of office, and reconstructing the whole court; I will not follow any such revolutionary step as that."

You are to answer then, my fellow citizens, in all the gravity of a great crisis, whether you will sustain a party that proposes to destroy the balance which our fathers instituted in our system of government, and wherever a tumultuous congress disagrees with the supreme court and a subservient president is in the White House, that the judgment of the court shall be reconsidered and reversed by increasing the number of judges and packing the court with men who will decide as congress wants them to. I cannot exaggerate the gravity and the importance and the danger of this assault upon our constitutional form of government. The courts are the defense of the weak. The rich and powerful have other resources, but the poor have not. The high-minded, independent judiciary that will hold to the line in questions between wealth and labor, between the rich and the poor, is the defense and security of the denfenseless.

I do not intend to spend any time in the discussion of the tariff question. That debate has been won, and need not be protracted. It means that it might run on eternally on theoretical lines, and in this tariff debate, if it is to go on, we have history so fresh and recent, history so indelibly written on the hearts and minds of our people that certain things must be admitted, and among those things is this historical fact, that in 1892 we had the most prosperous times, the most general diffusion of prosperity, the most universal participation in prosperity and the highest mark of prosperity we have ever attained as a nation.

What has happened since? Then our business prosperity was like the strong current of the mighty river; now it is like a fading spring in an August drought. A panic in 1893 of most extraordinary character has been succeeded by a gradual drying up, less and less and less, until universal business distraction and anxiety prevails all over our community. I do not believe there has ever been a time, except, perhaps, in the very heat of some active panic, when universal business fear and anxiety and watchfulness, even to the point of desperation, has characterized this great metropolis as it does today.

What has brought it about? Gentlemen, who is there to defend the Wilson tariff bill? Who says it is a good tariff measure? I don't believe a Democrat can be found to say that it is. Mr. Cleveland repudiated it. It was so bad that he would not attach his official signature to it, and it became a law without it. He said it was full of incongruities and inequalities.

The bond sales which have been made necessary by reason of this deficit, because, I think, every one will agree that as a financial problem it is one thing when you have $300,000,000 surplus in the treasury to keep $1 in three in gold, and quite another when you have only $125,000,000 in the treasury all told.

But I did not intend to follow this question further. I am quite as much, however, opposed to cheapening the American workingmen and working women as I am to cheapening our dollars. I am quite as strongly in favor of keeping days' works at home as I am gold dollars. If it could be known tonight that the gallant soldier, that typical young American, that distinguished and useful statesman, William McKinley of Ohio, would certainly be elected president, how the bears would take to cover on the Stock Exchange tomorrow.

In connection with this financial matter, do we all realize how important the choice of a president is? Do you know that as the law is now, without the passage of any free coinage of silver law at all, it is in the power of the President of the United States to bring the business of this country to a silver basis? All he has to do is to pay out silver when men ask for gold, and we are there already. It is only because the Presidents of the United States that we have had, and the one that we have now, have regarded it under the law as his public duty to maintain the gold basis, maintaining that parity between our silver and gold coins which the law declares is the policy of the government, and because he has had the courage to execute the powers given to him by the resumption act to carry out that declaration of public law, I undertake, therefore, to say that if Mr. Bryan, or a man holding his view, were in the presidential chair, without any legislation by congress we should be on a silver basis in a week's time.

The silver question; what is it? Do

MANY WERE INJURED.

Passengers on a White Mountain Express Meet With Disaster.

Coaches Completely Wrecked at Concord.

Collision at Somerville Which Resulted In the Death of an Engineer.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 28.—The northern yard of the Boston and Maine railroad in this city was the scene of a terrible accident yesterday afternoon. The accident was a derailment of the locomotive, tender, baggage car and smoker of the White mountain express, all of which were wrecked; the serious injury of 15 people, who are now inmates of city hospital, and the severe shaking up and bruising of many others who did not require surgical treatment.

The White mountain express is one of the fastest and heaviest trains run over the Boston and Maine lines in New Hampshire, being devoted especially to travel to and from the mountain region. South bound, it was especially heavy yesterday, because of the drawing to a close of the summer season, and the holding of the annual reunion of the New Hampshire Veterans' association at The Weirs. It was in charge of Conductor L. B. Landon, and was drawn by the 10-wheeled locomotive 759, Edward W. Buckley of Concord engineer, and Henry Fitzpatrick of Lakeport fireman.

The first car was baggage car 209, filled to the roof with heavy pieces of luggage, and the next was a smoking car, 1039, which was followed by four passenger cars and four Pullman parlor cars, the Rowena, the Cynthia, the Nerissa and the Newcastle. The only occupant of the first car was Baggageman A. C. Perkins. It is estimated that there must have been at least between 90 and 100 passengers in the smoker. All of the other cars were crowded.

When the train, which is due in this city at 2:25, reached the upper end of the yard, it was traveling at the rate of about 30 miles an hour, and when about 150 feet above Ferry street, which crosses the road at grade, Engineer Buckley reduced the speed to conform to the regulation which requires engineers to have their trains under complete control while passing through the yards.

A few feet below the crossing is what is known among railroad men a split switch, which connects the main track with a siding used for making up freight trains. When he approached this switch, Engineer Buckley discovered nothing wrong in the roadway, but immediately upon passing it he became aware that his locomotive was off the irons. According to his statement, he immediately threw over the reverse lever, applied the emergency brake, and opended the throttle wide. The next event in his memory was picking himself up off the ground beside the railroad, with no injury beside a slight scratched face.

The wreck that followed the stopping of the locomotive, when Engineer Buckley must have been thrown from the cab, was peculiar and difficult to describe. Headed to the west, it laid across and at right angles with the track, turned completely upon one side. The tender, also upon its side, rested at an acute opposite angle upon the rails, the baggage car stood upright, headed in practically the same direction as the locomotive, and the smoker was telescoped into the baggage car for about half its length, and torn completely open. The truck frames were swept from under the tender of the locomotive, the baggage and smoker, and were piled beneath the latter car. The passenger car, next following, suffered practically no injury, except to the front platform, which was broken in the crash.

Engineer Killed.

Boston, Aug. 28.—An express train on the eastern division of the Boston and Maine railroad ran into the engine of a freight train near the East Somerville station yesterday, and both engines and the front end of the freight train were badly wrecked, and the passengers of the express were badly shaken up. The accident was caused by an open switch. The shattered cars were piled across the tracks of both the eastern and western divisions of the Boston and Maine road, and traffic was delayed for some time. Engineer William Noyes sustained badly crushed legs, and Fireman Tucker a compound fracture of the right leg. His left foot was also badly crushed. Noyes died last night from his injuries.

In Honor of Viceroy Li.

Fire Island, N. Y., Aug. 28.—As the steamship St. Louis passes Fire island, with Li Hung Chang aboard, a salute of 19 guns, the salute decided upon by the federal government, will be fired in honor of Li Hung Chang. The life saving station will be gaily decorated, the entire string of international signals being displayed from the main flagstaff of the station. The crew will be drawn up, and as the famous viceroy sails by he will be given an intimation of the warm greeting awaiting him in the metropolis of the Western hemisphere.

Filibusters Still Busy.

Key West, A g. 28.—General Roloff and Colonel Nunez landed here yesterday afternoon, accompanied by 14 others. General Roloff's party reports the safe landing on Cuban soil of three expeditions. All of these expeditions are said to have successful landed at midday. No warships were visible at the time the filibusters made their way to shore. The three expeditions are said to have landed 1500 rifles, 2,000,000 cartridges, 700 machetes, three field pieces, medicines and other necessary supplies.

When in Doubt—

Well, you know the railroad men's rule, of course: "When in doubt, take the safe side."

That is an admirable test to apply to the purchase of goods such as we handle.

If you are inclined to go elsewhere because of a seeming "bargain," or an apparent opportunity of getting something for nothing, yet are conscious of a doubt in your mind, "take the safe side," —come to us.

We offer you old-fashioned reliability combined with new-fashioned enterprise.

You're on "the safe side" in our establishment.

To be Given a Reception.

The members of the physical department of the Young Men's Christian Association are to tender a reception to Mr. Joseph E. Merritt, the physical director, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 2. Mr. Merritt has resigned his position in the local association, and his many friends take this method of showing their appreciation of his services for the past two years and to wish him success in the new step he is about to take.

Mr. Merritt enters the International Association Training school at Springfield next month, as a student in the physical department. The course of study covers three years and includes, physiology, anatomy, hygiene, physics, chemistry, phychology, sociology, bible study, methods of association work, gymnastics and athletics, both theoretical and practical, etc.

Mr. Merritt is a Quincy boy and has a bright prospect before him. His influence over the young men and the boys who have been associated with him during the past two years has been helpful.

The young men invite all of Mr. Merritt's friends, both ladies and gentlemen, to be present Wednesday evening. There will be an interesting entertainment during the evening.

Merit Talks
"Merit talks" the intrinsic value of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Merit in medicine means the power to cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses actual and unequalled curative power and therefore it has true merit. When you buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, and take it according to directions, to purify your blood, or cure any of the many blood diseases, you are morally certain to receive benefit. The power to cure is there. You are not trying an experiment. It will make your blood pure, rich and nourishing, and thus drive out the germs of disease, strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

HOSPITAL FESTIVAL.

Many Details Arranged at Last Night's Meeting.

Saturday to be One of the Days Instead of Wednesday.

A Balloon Ascension Among the Possibilities of the Opening Day.

The committee on the grand Hospital festival held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting on Thursday evening. Ex-Councilman H. M. Federhen presided, and Timothy Reed was secretary.

Several organizations were represented by committees, and all suggestions were duly considered.

The firemen regarded Saturday as the best day for them and the people generally, and it was decided that the festival should be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 17, 18 and 19, instead of the dates first selected.

The committee was also disposed to grant the request of the firemen for a band and also for prizes, and it is hoped to arrange a contest between Braintree, Hingham, Milton, Quincy and other hand engines.

A balloon ascension and sports for the opening day met with favor and will undoubtedly be the attractions for Thursday, Sept. 17. A band concert will be given.

Friday will be children's day and Grand Army day, and it is hoped that Acting Governor Wolcott will be a guest.

Each night therr will be entertainments in the large tent under the auspices of different local organizations.

The Quincy Electric Light and Power Company made a satisfactory offer to furnish all the light needed, and this means that the grounds at Merry Mount park will be brilliantly illuminated.

No season tickets will be issued this year, but single tickets good for any afternoon or evening will be sold for the small sum of 25 cents, and half tickets for 15 cents. A house to house canvass for the sale of tickets will be made.

The Weather Saturday,

The weather in New England Saturday, will be clear and pleasant, with light, variable winds; the temperature will be cool, ranging slightly above 70 degrees during the day. Sunday's weather now promises fair and probably slightly warmer, except on the coast.

Charles Francis Adams, the uncle of the Mayor, will vote for McKinley. In an interview with the Herald he said: "So far as it relates to the currency issue, Gov. McKinley's letter seems to me admirable. It shows very clearly the educational results of the campaign now going on."

—By the employment of labor of all kinds, says the Brockton Times, is the only way money can get into circulation. Simply coining it will not be of any avail.

—The New York Dispatch announces the present political move as "the great silver conspiracy." The most colossal of all swindles attempted in the history of the world. More than ten billion of silver to be coined at a profit of over three billion dollars, if Bryan is elected. Many large silver mines are owned by London bankers who are backing Bryan.

—The New Bedford Standard says, "If the silver men have discovered any way by which the farmers can get more for their wheat and the mechanics will pay less for their flour, they haven't yet made it known."

—The father of the bridegroom stopped a wedding in Stafford county, Va., by rising when the clergyman asked if any one knew just cause why the marriage should not take place and announcing that his son was already married.

At the present rate of increase this country will have a population of 190,000,000 in 1940.

Gold the Best Standard.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Mr. Benjamin Bolt, whose name well expresses his attitude on the Republican gold plant, is pleased to discover what he calls fallacies in my recent letter to the LEDGER. When such fallacies are entertained and ably defended by men of such eminence and logical acumen as Professor Chevalier, the most eminent political economist of France, Lexis of Germany, Cairnes, Bagehot, Jevous, Giffen, and Farren, of England, Atkinson, Taussig, and a majority of the ablest political economists of American, together with the great Republican party almost as a unit, and the best element of the Democratic party, even I may be pardoned for making a similar mistake.

Though I have spent much time and thought in the study of economics and logic, I must admit that I cannot find the fallacies in my argument for gold. What is still worse "Ben Bolt" gives me no aid in this matter, and does not even answer my seventeen questions on the subject.

Mr. George Fred Williams, too, the noisiest advocate of free silver in Massachusetts, the man who betrayed his trust at Chicago, and who now delights in the role of renegade previously made famous by Judas and Benedict Arnold, even Mr. Williams said in 1892:

"Of the deposits in savings banks in this country $1,000,000,000 are said to be invested in mortgages. The mortgage creditors of the country are therefore to this extent the small depositors in savings banks who have trusted their scanty earnings to be invested by those institutions of savings.

"To depreciate by thirty or forty per cent. the value of these securities would rob millions of our industrious citizens of their hard-earned savings.

"Depreciate the standard of the dollar and every pensioner of the country, every holder of a policy of insurance, every widow and orphan enjoying the proceeds of trust funds, will by so much suffer from this fraudulent reduction of the standard of the country."

In ancient times there was an appeal from Philip drunk to Philip sober. Today I appeal from Williams of 1896 to Williams of 1892.

"Ben Bolt" must remember that the law of supply and demand applies more particularly to the fluctuations of the market, and that the cost of production is a most important element in this discussion. For this very reason gold is a better standard for two reasons: Gold fluctuates much less than silver. In fact no one has successfully proved that gold has appreciated. Second, the gold dollar is a much better measure of the labor expended in producing it, than the silver dollar is of the labor expended in producing it.

It appears to be necessary to restate the fact that the reasons for the present parity of gold and silver and paper are these:

(1) The United States is on a gold basis.
(2) The coinage of silver is limited.
(3) The issue of paper money is limited.
(4) The government is back of every dollar issued, because it is prepared to redeem it on a gold basis.

One of the most dangerous and fallacious doctrines in finance is the idea that the government stamp gives anything value; in other words that the die of the government has creative power, and so from nothing can make something. A recent work says: "The fact that the government places its stamp upon the face of each coin whether gold or silver, guarantees its weight and fineness, but does not add one scintilla to its value. Each silver dollar now in circulation is backed, not by the government, but by the silver retained within its vaults which when added to the coined dollars will exchange at par with gold."

"Ben Bolt's" faith in the government stamp and its alleged creative power immediately suggests the pernicious doctrine of the believers in fiat money. Even President Walker, the eminent bimetallist, denounces fiat money in the most unmistakable terms. Furthermore, President Walker, bimetallist though he is, is utterly opposed to the free coinage of silver by the United States independently of Europe.

"Ben Bolt" expresses the opinion that the most inexperienced members of the Democratic party together with the Populists who are noted for their incapacity on financial questions, can by the fiat of their government double the price of silver. There is no plan of reducing the supply. There is no scheme of limiting the coinage. There is no attempt at international action. There is no system of increasing the cost of production. There is not one iota of evidence that the value of silver can be doubled by the fiat of the government. On the contrary, there is abundant evidence to show that the silver war-cry was adopted by the Populistic Democrats in the face of almost certain defeat at the hands of the Republicans, and that all this theorizing about what might, could, would or should, happen, is based not on experience but on the most illogical assumptions.

But there is abundant evidence on the other side of the question: Silver as a currency has failed in China, India, the principal states of Europe, all the states of Central and South America. When I say "failed," I mean that silver has proved to be inferior to gold.

Even in Mexico, which "Ben Bolt" would have us believe a kind of silver paradise, the prices of the common articles of food are enough to deter any prudent voter from casting his ballot for a similar schedule:

While statistics may show various results regarding the pay of laborers in Mexico, a careful study of the best authorities within my reach shows that on the average the pay of laborers in Mexico is distinctly less than that of laborers in the United States. Not even "Ben Bolt," I think, would maintain that we Americans, as a nation, are inferior to Mexicans. May I also state that, in my opinion, "Ben Bolt's" slur on the Catholics of Mexico is entirely out of place. In "the land of the free," I am at a loss to understand, why any one has not a perfect right to join such a religious organization as may seem best to meet his needs. I, for one, desire no freedom which I cannot share with my fellow citizens.

The charge that the gold of the world is controlled by the Morgans and the Rothschilds is absolutely and unqualifiedly false for this reason: France, Germany, England, and other countries under a gold standard when uninjured by the fear of free silver have no difficulty in maintaining enormous treasury balances of gold. This gold is represented by treasury notes. The majority of these notes are in the hands of the people. Unless the Rothschilds hold the majority of the notes, they cannot corner the market. The Rothschilds do not hold the majority of the notes, hence they do not and cannot control the market.

I must enter an emphatic protest against the policy of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Williams and others, which appears to consist in an attempt to set class against class, poor against rich, West against East, bankers against borrowers, debtors against creditors. It would be more honest, more statesmanlike, more American to consider each man on his own merits. Why, in our immediate neighborhood we have bankers still bearing the scars of wounds received in defence of our common country; men of the highest integrity, of the broadest education, of the most devoted patriotism; men whom the people have always loved, and to whom the people, even though deceived for a time by the seductive eloquence of eleventh-hour converts and renegade partisans will inevitably return. Let up brush aside the cobwebs festooning all this Bryanesque talk about the "bankers and common people." There is no aristocracy in this country except the aristocracy of service. This has been said before, but it cannot be repeated too often. Let us hear less then, of "the masses and the classes," and more of the American people by the grace of God free and independent and competent to decide on all matters affecting their interests.

And then "the subsidized press!" Will "Ben Bolt" kindly give me a list of papers in Quincy or Boston, or New York, that are "subsidized" by the gold interest? I will venture to state without fear of reasonable contradiction that no other country in the world possesses a press so free, so fair, so unsubsidized as ours. Let the defamers of the American press come out of the hiding-places of generalities and substantiate their libelous charges by citing particular cases. They cannot do it. The ablest papers of the land, the warmest friends of American honor, liberty, and prosperity, the sharpest critics of hypocrisy, sham, and fraud, in the interest of the whole people, but more particularly in the interest of the workingmen, are on the side of an honest dollar. George Fred Williams and others may refuse to meet Edward Atkinson, because he gives blows as well as takes them, but one cannot help thinking that he who refuses to fight because the enemy fired at him, is not much of a soldier.

In closing, I would say: The highest prosperity of our country has been reached under a gold standard. This same standard together with the protection of our industries, and the restriction of immigration will bring us again the prosperity now endangered by threats of free silver, free trade, and free abuse of the defenders of honest money.

Faithfully yours,
FREDERIC ALLISON TUPPER.

P. S. Will "Ben Bolt" kindly sign his own name?

REACHED TOP NOTCH.

The Brooklyn Proves to Be the Fastest Cruiser In Her Class.

Showed an Average Speed of 21.92 Knots.

Builders Net a Handsome Bonus For Exceeding Contract Requirements.

Boston, Aug. 28.—The United States fighting cruiser Brooklyn on her official trip yesterday made good her claim to the title of "Greater New York," by averaging 21.92 knots an hour, during a forced draft run of four hours, largely exceeding the contract speed of 20 knots an hour, and earning for the Cramp Ship and Engine Building company the handsome bonus of $350,000. In addition to showing greater speed than had been anticipated, the Brooklyn was eminently successful in other respects, and naval experts, who were on board, did not hesitate in pronouncing her the finest ship in the new navy. She responded perfectly to her helm, was steady in heavy seas and her machinery worked beautifully. During all of yesterday's run the engines averaged 138 revolutions a minute, the maximum being 140. The air pressure was 2½ inches, and the steam pressure from 160 to 165 pounds. The contract requirement of 11,000 horse power was exceeded by at least 1000. During the more than four hours that the ship was under forced draft, the fire and engine rooms were comfortable, and it was not once found necessary to use waters on the bearings. On one stretch of the course, measuring seven knots in length, the ship was speeded up to the surprising average of 22.9 knots an hour.

The course over which yesterday's great race was made is the regular government course, 41½ knots in length, located between Cape Ann, Mass., and Cape Porpoise, Me., a few miles out from shore. This stretch of water is selected for the reason that it is sufficiently close to shore to permit of accurate measurements, and yet deep enough to get all the speed out of a ship there is in her. At no other point on the Atlantic coast are the conditions so favorable. The course is a straight line, 41½ knots long, marked by seven big can buoys, placed at an average of 6.9 knots apart, the longest stretch being seven knots. Behind each of these buoys was a government vessel, carrying naval officers, whose duty it was to make observations of the tide.

The contract for the Brooklyn requires, like all other contracts, that on a run of four hours, under forced draft, she shall average a speed of 20 knots an hour. For each quarter knot in excess of 20, a speed premium of $50,000 is allowed. A round trip of 83 knots over the course traveled yesterday was therefore calculated to consume four hours, including the turn at the upper end, which was made without slackening speed. The actual time of the round round trip was 3 hours 47 minutes 13 1-8 seconds, producing an average speed of 21.92 knots an hour. Had she made one-eighth of a knot more the premium would have been $50,000 higher, but as no allowance is made for fractions of a quarter of a knot the bonus will be calculated on her speed of 21¾ knots.

The Brooklyn hoisted anchor and stared for Cape Ann at 8:25. Previous to that time two tugloads of invited guests had been taken aboard. After an easy run of an hour, the twinlight of Cape Ann was sighted, but the steam pressure was not sufficiently high for the trial and two wide turns were made before the ship was headed for the starting line. At 10:40 the red flag, announcing tha the start was to be made, was run up at the masthead, and at 10:45:13 the line was crossed and the great race had begun. At this hour the atmosphere was hazy, with indications of rain, and the sea was rough. The breeze was straight ahead and the tide against the ship. In spite of the rather unfavorable conditions, Lew Chambers, the veteran who has presided at the wheel on all trials in recent years, steered the ship as straight as a die past the various buoys and markboats, and the upper end of the course was reached at 12:30:54½, the elapsed time being 1:54:41½, and the speed for the trip up 21.71 knots an hour.

The turn consumed about 24 minutes, and the finish line was recrossed on the homeward bound trip at 1:03:13. The weather was still foggy, but the rain had ceased, and the tide favored the ship. The sea was also favorable for speed. The down trip was made at the rate of 22.12 knots an hour, producing a mean average of 21.92 for the run of 83 knots. It was on this half of the run, between the second and third buoys, a distance of exactly seven knots, that the Brooklyn made her topnotch average of 22.09 knots an hour. Such great speed had not been deemed possible, and everybody on board was naturally elated.

Just before the finish line was reached, the sun broke through the clouds, and the race came to an end in beautiful weather. As the boat passed the first buoy, Captain Sargent pulled the throttle of the big siren whistle wide open, and the tugs, steam yachts and excursion steamers that had gatherer at the finish line sent back their greetings. A broom, symbolical of the ability of the Brooklyn to sweep the seas, was run up to the top of the foremast, and flags were flung to the breeze from every mast and flagpole.

Previous to the trial, the official board satisfied itself that the ship had the required mean draft of 21ft. 10½in., and that the other contract specifications had been lived up to. Only one of the ship's guns was in place, and coal and water compensated for the weight of the absent guns. It is understood that the guns are finished, but changes are being made in the mounts, and this is causing the delay.

Probably the most interested man on board was Captain Francis A. Cook, who will command the Brooklyn when she goes into commission. Captain Cook is now assistant to the chief of the bureau of navigation at Washington, and no announcement has yet been made of his appointment, but the fact leaked out yesterday that Secretary Herbert has selected him for the important position of commander of the great fighting cruiser.

Run Down by a Steamer.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 28.—Steamer Mount Hope, while on her way here from Providence, last night, ran down a catboat off Hog Island lightship, drowning the two persons who were in the boat. The body of one of the men was picked up. There was little to identify the body, except a bill made out to F. A. Stag, from a coal dealer in New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y. The catboat sank almost immediately.

The Honorable J. F. Greer, one of the best known and most highly respected county Judges of the State of Florida, writes of his horrible sufferings from Inflammatory Rheumatism:

OFFICE OF J. F. GREER, COUNTY JUDGE, Green Cove Springs, Clay Co., Fla.

GENTLEMEN: Twenty-three years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I was attended by the most eminent physician in the land. I visited the great Saratoga Springs, N. Y., the noted Hot Springs of Arkansas, and many other watering places, always consulting with the local physicians for directions, and finally came to Florida, ten years ago. About two years ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism, was confined to my room for twelve weeks, and during that time was induced to try P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, knowing that each ingredient was good for impurities of the blood. After using two small bottles I was relieved. At four different times since I have had slight attacks and each time I have taken two small bottles of P. P. P., and have been relieved, and I consider P. P. P. the best medicine of its kind.

Respectfully, J. F. GREER.

James M. Newton, of Aberdeen, Ohio, says he bought a bottle of P. P. P. at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and it did him more good than three months' treatment at Hot Springs.

Rheumatism, as well as sciatica and gout, is cured by a course of P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is a friend indeed to weak women. It is a positive and speedy cure for general weakness and nervousness.

All skin diseases are cured by it; anything from pimples to the worst cases of eczemas succumbing to the wonderful healing powers of P. P. P.

Dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst form are cured by it. As a tonic to restore the appetite and to regain lost vigor, it is simply marvelous.

P. P. P. is the best spring medicine in the world. It removes that heavy, out-of-sorts feeling and restores you to a condition of perfect physical health.

For Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Failure, Fever, Chills, Debility and Kidney Diseases, take P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the most wonderful medicine in the world

A Character.

He wasn't much at farmin, sorter shiftlesslike, they say,
A rather wild an reckless chap, inclined to have his way.
His schoolin wasn't perfect, his deportment cards were blanks,
An he worrited the teachers with his most mischievous pranks,
But when Sumter's flag was lowered, in '61, spring of sixty-one,
He answered Lincoln's summons, an he shouldered of a gun,
An the boys who went out with him tuk the time to send us word
Thet for bravery in action Jack had had some straps conferred.

As a captain he was nervy, an we heerd about his luck,
'Bout his fate fer turnin bullets like the water on a duck,
How he rid right up to cannon in a most amazin way,
An, 'fore the fellers knowed it, had 'em p'inted to ther way.
But luck don't allers hover o'er a fellow in the fight,
An they found their captain missin when the roll was called one night,
An they sent him home to lay him by the side of all the rest,
With the wrappin's of a bonny banner blue up on his breast.

Then when the war had ended in that glorious review
That sorter thrilled the nation, passin down the avenoo
Of our capital, an welcomed were the remnants of the war,
We let the tears of pity sorter cleanse out every scar.
Then we counted up the heroes of our little country town,
An a local sort of writer was a-jottin of 'em down,
An we found the place of honor—now, I give it as a fac'—
Had freely been accorded to this same ole shiftless Jack.

The ole boys ain't forgot him, an on Decoration days,
When G. A. R.'s are meetin an a-singin hymns of praise
Fer a reunited country, why, I sorter steal apart
An drop a tear in quiet from a patriotic heart.
I clean fergit Jack's failin's, how he used to give me pain
When I used to train young idees in the schoolhouse down the lane,
An I seek his grave out yonder, where a flag waves in the air,
Then my ole heart burns within me as I lay a lily there.

we want silver because we want more money, a larger circulating medium? I have not heard anybody say so. Mr. Bryan is not urging it upon that basis. If anybody were to seek to give that as a reason for wanting free silver, he would be very soon confronted by the statement that free silver would put more gold out of circulation than the mints of the United States could possibly in years of silver, and that instead of having more money we would have less. What is it then that creates this demand for silver? It is openly avowed: It is not more dollars, but cheaper dollars that are wanted. It is a lower standard of value that they are demanding. They say gold has gone up until it has ceased to be a proper standard of values, and they want silver. But how do they want it?

Now, my friends, there is a great deal of talk about bimetallism and the double standard, and a great deal of confusion in the use of these terms. Bimetallism is the use of these two metals as money, where they are both used. By a double standard they mean that we shall have a gold dollar and a silver dollar which shall be units of value, by which all property and all wages and everthing is to be measured. Our fathers thought that when they used these two metals in coinage they must determine the intrinsic value of the two, so that a comparison of the markets of the world would show just what relation one ounce of silver bore to one ounce of gold. They fully understood that unless these dollars were of the same inherent intrinsic value that both of them could not be standards of value and both could not circulate.

So nice were our people about this in trying to adjust it, that they went into decimal fractions. We say 16 to 1. In fact, that is not the ratio. It is 15.988 plus. Now that is the actual ratio. It is so near 16 that we call it 16, but the men who made our silver dollar and our gold dollar were so nice in their calculation that they went into decimal fractions into thousandths to adjust it accurately. Now what do these people propose to do? To take any account of thousandths? No. When the markets of the world fix the relative value of silver, or gold, at 13 ounces of silver to one ounce of gold, they propose to say 16. Well, my friends, there has been nothing more amusing, and yet I fear that with the thoughtless it may have been in some measure misleading, than the repeated declaration of Mr. Bryan that everybody admitted that bimetallism was a good thing—there is no debate on that subject and that the debate of the campaign has come down to this fine point: The Republicans say that we cannot have this good thing without the consent of England and we say we can have it ourselves, and he has endeavored to pivot this great campaign, with its tremendous issue, upon that pinhole.

It is unquestionably fully within the power of this government to bring this country to a silver basis by coining silver dollars and making them legal tender. They can do that. This government says you shall take one of these dollars in discharge of any debt owing to you for a dollar, notwithstanding you may have loaned gold dollars, but it cannot say, and enforce its decree, if you should call out the regular army and navy and muster all our great modern ships, and add the militia, and put William J. Bryan in command of them—it cannot enforce the decree that one ounce of gold is the equivalent of 16 ounces of silver. Not only that, not France and England and Germany can do that, unless the markets respond.

So it is, my friends. We can of ourselves, of our wisdom, declare the unit of value, we can coin silver freely, but we cannot make 16 ounces of silver equal to one ounce of gold unless it is. And it is not, unless the merchants take it at that rate. That is where all this thing comes in. It is trade; it is the merchant; it is the man who exchanges and deals in these things that fixes their relative value, and if you do not take the value he fixes, the gold dollar will go back to the gold vault and the gold will go out of circulation. What is another consequence? What is the next suggestion? It is, my friends, in the cause of free silver, what is the financial and moral equivalent of a declaration that 50-cent pieces are dollars? They might just as well pass a law that 50 cents is a dollar. That wold not make it so, would it? But it would be a legal dollar. But it would not buy a dollar's worth of anything. What is the effect of that? The merchant would take care of himself.

Take the laboring man; how full of sympathy they are for him. My countrymen, I never spoke a false word to the laboring man in my life. I have never sought to reach his vote or influence by appeals to that part of his nature that will pollute the intellect and the conscience. I have believed, and I believe today, that any system that maintains the prices of labor in this country, that brings hope into the life of the laboring man, that enables him to put by that which gives him a stake in the property of the country, is the policy that should be our American policy. I have resisted in many campaigns this idea that a debased currency could help the workingman. The first dirty errand that a dirty dollar does is to cheat the workingman.

Mr. Harrison here quoted statistics relative to prices of commodities and wages during the years of the war, showing that goods went up rapidly, while wages went up haltingly and slowly. Continuing, he said:

Laborers, men who work, whether with head or hand, in salaried positions, would do well to take these facts to heart, and settle the question, after broad and deep inquiry, which Mr. Bryan invites, whether you mean to enter into another experience such as you had during the war, when wages advanced so slowly and tediously and the cost of your living moved on so swiftly. Everything would have to be readjusted, the prices of everything, the whole intricate business adjustments of the country would have to be readjusted, and while that process is going on, uncertainty would characterize business, resulting in panic and disaster.

My friends, the people who advocate this class of legislation, this legislation favorable to the mine-owners to double the price of the products of their mines, and offer this temptation of repudiation to the better class, make a strong appeal to the farmer. They say it will put up prices. Well, in a sense, yes. Nominally, yes; really, no. If wheat goes from 50 cents to $1.20 the price has been increased you will say, but if the price of everthing else has gone up in the same proportion, a bushel of wheat won't buy for the farmer any more sugar or coffee, or farming implements, nor anything else that he has to purchase. If that dollar won't buy for the farmer any more, or be a better dollar than the one we have now, where is the good to anybody of introducing these fictitious prices that are now real. If everything doubles who is the richer, who is richer than he was before? Only the man who bought when he had an honest dollar and paid in a debased one; only the mine-owner who uses this government to add 50 cents to the value of every dollar's worth of metal that he produces from his mine. It involves the idea that this government of ours shall pay not only its debt of honor, but that they pay the interest on its bonds and the circulation notes in a debased currency.

My countrymen, this country of ours during the troublous times of the war may have had severe trials, but these financial questions are scarcely less troublous than those. During those troublous times we had accumulated a debt so large that many of our pessimistic Democratic friends told us we could never pay it. We had had a currency which we were compelled to make a legal tender and use, that the constitution might live, but no sooner had the war ended than the great conscience of this people declared the nation that has crushed this great rebellion, that has lifted itself in its pride and its constitutional glory to a peerless position among the nations of the earth, should not continue to have a depreciated and debased currency, and we walked up to resumption and we made the greenback dollar a par dollar in gold.

Shall we now in these times, when all the ills we suffer are curable if we only pass a revenue bill that will generously replenish the treasury of the United States, that will generously protect American labor against injurious competition and bring back again full prosperity to all our people—shall we now contemplate for a moment, or allow to have any power over our hearts and minds, this temptation to debase our currency and put it in its financial position alongside of Asiatic nations or our weak and struggling sister republic of Mexico? Does not every instance of pride, does not every instinct of self-interest, does not every thoughtful, affectionate interest in others; does not our sense of justice and honor rise up to rebuke the infamous proposition that this government and its people shall become a nation of repudiation.

DEATH OF HARRY HILL.

Was Once Worth a Million but Died a Very Poor Man.

New York, Aug. 28.—Harry Hill, the veteran Music hall proprietor, died at Flushing, L. I., last evening. Death was caused by chills and fever, which he contracted about a week ago by drinking impure water. On account of the advanced age—70 years—of the patient, the physicians were able to do nothing for him.

HARRY HILL.

Soon after Hill's arrival in America he defeated Ainsworth, then the champion middle-weight wrestler, and won $25,000, a wide reputation and the lifelong friendship of John Morrissey, his backer. His receipts at his theater were said to be over $7000 a day. He was said to be worth over $1,000,000, and admitted that his fortune amounted to $500,000.

The house in which he died is one that he made famous many years ago, and is known as Harry Hill's original roadhouse. His son, Richard, upon whom he was dependent, now conducts the place and makes a bare living in it. A widow and three sons survive him.

THREAT CARRIED OUT.

Usurping Sultan of Zanzibar Gets a Taste of British Warfare.

Zanzibar, Aug. 28.—The usurping sultan, Said Khalid, having refused to surrender yesterday, in accordance with the terms of the British consul's ultimatum, the palace was bombarded by the warships in the harbor and, after the bombardment, was captured by the British sailors and marines, who had been landed by the war vessels.

The gunboats prepared for action at 7 o'clock in the morning, but up to the last moment no one believed Said Khalid would resist. The majority of the Europeans remained on shore, in spite of the warning issued by Admiral Rawson urging them to go aboard the British boats before 8 o'clock in the morning. Bishop Tucker and many of the natives, however, boarded the steamer Nowhera. The foreign gunboats and the merchant vessels steamed away from the scene of action.

The British gunboats opened fire promptly at 9 o'clock, according to orders, using their broadside guns and their Maxim guns with such good effect that great damage speedily resulted. The followers of Said Khalid fought pluckily and returned the fire from boats, with a heavy firing from the fortifications on shore, until the very last moment. The British forces were well protected, and escaped almost without injury.

The sultan's armed steamer, Glasgow, anchored in the center harbor, fired at the British flagship, St. George. The St. George and third-class cruiser Racoon trained their guns no the Glasgow and disabled her. The crew of the Glasgow then hoisted the Union Jack. The Glasgow sank gradually into the waters of the harbor. Members of the crew of the Glasgow, as they made their escape, rescued several of the wounded.

HYSTERICS.

Women Should Understand This Strange Nervous Derangement.

A Symptom of Something Far More Serious—Mrs. Barris, of Beaver Springs, Relates Her Experience.

The spasm at top of wind-pipe, or in bronchial tubes, the "ball rising in the throat," violent beating of the heart; laughing and crying by turns; muscular spasms; throwing the arms about, etc., tell of a derangement of the female system.

Any female complaint may produce hysterics, which must be regarded as a symptom only. The cause, whatever it may be, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It acts at once upon the organ affected, and the nerve centers; removes the cause, and dispels effectually the symptoms.

Mrs. Barris relates her experience for the benefit of others.

"I had been sick with ulceration of the womb, causing all kinds of disagreeable experiences, such as irritability, sleeplessness, faintness, and at times hysterics. My physician said it was the worst case he ever had. My back ached, leucorrhœa very profuse, and I had a severe bearing-down pain. The physicians thought I should never recover, and as the last remedy, they procured your Vegetable Compound. I had not taken more than one-fourth of a bottle, before I was more comfortable. I continued its use, also the Sanative Wash, and Liver Pills. After using four bottles, I was able to be out, and do almost all my work. I think the Vegetable Compound is the only medicine that will cure female complaints, and it will reach the worst cases in a very short time. I know it saved my life."—MRS. M. Gospel Tent Meeting.

The meetings in the Gospel tent has been of great interest to those who have attended them this week. A number of ministers have taken part in the meetings every evening and made it very inspiring as well as of great blessing. There will be no meeting tonight, but on Sunday afternoon at 3 P. M. Speakers from Boston are expected to be present. Also singers from different places and pastors from this city. Another meeting will be held at 7.30 P. M. To all these services you are welcome.

W. R. C. Inspectors.

Mrs. Brigham, department president of the Woman's Relief Corps of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Gilman, department inspector, have assigned Mrs. George A. Stoddard of Hingham, to inspect the corps at Quincy, Norwell, East Weymouth and Rockland, and Mrs. Isabel Souther of Quincy to inspect corps at Hingham, Braintree and Randolph.

False Report.

A rumor was circulated this morning that Munroe Crane, Esq., of New York, a native of this city, was dead. But none of his relatives have received any such news, and an investigation shows that a citizen started the story, after seeing a monument on the family lot at Mount Wollaston.

Hull Sports.

The Hull yacht club will hold another series of sports this afternoon, to include a blind dory race, a horse race, swimming match, fishing expedition, chasing the duck, and ball game.

Morse Wanted.

It is not improbable that Congressman Morse will be renominated as a bitter feeling has developed between Lovering and Duval, the aspirants.

GREAT NAVAL DISPLAY

In Honor of Li Hung Chang Upon His Arrival In the United States.

Statesman of Many Titles Appears Much Pleased.

Details of the Reception Aboard Ship and at the Waldorf Hotel.

New York, Aug. 29.—Li Hung Chang, viceroy of China and ambassador extraordinary to all the countries of the civilized world, arrived in New York yesterday and became the guest of the nation, being received with the honors due to a potentate. He came on the American line steamship St. Louis, which passed Fire Island at 10:33 o'clock in the forenoon.

A clear atmosphere, with a tinge of autumn coolness in it and a light breeze that ruffled the surface of the bay, combined to make the first view that Li Hung Chang had of the harbor of the metropolis a pleasing one. Added to its natural beauties was the imposing spectacle furnished by the presence of the finest warships of the new navy.

The fleet was composed of the cruiser New York, flagship of the fleet, with Admiral Bunce on board; the cruisers Cincinnati, Columbia, Raleigh and Newark; the battleships Indiana, Massachusetts, Maine and Texas; the monitors Amphitrite and Terror; the ram Katahdin, and the dispatch boat Dolphin, with the reception committee on board. The warships were formed in double column.

The fleet presented a magnificent spectacle, the rays of a brilliant sun lighting up their white forms and reflecting upon the highly polished railings and protruding guns with dazzling effect. Indeed it was a sight calculated to inspire confidence in the efficiency of the naval resources of the United States.

Perhaps never in the history of these waters has such a demonstrative group of American men-of-war been congregated. Admiral Bunce was in personal command.

It was 11:40 when the St. Louis sighted quarantine, the fleet of the excursion boats, the newspaper tugs and the waiting squadron. The Chinese legation and attendants were very curious, and, with the exception of the ambassador and his two sons, were on deck and took an active interest in the arrival. Passing around Fort Wadsworth, several of the yachts fired salutes, and from Fort Wadsworth came the roar of the great guns. The interest centered in the arrival was greater than anybody anticipated. The bay was crowded with excursion boats and steam yachts, while the shores around Fort Wadsworth were lined with people.

The ambassador remained in his cabin, and was dining when the steamer reached quarantine. The steamer slowed up and immediately was surrounded by a fleet of boats, making it impossible to proceed very fast, and as she proceeded up the bay toward the fleet there was a continued toot of steam whistles, and some boats touched off a Chinese anthem in the shape of several bunches of fire crackers. When the dispatch boat was reached a salute pealed forth, and a little later, as the fleet was reached, the New York's saluting guns boomed out the English salute of 19 guns for a lord high admiral, there being no American salute that equals this in number.

The party of Americans were ushered into the aft drawing room, and waited for some 15 minutes to see the ambassador, in the meantime meeting the members of his staff. Li Hung Chang appeared with his son. He was attired in the historical yellow jacket, purple silk trousers, black and white felt shoes, and a black and red hat, with the three-eyed peacock plume depending from the back. Holding the jacket in the front was a large diamond, surrounded with pearls. He wore glasses, and leaned a trifle on the attendant's arm as he stood up to receive his guests. General Ruger was first introduced. He shook hands cordially with the general, who said: "Ambassador, I am here on behalf of the United States government, and President Cleveland, to bid you welcome to this country."

The interpreter told the ambassador, who, however, had showed interest enough in the statement to state that he understood it. In Chinese, he said: "I am glad to be here, and I thank you for this kindness. I am glad to know you." Then the other members of the party were introduced.

The welcoming party had been added to by the presence of Collector of the Port Kilbreth, General Wilson, General McCook and Vice President Wright. After he had been introduced to the entire party, he said to General Ruger:

"Where will the president preside?" evidently wishing to know where he would be met.

General Ruger replied: "I will communicate all the arrangements to you, when I see you this afternoon."

The ambassador had heard that General James H. Wilson had been a friend and a fellow-fighter with General Grant, that he had a record for bravery, and he could hardly restrain his impatience so anxious was he to talk with him. He finally sat down and asked, through his interpreter, for General Wilson, made him sit down beside him while he plied him with questions, telling him that he knew of his record.

On the way to the American line pier, Castle William fired a salute, and in the meantime the ambassador talked with various members of the reception party. He is very quiet in his demeanor, speaks in a low voice, and from the description of him by the passengers is a cordial and endearing man. He wears his glasses down far on his nose, as if to hide the scar of the Japanese assassin, which shows just below his left eye.

The ambassador was not without humor, as was evidenced by the expression upon his face when he saw the horde of reporters. He said: "We don't have reporters in China; but they seem to have some here."

When the dock was reached the ambassador enjoyed what to him was evidently the most pleasant incident of the reception. The gangplank had hardly been put in position when Colonel Fred Grant stepped up, and the ambassador's face beamed with smiles as he grasped the colonel's hand and shook it warmly. He conversed with him a few minutes and then entered his carriage for conveyance to the Waldorf hotel.

When Li first entered the hotel he beheld a long line of his countrymen on his right hand, extending from the sidewalk to the main corridor. Some of these were men in the Chinese legation or attaches of the consul's office, but the majority were New York merchants. They were arrayed in full Celestial dress, including wide flowing skirts. Behind them were packed a dense mass of Caucasians, mostly women. Not a few of them made audible comments on the appearance of the Chinamen, who on their part maintained their customary reserve, and seemed to pay no attention, although most of them doubtless understood English.

The earl bowed and smiled to right and left as he entered the hotel, but he walked rapidly, and quickly disappeared from view. Just as he stepped out of his carriage there were a burst of handclapping from the people about the door, but there was no demonstration inside.

The viceroy and his suite occupy the entire first floor of the Waldorf and a part of the second. The "state suite" embraces the entire Fifth avenue front and a part of the Thirty-third street front, on the first floor. Li himself and the more distinguished members of his party are quartered there. Li dined last night in his own room, the meal being prepared by his own cooks. He only saw one caller, George F. Seward, who was minister to China many years ago.

At 9:30 p. m. the Chinese statesman retired, and this fact was made known to the crowds outside, in the hope that they would disperse, but it was long after midnight before the streets were cleared.

The arrival of China's celebrated statesman on these shore proved a red-letter night in the history of Chinatown last night. Such a crowd as invaded Pell, Doyers and Mott streets had never been seen in that section of the city before. Every avenue of approach held thousands of people wending thir way to the Chinese American Mecca. People of all nationalities were there, and residents of the East Side tenements in ragged attire touched elbows with their aristocratic brethren from the silk stocking districts, a large number of whom were accompanied by their wives, sisters or sweethearts, in fashionable toilets, who showed by their inquiries that it had been their first visit to the Chinese quarter.

The crowd was so great that they completely blocked the sidewalks and streets in Mott, Doyers and Pell, and it was apparent from the inquiries made that the crowd had been drawn there through some expectation of Li paying a visit to his countrymen of the Chinese quarter, or through an idea that the Celestials would honor the visit of their great statesman with a grand display of fireworks, and great was the disappointment of a majority when they learned that neither of these expectations were to be realized.

LOVE AND DRINK.

Marvelous Nerve Displayed by a Doctor Who Destroyed Himself.

Baltimore, Aug. 29.—Dr. Argyle Mackey, a young Washington physician, who shot himself in the breast Thursday, died in the city hospital yesterday from his wound. He is supposed to have had trouble in a love affair, and he had been drinking and taking morphine to excess. Members of his family were with him when he died.

The dying man was conscious to the last, and calmly noted each change that took place in his condition as the end drew near. He even tried to feel his own fluttering pulse, told how every beat of his heart was throwing into the lung cavity a certain portion of his life's blood, and measured with remarkable accuracy the length of time the internal hemorrhage would take to kill him. He repeatedly felt the tips of his fingers and noted the slowly decreasing power of circulation. Early in the night his body began to swell, and he explained that the swelling was due to the escape of air from the left lung, which the bullet had punctured. His nerve was wonderful, and he was as calm as if he had been one of the professors of the hospital delivering a clinic lecture at the bedside of a dying patient. He bade his weeping mother and brother farewell with no more emotion than if he had been going on a short journey. The dead man was about 28 years old.

Uncle Sam May Have to Settle.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The state department has received the report of the governor of Louisiana on the recent lynchings in that state. The report will not be given out for publication, but will be transmitted to the Italian government. The report states, in a general way, that after a thorough investigation by the state authorities no affirmative evidence can be found that the men lynched were Italian subjects. It cannot be learned either that they have ever taken out American naturalization papers. The governor says that every effort is being made by the authorities of the state to find the perpetrators of the deed. As the governor's report does not appear to mitigate the circumstances of the affair, there seems to be little doubt but that the United States will have to pay an indemnity.

Indians vs. Squaw Men.

Wichita, Kan., Aug. 29.—About 150 squaw and 50 full-blooded Indians and half-breeds had a pitched battle in the streets of Wewoka, in the Seminole reservation, in the Indian Territory Thursday. In the fight three full-bloods and two half-breeds were killed and several wounded on both sides. A reign of terror ensued. It is thought now that the troops are able to preserve order. At the last meeting of the Seminole council a law was passed ordering the immediate expulsion of all white men from the reservation. The efforts of the Indian police to put into effect the order of expulsion is what caused the trouble.

FINANCIAL UNCERTAINTY

Now the Chief Obstacle to the Long-Looked-For Boom In Trade.

New York, Aug. 29.—Bradstreet's says: The volume of general business has not increased within the week. Exceptions appear to be at Baltimore, Louisville and Kansas City, which send out more favorable reports as to the quantities of general merchandise sold than any other center.

Early movements of crops are said to be behind the increased order. Another encouraging influence is found in lower rates for foreign exchange, the movement of $10,000,000 in gold from abroad to the United States and the expression of opinion that not less than $25,000,000 in gold is to be imported in the near future.

Conspicuous among checks to trade are greatly increased firmness for money at nearly all financial centers. As at New York, banks at most larger cities report withdrawals of deposits in many instances by country banks, higher rates for call loans, and at some points the practical refusal to make time loans. This is the outcome, primarily, of uncertainty as to the financial situation, in instances due to increased and important business embarrassments, and in some localities to increased demands for accomodation from country merchants and jobbers, who have excessively large book accounts and find collections exceptionally slow. Banks are very generally meeting the needs of regular customers at former rates, either turning down or charging the higher rate to outsiders. The demand for funds to move cotton at the south and southwest, and wheat west and northwest, with the tying up in a speculative deal of several millions belonging to Chicago banks, intensifies the relative difficulty in securing funds.

Jobbers and manufacturers report no general increase in demand for staple merchandise. The tendency of the former is to let the latter carry stocks, and of the latter to cut down production until scarcity compels freer purchases by wholesalers. Trade opinion is that gain in business need no be expected until after election. Merchants in regions where cotton and new wheat are moving freely are somewhat more hopeful as to prospects.

The general tendency of prices of staples continues downward, exceptions being advances for print cloths, wheat, sugar and anthracite coal. On the other hand, lower quotations are recorded for cotton, leather, wool, pig iron, barbed wire, lumber, coffee, corn, oats and pork and lard.

McAuliffe's Day Has Passed.

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—The Occidental club gave a series of fights last night in its new pavilion. The chief event was the eight-round "go" between Joe Choyinski and Joe McAuliffe, the "Mission Giant." McAuliffe had been on the retired list for two or three years. The men presented a great contrast as they shook hands for the first round. McAuliffe towered nearly four inches above his antagonist, with an advantage of three inches in reach. Choyinski assumed the aggressive from the start, and hit McAuliffe when and where he pleased. In the middle of the fourth round Choyinski swung his right with terrible force. It landed on McAuliffe's jaw and the fight was over.

Hoodlumism Rampant.

Milwaukee, Aug. 29.—The situation at Ontonagon, Mich., is described as serious. Digging in the ruins of burned saloons large quantities of liquor were found, and scores of men became intoxicated. This element has ruled affairs with a high hand, and other citizens are in terror of life and property. The hoodlum element has interfered with the distribution of relief supplies, and so serious has the situation become that the relief committee determined on calling on the governor for troops to do guard duty. The confusion is so great that there is no possibility that the disorganized local authorities can restore order or guarantee protection to the thousands who are homeless and unprotected.

Fatching Up the Moore Fluke.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The members of the pool behind the Moores in their Diamond Match speculations are willing to contribute $200,000 to a relief fund for brokers who executed orders for the Moores just previous to the closing of the local exchange. This will furnish sufficient cash to margin Diamond Match stock down to 200 and New York Biscuit down to 80. The money will go to brokers who bought stock at about the prices current on the last day of active trading.

Tillman Challenges Harrison.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The Democratic congressional committee has furnished the following telegram, addressed to ex-President Harrison: "Hon. Benjamin Harrison, New York city—I have just spent a week in Pennsylvania, speaking to many thousands. Your speech in New York attacks me specially and I would be pleased to meet you in joint debate before a northern audience, preferably at Indianapolis. Benjamin Tillman."

Yellow Metal For America.

London, Aug. 29.—The Times in its financial article this morning says: Nearly all the gold which was withdrawn from the Bank of England yesterday consisted of eagles, intended for export to America. The bank has raised the price of bar gold. We understand that Australia already has exported 200,000 gold sovereigns to San Francisco and that more is now going in the same direction.

The Zanzibar Bombardment.

London, Aug. 29.—A dispatch to The Times from Zanzibar says that it is estimated that 500 of the natives were killed during the bombardment of the palace. The new sultan, Hamoud Bin Said, has been well received by the Arabs of Zanzibar. Said Khalid, the suppressed usurper, is still at the German consulate, pending advices from Europe as to his ultimate disposition.

Dismal Forebodings.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 29.—Forest fires have broken out in this vicinity. Reports from various points around here indicated that the fires are growing more serious, and it is feared the havoc of two years ago will be repeated.

More Money to Fight Cubans

Madrid, Aug. 29.—The cabinet yesterday decided to apply 30,000,000 pesetas to next month's military operations in Cuba.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 30. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The happiness of heaven.—Rev. xxi, 1-7, 22-27.

Heaven is the abode of God and His angels, the invisible realm of holiness and happiness, where the children of God shall spend their eternity. It is always represented in the Scriptures as a glorious and a happy place. Jesus speaks of it as His Father's house, where there are many mansions prepared for those who are His. Paul refers to this inheritance of God as rich in glory, and placed before His mind but one goal, that of the eternal happiness of heaven. John's vision of heaven in Revelation represents it as a place of magnificence and of splendor as well as of peace and happiness. Taking all the Scripture says about heaven into consideration, we can say with Isaiah and with Paul, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." The description that John gives of heaven is necessarily figurative. Yet many of these figures speak of the happiness of heaven.

1. "There was no more sea." The sea speaks of separation, of restlessness, of mutation, things which characterize this life, and which cause much of the sorrow of life. With these removed, the cause of sorrow will be removed and happiness will prevail instead.

2. "He will dwell with them." God will dwell in the New Jerusalem with His people. What happiness that will bring! How we long to see God face to face, to know more of God. Christ will be there also—another source of the joy of heaven. He has gone to prepare a place for us; that where He is there we may be also. That place is heaven. Where Christ is that is heaven, and there can be no heaven without Him. In the sunshine of His presence there cannot but be everlasting joy, perpetual happiness.

3. "There shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." No death, no tears, no pain! How much of the sorrow of life is caused by these things which shall have passed away!

4. "There shall be no night there." Night speaks of death and darkness and gloom. It is characteristic of earth, but there shall be no night in heaven. No night of death, because there shall be no death; no night of fear, because there will be no one to molest or make afraid; no night of watching, for none shall be sick; no night of sin, because nothing that defileth shall enter therein.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xvi, 11; Dan. xii, 3; Isa. xlix, 10; lxiv, 4; Math. v, 1-12; Luke xii, 32, 33, 37; xv, 7; John xiv, 1-3; I Cor. ii, 9, 10; Eph. i, 15-18; Phil. iii, 13, 14; I Pet. i, 3-5; Rev. xxii, 4, 5.

Longitude and Latitude.

An old pastor, now dead, used to relate the following incident: "There came to me here one day a grand looking fellow. I had not asked whether he did business on the water, for the sea breeze had kissed his brow so often that it had left its mark there. I said, 'Where did you find the Lord?' In a moment he answered, 'Latitude 25, longitude 54.' I confess that rather puzzled me. I had heard of people finding Jesus Christ in these galleries and down these aisles, but here was something quite different. 'Latitude 25, longitude 54! What do you mean?' He said: 'I was sitting on deck, and out of a bundle of papers before me I pulled one of Spurgeon's sermons. I began to read it. As I read it I saw the truth, and I received Jesus in my heart. I jumped off the coils of ropes saved. I thought if I were on shore I would know where I was saved, and why should I not on the sea? And so I took my latitude and longitude.'"

Good For the Juniors.

A Junior society with a unique history has just been reported to us, says The Golden Rule. The church with which it was connected had a time of severe trial, and the church itself died. The Junior society, nevertheless, continued to live and prosper throughout, and from it a new organization has sprung up and is now thriving. The superintendent pertinently remarks that "it seems as if the juniors are really the parents of this church."

God's Plants.

We are as yet only the roots of a future beautiful plant. The best man or woman is only a shoot a little way out of the ground. We are God's plants, God's flowers. Be sure that He will help us to unfold into something serenely fair, nobly perfect, if not in this life, then in another. If He teaches us not to be satisfied till we have finished our work, He will not be satisfied until He has finished His.—James Freeman Clarke.

Closing the Books.

The recording angel is now making the final entries for this year of grace. The record is almost closed. Whatever changes, alterations and additions had best be made will have but small time for the completion of the eternal register. This annual account must stand for eternity and will be one of the witnesses in the day of judgment. Who is willing to let all the unfavorable past remain irrevocable?—Lutheran.

The Cheery Christian.

The cheery, helpful and responsive Christian is of great value. The pastor comes to rely upon him at all times. His example is contagious. Old and young are drawn to him. In the Sabbath school and prayer meeting he is an important factor. Everywhere his presence is welcomed and his influence felt.—Presbyterian.

One Who Loves Us.

First Direct News of the Peary Arctic Expedition Received at Gloucester.

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 29.—A letter was received here last evening by Mrs. Tarr, wife of Professor Ralph S. Tarr of the Cornell scientific party, who is with Lieutenant Peary on the steamer Hope, which sailed July 15 from Sidney, C. B. It furnishes the first direct news of the Peary Arctic expedition. While the letter was written on board the steamer at sea, July 17, 18 and 19, it bears the postmark of Northern Labrador, Aug. 15.

Professor Tarr says that on July 17 they were west of Boone bay, 200 miles on their way, with fine weather and smooth sea. On July 18 they were passing through Belle Isle in the midst of wonderful scenery. On July 19 they reached Turnavik island, lat. 55.30, was about half-way up the coast of Labrador, where the letter was given to a fisherman to put on board the mail steamer for Newfoundland. Up to that date, he says, the passage was the finest yet made by Lieutenant Peary.

On the morning of the 19th the ship was in the midst of an ice-covered sea, a most unusual thing so far south at the time of year. For hours the vessel went at reduced speed, with a man at the maintop, one on the bridge and two at the wheel to direct the ship's course. In the clearest water it was a most difficult task, as she was twisted and turned after crushing the smaller ice cakes to keep clear of the bergs. All hands, however, felt such confidence in their captain and ship that they had absolutely no fear.

When the letter was finished the vessel was so far north that there was twilight at 11 o'clock, and the sun did not set until 8:20, and then in the northwest. The course was into Hudson strait, thence across to Greenland, stopping first at Godhaven. The professor reported that all hands were well and much pleased with the ship and voyage, and that it was expected to accomplish satisfactorily all they had undertaken.

Cannot Be Explained.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 29.—T. A. Macintosh, general manager of the Boston and Maine, makes this comment upon Thursday's wreck: "Usually in an accident of this kind an investigation by railroad men bring out something for them to guard against in the future. There is usually some slight defect, or some little loophole that had never come out before, that is at the bottom. In this accident, serious as it was, there is no lesson for us to learn. We profit nothing in knowledge from my investigation."

STRAIGHT-OUT TICKET

Will Be Nominated by the Gold Democrats' Convention Next Week.

Many Names Mentioned For the Presidency.

Buckner of Kentucky the Only Man Talked of For Second Place.

Indianapolis, Aug. 29.—The uprising of the Democrats of the country who can't swallow the Chicago ticket nor the Chicago platform has assumed already far greater proportions than the leading men in it anticipated, and the convention, which meets here next Wednesday to nominate Democratic candidates for President and vice president of the United States, promises to be a notable gathering of old-fashioned Democrats. It will be composed of men who stood by their party in defeat and directed it in its triumphs, and in this campaign, when history is being so rapidly made, the Indianapolis convention will be a potent factor.

The preliminary details of the convention are all arranged. It will assemble in Tomlinson hall, which has a seating capacity of 4000, and can hold 1000 more with crowding.

Senator Palmer of Illinois, the chairman of the sound money Democratic committee, will call the convention to order, and ex-Governor Flower of New York is talked of for temporary chairman.

It seems certain now that there will be a full delegation from 41 states, and with each delegation will come men of distinction who are interested in the success of the movement.

The hotel keepers are beginning to feel puzzled, but they still maintain that everybody who comes will be taken care of. Immediately following the many state conventions of the last three days, have come many telegrams asking for quarters. Many of the states that had already asked for rooms have increased their orders.

The oft-repeated story that the convention here would endorse McKinley has at last been laid away, and probably will not emerge from its grave. The convention will nominate a straight-out ticket, but there is little to indicate who the men will be.

The talk here now is that neither President Cleveland nor any member of his cabinet will be nominated, but that some man not connected with the present administration will be chosen. Five names have been put forward from which a presidential candidate may be selected—Henry Watterson, William F. Vilas, General E. S. Bragg, Senator Palmer and Mr. Bynum.

If the friends of Senator Palmer should make an active canvass for him here he would probably be nominated for the good his name can do in Illinois, which is considered fighting ground. But when he was here Senator Palmer declared flatly that he could not accept the nomination, though he is understood to have since modified his views somewhat.

Several persons here believe that the president will be heard from before the convention completes its work. They think that some delegate will come here with a letter from the president, and that at an opportune time that letter will be read to the convention. No one expects him to express any preference as to men available for the first place on the ticket, but it is expected in some quarters that he will express his disapprobation of the Chicago platform.

Chairman Bynum of the executive committee and Secretary Wilson of the national committee, however, say that it is unreasonable to expect any communication from the president.

The boom for Senator Vilas for first place is said to have received life from the fact that they have an impression that he would perhaps be more satisfactory to the president than any other man who could be nominated. Complimentary votes are to be bestowed upon several men on the first ballot.

The Missouri convention instructed for James O. Broadhead, ex-United States minister to Switzerland.

No other man has been talked of for vice president than ex-Governor Buckner of Kentucky, and it has been the understanding that Kentucky would actively support him for this honor. Yet he will not stand in Watterson's way, and should the famous editor of The Courier-Journal be named, Buckner will cheerfully step aside and let the convention look elsewhere for a vice presidential nominee.

Bryan and Watson Notification.

Washington, Aug. 29.—As a result of the determination among Populist leaders to notify Bryan and Watson of their nomination by the Populists, the formal letter of notification is now being prepared. The notifications will probably occur at Lincoln, Neb., and at Atlanta, but the details are subject to the wishes of the members of the committee on notification, of which Senator Allen is chairman. The letter, now in course of preparation, will be submitted to the notification committee for their approval. If they desire to meet and proceed in a body to see Messrs. Bryan and Watson, then such a course will be adopted and a time set for the visits. It is felt, however, that it is unnecessary and may be inconvenient to the committeemen to make the trip across the country, in which case the notification will be made by sending a letter to Messrs. Bryan and Watson.

Specimen of Arkansas Politics.

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 29.—Congressman Hugh A. Dinsmore of the Fifth Arkansas district was mobbed at a political speaking at Englelin, and sustained injuries which will confine him to his bed for several days to come. Dinsmore was recently renominated for a third time in congress and has been stumping his district. He spoke at Englelin, and divided time with Jerry Scanlan, a local Populist candidate. During a heated discussion the speakers became involved in a personal altercation, and the crowd, which was in sympathy with Scanlan, mobbed the congressman. Scanlan, in the course of his speech, called Dinsmore a liar, whereupon the congressman struck Scanlan in the face. Dinsmore was powerless against the assault of the mob, and before his friends could get to him he was almost insensible.

Cupid's arrows fly straightest in the light of a clear complexion, bright eyes and rosy lips. The woman who is vigorously healthy is sure to be attractive. She will have beauty and magnetism of health. As she loses health, she will surely lose beauty. Hollows in the cheeks, dullness in the eyes, muddiness in the complexion—one or all—are sure to result from ill-health.

Nine times in ten ill-health in women means an unhealthy condition of the organs distinctly feminine. A slight disorder here will put the whole woman out of order. Ordinarily when a woman is sick, she will find that the trouble is here. Headaches, neuralgia, sleeplessness, nervousness generally come from the same cause. These things are serious, but they can be cured. Any disease or weakness of the female organism can be surely and completely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of grateful women have testified to its beneficial results. Among them Mrs. Roscoe Vanover, of Robinson Creek, Pike Co., Ky., who writes:

"I wish to express my thanks to you for the good I have received from your 'Favorite Prescription.' I have used it at different times for the last five years, and always with the most gratifying results. But the greatest good received by the 'Favorite Prescription' was about four months ago when my last baby was born. I was afflicted with 'child bed fever.' Instead of sending after the doctor, I used the 'Prescription' and was cured. A lady friend of mine was similarly afflicted and sent after the doctor and took his remedies and died. I am now 27 years old, weigh 147 pounds, the mother of five children, and am enjoying the best of health."

If you would like to see more of these testimonials, and to find out all about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, you should send for a copy of the "Common Sense Medical Adviser." This is Dr. Pierce's 1,008 page book, 680,000 of which have been sold at the regular price, of $1.50 per volume. The new edition, paper-bound, of half a million is being distributed absolutely free to those who will send 21 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of mailing only, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. If French cloth binding is desired, send 10 cents extra, 31 cents in all.

On a Vacation Trip.

[Editorial Correspondence.]

New England and New York are noted as the vacation states, and while a Bay State man yields the delights of Massachusetts to none other, he often finds much to admire and days of rest in New Hampshire and Vermont, which are easily reached by the Boston and Maine and Central Vermont railroads, which run through trains and comfortable cars.

Burlington, Vermont, is an easy day's journey from Boston, but not on such a day as August 10, when we made our pilgrimage. However it is delightfully situated on the shores of Lake Chaplain, a beautiful sheet of water. Burlington is a pretty city with attractive stores and grand residences. It has an electric street railway, parks, and other attractions, and by no means the least of these is the Van Ness house, whose cuisine is all an epicure demands. The managers, and all their assistants are attentive to the needs of the traveller.

One thing at Burlington impressed us, being an innovation worthy of immitation. It was at the funeral of a popular captain of a hose company. The company has a very pretty piece of apparatus and this was trimmed with evergreen and mourning emblems and used as a hearse. Upon the seat with the driver was a beautiful floral emblem. The fire companies were among the mourners.

St. Albans, Vt., Ogdensburg, N. Y., Prescott, Ont., Oswego, Rochester, Batavia and Buffalo, N. Y., were also visited. While each has its attractions our stays were brief. Oswego has a pretty resort on Lake Ontario called Burt's point, where the waves roll in as at the seaside and rocks and fish are washed up. The broad expanse of water with no islands or land in sight reminds one that the lakes are really great.

At Batavia is a very level country with scarcely any preceptible rise for miles. It is a very pretty town, and one of the largest monuments in its cemetery is of polished Quincy granite. There is also a monument to one Morgan here, who is said to have been abducted and murdered.

At Buffalo and Batavia we envied the people their good streets and their nice sidewalks. Buffalo is surpassed by few cities in this respect, having a great many miles of asphalt streets.

Niagara Falls was our grand objective point. We had read that "the thunderer of water" was slowly dying and feared that the fall of water might cease a few years sooner than predicted. A scientist estimates that in 37,000 years the falls will have worked back to Buffalo, and will then have ceased to exist. We watched the great sight with awe for hours and became convinced that it did not move back an inch although a small rock fell when we were at the "Cave of the Winds. We saw the grand falls from all points: Prospect park, Goat Island, the Three Sisters, the Steamer Maid of the Mist, the Observation Tower, the Suspension bridge, the Queen Victoria park and Canadian shore and down the gorge. It was sublime from all points and we could have viewed it for days.

It is said one can "do" the Falls in two days, but if he stops longer the Falls may do him, but all the nice public houses are not high priced, for clean, home-like rooms and good food can be secured at Temperance House for $1.50 to $2 per day.

The electric railway rides at Niagara Falls should not be missed. If you come from or go to Buffalo the new line between the points will be found a pleasant ride of over 20 miles. On the American side at the Falls is the new Gorge line, doubled tracked, which has recently been opened. Soon after leaving the city the road descends an incline to near the water level, and no better view of the Whirlpool rapids can be obtained than from the cars on this railway. On the Canadian side, high up on the banks of the river, is the Niagara Falls Park to River Railroad, which is 13 miles long. It is fantastically circuitous and every turn presents a vista of precipice, folliage and river. These latest achievements allow the modern visitor to see as was impossible a few years ago, the grand cataract, the glorious falls, the scenic gorge, the seething whirlpool and the serpentine valley to the Lake Ontario level. Timothy J. Carey of South street will enter the employ of the New York Life Insurance Company on Monday. The New York Life is an old establlshed company, and the many friends of Mr. Carey wish him success in his new work.

Elmer Hayden, for many years a resident of this town, who conducted dressmaking rooms, but who has been located in Brockton about two years past, was two weeks ago taken to the hospital in that city to be treated for the morphine habit. Monday evening the attendants left the room for a moment, and Hayden raised the window, and jumping to the ground, escaped.

Conductor Henry S. Burnham of South Braintree has been spending his vacation at the Josseyln cottage, Brant Rock, and had a "castaway" experience this week. He went out on Brant Rock and the rising tide cut him off from shore. When he found he was a Robinson Crusoe on the "desertest" kind of an island he wanted to get home the worst way. He tried to catch somebody's attention but after a long time gave that up as a bad job, and decided the only way out of the scrape was to wade. He got one shoe and stocking off and was struggling with the other, when his friends appeared with a boat and rescued him. He was carried home like "my son John," of the nursery rhyme—who had one stocking off and one stocking on.

—Over a hundred more failures last month than a year ago. Fifty more than in that "bad" year of 1894. Nearly $5,000,000 more of liabilities than in 1895, and nearly $3,000,000 more than in 1894. How can labor help being "more disturbed than usual," asks the American Economist, under such conditions?

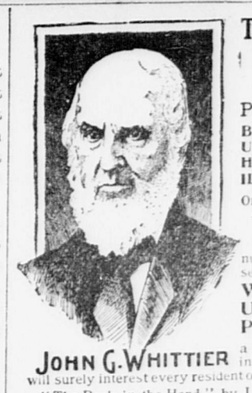

Cures Talk

"Cures talk" in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as for no other medicine. Its great cures recorded in truthful, convincing language of grateful men and women, constitute its most effective advertising. Many of these cures are marvelous. They have won the confidence of the people; have given Hood's Sarsaparilla the largest sales in the world, and have made necessary for its manufacture the greatest laboratory on earth. Hood's Sarsaparilla is known by the cures it has made—cures of scrofula, salt rheum and eczema, cures of rheumatism, neuralgia and weak nerves, cures of dyspepsia, liver troubles, catarrh—cures which prove

Q. Y. C. COMMODORES.

Progress of Club Under Each—the Feminine Element of Today.

A welcome addition to the attraction of the remodeled yacht club house, is the group of photographs of all the commodores, lately given by its present leading officer, Commodore Charles F. Pettengill.

These portraits arranged under one panel are framed and hung in the large upper hall. All but one of those who have held this office are living. If one wishes to see a more satisfactory likeness of the late Hon. John Quincy Adams, it can be seen in our Mt. Wollaston Bank among some portraits of the presidents there. He is the first commodore to be missed from the ranks.

In 1874 the first Commodore, James H. Slade, entered the service as representative. His clear cut features are at the top of the picture. His ready wit and interest launched the club into safe waters and sent it with full sail and fair wind towards the beacon where it safely anchored.

In 1878 Harrison A Keith, the present city clerk, succeeded to the office, proving a thorough yachtsman and popular commander.

The next was Hon. John Quincy Adams in 1880. His first official act was the paying of a debt hanging over the club.

natural love for the sport was an impetus in this activity, which helped it gain its present good condition. George W. Morton was at that time secretary and treasurer, and their joint energy gave the club much headway.

Next in order in 1882 was the graceful officer Sigourney Butler.

In 1883 George W. Morton was at the helm as commodore, his practical mind always steering true to the point.

In 1885 Hon. Charles Francis Adams 2d took the stick; his seamanship which now pilots the city through dangerous shoals, showing itself in action in the waters then.

Henry M. Sheen brought youth, good sense and judgment to the work in 1888.

1889 saw the zealous commander John Shaw, commodore. Under Mr. Shaw's administration, the club attained a very great degree of prosperity and reached the largest membership it had known.

In 1893 Henry M. Faxon was on deck; amphibious from early childhood, tenacious and wiry, his untiring energy as secretary had for seven years already animated the club.

The position of commodore is now graced by Charles F. Pettengill, who was elected in 1894 and whose dignity in office, has with his personal presence, united in awarding him the palm as the Apollo of the club.

Altogether these are a sturdy, manly set of fellows, and the good place the club has gained in public estimation is due much to their influence and to the practical example many of them have set by the work done in the ranks.

The feminine element is present in our club, and there are good sailors among some of them. The coming woman has gained a foot hold in yachting. She has planted one foot on the gang plank. She even sails, and sometimes in races. Water will not drown her, for she "floats," and she can discriminate between a bob stay, a throat halyard and a main sheet. She knows the cut of a jib from afar, and it is hoped she may tone down a too full expression of feeling in her brothers at the termination of races when the question of "time allowance and measurements" come in.

Fierce competition robs the noble pastime of sailing of its finest charm. It is a fault that is cured by time, but still a blemish on the fair fame of some of our boys. Yachting does not develope wholly, the moral or the esthetic, but it touches the spring of strong activities. It brings the ruddy blood to the surface, trains eye and hand, teaches obedience, enforces concentrated energy, develops social life, and it is putting the finishing touch to itself in introducing into the walls of its home, upon its decks, and making a part of its life the comradeship of its girls, sisters, sweet-hearts and mothers.

Keith's New Theatre.

There has seldom been an occasion on which the press of New England has been so unanimous in its praise of public entertainment, as has been the case since the living pictures and the cinematographe motion pictures have been put on at Keith's. Both are truly wonderful and deserving of all the good words that have been said about them. New subjects are added every week, which keeps each feature practically fresh and bright, but one might witness the same subjects in either half a dozen times without feeling wearied. Master Witter Peabody is to sing operatic selections next week, and those famous Great Dane dogs of Col. Schultz's will go on exhibition.

NATIONAL SAUCE.

SOMETHING ABOUT TOMATO CATCHUP, SO POPULAR IN THIS COUNTRY.

How It Is Made In One of New Jersey's Big Factories—Deep Secrets of the Business—A Bit of History About a Famous English Sauce.

New Jersey is the home of the tomato, and especially of the national sauce of America—tomato catchup. Here the tomato plant attains its highest state of perfection and produces a fruit so luscious, red and round as to justify the old English name of "love apple," to which the French still cling, calling it pomme d'amour. The tomato plant being a native of America, and the name coming from the Indian word "tumal," it is fitting that tomato catchup should be on every table in the land.

Widespreading acres are devoted in Jersey exclusively to the culture of tomatoes, the choicest of which are reserved for tomato catchup. There are large factories in which catchup making is the chief industry. A random visit to one of these factories is enough to convince the owner of the most jaded palate that there are flavors yet worth tasting. Tomatoes are put up in nearly half a hundred inconceivable ways, but chiefly in catchup. The cooking is done on scientific principles. The original recipe for the catchup produced, unlike that of a certain famous English sauce, probably came "from an old woman in the country," but the product has been so changed and improved by experiment that the old woman herself would be forced to admit that she had not attained the highest rank in her art.

The best efforts of at least two skilled men in one of the factories have been devoted to improving the flavor of the catchup, but the result of their labors can be obtained by the general public only in the finished product. Their processes are carefully guarded secrets, kept most carefully locked up in their breasts. If both of them should die suddenly, the world would miss a distinctive product of the culinary art. The superintendent of the factory is one of these men. He probably knows as much about preserving fruits and making sauces as any man in the United States—and maybe more than any other man. He tells an interesting story about the famous English sauce before mentioned.

The makers of the sauce did an enormous business and kept their recipe a secret. Thieves tried to steal it, and other manufacturers imitated the flavor, the bottles, the labels and so forth, but nobody succeeded in making sauce that was just like it. The rival manufacturers succeeded in getting decisions in their favor allowing them to use the same name and even to have similar coats-of-arms and labels, but the name of the original makers was a guarantee of the peculiar quality of their sauce.

One day the foreman of the big works had a quarrel with the proprietors and withdrew. He began making and placing on the market a sauce so nearly like the original that connoisseurs could not tell them apart. The foreman kept this up awhile and then he suddenly retired from the business, closed his works, stopped making sauce and lived in luxury thereafter. Nobody has any positive evidence as to the manner in which he acquired his wealth so suddenly, but some people can guess.

"The secret of the tomato catchup made here is just as carefully guarded as that," said the superintendent. "We say we make catchup without the use of chemicals or coloring matter, and we do it. Salicylic acid is the standard chemical to prevent fermentation. If you can get just the right amount of that, perhaps it is not harmful, but the trouble is you have to use just a little too much to make sure that fermentation will not set in, and that surplus amount of salicylic acid hinders the natural fermentation of food in the stomach. It is as plain as that two and two make four.

"Then there is another thing—the coloring matter. These highly colored catchups that look so bright are really not as pleasing to the eye as catchup that retains the natural color of the tomato, and they certainly are not so healthful, for they contain carmine. Any one who knows what carmine is made of doesn't care to eat it."

So much for the maker's estimate of his own product. The factory is certainly neat and aromatic. A whiff of the air there after dinner is almost as good as a dash of tomato catchup. It requires 2,000 tons of tomatoes daily to supply the demand for the various preserves that are put up here. These are furnished largely by the farm in connection with the factory and partly by surrounding gardeners. The finest, reddest fruit is reserved for the catchup making. It must be unbruised. This is placed in a scalding machine, where, with two separate cold washings and a hot plunge bath, the skin is loosened. It then goes into a peculiar machine called the "cyclone," which separates the skins and seeds from the pulp. Big porcelain lined pumps take the pulp to a "sifter," where the coarser fibers are taken out, and nothing but the blood red fluid percolates through to be made into catchup. Even this refining process is not enough, for the water is separated from it, and the clear pulp is then placed in large, hermetically sealed cans, where it is cooked without foreign substances of any kind.

These cans are taken down throughout the year, as occasion demands, and the real process of making catchup from the essence of the tomato begins. The pulp goes through more sifting machines, that make it smooth, like cream, and it is placed in large, tin lined kettles, where it is boiled and seasoned. Country girls with fresh Jersey complexions stir it up meanwhile, and the spices—what they are only two men know—are added. It is then tomato catchup, ready for the bottles, buckets and barrels that await it, for catchup is made by the barrel and shipped by the ton.—New York Tribune.

IN HOT WEATHER.

Sudden Ills Require Prompt Treatment.

Deaths from sunstroke are duly reported from all the great cities of the country, but deaths from the various summer complaints are so common, they receive little publicity.

Every sort of a test has been given Arnold's Balsam, which has been proved absolutely reliable, as many well people can testify. Here are two of the numerous letters that have been written concerning it:

"Bryant, Neb.

Messrs. Gilman Bros.:

I bought a bottle of Dr. Seth Arnold's Balsam about a year ago from a friend, and thought no more about it until last week, when a member of my family was taken with dysentery. I gave the patient five doses, and it made a final cure. I believe if I had had more of the Balsam I could have saved the lives of three children that died in this neighborhood. Now I want you to send me a dozen bottles of the Balsam by return mail, if you can. Yours respectfully,

C. H. Culver."

From the Welcome lodging house in New York, the secretary, M. M. McBride, writes as follows:

"Our matron, Mrs. Cropsey, requests me to inform you that Arnold's Balsam has been of incalculable benefit during the whole summer to the women and children that fill our house, and that many strangers coming to us sick have been cured by it. We most cordially recommend the Balsam, especially for children."

SOUND MONEY DEMOCRACY OF MASSACHUSETTS.

A LIST OF PROMINENT ADHERENTS.

At the convention of the Sound Money Democracy of Massachusetts held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 25, a platform was adopted as follows:

The Democratic party during its whole history has been pledged to promote the security of personal liberty and private contract, the rights of the individual against favored classes, the supremacy of the law, and economy of administration of government in the people's interests.

The Democratic party has always stood for a sound and stable currency for the use and benefit of the people, and not of a section or a class.

It has ever insisted that the financial honor of the nation, as well as the integrity of the institutions established by the constitution, should be preserved inviolate.

The delegates to the convention at Chicago were elected to proclaim a platform and to nominate candidates representing the cardinal principles of the Democratic party. In violation of the trust committed to them a majority of the delegates there assembled, against the protest of one-third of the convention, repudiated the Democratic administration of our Democratic president, Grover Cleveland, abandoned the long tried and essential principles of our old Democracy, and formulated a platform embodying views new and strange to the Democratic party, destructive to the welfare of our citizens, imperilling the life of our constitutional government, and impeaching the honesty of the United States among the nations of the world.

The Chicago convention, having failed in its duty, and having adopted a platform absolutely at variance with the past platforms of the Democratic party in Massachusetts and in the nation, it becomes the necessary duty of the Democrats of the commonwealth of Massachusetts to assemble again in convention to reaffirm the ancient principles of the Democratic party, and to choose delegates to a new convention of the Democrats of the United States, and

Therefore, we Democrats of Massachusetts, who are loyal to the old Democracy, in convention assembled, hereby reaffirm and redeclare our belief in each and every principle laid down in the platform of the Democratic party of this state, adopted by its delegates in convention assembled, on April 21, 1896.

And further, we oppose the free, unlimited and independent coinage of silver, at the ratio of 16 to 1, as a principle dishonest and unjust to the creditor, defrauding the savings bank depositor of a large part of his savings, reducing the wages of the workingman, while increasing the cost of all he consumes, robbing the veteran of a part of his pension, lowering the value of his policy to each policy holder in a life insurance company, fraternal or benefit order, and debasing our standard of value to that of the poorer and less civilized nations of the world.

We oppose the assault upon the integrity of one of the great branches of our government implied in the doctrine that the supreme court of the United States shall be reorganized whenever its decision shall have contravened the decrees of a party convention.

We oppose the attack upon the principle of civil service reform as an attempt to degrade the efficiency, honesty and economy of every department of the public service.

We oppose the attack upon the action of the national administration at the time of the Chicago riots.

We oppose the attempt to restrict the rights of individual contract.

We reaffirm our confidence and pride in the firmness, courage and patriotism of the administration of Grover Cleveland, who, under exceptional difficulties, brought about by past errors of Republican legislation, has heroically maintained the honor and integrity of the nation.

We repudiate the actions of the Chicago convention as revolutionary.

We repudiate the Chicago platform as undemocratic.

We deny the right of the Populist nominated by that convention for the presidency to represent the real Democracy of the United States, and we call on all Democrats who still believe in the principles laid down in the present and all past platforms of the Democratic party of Massachusetts to support the action of the approaching national Democratic convention at Indianapolis.

Thirty delegates at large, with thirty alternates, were elected to attend the convention of the National Democratic party at Indianapolis on Tuesday, Sept. 2. The following is a partial list of the thousands of distinguished persons from all parts of the state who have given their adherence to the cause of Honest Money.

ERYSIPELAS

Two Diseases That Cause Their Victims to Be Shunned by Their Fellow-Man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: I commenced taking P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, last Fall, for Erysipelas. My face was completely covered with the disease; I took a short course of P. P. P., and it soon disappeared. This Spring I became much debilitated and again took another course, and I am now in good condition. I consider P. P. P. one of the best blood preparations on the market, and for those who need a general tonic to build up the system and improve the appetite I consider that it has no equal. Will say, anyone who cares to try P. P. P. will not be disappointed in its results, and I, therefore, cheerfully recommend it.

ARTHUR WOOD,
Springfield, Mo.

Erysipelas and Scrofula cured by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, surely and without fail.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.

GENTLEMEN: Last June I had a scrofulous sore which broke out on my ankle. It grew rapidly, and soon extended from my ankle to my knee. I got one bottle of your P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and was agreeably surprised at the result. The entire sore healed at once. I think I have taken almost every medicine recommended for scrofula and catarrh, and your P. P. P. is the best I have ever tried. It cannot be recommended too highly for blood poison, etc.

Yours very truly,
W. P. HUNTER.

P. P. P. cures all blood and skin disease, both in men and women.

Rheumatism, which makes man's life a hell upon earth, can be relieved at once by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy. It makes a PERMANENT cure.

A SPOT RICH IN HISTORY—THE PARISH TOMB—ANCESTORS OF GOVERNORS.

Territorially, the old "Braintry" burying ground in Quincy is small, but in it are names which shall stand as long as the republic—perhaps longer. There the names of Adams, which has spread out fan-like through out politics, history and literature, through our entire nation building, in fact converges to a single point at the grave of Henry Adams, the sturdy old Puritan, who fleeing from the Dragon persecution, came from Devonshire, England, over here, in 1636, with his eight sons, and became one of the original proprietors of the town.

One of the sons went back to England, one only, Joseph, stayed in Braintree, and the rest scattered. Of the four who went to Medfield, one was the direct ancestor of William Taylor Adams (Oliver Optic,) who needs no introduction to any boy or man in the land, and who, fresh from another trip around the world, and with the weight of his 72 or 73 years, is still diligently at work for his beloved boys.

One of the sons, John, became a sea captain, and sailed from Boston. Captain John Adams' son Samuel became very wealthly, and had a noble estate on Purcase street, fronting the water, and there was born his son, Samuel Adams, the Revolutionary hero, whose statue in bronze adorns the square named in his honor.

"Sammy, the Malster," and "Sammy, the Publican," as his townsmen called him, became one of the most noted orators, statesmen and patriots of the Revolutionary period, and was the third governor under the constitution, succeeding John. His estate and home was on Winter street, and the entire town of Boston went into the most profound mourning at his death.

Through Joseph Adams, who remained in Braintree—where he died in 1694—is descended the most famous family in our national history, a family more prominent, if no brainier, than the Quincys. And there was no less sturdiness, aggressiveness, ability and eloquence when branches of the two streams mingled, and formed one, as they did, in John Quincy Adams, a rigid old Puritan to the day of his death.

Joseph Adams, begat John, who married the daughter of Peter Boylston of Brookline, and one of the fruits of that union was John Adams, the second president of the United States.

He lived to the ripe old age of 91 years, dying on July 4, 1826, but a few hours later than Thomas Jefferson, his successor in office. Both died on the 50th anniversary of the day whereon the United States declared themsleves an independent nation.

John Adams lived in a beautiful, dignified and happy retirement for the last 25 years of his life, busy with his books and letters, and his house a mecca for statesmen and scholars.

But a few years since we had a chance to see him as he was in his "lusty winter." Turn back to the files of the Century magazine of six or eight years ago, and an article of great interest will be found, wherein Bancroft, the historian, then an old man, and since dead, tells of a visit he himself, then a young man, made to John Adams.

Neither the dust of John Adams, nor of his son, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, lies in the old burying ground, but directly across the street, under the porch of the fine old Unitarian church, the stone for which was given by Adams from his quarries. And, by the way, the birthplace of both presidents, facing each other on a narrow street, are still standing.

John Quincy Adams, "The Old Man Eloquent," was, as we have said, a Puritan. He was a mature man when he was a boy. Of the broadest possible education; a fighter to the backbone; morally and physically afraid of nothing; delighting in disagreeable duties because they were such; standing in congress sometimes almost alone, taunted, insulted and threatened with assassination, partly on his father's and partly on his own account; introducing anti-slavery bills, when it was inviting assault and murder so to do; his election to the presidency a treble victory, because it was done as a sheer tribute to his ability and integrity, in spite of his unpopularity and in the face of his refusal to lift his hand toward the result; eloquent, blunt, outspoken, disdaining "tact," but always master of himself and dying "in harness," an old man of more than four score years, stricken with paralysis while in active duty on the floor of the house, our history has scarce a grander, and no more picturesque figure.

It may not be generally known that he was sent to congress in 1831, after he had been president, on an anti-Masonic platform.

It was just after the disappearance of William Morgan, who was said to have exposed the secrets of Masonry, and who had disappeared.

As it was practically know at the time, Morgan, after being confined in an old fort, was drowned in the Niagara, river, men drawing lots to decide who should murder him. After the death, but a few years ago, of Thurlow Weed, then upwards of 90 years old, a full description of the murder was found in his papers. He had been party to it, but had not approved of it.

No one at this day can realize how the country was convulsed. The Morgan affair dealt Masonry what was almost a fatal blow, and was for years a political issue.

During his congressional term John Quincy Adams was nominated for governor, but the people making no choice the matter went to the legislature, which did not give him the seat. Both he and his fathers were masters of English, and their letters and papers are among the choicest specimens of our literature.

The traits in John Quincy Adams reappeared in a scarcely less degree in his famous son Charles Francis Adams, whose services in England, during our Civil war, will never be forgotten. Charles Francis Adams was born in Boston, in the house still remembered, which stood on the corner of Boylston and Tremonts streets, opposite the common, and where the great new hotel will shortly stand.

There was of course no Shawmut avenue at that time, and Tremont street was but a narrow lane, ending abruptly at about where Hollis street is now. Beyond this was an estate sloping southward and with a beautiful old-fashioned garden, with trim walks bordered with box and rich with hollyhocks, roses and flowers of a bygone generation. All this within the memory of those living. And the same people who remember the Adams place remember when Head place, opposite, was owned and governed by an irascible old gentleman of that name, who pastured his cows on the Common. Some of the boys, one day when the old man was away, drove one of his cows into the narrow entry of his house. The animal, frantic with fright, could not be backed out, and was finally taken by the old man, who came on the scene, through the kitchen, dining-room and parlor out on to the street, with such damage to furniture and carpets as may be imagined, but not described.

The graves of Henry Adams, ancestor of all its branches and of Joseph Adams, the ancestor of this particular branch of the family, are marked with marble slabs, laid on a granite base, and the language is nearly bankrupt of adjectives to express their virtues. These slabs were placed in position in 1817 by a descendant, presumably one of the presidents.

The old ground in Quincy is a pleasant place to linger, and one from which themes for volumes present themselves at every step. Richard Brackett lies buried there. He died in 1690, aged 80 years, and beside him lies Alice, his wife, who died the year before, aged 76 years. They came to America in 1630, and the tombstone makes the exhaustive statement that all the Brackett's in the country are their descendants. Among the most distinguished of them are Hon. J. Q. A. Brackett, member of the Boston common council four years, and its president one year; member of the Massachusetts legislature eight, and speaker of the house two years; lieutenant governor three, and governor one year.

Governor Brackett's father was a native of Quincy, although the governor himself was born in New Hampshire. The senior Brackett was a devoted admirer of the sixth president, as the son's initials would imply.

Another distinguished descendant is Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed, speaker of the national house of Representatives, and a possible future president.

Side by side, and with stones at each grave lie Rev. William Thompson, the first pastor of the first church in Braintree, and his wife, Ann. He died in 1666, and she in 1675, and a supplementary stone of more modern date tells us, apparently somewhat needlessly, that "she was formerly the wife of Simon Crosby of Cambridge, and came from England with her first husband in 1635." This information is certainly useful to historians, but it would also be of interest to know if Mr. Crosby was ever held up by his "relict" to Mr. Thompson to the latter's disparagement.

With the parish tomb, containing among other bodies, that of Rev. John Hancock the fifth minister of the church (father of John Hancock of revolutionary fame, the first governor under the constitution,) and with two small, rough, shapeless stones we must leave this spot, so rich in history. The two stones say, simply and respectively, Samuel Bass, 1694-94, and Ann Bass, 1692-92, leaving one to conjecture whether they were twin brother and sister or husband and wife, but sure at least that there was a long, loving road of companionship and comradeship over which, born with the century, they had traveled.

Many Brutal and Revolting Murders Reported In Constantinople.

Lower Class of Turks Armed With Clubs.

Raid on Ottoman Bank Furnishes an Excuse For Slaughtering Armenians.

London, Aug. 29.—A dispatch to The Times from Athens says that passengers just arrived on the steamships from Constantinople describe, in a vivid and graphic fashion, the scenes in the harbor at the time of their departure. Several Armenians, seeking refuge on board the steamer, were pursued by Moslem fanatics and students from the Mohammedan schools in boats. In every instance the Armenians were killed outright by the zealots. One Armenian almost reached the Italian steamship, when he was struck on the head by an anchor. He sank into the waters of the Golden Horn and was never seen again.

A dispatch to The Times from Constantinople says that the Armenians who invaded the Ottoman bank, during the recent riots in that city, includes among their number the leader and two lieutenants of the revolutionary society. All three were well educated men. They were accompanied by porters, who carried sacks of what was supposed at the time to be coin, but what was in reality dynamite in the form of bombs. At a given signal revolvers were drawn and fired and the bombs were exploded in different parts of the building. Officials and clerks became panic stricken and fled for their lives, leaving £10,000 in plain sight and at the mercy of the Armenians. To their credit be it said, however, they did not touch a single farthing, and later they helped the cashier to gather up the money and lock it up in the safe before the negotiations were opened between the government and bank officials on the one side and the leaders of the Armenians on the other.

The Armenian revolutionists had 20 pounds of dynamite lodged in the cellar of the bank. A fuse was attached to this mass of dynamite, and a man stood ready to fire the explosive at a given signal. The negotiations ultimately resulted in the leaders of the party that attacked the bank being allowed to leave the city unharmed, but it is estimated that over 1000 Armenians were killed as a result of the raid on the Armenian quarter.

A dispatch to The News from Constantinople says that on Thursday it was estimated that from 3000 to 4000 persons had been killed in the riots in the different portions of the city. All Europeans en route for this city have been turned back by the cordons of troops occupying the public places, the wharves and bridges. The whole thing could be stopped in an hour if the government desired, but the members of the mob pretend to have received permission to loot, burn and destroy the Armenian quarter for a certain period of time. It is feared that there will be serious trouble in the provinces.

A dispatch to The Chronicle from Rome says that private letters just received from Constantinople state that the Turkish government is on the eve of being overturned, and that a provisional government will be appointed.

The Daily News this morning publishes a dispatch from Athens to the effect that severe fighting has been going on again at Selonos and near Heraklion. The results of these conflicts between the Cretans and the Turks are unknow, but it is known that many wounded Turkish soldiers have been brought back to Heraklion.

A dispatch from Berlin states that The Tageblatts' Constantinople correspondent, in a dispatch published this morning, said that he saw bands of Turks, 30 or 40 in number, armed with clubs and cudgels, crouching in the various street corners, planning to kill any single Armenian on sight. He adds that their methods were full of cruelty, such as one would scarcely apply to the killing of a mad dog. The correspondent says that he saw an Armenian priest hacked into a shapeless mass with cudgels, in the hands of those Turks whom he denominates "savages." During this atrocity, which the correspondent personally witnessed, the police stood idly by, smiling, while the cavalry patrolled the streets and kept a careful watch for the purpose of preventing any assistance from reaching the unfortunate priest. He claims to have witnessed 20 instances of a similar character, and never in a single case did the troops or the police disturb the assassin. Late in the afternoon he met six manure wagons which were being driven from the city completely filled with bodies of the dead Armenians.

Continuing, the correspondent of The Tageblatt says that the arming of the lower classes with clubs, in which the police assisted, has wrought widespread evil throughout the city. Had the arming of the baser elements of the Turks been stopped at an ealy stage the shedding of blood would relatively have been very limited. General indignation is felt at the apathy of the ambassadors of the foreign powers. There is no doubt, in the mind of this correspondent, but what most of the victims of Turkish revenge in this instance were perfectly innocent of any guilty knowledge of the plot to raid the Ottoman bank. The Europeans barricaded their houses and lived upon provisions stored in their cellars. Thursday morning 46 Armenians were killed and thrown into a single heap, just inside the coal depot on the quay. At Galata 14 other Armenians were dragged off to a terrible death, while an innocent English merchant, who ventured to protest, was thrown into the water. Numerous other brutal and revolting murders are reported to have occurred in all sections of the city.

In conclusion, the correspondent of The Tageblatt says that, although it was rumored days before that the uprising would take place, and that although secret warnings were addressed to the embassies, it was noticed that all of the guardships were absent from the harbor at the decisive moment. On this account European residents of Constantinople were very indignant, the more so when it became known that several Europeans had been killed right in Constantinople.

The Armenians are greatly alarmed, and the outbreak of the revolutionists is generally condemned as criminal madness.

Another Victory.

The Pirates of South Quincy played their usual snappy game, Thursday, at West Quincy and defeated the home team for the second consecutive time by a score of 9 to 8. The game was close and exciting at the finish. At one time it looked as though the Pirates would have a walk-over with the Rovers as Patterson put them out in one-two-three order for two innings, but in the fifth, they found him for two singles, a double base on balls and a sacrifice. After this Patterson settled down and allowed only three hits to be made off him during the rest of the game. S. Patterson, the Pirates' clever short stop, was unable to play on account of injuries received Wednesday. The features of the game were the batting of Patterson, and a phenomenal one-hand running catch by Smith. The score:

September Magazines.

The mere mention of New Bedford calls up thoughts of the romantic old whaling days in which so many of her enterprising people led half their lives on the distant seas. The whaling days have been succeeded by an era of cotton manufacturing, in which New Bedford fairly vies with Lowell, Lawrence and Fall River. The whole interesting story is delightfully told by George F. Tucker in the September number of the New England Magazine, in an article which will be warmly welcomed by every son and daughter of the old city. The picturesque features of the town furnish rare opportunities to the illustrator, and these have been taken full advantage of, the pages of the article being crowded by pictures which it is a pleasure to look at. New Bedford has never had such full justice done it in a magazine article. Warren F. Kellogg, 5 Park Square, Boston, Mass.

Outing for September is up to the usual high standard of this popular magazine. Two excellent complete stories and many delightful sketches of out-door life furnish a most acceptable variety. The illustrations are numerous and good. The frontispiece, stalking antelope, is full of character, and the full-page drawings of moose calling, fishing, shooting rail, etc., are gems in their way. The number opens with "The Secret of the Pines," by H. M. Hoke, in which the author weaves a pleasant romance, about the haunts of suspected moonshiners. The second complete story, "The Courtship of Jack Curtis," by Geo. Gladden, is an Adirondack romance, with a thrilling climax, such as deerhunters seldom experience.

A well illustrated article on Granada and the Alhambra by Mr. Chatfield-Taylor is the leader of the Cosmopolitan for September. Francis Courtenay Boylen has a rather amusing story of the supposedly typical American flirt. Maurice Thompson has a "rooster" sketch, and J. J. A'Becket a short story.

PERSONAL. Our noted townsman, Mr. John Rose, will commence his eighth season on the stage, under the management of W. A. Brady, in the "Cotton King," playing the part of the Rev. Mr. Ponder. He will appear at the Columbia theatre, Boston, on Labor day, Sept. 7, and continue for the week. Mr. Rose is a great favorite with theatre goers, and he is received with much enthusiasm.

IN POSSESSION.

"What outrageous conduct!" exclaimed Mrs. Fielding, gazing at her daughter with wide open eyes.

"Very extraordinary!" agreed Ethel. "I never heard of such a thing in my life!"

"I should hope not!" returned Mrs. Fielding. "What would your poor, dear father have said if, during his lifetime, a young man had come to propose for your hand, and, on being refused by you, had expressed his intention of staying in the house until you accepted him? I've not even read in novels" (with a fine touch of scorn) "of such a preposterous notion. Did he—did—did he seem firm about it, my dear?"

"Frightfully," Ethel assured her—"frightfully firm, and you should just see what a chin he has. It would make three of mine."

"What did you say?" asked Mrs. Fielding.

"What could I say? I've already told you everything. I met him, as you know, at the Marchant-Mainwarings, and after our first introduction saw him almost every day during the following month. The night before I came home he proposed to me, and I—well, you know what I said. He then declared his intention of asking me again every six months and didn't seem to care in the least when I assured him that my answer would be just the same, however many times he asked me. Well, it is exactly six months today since the—the first time I told him that I couldn't think of marrying him."

"And he expressed his intention of staying here—in this house—till you said, 'Yes?'" put in Mrs. Fielding.

Ethel nodded.

"Then," was Mrs. Fielding's decision, "we must send for the police."

"Oh, no—no—no—no!" ejaculated Ethel springing up. "Please don't do that. He's sure to go. He—he's very gentlemanly, mother, and I'm sure he'll behave himself if he does stop. Besides if he fought the policemen—and I'm sure he would fight—there'd be such a scandal!"

Yes, Mrs. Fielding agreed that the affair would give Market Norbury a month's food for tittle tattle if the strong arm of the law were to intervene.

"I will see the young person myself!" exclaimed the elder lady majestically.

"Don't be harsh, mother," said Ethel blushing a little, "because, after all, you know he's"—

"Head over heels in love with you? Of course," rejoined Mrs. Fielding. "Of course he is. If he weren't, I should suspect him of having evil designs on the plate. Leave him to me, Ethel!"

So saying, Mrs. Fielding swept magnificently into the drawing room.

But severe as was her tone and stern her mien Dick Waterbury declined to budge. He apologized for the gross rudeness of his decision, but nevertheless refused to spike his guns and retire. During the altercation Mrs. Fielding discovered that he was a young gentleman of 25, with an ample income, and a small country seat that stood sadly in need of some one to look after it.

Twenty minutes later Mrs. Fielding returned to her daughter.

"My reasoning had no effect on him whatever," she informed Ethel; "none whatever. I suppose he must remain. He may be in a more sensible frame of mind in the morning. Don't let the servants know anything about the real state of things, but pretend that we have invited him to stay here and say his luggage will arrive in due course."

The result was: (1) That Mr. Richard Waterbury gained his point and staid at Pleasant View. (2) That only his fixed determination to win Ethel Fielding would have led him to take such a desperate step. (3) That Ethel by no means deceived the maternal judgment when she expressed herself indignantly about Dick and his resolution. (She let slip his name—Dick—several times unthinkingly.) (4) That it was the general opinion in the kitchen that the gentleman who had come so suddenly—without any luggage—was a "man in possession." (5) That he seemed to the kitchen a very well dressed man in possession. (6) That the gentleman immediately sat down and wrote a long letter, which was given to the housemaid to post. (7) That he wired to another address for some clothes. (8) That the letter was addressed to Mr. John Blunt, Friar's Court, Temple, London. (9) That, in the opinion of the kitchen, "Friar's Court" sounded like a low place for any gentleman's friends to live in.

* * * * * *

Dick Waterbury had been with the Fieldings a week and still showed no signs of departing from his resolution. He had soon made himself at home; he had broken the ice over the dinner table during the first night of his stay. Mrs. Fielding and her daughter had opened the ball by treating him with frigid politeness; but Dick had pretended not to notice their manner, and rattled on so gayly that he effectually dispersed the cold barrier which the ladies had attempted to place between themselves and their self invited guest.

After dinner he regaled them with comic songs, anecdotes and news of the day which had failed to penetrate to the fastnesses of Market Norbury. So very agreeable did he make himself, indeed, that by bedtime he had quite won Mrs. Fielding over to his side. Ethel kept very close to her mother all the evening, he noticed, and would neither play nor sing, although she could do both very nicely. On the following day his clothes arrived, and on the third day a letter, addressed to him in a bold, masculine hand. He appeared to peruse this letter with much interest, and the one he wrote in reply he delivered to the housemaid with special instructions that it was to be posted before 6 p. m., at which hour the Market Norbury mail cart was dispatched. The housemaid told the cook that for a man in possession the newcomer wrote a very elegant hand. This letter, too, was addressed to that low place, Friar's Court, Temple.

So, by the time Dick had been located at Pleasant View seven days he was quite on friendly—nay, intimate—terms with his hostess and her daughter. Every morning when he met the latter at the breakfast table, seizing an opportunity of course when Mrs. Fielding was not present, he had asked, "Well?" and Ethel had shaken her head very determinedly and made the most of the exceedingly dimpled chin, which only represented one-third of Mr. Waterbury's. During the whole of that week Dick had never once been out. The kitchen commented severely on this point. It savored more of the "man in possession" than anything else he had done.

"He's been sent, and he's got to stop," was cook's verdict. "And mistress is making the best of a bad job by treating him as a gentleman guest. I've always understood that the poor master left her comf'able off, and I can't understand how she's lost her money. I suppose it's a mine or something. Thank goodness! I've got all my little savings wrapped up in a stocking and locked in my box!"

Seven days had gone—the seventh night had come, and still Ethel remained obdurate. But she paid, her mother noticed, considerable attention to her toilet and wore her prettiest dresses.

* * * * * *

What was that?

Mrs. Fielding sat up, bathed in cold perspiration.

What was—there it was again—scratching on the window? She listened—her heart beating a wild tattoo against her ribs. Yes—there again—somebody was trying to break in!

Only a sliding door separated Mrs. Fielding's room from her daughter's. Her teeth chattering in time with the wild throbbing of her pulses, Mrs. Fielding crept out of bed and, the sliding door being partly open, into her daughter's room. Ethel was slumbering peacefully, but a touch awoke her. There was a hurried explanation in whispers from Mrs. Fielding, and then the two women, clutching each other for comfort, stole into the outer bedroom and once more listened. The scratching had ceased, and only a shuffling sound could be heard. Then there were footsteps on the gravel walk, and then the scullery window (which was immediately beneath) was shot up with a force that denoted a careless haste on the part of the midnight intruder.

"A burglar!" exclaimed Ethel, pale to the lips, for she was only 19 and an ordinary girl with ordinary nerves.

Unconsciously her lips formed the word "Dick!"

"I'll wake Mr. Waterbury," said Mrs. Fielding. She tripped swiftly out of the room, down the passage, and rapped at her guest's door.

In almost less time than it takes to relate it Dick found himself standing at his door, in dressing gown and trousers, trying to instill some calmness into the troubled breasts of Mrs. Fielding, her daughter, the cook and the housemaid—for Mrs. Fielding had aroused the servants, there being comfort in numbers, even scared ones.

"Stop here," said Dick. "I'll go down. If he doesn't use arms I can manage him!"

So saying, he moved quietly down stairs, and the women, afraid to be left by themselves, followed him at a respectful distance. A few moments and the darkness had swallowed up Dick's form. An anxious interval followed, during which nothing could be heard.

Suddenly there were a crash of crockery and a savage exclamation; then another crash; then a whole series of crashes. The cook and housemaid shrieked with fright. Mrs. Fielding grasped the banisters and trembled. Ethel trembled, too, for Dick—yes, for Dick. She loved him; she knew it now. His life was in peril.

The house was filled with sounds of the struggle. A desperate fight was going on in the passage leading to the kitchen. The women could dimly discern the forms of the two men who, breathing in short, quick gasps, were struggling furiously for the mastery. Backward and forward they swayed, with clinched teeth and straining muscles. Still the women dared not move. The couple had fought their way down to the extreme end of the passage and were close to the scullery door. Suddenly a pistol shot rang out, there was a cry, a splintering of wood and a crash of glass, and the two vanished.

A few seconds later Dick returned, his dressing gown half torn off his back.

"He got away," he exclaimed. "But he didn't take anything. I'll get some things on and be off to the police station."

The women gazed at their hero with fond, admiring eyes. Once again they breathed freely. Slowly they moved up stairs—all but Ethel.

"Are you hurt?" she asked him, with infinite tenderness in her voice.

"Only a bruise or two," he replied. "I'll soon set the police on his track. But first"—

He took her hand in his.

"I said I would not leave the house," he began.

Ethel looked swiftly up the stairs to make sure they two were unobserved. Then she bent forward, quickly breathed "Yes" in his ear and fled to her room.

* * * * * *

The police never caught the burglar, who got back to Friar's Court quite safely, after catching the earliest train from a roadside station six miles from Market Norbury.

Ethel quite meant her "Yes," and in due time was married to the "man in possession," much to the cook and housemaid's wonderment.

And Mr. John Blunt, reading the wedding announcement, chuckled softly to himself.

"It was a good idea of Dick's!" was all he said.—Tit-Bits.

A CASE OF MURDER.

Bruised Body of Mrs. Sarah Collins Found on the Beach at Lynn.

Indications of a Fierce Struggle With Her Slayer

Police Have Not Yet Secured the Slightest Clue to Work Upon.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 31.—The remains of a woman, so disfigured that her face failed to identify her, were discovered on Lynn beach, near Nahant, about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. A few hours later, one who had known her so well that her poor, shabby clothing was his means of identification, saw the corpse at the undertaker's, and said: "It is the Collins woman."

"That Collins woman" was Sarah Collins, 28 years old, married and a mother. It was found that she had a mother and two brothers, all poor, hard-working people; a husband, sickly and unable to labor, and a boy 7 years old. Liquor was her curse. Otherwise there is no complaint against her. She was said to be good natured and bright. She had never been arrested.

With the facts picked up it appears that she left home to go to Nahant Saturday night and intended to return; that she did not return; that no one is at hand who saw her go to the beach; that her people heard no more about her until long after the doctors had examined her body. The police confess to no clew. The city marshal is convinced that it is murder. It was of such a character that none but a man could have done it.

Scanning the woman's past, which, if not a happy one, had only the taint of intemperance on it, the police can find no man who could be seized upon as a probable perpetrator of the crime, or any man whose relations with the woman were such that she would consent to habit such a lonely spot as the scene of her sad death at that hour of the night, or early morning, when the deed must have been done.

That she struggled with a man signs show. The man is the key of the mystery. The first the police heard of the case came by telephone a few minutes after 6 o'clock in the morning. The man, on the other end said that a body had been tossed up by the waves at the foot of Nahant street. Officers Colby and Kennedy went down to the beach and looked at the body. They saw that the water had touched it; that it was still warm, and that blood had not ceased to flow from its wounds, although the heart was still. Benjamin Ringwood, a colored man, who found the body, Officer John E. Smith and several others were on the scene at the same time.

For about 60 rods along the beach there is a wooden breakwater about eight feet high. A plank walk is built along this breakwater to give a footing for persons who wish to move along the beach. Sticking in the beach, about four feet from the foot of the breakwater, is a row of piles. Between the piles and the breakwater is a ditch, which is filled with large stones.

The body lay at the foot of the breakwater, between it and the piles, and prone on the rocks. It was almost opposite the foot of Nahant street. It looked as if the woman had fallen, was pushed, or was thrown from the walk on the top of the breakwater, and had pitched into the ditch of rocks, striking on the right side of her head. It lay on one side. The limbs were not stretched out, but gathered together in a contracted way.

The clothing was disarranged in such a way that the body was somewhat exposed. It was a pitiable sight. The right side and upper part of the face had been crushed in. There were several small cuts and one great one, all favoring the right side of the face. It was 6:30 then, and the body was still warm. Blood dripped from the wounds. It had collected in pools on the stones near the foot of the breakwater. It besmirched the stones all around the body. There were finger marks in blood on the stones and on one of the piles.

It was plain even to those who guarded the corpse, and dared not touch it till the proper authorities gave the word, that the woman had been dead not long, that she had lived after receiving her injuries and that she had crawled around until she had no strength, and lay still until life slowly ebbed away.

Up on the breakwater those who were there found several things. They found a woman's straw hat, with a large dent in it. They found in it half a hat pin. It had been broken. They found the other half of the pin and a whole pin elsewhere on the top of the breakwater. They also found a small piece of green velvet near the hat. All these were signs of a fierce and bitter struggle, which ended with the woman's fall to the rocks below. The bits of green velvet matched the green velvet trimming of the woman's dress. She wore a brown waist and a black skirt. Her shoes and the rest of her attire were very shabby and ill-kept.

One other thing the early arrivals observed. A handkerchief was twisted around the throat. Marshal Wells says it was not tight enough to choke. Officer John Smith says it certainly was tight enough to choke.

After the medical examiner had seen the body it was carried to Hazen & McGovern's office, near the police station. There an autopsy was performed. The autopsy disclosed the fact that the woman had been dead, when found, about three hours, as nearly as could be determined from the condition of the body, and that the cause of death had been the shock and hemorrhage resulting from the wounds. These wounds were as follows: A deep cut, or tear, extending from the outer corner of the right eyebrow to the root of the nose; the frontal bone of the skull fractured where this wound commenced; the nose was broken at the base and the upper jaw was also completely broken in two places; there was a cut on the upper lip and a bruise on the chin, and extending downward in a sort of semicircle from the outer corner of the right eyebrow were four small marks, or bruises, that resembled somewhat the wounds that might be made from the nails of a boot heel. There were several bruises on the top and back of the skull; both eyes were discolored and closed. Her brain had hardened somewhat from the use of stimulants, and she had what is called an alcoholic liver. Otherwise she was healthy and had no injuries internally. The great cut ending in the nose ended in a puncture, which might have been made by some blunt weapon. The body lay unidentified until 2:30, when Officer Donahoe recognized it by the clothing.

The woman's husband was John Collins, a local shoemaker, and she had not lived with him since last November, when he was sentenced to seven months in the house of correction for larceny. Since his release he had been unable to make a home for her, and they consequently lived apart, the wife making her home with her mother and unmarried brothers.

Fatal Railway Smashup.

Orange, Mass., Aug. 31.—A wreck occurred at this station yesterday morning on the Fitchburg road, about half a mile east of this depot. The so-called paper train ran into an extra freight, both trains being westbound. The freight train was passing from the westbound to the eastbound track to let the paper train pass, when the latter, running 40 miles an hour, rushed out of the fog and struck the freight at an angle, throwing the paper train engine high on the bank, demolishing it and 12 loaded freight cars. The freight brakeman claims to have gone back with lights and torpedoes, but the fog was so dense that the signals were not observed in time. Engineer M. W. Clements of Charlestown, on the paper train, was killed instantly, and Fireman George Fowler has three holes in his skull. His ribs were crushed in and his left leg fractured. The freight was in charge of Conductor Richardson and Engineer Simons, who said they used every precaution to protect their train, but the fog prevented the signals being seen. The estimated loss to rolling stock is $40,000.

Creditors Would Like to See Him.

Boston, Aug. 31.—A week ago last Friday morning M. Slootmaker, a prominent real estate owner at Allston, packed his traveling bag, and after announcing his intention of visiting friends in New Hampshire left the house. Since that time his whereabouts have been but a matter of conjecture. At present, a prominent Brighton builder, two Allston plumbers, a painter, a mason and several officials of a loan company are mourning his departure, it being claimed that Slootmaker left behind unpaid bills to the amount of about $25,000. His various pieces of property, including 16 houses and several parcels of land, have been attached by creditors, who seek by this method to obtain payment of their bills.

Thieves Confess.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Charles A. Gasgell and Fred Gillispie, who were arrested at Nashua, N. H., for alleged connection with the robbery of money and jewelry, valued at $1000, belonging to Mrs. Emma Wilson, have confessed their guilt and were each held in $1200 bonds for a hearing on Sept. 9.

Short and Sweet.

Boston, Aug. 31.—William, better known as "Spike" Sullivan, and Frank Keefe, featherweights, fought in a grove near this city at an early hour Sunday morning for a stake. Keefe was knocked out in the middle of the second round with a left hand hook-punch on the jaw.

May Be a Hoax.

Revere, Mass., Aug. 31.—A bottle containing a note, which stated that the brig Falcon was sinking in midocean, was picked up in the breakers on the beach yesterday. The note may be a fake.

A Close Call.

Boston, Aug. 31.—The yacht Torment of Revere, while on a cruise to Gloucester, foundered off Egg rock yesterday afternoon, and the crew of five men narrowly escaped drowning, being saved by a passing yacht.

Russian Foreign Minister Dies While Traveling With the Czar.

pany of the czar at the time of his death, and his demise was wholly without warning. Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky pursued a strong foreign policy—a policy which was regarded in some quarters as threatening the peace of the world. Besides his political work, Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky devoted his leisure hours to the study of, and to the writing of works on Russian history. The tour which he had planned to take with the czar through the countries of western Europe was expected to be most far-reaching in results affecting the settlement of the eastern question. His death at the present juncture is regarded as a most dramatic and important event, upsetting, as it does, all possibilities of conferences between the foreign ministers of the great powers and compelling the czar to change his plans concerning his tour through Germany, France and England.

Sugar From Hawaii.

New York, Aug. 31.—The four-masted ship Roanoke (of Bath, Me.), Captain Hamilton, arrived yesterday from Honolulu, after a passage of 124 days. The Roanoke is the largest American ship afloat. She was built by Arthur Sewall of Bath, Me., and registers 3400 tons. She brings a full cargo of Hawaiian sugar, shipped by Claus Spreckels and consigned to the American Sugar Refining company, being the largest cargo of sugar ever brought to this port by any one vessel, amounting to 88,000 bags. She carries a crew of 36 men all told.

Glass Workers Will Strike.

Beaver Falls, Pa., Aug. 31.—A meeting of the employes of the Rochester tumbler works was held in Freedom yesterday, and by an almost unanimous vote, it was decided not to accept the 20 per cent reduction proposed by the firm. The reduction included every employe of the plant and was to take effect this morning. The men, at the request of the company, agreed to work out the glass now in the pots at the old wages, after which they will refuse to continue until their old wages are restored.

A Miniature Race War.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 31.—Some officers arrested several negroes at Camp Hill and started with them to jail, when a large body of negro sympathizers attacked them. Neighboring whites came to the rescue of the officers, and a spirited fight ensued, in which guns, fence rails, rocks and sticks were freely used. The negroes were finally repulsed. Four or five men, most of them negroes, are said to have been killed or fatally injured. More trouble is expected.

Probably Killed by a Kick.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 31.—Officer Valorous O. Sayward died suddenly yesterday from what is believed to be the effect of a kick in the stomach, which aggravated chronic ailments. Saturday night he arrested Edward Miller, charged with assault and stealing a horse. In the patrol wagon Miller fought hard and kicked the officer, who was unable to continue on duty. An autopsy will be held.

Another Aeronaut Killed.

Toledo, Aug. 31.—Edward Cole, an aeronaut of this city, was drowned in Maumee bay yesterday after an ascension. His companion, who was billed as Josie Carmel, was saved by her life preserver. The balloon rose from the Casino, on the bay front, and was about three miles out when the tragedy happened. Thousands of people witnessed the tragedy from the Casino grounds.

Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. William Clements, pastor of the Baptist church in Buxton Centre, Maine, a former resident of Quincy, preached an impressive sermon in the Presbyterian church on Water street last evening from the text: "They that be wise shall shine as the sun; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." There was a large congregation.

The pastor announced that there would be a lawn fete at the manse on Quincy street, Tuesday evening, given by the "Pastor's Helpers" circle of King's Daughters.

The evening service at this church will begin at seven o'clock with next Sunday, when the pastor will preach a sermon appropriate to the opening of the schools, the subject being, "What we should seek to know." Parents, teachers and pupils are especially invited to be present.

Seriously Injured.

Frank Garbrino, residing on Newcomb street, was seriously injured on the Point route of the Quincy & Boston street railway, Sunday. He was a passenger on the 2 o'clock downward trip and on account of the crowd rode on the foot board and while passing the turnout at Mahoney's blacksmith shop was struck by the rear end of the car on the turnout.

He was thrown violently to the ground and received scalp wounds and abrasions of the arms and lower body and rendered insensible. He was attended by Dr. Hunting who dressed his wounds, and later was removed to his home. He suffered considerably during the night, but is more comfortable today, though compelled to remain as still as possible.

Party at Germantown.

A very pleasant occurence at Germantown, Friday evening, was the party given by Master Howard Kimpton. "The Priory" was alight with the glow of many lanterns and alive with the merry crew of youngsters till a late hour. Just before refreshments were served, as expressions of their esteem and tokens of their affection, his playmates presented him with two gold rings. One was delivered after appropriate remarks by Miss Annie Rideout, and the other by Miss Fannie Barnett. Solos and readings were enjoyed.

Three-Horse Hitch.

There is now a three-horse hitch on the steam fire engine. The change was made on Saturday and that evening there was a trial spin to City Square and up Quincy avenue, which was satisfactory. The three powerful horses are a hard team to hold and the driver will have his hands full on the road to fires. The heavy apparatus was two much for two horses, especially on the long runs.

Bicycle Parade.

The bicycle parade in Boston on Saturday was well worth seeing. On some of the thoroughfares it was impossible for the bicyclists to make a good show, but on Beacon street the crowd was small and the street in good condition, and there was variety enough to be interesting. It took one hour and thirty minutes to pass.

THE CITY SHOCKED

At the Untimely Death of Mr. James Edwards.

One of the Wealthiest Gentlemen of Quincy.

A Well Directed Bullet Causes Instantaneous Death.

James Edwards, dead by his own hand, was the startling news at midday on Sunday. It seemed almost incredible and people were slow to believe it, but it was too true.

The rash deed was committed at his pretty residence on School street about 11 A. M., almost in the presence of his son James L., and a well directed bullet from a revolver caused instantaneous death.

His family noticed on Saturday that he was depressed, but no more so than on some previous occasions. Sunday morning he was up as usual and entered into plans to entertain guests at dinner, but it was observed that there was something on his mind, and his son, James L. Edwards, realized that he was not himself a short time before the shoting. While dressing, the son upon a visit to the bath room discovered a strange revolver, and that it was at full cock. He reduced it to half, and wondered at it being there, but his father entered and said he was only examining it, and took it away from him. The son realized it was useless to offer resistance but resolved to dress quickly and summon help. Both went to their rooms, but they had scarcely done so before Mr. Edwards rushed back into the bath room, and the fatal report followed.

The son discovered that his father had shot himself, and hurried for a doctor. None of those in the neighborhood were at home, but Dr. Hunting was upon the street and he was the first to arrive, and at about the same time Chief of Police Hayden.

Dr. Hunting, and Dr. Gilbert who came a few minutes later, said death had been instantaneous. The bullet had entered near the right temple and came out near the left, and had entered the wall of the bath room.

No cause is known at this time for the rash deed. Mr. Edwards enjoyed the best of health, but one sick day being recalled in many years. He has speculated considerable, but is not known to have lost any large sum of late. In fact his family knew very little about his financial transactions.

His old business partner, Mr. George A. Brackett of Chestnut street, probably enjoyed his confidence more than any other man, but he was greatly surprised to learn of the shooting, and thought it must have been done on impulse. He was quite sure Mr. Edwards had not met with any large loss. In fact he had told him with n a week that he had got his finances well straightened out, and felt easier than for some time. Years ago he was a heavy purchaser of New England Railroad stock. At the time of the assessment, he was obliged to sell considerable of it at a sacrifice to meet the assessment, and he never quite forgave himself and often spoke of it. Mr. Edwards dropped into Mr. Brackett's office in Boston last Friday and the conversation was mainly upon McKinley's letter. Mr. Edwards said he had read it aloud to impress it more fully upon him. Mr. Brackett called his attention to the speech of ex-President Harrison in the paper that morning and read extracts from it.

Mr. Bracket says Mr. Edwards had a life insurance of $60,000. That a short time ago he was insured for $100,000 but some had matured.

The death of Mr. Edward's only brother a year or more ago has caused Mr. Edwards some anxiety.

The deceased was born in Quincy and was in his 68th year. He went to California in 1850 around the horn at the time of the discovery of gold and was away two years. Upon his return he worked for the leather firm of Johnson & Thompson in Boston, and was later a member of the firm. He was then in partnership with Mr. Quirin, under the firm name of Quirin & Edwards, and later was associated with Mr. George A. Brackett of this city in the same business. Of late he has been interested solely in his investments and stocks, and is thought at times to have been worth many hundred thousand.

His only public office was as Representative to the General Court from the Weymouth and Quincy district, being elected by the Republicans.

He was a member of the First church and a very regular attendant. Appeals for charity to him were seldom put aside. He was kind hearted and devoted to his family.

Mr. Edwards leaves a widow and four sons, Henry, James L., William and Warren. Also one sister, Mrs. Harriet Kibreth, of Bryantville, Mass.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday from his late residence on School street at 2 P. M The burial will be private.

—The Republicans of Essex County will hold a grand rally at Salem Willows, today, August 31. Gov. Wolcott, Senator Lodge and others will speak on the issues of the campaign.

Ten-Innings Game.

The Pirates of South Quincy added another to their string of victories Saturday at South Quincy, by defeating the Ramblers of South Boston, in a 10 innings game, by a score of 2 to 0. The battery work of both teams was excellent, as was also the fielding of both sides. Neither side had an error to its credit.

The Pirates will probably play in Braintree Tuesday if pleasant.

Atlantics, 4; T. R. & S. Co, 3.

A very close and exciting game of ball was played Saturday between the T. R. & S. C. and the Altantic ball team. It was hotly contested from start to finish, the features being the battery work of both teams. Curran, formerly of the Warrens, pitched for Atlantic, striking out 13 of the Tubular boys, while Duffy mowed down 10 of the Atlantic colts.

Sales Talk

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than accorded any other proprietary medicine. This is simply because it possesses greater merit and produces greater cures than any other. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story. All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest. We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have abiding confidence in it, and buy

Warmth

For Cool Summer Evenings.

It doesn't pay to take too many chances; don't tamper with human nature. A sneeze or a chill may mean lots of care, worry or sickness for some one of your family. It's just a bit too early to think of lighting a furnace fire, and yet the evenings are a trifle cool and uncomfortable. No shortcomings or faults with the BANNER HEATER, it's especially adapted for your wants. Takes the chill from your room in a twinkling. In fact it insures your health, adds to your evening's comfort, saves you lots of bother, and the total expense is but $5.00

What Does Durgin Say?

Advertising pays—if it is done right.

We have reason to know that our announcements in this paper are read with care. We hear from them every day—many times.

We strive to make our advertising attractive in two ways: First, by the manner in which it is "put together," so to speak, and, second, by scrupulously living up to every statement made.

If we advertise certain goods at a special price you won't find us "all out" within an hour or two after opening the sale.

Take, for example, Toilet Soaps, Whisk Brooms, and Sponges displayed in our window.

Quincy Leads the State.

Our city schools have a national reputation and our private schools are not unknown, but there is one institution of learning in the city that is a record breaker. Three years ago the Young Men's Christian association opened an evening school, designed particularly for the granite cutters. The course included free hand drawing, monumental designing and clay modeling. The first year was a marked success, and as a result of the work done the International convention gave Quincy the award of merit in drawing and clay modeling, for the best work done by any association in cities under 25,000 population in North America.

Now comes a further recognition. The International committee, through its educational committee, of which Fred B. Pratt, of Pratt institute, is chairman, has recently issued its annual educational report.

In its reference list of associations doing especially good work, Quincy is mentioned twice, free hand drawing and clay modeling. It is the only city in Massachusetts, Boston included, which is mentioned, and is probably the smallest city in the whole list of the North American Association.

In the same report there is published a paper prepared by Mr. George B. Hodge, educational secretary and read at the recent annual gathering conference of secretaries, held at Cleaveland, Ohio. It is entitled "Transatlantic Sidelights on Evening School Work." After mentioning the various evening schools for the various trades in London, Geneva, Dresden and Berlin, he says.

"In this specialization there is a broad field of usefulness for our association. The Granite Cutters' school in the association at Quincy, Mass., is but an instance of many specialized efforts that should be in operation among us, along the lines of the various leading industries."

Every member of the Quincy association and everyone who contributed to its support has reason to feel gratified with this recognition. There is a much wider field of usefulness still, and the question whether the association shall take advantage of it depends entirely upon the citizens. While Quincy has many schools, it has nothing in the way of a Technical or Industrial school except that which has been inaugurated by the association. Few cities have a better opportunity to help the young men engaged in the leading industry. From an artistic stand point the granite business has an almost unlimited scope. Each year there is more and more artistic effect sought for, and the quality of the workmanship enters into consideration as well as the quality of the material.

Tomorrow we will give our readers a prospectus of the courses of studies which the association proposes to offer the young men and boys of the city during the coming fall and winter.

TODAY'S COURT.

It was a great day for drunks, the following paying the usual fine of $5: Andrew Halbert, Andrew Salberg and George French, for drunks at Quincy.

Seven were brought in from Milton, all in one batch, for disturbing the peace, viz: Alfred H. Hodgson, Charles Stevens, James J. Dowd, Alex. McFarland, James Campbell, James Hodgson and John McCarthy. Each plead guilty and paid $5.

The case of Dennis Noonan of Holbrook for trespass was continued until Tuesday.

Thomas Hastings and Patrick Duggan were arraigned for drunk at Quincy. Case continued until Tuesday.

Daniel W. Crowley of Weymouth for drunk had his case continued one day.

John Donohoe of Braintree was also given a day to raise his fine for drunk.

The case of George W. Wilson for malicious mischief at a house owned by Michael P. Good which he occupied, was dismissed because of a misnomer, the defendant saying his name was George Wilson.

There was a hearing upon issuing a new warrant, W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., appearing for Mr. Wilson. Mr. Good claimed he gave permission to add a shed to the house and widen the barn. Wilson failed to pay his rent and was ordered out. He took down the shed and damaged the house, spliting the gutter off, etc. Some boards had been removed, doors removed, fruit trees damaged, etc. The defence was a general denial. Judge Humphrey refused to grant the warrant.

Four and One-half.

The city of Everett is again offering its notes for $50,975. Notes of this amount were offered by the city treasurer July 30, at 4 p. c., but no bids were received. The city has now inserted a gold clause in the notes and increased the rate to 4 1-2 per cent.

It will be remembered Quincy sold her 4s at a premium.

SULTANS' RASH DOINGS

Have Furnished British Politicians With Plenty to Talk About.

Zanzibar Bombardment and Constantinople Riots

Both Due to Intrigues Instigated by the Semi-Civilized Rulers.

London, Aug. 31.—Politically, the past week has been the liveliest in a long time past. The bombardment of the palace of the Sultan of Zanzibar, the rioting in and about Constantinople, the settlement of the troubles in Rhodesia, the beginning of the czar's tour of the European capitals and the advance of the British expedition up the Nile have provided columns of interesting news daily.

The Zanzibar incident and the Constantinople massacres came like a couple of tornadoes, the British press is unanimous in expressing the opinion that the attack upon the Ottoman bank has done immeasureable harm to the Armenian cause, and news of fresh massacres of Armenians in the provinces as reprisals is hourly expected. The liberal newspapers, however, express the gravest doubts at the genuineness of the bank affair. They believe it was got up by agents' provocateurs. The Speaker says: The official account, ascribing the affair to the Armenian agitators, is stamped in every detail as a falsehood, and certain proof that it is a tissue of lies is that the assailants of the bank, after their capture, were removed on board Sir Edgar Vincent's yacht. This is not the way the sultan deals with rebels caught red-handed. If these prisoners really revolted against the sultan they would not have lived 10 minutes after their surrender, and the irresistable conclusion is that the men were secretly acting under palace orders, and that the riot was promoted in order to afford an excuse for another massacre.

Regarding the bombardment of the palace of Zanzibar, it appears that the government, in spite of the pressure brought to bear upon it from jingo quarters, does not intend to make Zanzibar a British colony. The present sultan is a mere figurehead in the hands of the British officials and the present system of government is much cheaper than a colonial government, and it will please the natives better, as they want to live under a Mohammedan sultan. The greatest difficulty in the way of a colony at Zanzibar is in the fact that it would entail the immediate abolition of slavery, which would be certain to lead to trouble.

Said Khalid, the suppressed usurper, made a very clever move in taking refuge in the German consulate, as, according to the German press, he will only be handed over to the British on the latter's guarantee that he will be treated, if not as a prince waging war against Great Britain, at any rate as a political prisoner. Thus he cannot be executed, a consummation of the trouble which would be approved by the merchants of Zanzibar.

Emperor William and his minister for foreign affairs, Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, have had a long conference on the subject of the bombardment of Zanzibar, which has afforded a splendid opportunity to the Anglophobe section of the German newspapers. The Tageblatt, for instance, speaks of "England's brutal action," and other newspapers indulge in similar comments.

According to the latest news from Zanzibar, Said Khalid has had a revolutionary centre at Zanzibar for months past, in a mosque near the French consulate, and had been waiting for an opportunity, which was furnished him in the death of the sultan, to make an outbreak.

A dispatch to The Daily News from Constantinople gives a personal interview with Frank Barker, who was left, in the place of Sir Edgar Vincent, as a hostage during the negotiations between the Armenian leaders in the Ottoman bank raid and the Turkish officials. The dispatch says: Frank Barker stated that the invaders told him that they intended to seize the Credit Lyonaise officers and explode a bomb there. It was part of their plan to raid the Voivolda police station at the same time. The bombs were to be exploded at the police station simultaneously with the attack upon the Credit Lyonaise. However, the men detailed for the attack on Credit Lyonaise at Constantinople had nothing to do with the killing of the Armenians. The mobs consisted entirely of the lowest classes of Constantinople and its suburbs, lazzaroni, the kurea and the men who work along the wharves of the city. It is estimated that over 4000 persons were killed. Stamboul has been covered with revolutionary placards, evidently posted by the Young Turkey party. Serious trouble is expected tomorrow, the anniversary of the sultan's accession.

A dispatch to The Post from Constantinople says: Members of the Armenian revolutionary societies threw a bomb on the premises of the Credit Lyonaise and the Tobacco syndicate Saturday night. The amount of the damage is not reported.

Seals Fast Disappearing.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 31.—A member of the government commission, appointed to investigate seal fisheries in northern waters, writes that the herds have diminished to an insignificant fraction of their former proportions. The North American Commercial company will be unable to secure more than 15,000 skins on the Pribyloff islands this season.

Hilton Buys From Hilton.

New York, Aug. 31.—The Hilton, Hughes & Co. building at Broadway and Ninth street has been sold by Albert B. Hilton to his father, ex-Judge Henry Hilton. The consideration is said to be $700,000, which is presumed to be merely the sum over and above the indebtedness of the firm to Judge Hilton.

After Many Months.

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 31.—Two young men, while walking in a field outside the city yesterday, discovered the badly decomposed body of a man. Later the body was identified as that of Lawrence Dwyer, 74 years, who disappeared Jan. 29 last, and probably froze to death.

Cretans' Wants Gratified.

Athens, Aug. 31.—The settlement accepted by the sultan in the matter of reforms in Crete virtually concedes all that the Cretans have demanded.

"Everybody Likes It."

BattleAx PLUG

A GREAT BIG PIECE FOR 10 CENTS

Everybody likes "Battle Ax" because of its exceedingly fine quality.

Because of the economy there is in buying it.

Because of its low price. It's the kind the rich men chew because of its high grade, and the kind the poor men can afford to chew because of its great size.

A 5-cent piece of "Battle Ax" is almost twice the size of the 10-cent piece of other high grade brands.

The Human Tie.

"Speak tenderly, for he is dead!" we say.
"With gracious hand smooth all his roughened past
And fullest measure of reward forecast,
Forgetting naught that gloried his brief day."

Oh, weary are the paths of earth and hard!
And living hearts alone are ours to guard.
At least begrudge not to the sore distraught
The reverent silence of our pitying thought.
Life, too, is sacred, and he best forgives
Who says: "He errs, but tenderly! He lives!"
—Mary Mapes Dodge.

The lark soars up in the air;
The toad sits tight in his hole,
And I would I were certain which of the pair
Is the truer type of my soul.
—F. Anstey.

Got In Car's Way.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 31.—Hugh L. Wade, aged 25, was riding a bicycle on the car track and going at a good speed. A car approached from the rear, and when the motorman sounded his gong, Wade appeared to become confused and turned, so his wheel was directly across the track in front of the approaching car. The car struck Wade, and before it could be stopped the forward trucks had passed over his body, fracturing his skull and mangling the body in terrible shape. Death was almost instantaneous.

Troublesome Foreigners.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 31.—As the result of a row between Assyrians and Italians, in East Worcester last night, two of the former nationality and three of the latter are at the city hospital with broken heads, arms and noses. None of them are fatally injured. The row grew out of a child's quarrel, in which the little one's mother took part. They were re-enforced by their husbands and the row quickly between general between the two colonies. The timely arrival of the police prevented any fatalities.

In a Pitiful Plight.

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 31.—Fred Bronson, 12 years; Charles Bronson, 7 years, and Alex McIntire, 7 years, were taken to their homes by the police yesterday in a dangerous condition from intoxication. The police had been raiding kitchen barrooms, the keepers of which had carried their hard liquors into a neighboring field. The boys saw them do this and helped themselves to the liquor, not anticipating serious effects. One boy may not recover.

Charged With Arson.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Fire Marshal Whitcomb has arrested George B. Albee, a prominent citizen of Medford, on a charge of being an accessory to the burning of two buildings during the past six months. Reuben Johnson, a colored man and servant of Albee, is charged with committing the offense under Albee's orders.

The People of Dads.

Fierce as they are in war, the people of Dads are when at peace the gentlest of creatures, extremely devoted to their children and living a home life absolutely unknown among the Arabs. Just as in appearance so in moral character do they excel, and the vices so common among the Moors are unknown in the homes of the Berbers. They seem to possess none of that uncontrollable passion that is so large a feature in the Arab character, and its place is taken by affection and sincerity. Seldom marrying more than one wife, prostitution is absolutely unknown, with the result that the health of the tribe is excellent, and one never sees those horrid disfigurements of feature so common in other portions of Marocco. No doubt to a great extent the moral character of the Berbers is due to the fact that their women are allowed entire liberty, do not veil their faces and mix on almost all occasions with the men.

One of the first things that struck me on my arrival at Dads was the good humored and innocent chaff that passed between the men and the girls of the tribe, even in the streets of the ksar, and still more when they brought us our food to the minzah on the housetop. The women are distinctly pretty, with very fair skins and clear complexions; but they detract much from their appearance by the strange manner in which they adorn their features with henna and kohl, the former a red dye and the latter antimony.—"Tafflet," by W. B. Harris.

THE GOLD DEMOCRATS

Expect to Carry Four States, According to Mr. Bynum.

Ex-Mayor Hopkins Working the Watterson Boom.

Should He Fail of Nomination Buckner Will Get Second Place.

Indianapolis, Aug. 31.—"How many states will the ticket nominated here carry?" was a question put to Mr. Bynum yesterday by a reporter.

"Four," replied Mr. Bynum, "Florida, Alabama, Texas and Kentucky."

"How about Louisiana?"

"Louisiana," he replied, "will go for McKinley."

Mr. Bynum expects the delegates and their friends to tax the capacity of Tomlinson hall, which will seat about 4000 people. It is the intention of the management to accommodate all the visitors if possible. With this purpose in view the tickets are being carefully guarded and none will be distributed for local use until the visitors are provided. From some of the states a considerable number of sympathizers with the movement are expected. Ex-Congressman Outhwaite of Ohio telegraphed yesterday that 20 gold Democrats would come from Columbus. The rooms at the leading hotels are all engaged, and it seems probable that the present expectations of the managers will be realized. From the lists of delegates being received at the headquarters it is evident that many of the prominent leaders of the party will be in attendance. Ex-Governor Flower of New York has telegraphed his acceptance of the post of temporary chairman, and it is practically decided that Senator Caffery of Louisiana will be permanent chairman of the convention.

Indianapolis as yet has not put on her gala attire in anticipation of the invasion of the gold men. The entrances to the two leading hotels are festooned with bunting and the rotunda of the Bates House is profusely draped, but beyond this the work of decoration has not proceeded. The decorations of the Bates House consist of a profusion of American flags hung from the balconies over a background of yellow bunting. Oil portraits of Cleveland, Tilden, Stevenson and Watterson, in gilt frames, form the neucleus for the festooned drapery. There is much of gilt in the effect, as emblematic of the spirit of the assemblage. This extends to the American flags, the stars of which are of gold. The decorations of Tomlinson hall, where the convention will sit, are about completed. In order to give the public an opportunity to listen to the oratory a mass meeting will be held on Wednesday night, which will be addressed by Colonel John R. Fellows and other prominent orators.

National Committeeman Krauthoff of Missouri says that the Missouri delegation will not urge Colonel Broadhead for president, mainly because the latter does not desire it. Mr. Krauthoff favors Ben T. Cable for permanent chairman of the national committee. Mr. Krauthoff has been here at headquarters for three days. He says there will be a meeting of the new national committee Friday after the convention, when a full membership is expected to be present, and that this will probably be the only meeting of the committee during the campaign. "It will be impracticable for the whole committee to meet again," said he, "as 40 states are represented and the distances are great. The probable result of the committee meeting will be the selection of an executive committee of 15 from the central and more accessible states, into whose hands the entire campaign will be placed. This executive can then name a permanent chairman, or can defer it for a time."

What little gossip has been going the rounds, regarding the vice presidential nomination, indicates that those now here regard General Buckner of Kentucy as a strong vote-getter, and in case Watterson should not be chosen for the head of the ticket it is understood that an effort will be made to have Buckner made the running mate of the northern nominee, no matter whether he should be from the east or west. All talk at the present time regarding candidates is rather speculative on account of the few men here, and those desire not to be placed in the attitude of dictating or making a statement before the arrival of the delegations.

Ex-Mayor John P. Hopkins has been industriously working the boom for Henry Watterson, and says that he has received a great deal of encouragement. He says that the movement for a third ticket was started by The Courier Journal three days after Bryan was nominated; that the object of the movement is to get votes in the middle west. In this convention, he claims that Watterson's lectures on Lincoln, his speeches to the Union soldiers and his general course for many years has been such as to win many votes from Bryan. "Then again," added Mr. Hopkins, "it is now only two months until the election. That is a short time in which to prepare for a fight, and the campaign for our ticket will necessarily be one largely of sentiment, and it requires a man with that personal magnetism that wins people to him. It is to be a campaign of education, and we must depend largely upon the newspapers to fight for us. It has been demonstrated that there is no one in this country better suited to wage a newspaper fight for principle than Mr. Watterson. I think he will be the strongest man in the states where we expect to do good that the convention can select. Illinois will probably not take the lead in presenting his name, for the reason that we should prefer his own state to do that. I do not know even if out state will give him its entire vote, although I think there is little doubt that our state convention will have instructed for him if a motion or resolutions to that effect had been passed."

How Bryan Spent Sunday.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. Bryan attended service at the First Presbyterian church in Jamestown yesterday morning and heard Rev. G. M. Colville, the pastor, preach a sermon from the text beginning: "He saw a great multitude." This was construed into a reference to the vast audience which Mr. Bryan addressed at Celeron, on Lake Chautauqua, Saturday night. After an experience with a female palmist at the Sherman House, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan left Jamestown on a trolley car for Lockwood, a summer resort on Chautauqua, six miles from this city. They were accompanied by A. M. Sherman, a local Democrat, and several other Bryan supporters. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were the guests at Lakewood of Norman E. Mack of Buffalo. They stopped at the Kent House, where a reception in honor of the Bryans was held. This morning the nominee and his wife took a trip up the length of Chautauqua lake by boat to Chautauqua, and from there they were driven across the country 16 miles to Ripley, on the Lake Shore railroad, where Mr. Bryan spoke. This afternoon they will continue their journey westward to Cleveland. Pickpockets have been following the Bryan party for some time. A number of people in the big crowd at Celeron lost pocketbooks and watches.

Herbert a Possibility.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The name of Secretary Herbert is being mentioned in connection with second place on the ticket to be named at Indianapolis during the coming week. It is said to be the result of Mr. Herbert's early announcement of his opposition to the Chicago ticket and to his efforts in Alabama to overcome the silver sentiment. A gentleman of high standing in public affairs states as a result of his talks with men prominently identified with the Indianapolis convention that there is a strong undercurrent of feeling among the leaders toward making Mr. Herbert the candidate for vice president in case a northern man is named for first place. The secretary is now in Europe.

SECRETARY HERBERT.

THE BUSY VICEROY

Visits the Tomb of General Grant---Trip to West Point Today.

New York, Aug. 31.—Li Hung Chang received his old friend, Colonel Forester, yesterday morning, and afterward a delegation of Mott street merchants paid their respects to the viceroy. In the afternoon he visited Grant's tomb, on which he laid a wreath, winding up the day's work by a visit to the house of Colonel Fred D. Grant, where he had tea and remained an hour.

General Porter, in speaking to the reporters about Li Hung Chang, said: "He is the most wonderful man I have ever met. It may seem that he takes little interest in anything, but although he is not demonstrative he is appreciative. He takes in everything. In fact, nothing escapes him. His memory is wonderful. He never forgets the face of anybody who is presented to him once. He has been greatly impressed with the high buildings on Broadway, with the clean streets, and very much so with the number of bicyclists.

Li Hung Chang left this morning on the dispatch boat Dolphin for West Point. He was accompanied by the members of his retinue and the officers of the United States government who are attending him during his stay in this country. Assistant Secretary McAdoo of the navy, and W. W. Rockwell, first assistant secretary of state, also went to West Point.

Saved Trouble of Trial.

New York, Aug. 31.—Patrolman William J. Miller shot and instantly killed a negro burglar last evening at 388 Third avenue, this city, where the negro had broken into a Chinese laundry. In the burglar's pockets were found pawn tickets for watches and rings recently pledged. It is thought by the authorities that the man had been a professional burglar of the most desperate type.

Jimmy Ryan of Cincinnati, after conceeding eight pounds in weight to Paddy Purtell of Kansas City, was knocked out by Purtell in the sixth round, near Kansas City. The men had signed to fight to a finish at welterweight.

THE BLUES.

A Graphic Description of the Dreadful Feeling.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute Misery—Where Doctors Make Mistakes.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:—

She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly; been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling. Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES. Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs. Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman. Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.

P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, Saves a Man From Becoming a Cripple.

Mr. Asa Ammons, a well-known citizen of Jacksonville, Florida, was afflicted by a terrible ulcer. Medical skill seemed unavailing in stopping the ravages of the terrible disease. The leg was swollen and intensely painful, as the ulcer had eaten its way down to the very bone. All medicines and treatments having failed to effect a cure, the doctors said the leg must come off. Just when it seemed that Mr. Ammons would become a disabled and a crippled man, he tried P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, and the result was wonderful.

P. P. P. SAVES HIS LEG.

"Jacksonville, Fla., July 1, 1895.—Two years ago I had the worst ulcer on my leg I ever saw. It had eaten down to the bone, and my whole leg below my knee, and my foot was swollen and inflamed. The bone was swollen and painful, and discharged a most offensive matter. My physicians said I had necrosis of the bone, and my leg would have to come off. At this stage I commenced to take P. P. P. and bathe my leg with hot castile soap suds. It began to improve at once and healed rapidly, and is to-day a sound and useful leg.

"I think P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, is all a man could ask for as a blood purifier, as I have known it to cure so meterrible cases of blood poisoning in a remarkably short time.

"ASA AMMONS."

TERRIBLE BLOOD POISON.

The body covered with sores—two bottles of P. P. P. made a positive and permanent cure. This is only one of many thousand similar cases.

Catarrh yields at once to P. P. P. That smothered feeling at night, that heavy feeling in the day—can and should be removed; P. P. P. will do it if you only give it a chance.

Indigestion and constipation go hand in hand. Headaches and total loss of appetite are the results. Regulate yourself and tone up your stomach with P. P. P.
